Sir,—I am a daily reader of the Examiner, and find it interesting reading letters with regard to the dog question. I certainly must say that although I am a young girl I am a lover of dogs and I especially admire the person who wishes the dogs to be let alone. As for the poor man being annoyed by straying dogs I should think that if he was any kind of a man he would take pity and feed the poor brute rather than let him starve or be killed. I would like to see such a man tied up for a while himself and see how he likes it, and then probably he would not be so anxious to see the dogs so cruelly treated. Now, we have a dog, and aside from being a faithful watcher he is a pet, and I take him to the car line with me every morning and he has become quite a favourite with everyone at the car line. Goodness knows we all need a watch dog, and maybe instead of giving him a dose of poison he would favour him with a little to eat. I must say that some people who want dogs destroyed would like to pay a little midnight visit to their neighbours, but would be afraid the dog'e would bite them. Now I sincerely hope the citizens of Peterborough who own dogs and like them would look into this matter and see that they are left alone.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,

A South End Girl.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

In reference to the letter of "Citizen" in Thursday's paper, I would like to suggest that he try Christian Science to see if that would get rid of his dog nuisance.

ABOUT PATRIOTIC PAY

To the Editor:—If this hould meet the eye of Mr. Dobbin, or anyone who is in the know, perhaps they would tell me why it is that Patriotic pay is stopped directly a soldier gets back to Canada, before he is discharged. I feel the pay should continue until the soldier is absolutely discharged. Now I don't know this is for absolute facts, but have heard it on several occasions. I have have also heard that Patriotic Pay stops when a soldier is home on leave. If this is true what is the reason? A soldier gets subsistence allowance for that time, but he gets nothing for his wife and family, so why stop the Patriotic Pay? Perhaps some person can tell me if these things are so and satisfy, Enquirer.

"It would seem that the proper place for 'Enquirer' to inquire would be at the office of the Fund, but the facts in regard are at his service, or service of any soldier or citizen who wishes to know. As a part of public business it is right that the public should be interested.

No, the Fund allowance is not stopped immediately on the soldier reaching Canada. Dependents are now on the Fund whose husbands have been back for over six months. Many such cases. Quite right, too. The soldier reaches the clearing Station, say Kingston, is given fourteen days leave, returns to Kingston and if in order, receives his discharge.

The rule is, (as the fund pay day is at the 15th of each month) that if the date of actual discharge be between the 1st and the 15th, payment is made for that month and the fund allowance ceases. But if the discharge is made after the 15th, then the dependent is paid for the current month, and also after middle of the month, this rule practically affords the dependent one month extra.

Dates of discharge are advised from Kingston and also from head office. But there are many cases in which the date of discharge is not notified. Men who have enlisted at Belleville, Brockville, Bowmanville, Cobourg, (though from Peterboro) are notified to the several places as noted. So the fact of discharge has to be learned from the dependent.

The Fund Allowance ceases on a pension being granted. We have had ceases on learning the facts. Again before the notice of discharge, or advice of discharge from the dependent reached the office. We have instances of discharge being given and pension being granted in the same month. The Fund allowances ceases on learning of thefacts. Again there is an impression that the Fund allowance should continue during the time of the payment of Post Discharge Pay or War Gratuity. This is not he case.

As to the matter of subsistence allowance. This allowance (now fixed at 80 cents per day) is granted to the wife for the board of her husband, while he is at home. And in lieu of his subsistence at some hospital, convalescent building or camp. The Government does not expect the wife to board the husband at her expense, and makes the allowance. Again, if the soldier comes home on leave of his own violition or at his own request, the allowance is not paid. Only when he is sent home, or from quarters. The money should be paid to the wife, but practically works out that it is paid to the soldier after his return to his quarters, leaving it to him to forward the sum to his wife, or mother, as the case may be.

The bearing the substance allowance has on the Fund allowance may be noted. Instructions from Head Office are that when subsistence allowance is being paid the Fund allowance is to be reduced to a sum not exceeding $12.00 in that case of wife and three or more children. Practically there have been very few cases where this rule has been applied, for neither the soldier or his wife gave notice that subsistence allowance was being drawn, and notice to the office came so late, possibly not for over a month that he mater was too old to take up. So the rule was practically non-observant. Besides it caused too much friction and annoyance to bother with.

Of course the enquiry has to do with the family income while the soldier is on leave. That certainty, it not lessened by the fact of his being at home, (assuming that he is, or his wife is) getting this subsistence allowance. If we take a case as allowances now stand, and "Enquirer" is writing of the present, the income, or money for support of the family of say wife and three children would be as follows:—Separation Allowance, $30.00, Assigned Pay, $20.00, Subsistence Allowance $24.00, Patriotic Fund, $12.00 and balance of pay due to the soldier over the Assigned pay. $13.00, in all $99.00, for the month. It is to be remembered that at one time the Separation Allowance was $20.00, afterwards $25.00 now $30.00.

I thank you for the space to make his explanation, but an explanation it does not explain leaves matters in a fog. Any case that is considered not to have had settlement with and in accordance with the rules will cheerfully be taken up and looked into. We (the Committee) do not make these rules, only apply them.

Respectfully,

F. H. Dobbin.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I read with deep interest the address of Mr. G. N. Gordon given before the Ministerial Association on Monday and in my humble opinion he struck the right note when he advised them to get in closer touch with the laymen of the church and they would find the same to be very helpful if they would take them into their confidence. For the day has already dawned upon the church when they must take a deeper interest in the toiler unless they want to lose their hold upon the masses of the people and if they do this they will be fully walking in the footsteps of the Carpenter's son of Nazareth. I hope they all will profit by the address and all the members of the church likewise that had the pleasure of reading the address in the local papers.

Yours truly,

W. Stevens,

Laymen.

Field Night For the Oddfellows

Visitors From District Lodges—New Candidates.

Last night was "field night" for the Peterborough District, I.O.O.F., which embraces Millbrook, Havelock, Lakefield, Pontypool and Norwood. Thirty-eight candidates, fifteen of whom belonged to Millbrook, were initiated into the society. The meeting was presided over by Mr. J. Londerville, D.D.G.M.

At the conclusion of the initiatory ceremony the visitors and Peterborough members were entertained at a banquet.

The Toasts.

"The King" was proposed by Mr. Londerville, "The Visitors" by R. N. Jones and responded to by Mr. Vance, of Millbrook, while the "Absent Brethren," proposed by F. Merritt, was taken in revered silence. A splendid humorous quartette was sung. Interesting addresses were given by members from Fenelon Falls, Havelock, Millbrook and Peterborough.

Presented Jewel.

At the conclusion of a very interesting and appropriate address by Mr. James Vallery, a D.D.G.M.'s jewel was presented to Mr. J. A. Londerville as a token of the appreciation of the members for the efficient services he has given during his long term of office.

An invitation was given to and accepted by Millbrook to come to Peterborough Oddfellows' Hall on the first Thursday in March to confer their initiatory degree.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

To Grow Hair On Bald Heads

Specialist Gives Simple Recipe That Works Fine.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness, and falling hair who having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and it also is unsurpassed for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Compose 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals one half drachm. Mix, and use as directed. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists and is absolutely harmless as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies using this prescription should be careful not to get it on the face or where hair is not desired.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts were 46 cars, with 839 cattle, 105 calves, 596 hogs, and 96 sheep and lambs.

Offerings of cattle were light yesterday. Probably in view of an easier tone to the market generally, and fat cows in particular some of the firms preferred holding their receipts over until to-day's market. Very little is doing as yet in the export business, awaiting developments in the New Jersey shipping strike.

War Veterans' Association Ask for Increase in Pensions

Equality of Treatment of Officers and Men Is Also Demanded—Vocational Training is Discussed.

OTTAWA, March 12.—C. G. McNeil, secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association appeared at the first meeting yesterday of the Parliamentary Committee on Soldiers' Pensions, and made a preliminary statement regarding the views of the veterans. Hon. N. W. Rowell presided.

Mr. McNeil said that attitude of the veterans was one of co-operation, which was more essential that criticism. He hoped to offer information which might be helpful. In general, it was the view of the veterans that pensions should be based on the cost of living. They considered the present scale inadequate, particularly with regard to widows and totally disabled, and thought it should be generous.

Basis of Pension.

In reply to Col. Hugh Clark, Mr. McNeil said their view was that the scale should be based upon the cost of living in various parts of the country; therefore it would not be uniform throughout Canada. He thought this would be quite practicable, although not established in any other country.

The present rate for widows and totally disabled men, it was pointed out, is $30 per month, and Mr. MacNeil gave it as his personal view that a totally disabled man with a family of five should receive $1,400 or $1,500.

Pensions to Orphans.

With regard to orphan children, Mr. McNeil expressed his view that they should be given equal educational advantages with those children whose parents are alive. They should therefore receive pensions up to 21 years of age.

Mr. Rowell asked if it would be a good thing to give pensions up to that age, and Major Andrews said the children of the disabled veteran and of soldiers who had died should be given the same educational advantages as the children of the rich. There was a short discussion upon the point, but Mr. Rowell pointed out that they would deal with the matter later; meanwhile they were simply hearing the views of the secretary of the Great War Veterans.

Considerable discussion arose over the question of pay during vocational training. The war veterans laid down the principle that men should receive full pay and allowance and their pensions as well while undergoing vocational training.

HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Webb of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and all agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and at first she refused to take anything, feeling convinced. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and to any woman who needs such a good it has done her—Mrs. W. D. Webb, 228 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Webb did, from nervousness, painful periods, backache, stomachs, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial, they would soon find relief from such suffering.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

A New Skating Rink for Lindsay

That a determined and enthusiastic effort will be made to have an up-to-date new skating rink erected in Lindsay was assured when a number of business men gathered together and formed a committee of two to gather information and proceed with organization plans. The following were appointed officers:

President—Mr. Jas. Boxall.

Secretary—Mr. E. Butler.

Secretary Butler was instructed to write to different towns and cities and secure an estimate of the cost of the best structures.

It is understood that there is a proposal to proceed with the formation of a stock company, and that the promoters of the scheme have already the names of several business men who will support the scheme.

HOW CANADIAN WOMEN discovered their own truly Canadian Sugar

A light, fluffy cake—it depends partly upon the sugar you use in it. Brown sugar makes a moist cake, powdered sugar a dry cake, granulated sugar a cake of the finest texture, Dominion Crystal Granulated the "just right" cake.

Use this finest of sugars—this "truly Canadian" sugar—not only for the cake itself, but for the icing too.

For the past 17 years Canada has been producing sugar refined from beets. Thousands of Canadian women have used this sugar, but many of them without realizing it. They asked their grocers for "sugar," designating no brand and they took whatever was given to them.

Then came the war—and the submarines sank so much raw cane sugar on its way from Cuba and the West Indies that Canadian refineries who had depended on cane were without adequate supplies.

Still the Canadian housewife had sugar for her table and in her kitchen—sugar of a superior quality. It seemed strange—and she inquired where the sugar was coming from. She learned that this fine sugar she was using was sugar refined from Canadian sugar beets—Dominion Crystal Sugar.

A PRODUCT UNTOUCHED BY HUMAN HANDS

The Canadian housewife who has used this sugar has found it to be all that sugar should be; and has accordingly adopted an attitude of extreme friendliness toward it, and pride in its use. It is a matter of pride that we have the ability to produce our own truly Canadian sugar from our own Canadian grown beets.

You should know more about this splendid Canadian product. You should read the whole interesting story as told in our beautifully illustrated book, "Sugar from Beet to Bowl." Those who can come, are welcome at any of our three refineries, welcome to see the whole process. For those who cannot come, we recommend a reading of our book, and the following of the sugar through its pages, from the time the juice is extracted from the beets, until the sugar is packed in bags as a refined white crystal. All through the process—the slicing of the beets, the extraction, the repeated purifying and filtering, the boiling, the drying, the cooling and the packing—all through this intricate system, not a single human hand is permitted to touch

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

This is the only sugar that may be rightly termed "Canadian from the ground up." We do import the finest of raw cane sugar and refine it—but our pride is in the product we make from Canadian sugar beets.

Pure, sparkling and finely granulated. A sugar that will give unfailing satisfaction in preserving, in baking, and for table use.

Most grocers have Dominion Crystal Sugar in the 20-pound bag as well as in the larger bags and barrels.

Most grocers take pride in selling this superior and truly Canadian product. Ask your grocer for it.

Write us for a copy of our interesting booklet: "Sugar from Beet to Bowl." It is free to any housewife who asks for it.

Old Boots.

The old boots and shoes that are cast into the dustbin have considerable value. They are soaked in water to remove the dirt, all the nails and threads are picked out, and the leather is reduced to a thick pulp, from which wallpapers, screens, etc., are made. The finer the original quality of leather the better it takes the bronze and old gold of the designs which make these hangings things of beauty. Bookbinders and framemakers also know the value of this pulp, and carriage builders press it into sheets which are invaluable for the roofs of the most luxurious vehicles.

WHY TIRED PALE RUN-DOWN WOMEN SHOULD TAKE NUXATED IRON

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women full of life, energy and charm—while those who lack iron are often cross, nervous, weak, irritable, tired-out creatures, whom nobody likes to have around.

In explaining why tired, pale, run-down women should take a short course of Nuxated Iron, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out-door Dept.), New York, and Westchester County Hospital, says: "Iron is absolutely necessary to enable the blood to change food into living tissue. Without iron, no matter what or how much you eat, your food merely passes through your body without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking—your nerves get 'on edge' and your whole system is impaired, making, in some cases, mental, physical or nervous collapse.

"Nuxated Iron—a scientific and widely advertised preparation of organic iron that your tonic ingredients—quickly helps the blood create new, blood cells, thus strengthening the nerves, rebuilding the weakened tissues and helping to instill renewed energy and endurance into the system, whether the patient be young or old.

"For anaemic women who would be stronger and more energetic, with steady nerves and rosy cheeks, Nuxated Iron is, in my opinion, the most valuable preparation any physician can recommend."

A MASTERPIECE IN MARBLE.

Wonderful Table Made by an Obscure French Sculptor.

There recently died at Ivry, a Paris suburb, a remarkable old man, a septuagenarian, named Fraisnard. He died in poverty, but had he chosen he could have become one of the most famous European sculptors. As it was, he finished life as he began it—more or less penniless. When a boy he was apprenticed to a marble cutter, and he at once discovered his powers in this direction. For fifty years he had continued to execute the most beautiful works of art, mostly in mosaics.

M. Fraisnard's masterpiece took him nearly twenty-four years to perfect. It is a black marble table. In the middle is a chessboard, on either side of which are playing cards arranged as fans. On the table are dominos and dice, cigars and cigarettes, and several coins in gold and silver. All these are of course inlaid. The materials in the table, besides the black marble, are agate, onyx, porphyry, malachite and lapus lazuli, the tones of which are black, red, orange, blue and white. Ninety different kinds of marble were also used.—London Standard.

INDIAN ATHLETES.

From the Race Standpoint They Are In a Class by Themselves.

Ask any expert to call the roll of American athletes and he immediately begins to include Indians in his list. The names of Bender and Sockalexis come to mind at once, and besides these there are Chief Meyers—whose real name is Tortes—Cayou, Hudson, the incomparable Thorpe and a dozen others.

The noble red man takes up room enough in athletic annals to furnish pride for a nation of many millions of people, yet the total number of Indians in the United States is only a little over 300,000.

That is the most astonishing part of the record. If the city of Washington should produce such a group of athletes as the Indians have done experts and scientists from all over the earth would come to the federal capital to learn the secret of its success. The entire Indian population of this country is less than that of Washington.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Eyes in Sickness.

The eye has a habit of registering the health. Thus a lack of luster, heavy lidded expression is generally the result of excessive fatigue or ill health; a dilated pupil usually means fever; a yellowish tint to the white of the eye bespeaks biliousness, while an extreme blueishness of the white is often an indication of impure blood or a scrofulous tendency.

There is no greater mistake than to try to brighten dull eyes with drugs or drops. Eyesight is too important to be tampered with, and even the common practice of putting a drop or two of cologne in the eyes to make them brilliant is injurious.

THE WIFE

BY [illegible]

Brian Engages His Old Office.

CHAPTER CXLI

That afternoon Ruth and her aunt left Brian for the first time. They had some shopping to do, and he had insisted they both go—that he was well enough to remain alone with Rachel and the baby.

But hardly had they left when he telephoned for a taxi, and with the help of the elevator boy he entered it. He was gone about an hour. His errand had exhausted him, and when Ruth and Mrs. Clayborne returned he was fast asleep on the couch.

That night he said:

"I went downtown to-day."

"What!—you went where?" they asked in chorus.

"I went down town and engaged my old office. I found it vacant." His voice was expressionless.

"But Brian, you aren't fit to work yet and I"—Ruth was about to tell him of the plans she had made; the nice office she intended to fix up for him. But his action hurt her, so she said nothing. That he would go out and engage that old place without saying a word; not even taking her into his confidence. She had no slightest idea that what she herself had that morning told him, had precipitated his action. That but for that, he would never have done as he had—not until he was stronger anyway.

So already, brain at cross purposes, they spent the evening almost in silence, Ruth's distress augmented by the fact that her aunt had received a telegram calling her South to attend to some business, and that she was going the next day.

"Everything seems to be going wrong," she said to herself with quivering lips. She had planned so happily to give Brian a nice, bright, comfortable office; and now he had gone and rented that dingy corner he had occupied before he had gone away. It would not help him much in that location now that he had come home with honors. Men with money didn't engage a lawyer who could not do business in decent quarters.

But she said nothing of these thoughts to Brian. There was something about his quiet, stern face that awed her a little—something different and strange. His brooding eyes followed her as she moved about the room, but he made no reply when she said she was going to bed as she must commence getting up earlier if she was not to be late to business.

"You better go too, Brian. Altho you can sleep as late as you like. Don't try to have breakfast with me." Since he had been able to get about he had insisted upon breakfasting with Ruth and Mrs. Clayborne. "Good night, dear; your trip down town was too much for you," she kissed him tenderly, and was annoyed that he did not return it with the same ardor he had shown ever since his return.

Her eyes filled as she turned away. Yet even the she in no way took his action as a reflection on anything she had done.

It was hours afterward that Brian came limping into the room. He dropped his crutch accidentally and wakened her. But she said nothing and he did not speak. Once after he had turned out the light he heard a long-drawn sigh. Then she spoke:

"Are you in pain, Brian?"

"No," curtly.

"I thought I heard you sigh."

"Go to sleep. It's nothing."

Ruth tried to sleep but couldn't. What ailed Brian? He had acted so [illegible] back in spite of his wound. He had been flattered by his friends; the papers had written him up and spoken of his bravery—calling him "A rising young lawyer" and he had appeared happy over all these things, as well as at being at home with her and the baby.

All day she tried to forget that Brian had been so different. Her work usually would have engrossed her to the exclusion of all else. Surely there was enough to claim her attention. But ever, between her and the reports and plans she studied, came his face, and at times the memory that he had talked of his plans with Mollie King, and had said nothing of them to her, his wife.

At night she hurried home. Her aunt would go at eight o'clock. When she arrived at home and, as usual, went to look after the dinner, Rachel said:

"Yo sholy missed seeing dat soldier man, Ile"—

"What soldier man?"

"Dat frien' of Massa Brian. He sholy one fine man."

"Why didn't your friend stay to dinner, Brian?"

"I didn't ask him."

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Bit of Ancient Chinese History That Is Decidedly Interesting Coming Just at This Time.

In the World Outlook Welthy B. Honsinger gave this entertaining bit of ancient Chinese history. It only goes to prove, once again, that "there is nothing new under the sun."

In olden times, when, as Barrie tells us, "the world was so young that pieces of the original eggshell still adhered to it," long before the Tai Pings or long-haired rebels ravaged this part of China, the two provinces of Kiangsi and Fukien were quarreling. The men went out to fight and left the women at home, even as we do today. The women did not know anything about planting crops or puddling rice fields. At first they just let things slide, hoping the men would soon return.

But the feuds grew fiercer and more men were called out. The fighting reached the Kau and Hsia Kiang. Finally all the strong men disappeared from their ancestral halls. In the swift years that followed the women found, to their surprise, that they could make the rice shops prosper. More junks were sailing up the river than in former days and clean little houses lined the shore for long distances.

But although everything was going beautifully and the women were making more money than they ever had before, the feeling gradually grew that no town could be complete without husbands.

A vote was accordingly taken and the majority decided that husbands should be imported.

Safer husbands from a neighboring clan. The women having conceived the scheme, worked it out lovingly. Husbands were soon given to understand that they were husbands only, and imported at that.

"We shall still be managers of our lands and rice shops. We will run this town and like that no home forbids the provinces. You are to look after the children." So the dictum ran and the men subsided into mere men and became useful to the community.

So the women managed with a high hand in Hsia Kiang, just as our men did in the Flint age. And the women in Hsia Kiang have kept on managing just as our men liked to manage a man-made world even to the present day.

Maine Producing Flour.

Flour mills, once fairly numerous in Maine, but largely eliminated by Western competition, are being restored through the operation of the war, the shortage of transportation facilities, the conservation of wheat flour and consequent food regulations, and the increased acreage of wheat in this state, says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. Maine people will once again have the opportunity of eating bread made of Maine flour ground in a Maine mill from Maine raised wheat. The increased wheat acreage in Maine this year has been simply astonishing. And there is a big demand for all the flour that can be ground from all the wheat raised in Maine this year. It is estimated that in rural Maine every year there is consumed about 175,000 barrels of flour, which has been shipped into the state from the West. The saving of cars for transportation for other commodities is therefore a very large one if the flour used could be raised and ground in Maine. Brewer, for instance, has an up-to-date flour mill which is turning out 40 barrels of flour in 24 hours. The mill, up to a year ago, was a sawmill. The wheat storage capacity is 5,000 bushels.

Speaking of Rumors.

According to an Amsterdam dispatch it is persistently being rumored that the kaiser is losing his mind.

Or another rumor that Christmas day will come on December 25 this year.

Or a persistent rumor that water is wet.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

If I Had Known—

By MAY BELLEVILLE BROWN

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Why don't you ask Carol Thurston to join your Merrymakers?" Aunt Luretta Fox asked Marianna Marks. "She's as young as a lot of your members, and she's never been in anything but the Ladies' Aid and the Patriotic Sisters."

"No, indeed," replied Marianna, with a toss of her auburn head. "She'll have to stay with the Ladies' Aid or else organize a League of Old Maids. She was born one anyway."

"Stuff and nonsense!" exploded Aunt Luretta. "Carol never had a chance. Her mother made her into a old woman, before she was through with her teething ring. We older women can't help her, but she might catch the habit of being young from you."

"The Merrymakers wasn't organized to do missionary work!" sniffed Marianna, as she flounced away.

Carol felt a bit wistful when word of the Merrymakers reached her. It was the first organization in Siloam Center which aimed to combine pleasure with profit and work. But she was very busy just then, as the Ladies' Aid was arranging a living calendar, and the Patriotic Sisters struggling to put a bust of Lincoln on the public library. "You are so much younger than the rest of us," the stock phrase which urged her on to effort in these societies.

Carol was thirty-two. True, that should not be considered old, but she had been the child of age, and whatever her masterful mother had thought or read or been, Carol shared with her. The only appreciable difference made in her life by the death of her mother was that all of Mrs. Thurston's old friends felt free to levy upon the daughter's time.

"The Merrymakers gave a progressive dinner last night," Aunt Luretta was making a morning call upon Carol. "You know—started with soup, that was at Fanny Bonner's, and had one thing at each house until they wound up with ice cream and cake at Marianna's."

"They seemed to be having a good time when they passed here," she replied, adding, to turn the subject, "We have only five dollars more to raise for our Lincoln bust, Aunt Luretta."

"Is that so?" Aunt Luretta asked absently. "They say that Marianna has her eye on Edward Lindsay, the new lawyer, and that he has his eye on the nomination for congress from this district. I fancy that Marianna would admire running in and out of the White House and meeting all the way-up folks down at Washington."

"Mph! If you like red hair and as bossy a way as ever was!" sniffed Aunt Luretta. "One thing, she's got enough brass to tell the president and all of congress how this government ought to be run. But I am forgetting my errand. Old Mr. Banks is worrying about the Harvest Home entertainment. You know, it's his tenth year as superintendent, and he's about out of ideas, besides being so old, so he wants help with the Sunday school. Marianna won't let the Merrymakers take it up—too poky, she says. So the Ladies' Aid just had to promise to help, and when we talked it over we decided, since we were all so busy and you being so much younger than the rest of us—"

Carol dropped the peach she was peeling and groaned.

"Aunt Luretta!" she rebelled. "The next time a Ladies' Aid or a Patriotic Sister says that to me, just to get me to do what she doesn't want to do herself, I'll—I'll have my front teeth pulled and take to crutches and bandages! I might as well, for all the being younger has ever brought me, except hard work."

"Why, Carol!" stammered Aunt Luretta. "I didn't—why, nobody thought—you always—"

"Yes," admitted Carol, dully, as she resumed her work. "I always have and I suppose I always will. I didn't mean to fly off—only the monotony of things gets on my nerves. I will be at the church—when did you say?—Thursday evening? Tell Mr. Banks to expect me."

Thursday evening was sultry with a fine choking dust suspended in the air. It was the last puffed effort of summer to assert its reign, and Carol walked with lagging steps, remembering the hammock under her shady arbor, but the Ladies' Aid had promised Mr. Banks her help. She knew that it would mean many hot evenings drilling restless children and decorating the church.

An automobile passed her with Edward Lindsay at the wheel. It shot ahead to the church door and stopped to let out a passenger, and Aunt Luretta had told her that he was to take Marianna Marks out to Crystal Spring that evening.

There was every probability that Edward Lindsay, however often he might meet Carol Thurston, would never take time to look at her with the seeing eye, but fate took a hand, with one of those happenings which wreck the nerves of a driver and which happen so often that the tale is almost too hackneyed to repeat.

Little Joy Nelson, who lived next door to Carol and who worshiped in her shadow, espied her in front of the church, and darted across the street, crying, "Miss Carol! Miss Carol! Miss Carol!" Just as the engine clashed and the wheels moved, the child rushed in front of the car, halting for a paralyzing moment, in the teeth of danger. Lindsay reversed, with a sickening sense that the act was futile. Then a slender figure stooped within his vision, and dragged the little body free of the wheel, which stopped the next second, just where the child had halted.

Then white and panting, Lindsay faced a blue dimity angel of deliverance, herself breathing a little hurriedly, as she stood with her arm about the frightened child.

"I can never thank you enough!" he stammered. "But you took a risk—the car might have struck you, too, miss—"

Carol looked gravely up into his face—it was a likable face, with cleancut features, steady gray eyes, and dark hair, graying a bit at the edges.

"I am Carol Thurston," she replied simply. "Joy is my little neighbor and I would take a greater risk than that for her, any time."

"I am Edward Lindsay," he informed her. "Won't you let me take you both to your destination?"

"We are here already," smiled Carol. "I am to help Mr. Banks prepare for our annual harvest home, and Joy is one of the Sunday school pupils."

Edward Lindsay lingered. The drive to Crystal Spring, in Marianna Marks' bracing company, did not allure. Just now, as he looked at the quiet young woman before him, with her smooth blond braids wound about her head, and her blue eyes both grave and smiling, he felt a sudden desire to help Mr. Banks.

"I used to be pretty good at that sort of thing," he suggested. "College theatricals, you know, and then I taught school for three or four years. I would be glad to help Mr. Banks sometime—if you—if he needs me. I shall ask him tomorrow."

And when Siloam Center gathered for the harvest home, to exclaim over the decorations and applaud the performers, no one knew the moving force back of it all; Carol, her hair loosened, her cheeks flushed, as she hurried about behind the scenes, soothing nervous children, encouraging, promoting, adjusting costumes; and Lindsay, bracing small boys weak from stage fright, and quieting mischievous ones.

That is, no one knew it until Mr. Banks made his annual speech, just before the last chorus. No one had ever listened to it, but tonight as he closed his acknowledgments, attention was breathless.

"In my years of service, I may say that this has been our most satisfactory entertainment, and I consider it due entirely to my assistants, Miss Carol Thurston and Mr. Edward Lindsay."

Siloam Center was pricked as by an electric needle by the innocent linking of these two names.

"They have not missed one evening since the rehearsals began," droned the speaker, "and they have furnished many ideas, which they carried out in training. Also, they planned and arranged the decorations, which have so beautified our auditorium, giving freely of both time and labor."

That was as far as any of the Merrymakers, at least, heard the speech.

"And Mr. Banks asked us to help him first!" gasped Fanny Bonner.

Out in the deserted classroom, unknowing of the sensation which had been created in the auditorium, Carol was gasping.

"If I had known!"

"If I had known," laughed Edward Lindsay, softly and fondly, as he held her hands, "that this old town held such a perfect woman—such a blessed wife as you will be—"

"If I had known," jubilated Aunt Luretta to Carol, later, "I couldn't have planned it better myself!"

Enormous Food Value of BOVRIL

Proved by World-Famed Scientist at instigation of British Government Department

The great body-building power of Bovril does not admit of argument. It is proved, just as the circulation of the blood is proved, or the law of gravity.

The independent experiments carried out by an eminent physiologist under the most complete scientific control, proved the notable body-building powers of Bovril. The experiments were conducted with human subjects, on a standard diet, and the increase in weight was never less than 10 (and it actually in some cases reached 20) times the amount of Bovril added to the diet.

This tremendous fact, tested and proved in every possible way, has given Bovril a unique place as one of the most precious food substances in the world.

Plenty of Fur Animals.

"Do not believe all you read about 'the extinction of fur animals,'" writes a statistician to a Paris paper. "With the exception of a few—seal, chinchilla and American lynx—fur animals are no less numerous than they were thirty years ago, when the prepared pelts, now popular for outer garments, were used for lining purposes. The high prices are caused by the increased demand. The fur bearing animals will not be exterminated because the fashions change. While one animal, temporarily popular, is being hunted the other has time to recuperate. Nature helps also in this way: The overhunted animal instinctively abandons its habitat, often seeking refuge where the hunter cannot follow."

Wood Cellulose Food.

Extensive experiments in Sweden have shown that wood cellulose is an excellent cattle feed, and the Swedish Government is pushing its manufacture as much as possible. On account of the difficulties of exportation, Sweden has a supply of about 500,000 tons. The Agricultural Society has requested the Government to fix a maximum price for this feed of 22 crowns per 100 kilos ($5.90 per 220 pounds).

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains irritate and inflame causing a burning scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse again. There is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and then the kidneys which then act normally.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used by thousands of people who are subject to attacks of kidney trouble, backache and bladder irritation.

YOU NEED NOT TOLERATE

Probably the elements that create the most satisfaction in the use of any article are an accurate knowledge of what it will do before it is made and to prove that it will efficiently accomplish its purpose after it is made.

It is on this basis that we build our belting and the knowledge of what it will do is the result of over fifty years experience and research.

We prove by careful tests that every ounce of material is up to our high standard—each individual operation is checked as the belt proceeds from one machine to the next and a sample of the finished belt is tested, both chemically and physically, to prove that it will efficiently serve the purpose for which it was made and that it has a reserve of strength for emergencies.

We want you to test not only our claims of superiority for Dominion Rubber System belting, but our free belting service, in charge of belting experts, who can help to cut your manufacturing costs by making your equipment more efficient.

A phone, wire or letter to our nearest service branch will enable you to test this service without obligation.

CAT GAVE HIM IDEA

Where Eli Whitney Got Principle of Cotton Gin.

Tabby's Reaching for Chick Just Beyond Her Reach Furnished Inspiration for Machine Which Has Accomplished So Much.

We learn from history that Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin, but people who are interested in the great cotton industry of the southwest will probably be surprised to learn that a cat first demonstrated the principle upon which the cotton gin was founded. Anyone who has seen an Imperial valley or Salt River valley cotton gin in action will understand that this story is entirely plausible.

Before Eli Whitney got into the public eye he went down the street one afternoon to lean on the garden fence and chat with his sweetheart a while. During the course of their visit she called his attention to a brood of fluffy chickens in a slat coop near the house.

While they were admiring the chicks, along came the house cat, hungry for fresh meat. Tabby reached in to claw a chick out of the coop, but as she did so the old mother hen pecked at her. That caused the cat to make a sweeping swipe at one of the chicks, with her claws exposed. She did not get the chick, but she withdrew her paw with a bunch of fluff clinging to her claws.

Whitney witnessed the incident, and the idea struck him quite forcibly. Turning to his sweetheart he said: "At last I have a plan for separating cotton from the seed. What we need is a machine that will act like the cat's paw. The cat struck at the chicken and removed its feathers. I want a machine that will strike at the cotton and remove it from the thing to which it is fastened."

So he invented a machine which had a multitude of fine teeth revolving rapidly on a cylinder, and when the cotton was fed through the teeth tore all the cotton from the seed in much the same way as the cat's claws stripped the fluff from the baby chick.

The machine designed by Whitney which has been such a blessing to humanity was practically as successful at the outset as it is today. It performed the work that was cut out for it, and nothing better has been invented since that time. With slight changes the cotton gin of today is the cotton gin that Eli Whitney realized in his brain the moment he saw the cat sideswipe the chicken. The cat had been carrying the secret of the cotton gin around in one of her paws for centuries, and it only required a close observer to discover that fact.

The caravan is the oldest institution known in transportation. By caravans the merchandise of the most ancient Asian and African countries was exchanged in prehistoric times. By caravans Egyptians of the twentieth century still travel between the Nile valley and the Barbary states, crossing the desert of Sahara upon swaying camels, resting at oases and braving sandstorms, wearing the costumes and practicing the customs of 7,000 years ago. During the war that now is being waged, the war that has brought back into use the steel helmet and introduced the steel hammer as a war club, camels and caravans have been employed in Asia Minor and North Africa. Now the motor caravan promises to become institutional and important as a factor in the freight problem of the United States.

Plucked Comrade From Death.

Among the many men of the sea who had close calls in the fight with the terrible storms of early December was Eddker H. Robertson, chief quartermaster of the U. S. S. Smith. In the midst of one of the wildest gales felt along the coast in many years, Robertson was endeavoring to clear a jam in the steering gear. At the time the sea was at its roughest and the vessel rolling at a 55 degree angle. Suddenly she gave a sudden lurch and Robertson was thrown into the sea. Like an oldtime sailor he at once put up a fight with sea and gale. The battle was too strong and he became exhausted. Then it came his way to be a part of a thrilling rescue. Chief Cook Murcia jumped overboard after the man and after a struggle with the weakened man got a line about him and they were both hauled aboard.

Foolish Vision of Utopia.

When the peace of Spain was signed in 1604 the English royal proclamations announced that wars between nations were ended and that it would not be longer necessary to collect money for the support of an army and navy of defense. How quaint sounds today this extract from the court of King James I: "Under our gracious Solomon, a prince of wisdom and peace, we are united in a league of amity with all nations. Wars among civilized peoples are no longer possible. World peace is assured. This alteration of times makes that fit now, which in times of hostility might have seemed unfit."

THOUGHT IT WAS A BOIL

Doctor Said Abscess.

Mr. Gleason R. Young, Kingscroft, N.B., writes us as follows: "About five months ago, a lump came on my jawbone. I thought it was a boil, and after it had been there quite a while it began to get larger. I went to a doctor and he said it was an abscess, and lanced it. He gave me a wash for it, so I went by his directions until it healed up, but it commenced coming again, and in about three weeks it broke itself. I thought it would get better, but it didn't. A neighbour advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I sent and got a bottle, and by the time it was all gone, the abscess had disappeared, and now it is all better."

Burdock Blood Bitters will heal and dry up sores, ulcers, and abscesses, no matter how large or of how long standing. If you have never applied it to a cut, wound, sore or ulcer, just try it and see what soothing, healing, cleansing power it possesses. It takes out itching, stinging and burning, and promotes the growth of healthy flesh. So, too, when taken internally, by its power of eliminating all impurities from the blood and making that vital fluid rich, red and pure, it cuts off the origin and source of the foul matter that goes to make boils, pimples, sores, ulcers, abscesses and the like, and at the same time the purified and enriched blood creates healthy tissue where there was formerly, perhaps, a sore full of pus.

The Storm.

"Wife, oh, wife!" he thundered. He heard the gentle rainlike patter of her feet as she approached. A cloud of anger overspread his features and lightning flashed from his eyes.

"I should like to know why your complexion is so muddy this morning," he demanded. When she saw his rage break forth in torrents she burst into a flood of tears. Stricken with remorse at her grief he seized her in his arms and showered her with kisses. With true feminine forgiveness she allowed a bright, sunny smile to play on her face and happiness shone like a rainbow through her tears.

Influenza a Puzzle

IT is evident that the disease which is still with us after the height of the epidemic has passed is a considerably more dangerous pest than what has hitherto been known as influenza, and requires proportionately greater efforts from the health authorities. If Surgeon-General Blue of the United States army is right in apprehending a very serious recurrence next year, no time is to be lost in making plans and in making sure that the needful organization and equipment are ready. On general principles such a recurrence ought to be prepared for, since it was a feature of the two previous epidemics, in 1847 and in 1889, which marked the revival of the disease after a long interim. It is a curious coincidence that the very period in which medical science was beginning to penetrate the mysteries of bacterial disease marked also the reappearance of three pests which people had come to regard as a thing of the past so far as the western world was concerned. For a generation now influenza, plague, and cholera have been on the march, and great care must be taken not to let the ravages of war break down the defenses of civilization.

Against influenza civilization has thus far not made very serious efforts because it has been considered a minor though very pervasive disease. Bacteriology may any day find a preventive serum; meanwhile the general attitude, even of the medical profession, is one of fatalism. High contagiousness and a low death rate make a hard combination to deal with by the ordinary methods of control. But the issue may be forced by the continued tendency of the disease toward a more severe form. This tendency is not new, for the epidemic of 1889 was markedly more severe and persisted over a longer term of years than the one of 1847. In England the death rate per million from influenza from 1847 to 1855 was: 285, 460, 92, 73, 120, 76, 99, 58, 103. From 1889 to 1907 it ran: 157, 654, 534, 325, 220, 424, 122, 196, 389, 504, 274, 223, 189, 168, 183, 265. The average rate for the years was 162 for the earlier epidemic, 320 for the latter, a doubling in the severity of the disease. These figures point to a rising wave, but not to so extraordinary an increase as the new epidemic has brought. The statistics are not yet available, but the experience of Great Britain seems to have been so terrible that they may expect a rate for the current year of from 4,000 to 5,000 deaths per million as against 574, the highest on record. So sensational a change transfers the disease to a new category and compels reconsideration of the older methods of dealing with it.

We have further to consider that in both of the nineteenth-century visitations the second year was the worst, not in the number of cases, but in the number of deaths. We do not know that this rule will hold in case of another epidemic next year, but the possibility needs to be taken into account in the organization of measures to protect the public health. A very severe epidemic attacking relatively few people would obviously have to be dealt with very differently from a mild and extremely prevalent disorder, and the public mind should be prepared for prompt and energetic measures if the need should suddenly appear. The opposite might, of course, prove true; the malignant and mysterious pest which has traveled in company with the influenza might die down, and a relatively harmless epidemic of plain grip ensue. But the country must be ready for a danger which cannot be ignored in view of the tendency of influenza to persist over a term of years. We must not again be caught unprepared.

Some Salute!

At one of the army posts in the west a sentry was posted on a large hay-rick to look out for fires. One day the inspector general appeared at the post and seeing this immense hay-rick rode over to it. This day the sentry was a negro from Windsor and he was lying down with his hat over one eye and his tunic unbuttoned—taking life easy. When the general caught sight of him, he shouted: "Who are you and what are you doing up there?"

"I guess I'se some kind of a watchman," replied the negro. "Who're you?"

The general, appreciating that this was not impertinence, replied:

"I guess I am some kind of an inspector general.";

"My Gawd!" said the negro, standing up on the shifty hay and trying to button his blouse, straighten his hat and come to attention at the same time. "I guess I'd better be givin' you some kinda salute."

CORN COBS FOUND OF VALUE

Hitherto Waste Material May Be Utilized to Good Advantage When the War Is Over.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Corn cobs—a great waste product in the world's greatest corn-producing nation—have been made to yield adhesive gum and other useful substances in quantities sufficient to form the nucleus of a profitable and important industry.

In addition to adhesive gum, experiments have produced cellulose, and glucose, both of which have many commercial uses. The glucose so produced crystallizes well, and it is believed can be used in the same ways as crystalline glucose from starch. Manufacture of alcohol by the fermentation of corn cob glucose appears practicable if sulphuric acid is obtainable cheaply.

To utilize corn cobs commercially a large and costly plant would be necessary and the bureau of chemistry of the federal department of agriculture does not advise any enterprise of the sort in wartime.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT! STOP DANDRUFF AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Your hair becomes thick, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter for a few cents.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the glow and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

MUST FEED GERMANY

Secretary Lansing Says Starvation and Want are the Portion of the German People.

FOOD CONDITIONS

(United Press.)

PARIS, March 12. — Secretary Lansing, speaking at a dinner to the American peace commissioners last night, declared that "no time is to be lost if we are to save the world from the despotism of anarchy, as we saved it from the despotism of autocracy. We ought to, we must, make peace without delay."

"He explained that "it is not out of pity for the German people that this must be done, but because we will be the chief sufferers if it is not done."

"Germany has suffered bitterly, is suffering bitterly, and Germany is entitled to suffer for what she has done," said Lansing. "She has paid a fearful price for the crime of plunging the world into four years of blood and fire. To-day starvation and want are the portion of the German people. Violence and murder stalk through the streets of their great cities. It is the price of their own evil doing—just retribution for their crimes.

Social Unrest.

"But it is not time to allow sentiments of vengeance and hatred to stand in the way of checking the advance of this conflagration, which will soon be at the German borders and threatening other lands. We must change the conditions on which social unrest feeds and strive to restore Germany to normal (though it be a weaker) social order. Two words tell the story—Food and Peace.

"To make Germany capable of resisting anarchism and the hideous despotism of the Red Terror, she must be allowed to purchase food, and to earn that food, industrial conditions must be restored by a treaty of peace. It is not out of pity for the German people that this must be done and done without delay, but because we, victors in this war, will be the chief sufferers if it is not done."

"I say to you, men of France, and men of America, to men of the allied powers, that no time is to be lost if we are to save the world from the despotism of anarchy even as we have saved it from the despotism of autocracy. We ought to—we must—make peace without delay. We have reached a crisis in the affairs of the world. We must meet it without passion and without permitting our judgment to be warped by the natural and unavoidable desire for vengeance on a nation which has committed such atrocities as those the Germans have committed."

Policemen Held at Bay

Man Shot Himself With the Last Cartridge.

(Canadian Press.)

CHICAGO, Ill., March 12.—Two policemen and a civilian are in hospitals to-day with bullet wounds inflicted by a man barricaded in his own house, while the latter is dead with a part of his head blown off, having turned his rifle against himself. For three hours early to-day George Ondeck, a real estate dealer and expert marksman, held more than half a hundred policemen at bay, exchanging shot for shot and driving besiegers to cover of adjacent buildings. When Ondeck was reduced to his last cartridge he shot himself. Half an hour after the firing ceased the police entered the house and found Ondeck dead in a front room. In a rear room were Mrs. Ondeck and her six children, lying on the floor to escape bullets that crashed through the frame cottage walls. Ondeck is said to have been drinking and the police were hunting him with a warrant charging cruelty, sworn out by his wife.

PEACE TERMS

(United Press.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

PARIS, March 12. — The peace treaty with Germany may be completed this week if the present schedule of the Supreme War Council is maintained.

Final consideration was to be given the military, naval and air terms to-day. Discussion of Germany's eastern boundary is expected to be finished to-morrow. Her western frontier is to be taken up on Friday, when President Wilson is expected to participate in the discussions. On Saturday reparation and financial arrangements for Germany will be settled.

The disposition of all scheduled business will of course mean completion of the terms for the preliminary treaty. The next step will be the calling in of the German delegates for submission of the draft.

The plan for the establishment of a "new buffer state," composed of the Rheinish provinces, is expected to permit rapid progress in the determination of Germany's western boundaries, probably on Friday, the day it is taken up.

Treaty Can Be Amended

Comment Upon League of Nations Took a New Turn To-day.

By L. C. Martin.
(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Following word from Paris that the peace treaty is nearly complete, with many leading articles contingent upon a League of Nations, the fight raging about the League took a new turn to-day.

Opponents of the idea will try to amend out of the treaty application of the League if it is imbodied in the peace covenant when it comes up for ratification, Senator Reed declared to-day.

"We can ratify the peace treaty as amended," said Reed. "We can amend by striking out objectionable clauses, such as that endangering the "Monroe Doctrine or American sovereignty. This will be done, in my opinion, because within ninety days this country will be ablaze with opposition to the League."

SPARTACAN OUTBREAK

Government Troops Capture Positions From the Rebels—People Object to Bombing Raids.

BERLIN MENACED

By Frank J. Taylor.
(United Press.)

BERLIN, March 12. — Berlin was menaced anew by Spartacan outbreaks to-day.

Government troops, after desperate fighting, captured the greater part of the suburb of Lichtenberg, and most of the Spartacans fled from there to the south-eastern part of the city proper. Strongly reinforced by the recruits they entrenched themselves. From these new positions their artillery now endangers a large portion of the city. Meanwhile the insurgent forces remaining in Lichtenberg fell back to the railway station, where they organized new defences.

A Serious Problem.

Detachment of a large part of the government forces to combat the Spartacans in the south-eastern section of the city rendered capture of Lichtenberg station a serious problem.

The Government's position was made increasingly difficult by the public demand that the use of artillery and airplane bombs cease. Through fear that resistance to this demand might turn the people against the Government, it seemed possible that War Minister Noske would accede.

While the fighting gained in intensity the centre of Berlin was the scene of gay social affairs, cafes and dance halls being crowded to capacity.

United Press Correspondent Secures Exclusive Interview With Notorious De Valera

Much Wanted Fugitive Was Found in Hiding a Few Miles From Dublin —The Drive to the Place of Concealment—De Valera Prepares a Signed Statement—Will Wait for the Answer of the Peace Conference.

THOUSANDS OF SOLDIERS WELL ARMED GUARD PUBLIC PLACES IN IRELAND

(Copyright, 1919, By the United Press.)

NEW YORK, March 12.—Edward De Valera, fugitive President of the Sinn Fein, who escaped from Lincoln Prison in England and is being hunted by the British Government, has been found and interviewed by a United Press Staff Correspondent.

De Valera, who will probably be named President of Ireland in event of a revolution there, was located near Dublin by Ralph F. Couch of the United Press. Couch, a cap pulled down over his eyes, so he could not see, was led to the rebel leader's hiding place, where De Valera gave the interview.

Later, the correspondent secured a signed statement in which the Sinn Fein chief predicted violence and bloodshed in Ireland if the Peace Conference does not act to prevent it.

With De Valera's statement and the interview, and with much first hand knowledge about actual conditions in Ireland, the correspondent returned to the United States, thus insuring safe delivery of his information in New York without interference by the censor.

THE FIRST OF COUCH'S STORIES FOLLOW

To-morrow we will carry De Valera's signed statement, written by the Sinn Fein leader in his place of concealment near Dublin Feb. 25, shortly before he resumed his flight from the British authorities.

COUCH'S STORY OF THE INTERVIEW WITH DE VALERA

(By Ralph F. Couch, Copywright, 1919. By The United Press.)

Dublin, Feb 23.—"Violence will be the only alternative remaining to Irish patriots if the Peace Conference at Paris fails to take steps to extend self determination to Ireland," Edward De Valera, fugitive President of the revolutionary Sinn Fein party, made this prediction to me two hours ago at a secret midnight interview.

MEANS SOMETHING LIKE A CONTINUED REVOLUTION

"This means something like a continued revolution until Ireland's rights are recognized," he said, his black eyes flashing when he said this, his big jaw squared. He spoke quietly, nevertheless he was emphatic. De Valera, the American born son of an Irish mother and a Spanish father, is the soul of the Irish revolutionary movement. British Secret Police have been hunting him ever since his romantic escape eleven days ago from Lincoln Jail on the east coast of England. I am told that only five persons in the United Kingdom know he was hiding within a few miles of Dublin, not far from where we met, there were thousands of English soldiers. Dublin swarms with them as does all Ireland. These troops, tin hatted, fully equipped and armed, guard every public building and all bridges, docks and railroad stations. Their presence has created a tense feeling. Many continually fear clashes between soldiers and civilians.

"De Valera is resigning his liberty in permitting this interview," said the Sinn Feigners who arranged it "but the chief is willing to take the chance in the hope that he will be able to get across to the American people a message from the Irish Republican Government."

QUOTED FROM PRESIDENT WILSON'S FOURTEEN POINTS

De Valera quoted from President Wilson's fourteen points to prove that Ireland has a right to self determination.

No revolutionary action will be undertaken in Ireland until the Peace Conference shows conclusively that self determination will not be granted, he said.

"We hope to avoid violence," he declared, "it means bloodshed, deaths, court martials and perhaps executions. But if we have to fight again to gain our rights, we shall not hesitate. Ireland must have complete independence.

"It's a big job we've undertaken gaining complete independence for Ireland. In the message I'll write for you, I'll try to give the American people the reasons why we must have it.

"We're going to win. I think every man in Ireland will be willing to back us in our demands when we make them. Meanwhile, we have our Government completely organized. We can take over the administration of our country at a moment's notice. That is what the Irish Republican Government was organized for."

DE VALERA IS HEADED FOR THE UNITED STATES

Sinn Feiners said to-day that by the time this is in print in America, De Valera will be on a ship bound for the United States. They plan to smuggle him out of Ireland. Meanwhile he flits from hiding place to hiding place at night to elude the British agents and directs the work of the Sinn Fein Government.

Elaborate precautions were taken before I was permitted to see this former professor of mathematics who was condemned to death for leading the fighting during the Ulster rebellion.

I was told to be waiting at 8 p.m. at the side entrance of my hotel. This entrance is in a dark, narrow street. Precisely at the hour fixed, a closed automobile halted at the curb. Leaving the motor running, the chauffeur approached and whispered my name. I got in hurriedly. The inside of the machine was luxuriously upholstered. In a corner of the seat was a young Irishman who was to be the guide. He was one of the seventy-three Sinn Feiners (including De Valera) who were elected members of the British House of Commons at the December elections. On his knees he held a thick, heavy cane, almost a club. He apologized, then searched me for a weapon.

ALL SENSE OF DIRECTION WAS LOST

"We've a good two hour drive ahead of us," he said, as the automobile pulled away from the hotel. In a few minutes we were out of Dublin, turning and twisting over country roads until all sense of direction was lost. We arrived eventually in the outskirts of a sleeping village. There we walked up and down while the Irishman frequently peered at his watch. Presently another automobile, it was without lights, drew up. My guide jerked my cap down over my nose so I could see nothing, then pushed me into this car. For half an hour we drove at a rate that seemed very fast. We got out and I sensed a garage, then I was led across what seemed to be a courtyard. My guide kept urging speed. A door slammed and I felt the warm air of a house. Up a heavily carpeted stair, we went. Then I heard: "Now you can take the bandage from your eyes." I was surprised to find myself in a big room, richly furnished in mahogany, with thick velvet carpet and velvet curtains lightly drawn over the tall windows. A softly shaded lamp stood on a grand piano in one corner.

Before the great fireplace, warming his hands, was a tall man in a baggy black suit, with a black silk handkerchief around his throat instead of a collar. He wore rubber soled slippers. This was De Valera.

He smiled broadly, shook hands swiftly and turned to whisper some direction to the guide. Then he talked. A maid in trim uniform appeared with a gray and silver tea service. Between sips, De Valera discussed the chances of a successful revolution against 200,000, who, he said, are "occupying Ireland."

A half an hour later I was again speeding toward Dublin, the cap over my nose. De Valera, I was told, would soon be hurrying in another direction.

De Valera's full statement was written by him after Couch left the house. It was taken into Dublin by a Sinn Feiner member of Parliament and handed to Couch at his hotel. It will be carried by the United Press to-morrow.

SITUATION IN RUSSIA

Allied Intervention Is All That Will Save Conditions From Becoming Hopeless.

BROTHER OF CZAR

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, March 12. — Former Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, a brother-in-law of the late Czar, who arrived in Paris recently from the Crimea, told the Associated Press to-day that unless armed allied intervention in Russia began at once, the situation in Russia would become so hopelessly desperate that it would take years, perhaps decades, to restore a semblance of order and bring about peace in Eastern Europe.

Referring to the proposed conference on Princes Island, the Grand Duke said that the proposal was a mistake as it gave the Bolsheviki a strong weapon to wield in Russia over the cowering population. The Bolsheviki are claiming, the Grand Duke added, that the allied governments have recognized them because they feared the Bolsheviki.

"It is my opinion that the Spartacan movement in Germany is kept alive only as a means of blackmail against the allies. When the preliminary peace is signed, which Germany has used the Spartacans to the utmost to blackmail the Entente into sending food and granting merciful conditions of peace, when Spartacism has seized its purpose, it will disappear."

A Big Gathering At St. Andrew's

Young Ladies' Mission Band Holding a Banquet on Tuesday Next.

The Young Ladies' Mission Band of St. Andrew's Church, assisted by the Young Men's Guild, old and present members, are holding a promotious banquet in the Lecture Hall of the church, on Tuesday evening, March 18th. Rev. J. G. Potter, who was pastor at St. Andrew's at the time the Young Men's Guild was organized, will be present with Mrs. Potter, and make an address.

The affair is being gotten up with the object of having a re-union of all the members and adherents of the church and to get into active work again the different organizations of the church, that mean so much to the development of young men and women in active participation in church matters.

In addition to the addresses by Mr. Potter several short addresses will be given by old members of St. Andrews' Young Men's Guild and there will also be a good musical programme, all of which will be preceded by the sumptuous banquet at 7 o'clock.

All those interested in the work of St. Andrew's church are urgently invited to be present, as it is anticipated that this will be the largest and best gathering at the church in years.

Statement From Mr. Pappas Regarding Royal Theatre

Believes He is Doing a Real Service for the Peterboro Public—Strong Corporation to Control.

In a statement to the Examiner to-day, Mr. Pappas, proprietor of the Royal Theatre, now leased to the largest film corporation in the world, said he had always endeavoured to give the best possible programme at his theatre, and that he had succeeded is evidenced by the large attendance he has succeeded in building up, and the fact that Peterborough is known as one of the best moving picture towns in Ontario.

In leasing his theatre to the Paramount Theatres, Limited, of which Mr. Pappas becomes the manager in this city, he believes he has done a further service to the citizens of Peterborough, inasmuch as the Royal is now behind it an organization of unlimited strength, and will give to the Peterborough people such as usually are seen in only the largest centres.

Mr. Pappas will devote his whole time to the conducting of the Royal Theatre, the new arrangement taking effect on April first.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12TH, 1919.

SHAMROCK DAY.

It is perhaps unnecessary in reminding the people of Peterborough that on Saturday next the annual sale of shamrocks will be held in the interests of St. Vincent's Orphanage, to refer to the splendid work on behalf of neglected and dependent children that is being carried on by this institution. Peterborough is fortunate that the Children's Aid Society and the St. Vincent's Orphanage, by their magnificent efforts, have solved the problem of taking care of the unfortunate little folks whom the tide of adversity would engulf completely were it not for these two splendid organizations. A great factor in the continuance of their work is the annual one-day campaign, which in the case of the Children's Aid Society takes the form of a tag day in the autumn, and with the St. Vincent's Orphanage of a shamrock sale on the streets on the Saturday before St. Patrick's Day. The support of every citizen should, and undoubtedly will be, given to Saturday's effort in behalf of the Orphanage, and the sale of shamrocks should result in the securing of a sum that will be eloquent of the city's interest in and gratitude for the work that is being carried on by the institution in behalf of which Saturday's campaign will be held.

BATHING PLACES.

The property committee of the City Council in its decision in regard to bathing places is to be commended not for its agility in side-stepping the question than it is for its sense of civic responsibility. The committee has chosen the easiest way—the line of least resistance, and has washed its hands of the whole matter by making a grant of $600 to the Playgrounds Association to be expended in providing bathing places. Just what kind of a recreation establishment can be arranged for $600, the members have left entirely to the Playgrounds Association to decide. It is as certain that the grant voted is not large enough to accomplish very much along the lines desired by the citizens as it is that the Council should conduct bathing places as an municipal enterprise and not throw the burden upon an organization which has already as much as it can attend to in connection with supervised playgrounds.

The sum recommended by the Property committee could be profitably used in improving the conditions at Inverlea Park, but is surely not considered enough to establish a new bathing place elsewhere on the river. Proper dressing rooms would be required, and unless it is the intention to engage a caretaker who would look after the valuables of the bathers some other provision would have to be made to ensure them against loss. The committee has not given this matter the consideration that its importance merits. It would be a simple matter to get information as to how municipal baths in other cities are operated. In some cases there is a locker system which, in conjunction with the rent of bathing suits and towels brings in a considerable revenue. It would have been good business on the part of the committee to have secured information in regard to points like these before taking any action, and the Council, when the recommendations of the Property committee comes before it for disposal, might do well to consider the matter for a while—first as to whether they consider $500 an adequate grant, and secondly as to the advisability of the Council maintaining control over the swimming places.

THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The report of Public School Inspector Mowat, presented to the Board of Education last night, shows the steady growth of the school population of Peterborough and the necessity of immediately increasing the accommodation in order to relieve the congestion. Last year there was an increase of 165 pupils over the total for 1917 and altogether 3,343 pupils had to be provided for, which was a problem that required considerable planning to solve. The chief congestion was in the south-west sections of the city, where the twelve-roomed King Edward school and the ten-roomed South Central were inadequate to take care of the increased attendance. It was necessary not only to secure a class room in the St. James' church Sunday school building to avoid overcrowding in the King Edward school, but to transfer pupils from the South Central to the Queen Mary and Central schools, requiring these children to travel a considerable distance from their homes.

In another year, with the normal growth in school population, Inspector Mowat estimates that the accommodation at the King Edward and South Central school will be inadequate to serve the two districts in which they are situated.

In addition the Inspector points out that accommodation should be provided for manual training and household science. In fact he urges that training along these lines should be extended throughout the senior grades of all the city schools and at the same time that introductory construction work and sewing be introduced into the junior grades.

Mr. Mowat's report is an interesting and thoughtful one. The references to industrial and technical training that it contains are of a character that should carry weight with the Government. Mr. Mowat is an educationist of standing and judgment and his recommendations in regard to the inadequate nature of the present school system in Ontario are based upon his experience as a teacher and inspector. The school that is required, Mr. Mowat declares, is one that will not merely provide a narrow trade education. It must give "a liberal education that will develop character and intelligence, as well as technical skill." Such schools would, of course, be expensive, and the local inspector points out that both Federal and Provincial governments should liberally assist to construct and carry on such institutions.

"The government will have to take the lead in developing this type of school," declares Mr. Mowat. His report should be read by the citizens with a great deal of interest.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Judging by the size of the grant made by the Property committee, it must have got the impression that it was a bath tub and not swimming places that the public want.

The assertion is often heard that organized labour is opposed to prohibition. Did you notice that the Winnipeg Trades and Labour Council, by an overwhelming vote, passed a resolution stating that they "stand opposed to any effort being made to re-introduce the drink traffic?"

RHINE OPEN TO ALL NATIONS

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 12.—Recommendation that the navigation of the Rhine be opened to all nations without discrimination, was made in a report to the Peace Conference to-day by a commission on international regime of waterways, railways and ports. It was suggested that the Rhine be controlled by a commission similar to the Danube commission. The status of the Kiel canal has been settled by a commission on the basis of freedom of use for all nations for merchant vessels or warships in time of peace. The canal would continue under German ownership and operation.

Don't Prod Your Liver to Action

NR Overcomes Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache, Quickly. No Griping or Pain. Guaranteed.

The organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination—the stomach, liver and bowels—are closely allied, and the proper action of any of these organs is largely dependent upon the correct functioning of all the others.

"Whipping" your liver to action with calomel or forcing your bowels with irritating laxatives or strong cathartics is a great mistake. A better, safer plan is strengthening and toning the whole digestive and eliminative system with Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), which not only brings immediate relief, but genuine and lasting benefit. It acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, improves digestion and assimilation, overcomes biliousness, corrects constipation and quickly relieves sick headache.

Get your system thoroughly cleansed and purified for once; stomach, liver and bowels working together in vigorous harmony, and you will not have to take medicine every day—just take one NR Tablet occasionally to keep your system in good condition and always feel your best. Remember it is easy and cheaper to be well than it is to get well.

Get a 25c box and try it with the understanding that it must give you greater relief than any bowel or liver medicine you ever used or you pay Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is safe, guaranteed and recommended by druggists.

WENT TO KINGSTON, FAILED TO REPORT, PRISON FARM NOW

John Watson of Kinmount Sentenced to Two Years at Prison Farm Yesterday Afternoon.

A fine of $1,500 or a term at the Prison Farm of two years less one day, was the sentence imposed on John Watson of Kinmount by Justice of the Peace Harry Rush and Vincent Eastwood in the Police Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of failing to report for military service. He was defended by Mr. W. J. McElderry, and Mr. G. W. Hatton represented the Crown.

"That means that he must go to the Prison Farm, for he cannot pay that fine," said Mr. McElderry.

"This case offers no palliation," Mr. Hatton declared in addressing the court. "He was working for the G.T.R., and escaped military service as long as possible through the pleas of his employers. At last he was ordered to report for service, on May 14th last went to Kingston. But he did not report. He didn't go near the authorities, but with the money he got he sneaked away into hiding. He was satisfied to allow others to take his place and fight his battles. He should not be ordered to pay a fine that he can make up in three or four months. There should be imprisonment and a fine to teach these men that they must come to the colors when they are called."

Mr. McElderry made an eloquent plea for leniency. Watson had gone to Kingston with the intention of joining a battery, but because of the unsympathetic conduct of an officer he approached he did not have the privilege of fighting for his country.

The acting-Magistrates intimated that there was no excuse whatever for Watson, that his was a flagrant offence, and after retiring to Chief Thompson's office to consider the case, they returned in about five minutes and announced their decision of two years less one day at the prison farm, with the option of a $1,500 fine.

NEW BUILDINGS TO BE ERECTED AT GUELPH COLLEGE

(Special to The Examiner.)

GUELPH, March 12.— Dr. G. C. Creelman, President of the Ontario Agricultural College, stated to-day that the new buildings, which would cost close to a quarter million of dollars, would be erected at the O. A. C. this year.

These include a new boys' dormatory, which will be erected on the campus, $150,000; addition to Macdonald Hall to accommodate fifteen more girl students $25,000; new apiary building $15,000, and a memorial hall in memory of the O.A.C. students who were killed during the war.

This latter building, which will have a public lecture room and chapel, will cost about $40,000. Between 600 and 700 O.A.C. students enlisted and of this number over 100 paid the supreme sacrifice.

Inspector Mowat Urges the Extension of Manual Training

The Average Attendance at the Public Schools for the Year Showed a Decline Due to the Influenza Epidemic—Medical Inspection.

At last night's meeting of the Board of Education the following interesting report was submitted by Mr. A. Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools:

1. School Population.

The total number of Public school pupils enrolled in the year 1918, was 3343, which was an increase of 165 over the enrollment of 1917. Of these 1685 were boys and 1658 were girls.

The number enrolled in each school was as follows:

King Edward	694
Central	659
Queen Mary	592
South Central	545
Queen Alexandra	447
King George	406

The average attendance for the year showed a decline. This was due to the influenza epidemic which necessitated the closing of the schools for 21 teaching days and lessened the regular attendance for several weeks.

2. School Accommodation.

The South Central School, which is a ten-roomed building and the King Edward, which is a twelve-roomed one, did not afford adequate accommodation for the pupils of these school districts. To avoid overcrowding in the King Edward a class room was secured in the St. James' Sunday School Building. The South Central was relieved by transferring the Jr. III. Form pupils of this school to the Queen Mary and Central schools. This caused some hardships but no other course was possible.

Should the growth of Public School population continue normal, the accommodation for these two districts will be quite inadequate by September, 1920.

In order to relieve the King Edward and at the same time provide accommodation for the pupils of the South Central District, fourteen rooms will then be required instead of the ten at the South Central. In addition to this provision will have to be made for Manual Training and Household Science, and also some extra rooms for future growth. This is the most pressing and important problem before the Board.

3. Class Room Efficiency.

During the first half-year the progress of the pupils was satisfactory on the whole but during the last half the school work was seriously interfered with by the illness of many pupils and teachers, and by the closing of the schools for over four weeks.

I find by comparison with other places that a good percentage of our pupils pass into and attend the Collegiate Institute. Fully thirty per cent. complete the eighth grade, and reach the Collegiate, and not five or six per cent., as is so commonly reported.

At the Entrance Examination of 1918 there were 148 Public School candidates and of these 132 secured certificates. Of the 16 who failed, only six were recommended by their teachers.

Of the 132 who passed, 83 were admitted on the recommendation of their teachers, and 49 passed the written examination.

The classroom work throughout the grades showed careful preparation on the part of the teachers. The desire to strictly conform to the regulations and to adhere closely to the Manuals has, possibly, been the cause of too great uniformity in the methods of teaching. The best teachers show originality and resource in methods, and study the characteristics of each child under their care.

Pressing Need.

The most pressing need of our schools at the present time is the extension of Manual Training and Household Science throughout the Senior grades of all the schools together with introductory Construction Work and sewing in the Junior grades. This can only be accomplished when accommodation is provided in the King Edward and South Central Schools. Professor Sandiford, in speaking on Motor Education, says: "An education divorced from Crafts is only half an education. It is now realized that a motor education is now absolutely necessary to the fullest mental development. Without motor education even speech and language itself are denied us."

The physical education of the pupils received a fair degree of attention throughout the year. There are now four cadet corps in connection with the public schools.

Teaching Staff.

The Public school staff now consists of 74 teachers and supervisors. Of these 61 are lady teachers and 13 are male teachers. Four members of the staff are graduates of University; 15 hold first class certificates: 49 hold second class certificates, and six hold kindergarten—Primary certificates.

Central	13
King Edward	13
Queen Mary	13
Queen Alexandra	10
South Central	10
King George	9

There was a considerable number of changes on the staff during the year. Six teachers left the profession and several others resigned to continue the work in other places.

The School Buildings.

The School Buildings are in a good state of repair. The newly constructed sewer at the King Edward has removed all danger of insanitary conditions there. The buildings are all well kept and everything possible is being done for the physical comfort of the children.

Medical Inspection.

The work of the School Nurse has been beneficial in a variety of ways. If she had the assistance of a doctor even for a few hours each week, much could be done for these pupils whose parents are either indifferent o rare unable to act upon her recommendations. It is to be hoped that in the near future progress may be made along this line together with dental inspection as well.

Industrial and Technical Training.

Possibly seventy per cent of our children do not receive any school training other than that afforded by the Public school. Many of these pupils do not complete the work of the eight grades but drop out of school on reaching the age of 14. This is altogether too early an age for boys and girls to begin their life work.

The Government must provide some form of training for these young people. The education provided should be more than a narrow trade education. It must do more than give greater technical efficiency. It must be in a sense, a liberal education that will develop character and intelligence as well as technical skill. It must be such an education as will make men and women.

Schools for this purpose will be expensive both in construction and in maintenance. Both the Federal and Provincial Governments will have to give liberal assistance to those centres where such schools are provided. Even then their success in the smaller cities will depend upon the compulsory attendance age being raised to 16 years for part time attendance, at least.

The attendance of pupils at Day Industrial Classes in the smaller cities where such classes have been organized is disappointingly small.

The government will have to take the lead in developing this type of school.

SPRING FEVER

Following Colds, Grippe, Thin, Watery or Poisoned Blood

(By Dr. Valentine Mott.)

At this time of year most people suffer from what we term "spring fever" because of a stagnant condition of the blood, because of the toxic poisons stored up within the body during the long winter. We eat too much meat, with little or no green vegetables.

Bloodless people, thin, anemic people, those with pale cheeks and lips, who have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition in the springtime of the year, should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alterative and blood purifier. Such a tonic as druggists have sold for fifty years, is Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form. Made without alcohol from wild roots and barks.

Occasionally one should "clean house" with castor oil or tiny pills made up of the May-apple, leaves of aloe and jalap, and sold by almost all druggists in this country as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

SARNIA, Ont.—"I was in a very bad condition. I could not eat without feeling distressed. Had indigestion so badly I was always in misery. I had liver trouble as well, and the two left me 'down and out' for about two years. I had many good doctors but got no relief. I took Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken two bottles I was much improved, and in less than six months I was well. I could eat anything and do my work with pleasure."—Mrs. Annie Barcoe, 326 Durand St.

Food Situation Causes Concern

People Are Drawing on Reserve Strength and Exposing Themselves to Disease.

(Canadian Press.)

ARCHANGEL, March 12.—The food situation in Northern Russia is causing some concern. Army surgeons have analyzed the civilian ration for the entire population in the North Russia district and found that it contains only 1,166 calories daily. A man doing no work needs 1,770, and soldiers receive at least 3,500 calories daily. The civilian ration, according to surgeons, may be sufficient to sustain life through the winter, but people will be drawing on their reserve strength and exposing themselves to danger from disease.

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, mix 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup mixture will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

War Was Over When Kinmount Man Received Order to Report

Alleges in His Defense That the Notice Sent by Registered Letter Last August Was Not Delivered to Him Until December 12th, 1918—Was Up For Re-examination.

POSTMASTER WILL BE CALLED

John A. McKnight of Haliburton County, appeared before Justices of the Peace Rush and Eastwood yesterday afternoon charged with failing to report for medical re-examination under the Military Service Act in August 1918. Examined by his counsel, Mr. C. R. Widdifield, the accused stated that he had not received the notice to report until December. The armistice had been signed, and he deemed it unnecessary then to comply with the order.

Crown Attorney Hatton submitted the fiat presented by Inspector Ward showing that the order had been issued for McKnight to report, and stated that under the Military Service Act the accused had to prove his innocence.

"We deny that we received the notice", replied Mr. Widdifield, "but the Act says that a registered letter presumes service. We have evidence to show that McKnight did not get that letter until December, but we submit that there were no medical boards then sitting, after the armistice, and that it was unnecessary to report."

Worked in Toronto.

In his evidence, McKnight stated that he had lived in Haliburton county near Maple Creek, but went to Toronto in 1917 to see the exhibition, and remained to work. He responded to the preliminary call for military service, appeared before the medical examiners, and it is understood that he was placed in category "C". Becoming ill in December 1917, he threw up his job and returned to his brother's home at Maple Creek. Although he knew that he should notify the military authorities of his changed address he failed to do so, but he arranged with his brother in Toronto to forward any of his mail that might be delivered there.

Letter Disappeared.

From December 1917 McKnight lived at Blairhampton and Maple Creek, two hamlets about six miles apart in Haliburton county.

"I was in Blairhampton until October 20th, then I went to Maple Creek and stayed there until this Spring when I was arrested. I told the Post Master at Blairhampton, I expected a letter, for the Post Master at Maple Creek notified me that a letter had arrived there but that he had sent it on to Blairhampton. I went to the Post Office for mail twice a week expecting the registered letter, that I was told had been sent on from Maple Creek.

I did not get this letter from the Post Master at Blairhampton until December 12th 1918. He did not give me any explanation why I did not receive it earlier, but he said he would notify the military authorities. He acknowledged that it was his fault that I didn't receive it sooner."

Mr. Eastwood remarked in an aside to Mr. Rush that the alleged conduct of the postmaster seemed strange and past understanding.

Three days before he was arrested, McKnight went to Allsaw in Minden township, and it was there the Military Police located him. He stated that he did not know why the Post Master at Blairhampton blamed himself for not delivering the registered letter from the military authorities.

Mrs. Joseph Voysey, sister of the accused, testified that he had been at Maple Creek and at Blairhampton during the period from August to December last year. He had always affirmed his readiness to serve whenever he was called out.

Should be Discharged

Mr. Widdifield pleaded for the discharge of the accused.

Technically he should have reported to the medical board when notified in December, but it was reasonable to have concluded that the boards had discontinued their work upon the signing of the armistice. McKnight had shown that he had not received the order, that he had not tried to evade his duty at any time, and that it was not his fault that the letter had not been delivered to him.

Mr. Widdifield contended that the charge against McKnight should be dismissed and that he should be given his liberty. If his client was fined or discharged on the proofs of willingness to obey the law, and on his evidence showing that he had not received notice, Mr. Widdifield said, "If that is British justice I am sorry I fought over there and was wounded."

Mr. Eastwood remarked that there were grounds for presuming that the Postmaster at Blairhampton might be accused of collusion.

Mr. Hatton expressed his surprise at Mr. Widdifield's remark. He should be the first to endeavour to uphold the law, and the Military Service law requires the accussed to prove that he is not guilty. He should have had the Postmaster here to give evidence."

The case had been originally adjourned until Friday, but Mr. Widdifield had requested yesterday's hearing because of the presence of McKnight's sister in Peterboro, and her desire to return home as soon as possible, thereby avoiding the expense of staying here.

The court announced their decision of $50 and costs, declaring McKnight guilty. Mr. Widdifield first asked for permission to appeal, but finally an adjournment was arranged until Friday in order that the evidence of the Postmaster might be put in. McKnight was remanded and given bail.

"How To Buy Shoes"

THERE are many things which you need not buy unless you choose. But footwear is not one of them. You must have shoes. And the problem of buying shoes is one which comes home to every man and every woman in Canada.

In order to help you solve this problem, we have prepared a booklet with the title given above. We believe that you will find it helpful and interesting, whether you buy A.H.M. Shoes or not. And it is not necessary to buy A.H.M. Shoes in order to profit by the information which is contained in it.

We are glad to send a copy with our compliments to any address in Canada. Please send your request to our Head Office, at Montreal.

THE WEATHER

We are now approaching the time when the usual break-up of winter may be expected. According to the almanac, Spring begins March 21st. The seasonal change, while it may vary occasionally, is generally constant, and it is surprising how confidently we may look for the appearance of certain birds at certain dates, and other phenomena at their appointed time. Last spring a few robins (doubtless pioneers) made their appearance March 8th, but the main body did not arrive until the 19th. This year several have already been seen, but note if the main force do not reach here around the 19th. The blackbirds generally follow in about three days, together with the song sparrows, after which the other varieties seek their old places of sojourn. The late arrivals are the blue birds and swallows. Last spring the sleighing was finished by the 17th, and the creeks in full flood on the 20th. Last winter provided 117 days of good sleighing. This year's figures will not equal last year's.—W.P.

Help Him to Help Himself

We owe the returned soldier every effort we can make towards securing steady employment for him.

Do not try to throw the burden entirely on employers. They have a grave responsibility, but only insofar as every man, woman and child gives willing help can Canada ensure a fair day's pay for a good day's work for all her men.

How can YOU help? By investing in War-Savings Stamps.

How will THAT help? Canada must secure foreign purchasers for the products of her forests, farms, and factories. Many nations are anxious to buy our goods, but can only do so if Canada grants credit to them.

Lend your money to Canada, so that Canada may re-lend to those who must buy on credit. The money is being raised by the sale of War-Savings Stamps, so that when you invest in a War-Savings Stamp you provide a day's pay for some returned soldier.

A War-Savings Certificate with 10 W.S.S. affixed will be redeemed by the Dominion of Canada on January 1st, 1924, for $50.00, for at that date the W.S.S. are worth $5.00 each.

War-Savings Stamps cost $4.02 in March; $4.03 in April; $4.04 in May, and they may be purchased at any place displaying the Beaver-Triangle sign.

SPRINGTIME FESTIVAL OF NEW APPAREL

"The Feast of Flora" in the old Greek days was a Spring Festival of Rejoicing. It heralded the rejuvenation of the Earth. All nature awakened to the new season and it was an occasion of great happiness For the past four, long, dark years the world has been plunged into the depths of mourning. Now comes Springtime. Nature prompts us to throw off sackcloth and ashes. "The Feast of Flora" is here again, and the world wants to be gay. Women will dress to express joy and loveliness Fashion has gone through the scorching crucible of war and now emerges chastened and more beautiful than ever. : : : :

This Spring Exhibition exemplifies this organization's constructive work in merchandising. Glorious new modes are displayed throughout the store, each expressing Fashion's most favored effects. You are specially invited on THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY to inspect the interesting features of the new season. : : : : : : : :

NEW SUITS

Just to see the new suits is to feel a thrill of pleasure. And, of course, Springtime would scarcely be Springtime without a prominent place being given to SUITS in Milady's modish wardrobe. One may choose the quaint little box-style jacket or longer models a la Directoire, many boasting of gay little waistcoats and vestees. The skirts are strikingly plain or with tunic effects, or bepaneled. The colours are, for the most part, dust and navy blue and kindred shades, but such bright color notes are given by rose, blue, white or fancy foulard collars and vests, and the touches of ornamentation are so many and so lovely, that the result is anything but sombre.

NEW HATS

Gone is the ostentacious quietness which has prevailed for the last four years in headgear. The Spring Hats step Forth in gala array.

It would be difficult to overestimate the importance of the Spring Hat in the scheme of new clothes. It is literally and figuratively the crowning touch. And now in our showrooms, awaiting to give you real joy, the loveliest creations of the new season may be found in both street and dress hats. Variety is almost unlimited—never in history, it would seem, could greater selection have been possible. There are tricornes and bicornes of the Directoire days; large, drooping models of strictly modern design; jaunty little turbans and plain sailors. The brightest of colours radiate the freshness of Spring in most of the trimmings, whether they be of flowers, feathers, ribbons or fancy ornaments.

NEW WRAPS

Featuring the vogue of the Cape and showing that the New Coats are oftentimes cut with loose backs, falling from shoulders or belted.

The new wraps are so lovely, words are scarcely adequate to do them justice. The beautiful new shapes brought forth this Spring are as delectable as the styles are different and smart. Many novel and charming ideas will be noticed in this first presentation. Every type of cloak is included in Fashion's showing: the Dolman-like wrap, the loose, swagger coat, the circular cape, and the cape with sleeves. Truly the reign of the cloak is well established, in all the glory of its graceful draperies. For street wear it can be the simplest garment of cloth, just the classic draperies which are drawn into the sleeve and big collar, to give it distinction, expressed in such modish materials as tricotine, gabardine, Poiret twill and serge. The more elaborate models are fashioned of duvet delaine or satin charmeuse.

Returned Soldier Seeks to Create a Home for Children

Sad Case of a Broken Home Unfolded at a Meeting of Children's Aid Society—Accounts Passed.

The simultaneous arrival in the city of a returned soldier and his wife who had been let out on parole from the Reformatory brought to a head an old grievance which the Children's Aid Society were requested at the regular meeting yesterday to use their influence to straighten out. The trouble dated back as far as 1912 when the husband, on the advice of friends, deserted the wife on account of her apparent misbehaviour, and sold out the home and furnishings. Later the wife was compelled to earn her living by scrubbing out offices until after serious indiscretions she was sent to the Reformatory, from which, on account of her apparent complete reformation she was recently let out on parole. The funds for the upkeep of the children had, during the father's absence at the war, been handed over to the Children's Aid Society, who supervised the broken home.

The father in uniform appeared yesterday before the Society to endeavour to obtain the money due the children ($600) with which he hopes to build up his home for his children, while Mr. G. N. Gordon, who appeared gratuitously on behalf of the children, made a strong plea to have them left with the mother. After receiving some timely advice to endeavour to overlook anything which may have occurred and go return to his wife, who apparently would be willing to start over again, the father of the children agreed to the motion passed that the matter be left over for a month to see what developments may occur. "If I can't have the children I don't want a cent, and from now on any place I hang up my hat will be home sweet home," the father declared.

Agent's Report.

Mr. G. W. Powell reported 14 children in the home during the month and 4 at present remaining. 6 applications were made for children and 1 made a ward of the society. He reported a call to Burnt River, where it was reported a number of children were starving. Investigation showed that the father was fairly well to do, but had neglected the children on account of illness. He had also investigated a charge of ill-treatment in Ida.

Members Present.

The Board members present yesterday were Rev. C. J. Phelan, Ald. Phelan, Messrs. E. A. Pack, J. Wearing, R. H. Parsons, G. W. Powell, Dr. King and Mesdames Stocker, Gibbs, Kimberly, Knox and Evans.

SOME CASES OF CONTAGIOUS DISEASE NOT REPORTED, OFFENDERS ESCAPE

Dr. Amys Asserts That He is Not a Public Prosecutor—Quarantine Law Not Strictly Complied With—Wants Bread Wrapped.

BOARD OF HEALTH MEETS

A resolution urging the Council to pass a bylaw requiring the wrapping of all bread sold in Peterboro was adopted by the Board of Health last night. It was the evidence not only of their interest in the promotion of sanitary methods of delivery, but also of their perseverance for this idea has been before the Council several times. It was rejected on the excuse that wrapping would increase the cost of the bread to the consumer, and the Council saw its duty in warding off rather than inspiring attacks on the ratepayer's purse.

Last night's meeting for a while was almost as hushed as a séance except when Sanitary Inspector Stapleton related some of his experiences. The interest was not so much in what the Board proposed to do or had done, as it was in what it could do if it would. Dr. Amys intimated that the quarantine law was not observed as strictly as it should be, and that some doctors did not report all the contagious cases they attended. There were also indefinite references to certain outbreaks but Dr. Amys declared that he wouldn't be a public prosecutor. Even his own child caught scarlet fever from a case that had not been reported.

"What would you suggest Doctor?" Mr. Morgan asked.

"I'd suggest that people who get stung should do the prosecuting," Dr. Amys replied.

The impression was left that some citizen should make an example of offenders against the quarantine law, but there have been no volunteers in the past, and the conditions that were mildly complained of will doubtless continue.

Dr. Amys read a letter which he had received from Mrs. Katherine B. Jamieson of the Local Council of Women asking for information as to the correctness and the statements in a Review editorial of February 22nd that there were opportunities for missionary work in some Peterboro homes where the conditions were not conducive to health and right living. He replied that the assertions were correct, and that he would be glad to give the names and addresses of families if the Council of Women had the right to enter these homes for the purpose of trying to improve them. Some of them were not the houses of poor people, the M.O.H. added, suggesting that the parents needed an application of the shingle that is reserved for misbehaving boys.

Architect's Plans Will Not Be Paid For Until They Are Accepted by the Board

Board of Education Takes Steps to Provide Against Future Losses in This Respect—The New School—Supervised Playgrounds—School Board Meeting.

In order that no time need be lost in the completion of the plans for the new school which the Board of Education plans to build to relieve the congestion in the South Central district, Mr. G. O. Cameron advised the Board to extend the power of the Building committee so that they might select the architect, and when a suitable site is selected the work might be commenced immediately. Mr. G. N. Gordon strongly objected to placing so important a matter as the selection of an architect in the hands of a committee and contended the matter should be entrusted to the whole Board. Mr. J. W. Worth was also against Mr. Cameron's proposal.

"If you are going so far as that why not let the Building committee finish the school at their own discretion and ask the Board to attend the opening?" he asked.

"We probably wouldn't be asked to that," Mr. Gordon replied.

Wasted Money.

Mr. Gordon revived unpleasant memories of the money which had been wasted by the Board in the handling of plans which had been submitted but not accepted. To avoid reoccurrence of this Mr. Gordon's motion that the secretary be authorized to advertise in the Toronto and Peterboro papers that the Building committee is prepared to receive plans for the proposed new Public school to be built by the Board of Education and that any plan or plans accepted will be paid for only in the event of their acceptance was carried.

Supervised Playgrounds.

Mr. J. W. Worth's hopes are realized when the report of the special committee re supervised playgrounds was read as folows:

Your special committee appointed to consider the matter of supervised playgrounds, beg to report and recommend that the Board of Education assist the Playgrounds Association for the year 1919, in the purchase of equipment for two playgrounds on school property, the cost of the same not to exceed $700.00, and such equipment to become the property of the Board.

Your committee also recommend that the disbursements in this connection be under the supervision of the Property committee.

Report of School Nurse.

The school nurse, Miss Jory, reported four hundred children examined in the past month. Of the children examined many were found not to possess a tooth brush and she asked permission to buy cheap ones for these children, also to have soap and towels placed in the schools, where many of the children were found to be in a filthy conditions.

Satisfactory Services.

On the presentation of the report of Mr. F. W. Miller, the truant officer, Mr. Mowat said that the work done by him already has been eminently satisfactory.

Requested Re-appointment.

Captain Munro, a former member of the teaching staff, wrote, asking for a position should a vacancy occur on the staff in August, when he will be ready to resume his duties left when he enlisted. The matter of his re-appointment was left to the Committee on Appointments.

Boiler Inspection.

Boiler inspection at the Public schools had proved the boilers to be in a satisfactory condition.

Memorial to Boys.

Mr. Gordon brought the question of a suitable memorial to the boys of the Collegiate Institute and Public schools to the consideration of the Board. He thought that some fine architectural work which would be a credit to the boys it represents and to the Board which built it. The matter of the memorial was left to a special committee of Mr. G. O. Cameron, Mr. J. W. Worth, Mr. J. A. McKone and Mr. G. N. Gordon to investigate the cost of such a memorial and to report to the Board what it feels should be recommended in the matter.

Increased Cost.

The President of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. G. A. Gillespie, advised the Board that the cost of maintenance of the gymnasium at the Y. had advanced to such an extent that the Board found it necessary to increase the charge to the Board of Education for the use of the building from $120 to $200 per month for the five months it is used by the pupils. The matter was left to the Supervision committee to deal with.

The Supervision Committee recommend that five "first aid kits," similar to the one at the Collegiate Institute be purchased and that one be placed in each of the Public Schools, in which there is not already one provided.

The Advisory Commercial Committee reported and recommend the following:

1st. That the Board of Education submit to the Minister for his approval the following modification of the present timetable of the Commercial Department:

That Reading and Literature of the first year be taught together, allowing four periods per week for that purpose.

That eight periods per week be set aside in the first year for writing, business papers and typewriting. This would permit three shifts in typwriting, so that each pupil may typewrite three periods per week, and have five periods for writing business papers.

That fourteen periods be set aside in the second year for writing, business papers, typewriting, so that each pupil may have one hour per day for typewriting and four periods per week for writing and business papers.

That, as it is deemed inexpedient at present, to lengthen the present course of two years, and in order to secure sufficient time for commercial subjects, the Minister be requested to permit the discontinuance of a Group IV (Algebra) the Second year subject.

2nd. That additional typewriting machines be purchased for the Commercial Department, as, in the opinion of the Committee, the Commercial equipment is entirely inadequate for the needs of eighty pupils.

3rd. That, as soon as may be deemed expedient by the Board of Education, a Supervisor of Typewriting be appointed.

TRAINED NURSE NOW TESTIFIES

Says She Feels Made Over Since Taking Tanlac—Gains Nine Pounds.

Mrs. F. O. Forrester, a trained nurse residing at the Grand Central Hotel, Denver, Ohio, is but one of this high profession who have testified to the merits of Tanlac. Mrs. Forrester recently said:

"I had been in miserable health seven years, suffering from indigestion. Everything I ate would sour and even cold water would cause me much distress. The pains in my chest and about my heart were almost unbearable at times and I suffered terribly from neuralgia. I would have vomiting spells daily and for three months couldn't retain a thing on my stomach but oatmeal. Often at night I would wake up feeling like I was smothering to death and would have to get up out of bed and stand on my feet a while to get my breath.

"One of my friends who knew of my awful condition and who had been benefitted by Tanlac advised me to try it, I did so and my relief has been remarkable. Really I feel like I have been made over again. I have already gained nine pounds in weight and intend to keep on taking Tanlac as long as it does me as much good as it is now."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd. in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

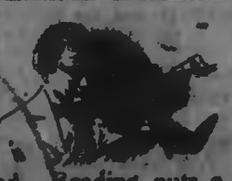
ART ASSOCIATION HELD A MEETING

At a meeting of the Woman's Art Association held last evening in the Public Library, Dr. Jessie Birnie, gave an interesting address on "The Great Drama of Napoleon's Life." The meeting was attended by practically all the members of the society and a number of gentlemen. Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, President of the Association occupied the chair.

DO YOU READ?



Of course you do! And you read more than your forefathers did. Once scholars did most of the reading—now all of us read. Reading puts a strain upon the eyes Nature never intended it to sustain. We must help Nature—assist the eye—adjust it to new conditions. Very few eyes do not need glasses. Almost every civilized person needs them. If you neglect your eye welfare now, the time will come when your eyes will mistreat your welfare. We can furnish you with glasses—before it is too late.

Nothing requires a little artificial aid so much as nature.

THREATEN TO SINK SHIP

Serious Conditions Aboard Transport At Halifax.

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, N.S., March 12.—Conditions aboard the troopship Tolos are in a critical state to-day owing to the refusal of the military authorities at Ottawa to furnish transportation to their homes for three hundred British reservists who were proceeding to New York on the steamer when she was ordered back to Halifax to coal owing to a strike in that port. Captain Jackson came ashore this morning to receive the decision of the Canadian authorities after he had been informed by a delegation that the men would sink the ship unless they were allowed to come ashore and proceed to their destinations by rail. Captain Jackson states that he has no guns aboard and that the ship is at the mercy of the men. Among the two hundred and ninety men aboard the Tolos are eighty-one American citizens, seventy of whom claim to be American born. They all came to Canada during the early months of the war and enlisted in the British expeditionary forces. Captain Jackson contends that his orders from the British Admiralty were to take the men to Halifax and disembark them there.

(United Press.)

DUBLIN, March 12.—At a meeting of the Dublin Corporation last night, Sinn Fein members of Parliament protested against the action of prison authorities at the Belfast jail. The Corporation, led by the Lord Mayor, proceeded to Dublin Castle where they protested to the Government officials. The Under Secretary agreed to communicate the protest to the British Cabinet.

This despatch does not indicate what "action of the Belfast prison authorities was under protest."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Rickard Regards Dempsey as An Even Money Choice in the Big Championship Battle

Promoter Breezed Into New York —Has Ample Rooming Ground for the Big Battle on July 4th.

FLATTERING OFFERS

(United Press.)

(By Tom Lewis.)

This, in substance, is the slogan of Tex Rickard, promoter of the Willard--Dempsey Championship contest, who has just breezed into New York fresh from gold fields of the southeast. Rickard would not admit that the west is definitely out of the running on the combat, but he did confess a strong liking for the east.

"I'm not jumping at a place to hold the fight," Rickard told a flock of newspaper reporters who bombarded him at the Baltimore; "but I'll be honest about this thing. I would rather promote ten or twelve rounds in the east, than go in for twenty in the west. But there are a bunch of places and there is plenty of time."

"But how are you betting?" Tex was asked.

Even Money Choice.

He laughed. "That's a puzzler," he said, "and I'll admit I haven't figured But, he added, significantly "I'll predict that Dempsey will go into the ring on July 4th on even money choice. Think not? Well, I know that is something that has never happened in a championship contest — but they're mighty strong for Jack out there in the Rockies."

Here the wily promoter opened up a bit and contributed this bit of information. "I'd rather bet my money that the fight won't go ten rounds than to wager that it would go over ten."

"Why?" he was asked.

"Dempsey's speed," he said laconically. "That's what makes me feel that way."

Likes New York.

Rickard's statement coupled with the fact that the New York boxing bill comes up for hearing in Albany to-day, leads boxing followers here to believe that Tex has had New York very close to his heart all along. His timely arrival here on the very eve of the hearing, his frank admission that he has a hankering for the eastern battle field, and his easy dismissal of the subject when flattering offers from the west were suggested, confirms the belief in the minds of many that the big fracas will be staged here if Rickard has his choice.

Not on the Market.

Disposing of an Idaho offer from Ala Hager of $16,000 for the sale of the fight, Rickard said the big bout is not on the market in quite this way. But Rickard has ample rooming ground if these strongholds fail him.

"Haven't I got Arizona, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Colorado, Ohio, Louisiana, Rhode Island, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Texas to lean on?" he asked with his quiet grin. "And besides we have Hamilton, Quebec, and Halifax, so why jump at a place?"

Rickard said he would hang up a purse of $10,000 for the semi-windup. He is willing that the largest man in the navy and the heftiest man in the army shall contest for this plum; but he will tolerate no professionals.

Carter Won the Dummy Score Prize

On Saturday evening March 8th about 35 members of the De Laval Bowling League bowled for the dummy score prize.

While it looks very easy for the average bowler to roll the exact score of 125 yet, many of the veteran De Laval Rollers found it difficult even to get within shooting distance of this total.

Out of the 35 members that rolled 6 of the bowlers tied for the prize in the first draw as follows:

Barrette 126
Cullen 126
[illegible] 126
Carter 126

Downing 124
J. Cullen 126

In the second draw Barrette and Carter tied for the prize. Barrette rolling 122 and Carter rolling 128.

In the finals Barrette had a good chance of rolling the exact score but could not resist the temptation of getting into the flock when he only required a single pin or two. Carter as a climax to these games rolled the exact score of 125 capturing the prize.

A Birthday Tea at "Athol" Place

The 'Birthday Tea' of the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E., held yesterday at "Athol Place," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, to celebrate the seventh anniversary of the founding of the Chapter, was a brilliant success and attended by about one hundred and seventy guests. In the drawing room, charmingly decorated by a profusion of sweet peas and snap dragons, Mrs. Eastwood, Vice Regent of the Chapter, received, assisted by Mrs. H. S. MacDonald, convenor of the tea committee, while in the dining room, cleverly and appropriately decorated in St. Patrick fashion, Mrs. E. B. Clegg presided at the tea table. She was assisted by Mrs. C. R. Widdifield, Mrs. Bruce Gillespie, Mrs. H. O. Fiske, Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Crowe, Miss Sarah Robinson and Miss Maud Rush. The visitors were specially impressed by the unique St. Patrick decorations of the dining room table, which was really a work of art, and a credit to the ingenuity of the decorator.

Violin and piano solos—The Misses Harrington.

Work has already started on the cooking plant of Gunns, Ltd., in the same section of the city.

HAD WEAK and FAINTING SPELLS

Those feelings of faintness, those weak, "all gone" sinking sensations, which come over most people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded.

They mean an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered nervous system.

When the system is in this condition there is no time for delay. One fainting spell may be recovered from—will the next? One dizzy spell may pass off, but the next may be more serious.

1,200 MEN ASSISTED
Returned Soldiers Going on Land Secure Far Receive $1,680,000
Ottawa, March 12.—While the debate on the address was in progress in the House last night, W. J. Black, chairman of the Soldier's Settlement Board, was giving an address in one of the committee rooms on the activities of the board. Altogether there had been 1,200 men assisted with loans averaging $1,400, the total of loans to settlers being $1,680,000. A large percentage of the men have from $1,000 to $2,000 capital. They are mostly farmers' sons or men who have worked on farms before enlisting, or men who have drifted into the cities, but now desire to return to the land.

MOTOR SHOW NEXT MONTH ON BIGGER SCALE THAN EVER

Proceeds Will Be in Aid of Peterborough Health Association—Exhibits of Cars and Accessories Will Surpass Anything Seen Here, While Programme Will Be Unusually Lavish.

Citizens of Peterborough will be interested in learning that the motor show will be held in the armouries on April 9, 10 and 11, which promises to be on an even greater and more successful scale than its predecessors. The plans for the big event are well advanced and the present indications are that there will not only be a more extensive showing of cars and accessories than ever before seen here, but that the amusements and entertainment features will be novel and numerous.

The last motor show was under the auspices of and in aid of the Peterborough branch of the Red Cross Society and a splendid sum was secured. This year, with the war over, the Red Cross Society is no longer in need of funds, and so next month's show will be for the benefit of an organization that has been quietly and effectively doing a wonderful work in Peterborough—the Health Association. There is no local organization that is more deserving of support—its mission of making Peterborough a healthy city, of taking care of those who are ill, of providing nourishment in the case of patients who have not the means to secure the delicacies that are needed, is one that should have the united backing of the community. Those public-spirited citizens who "carried on" during the war years are hopeful of being able now to extend the scope of their work. They have planned to undertake a number of things that will help in the fight against disease and suffering, and if sufficient funds are forthcoming the work will be undertaken. Much depends upon the financial success of the coming motor show, so that the people of Peterborough are asked to keep the date open and be ready to support the big event of next month. They are promised a programme that will be surprising in its extent and at the same time will be helping to assist in a movement that is worthy of all encouragement.

OBITUARY

HOWARD J. SEARIGHT.
The death occurred in Montreal last night of Howard J. Searight, formerly of Norwood, who attended the Peterborough Business College for a time and had many friends in Peterborough. LARGE CROWDS AT BEDDING EXHIBITION

Daily increasing numbers of interested housewives attend the Better Bedding Exhibition held this week at Turnbull's store and a surprisingly large number of beds and mattresses have already been sold to the people who have become convinced of the necessity of perfect sleeping accommodation. Nothing has been spared by the management of the store to make the top floor in which the beds and couches are exhibited thoroughly entertaining and worth attending even if only from a matter of curiosity. Splendid music is daily supplied by Mr. R. Gliddon's orchestra which feature alone makes a trip up on the elevator thoroughly worth while.

A Supremacy That Didn't Come "Over Night"
THE majesty of the British Navy—its might—its wonderful supremacy—did not arise in a single night. Hundreds of years of development—generations of tradition and practical seamanship—all were needed to consummate the triumph of QUALITY.
Equally so, quality in ALL things results only from studied effort and steady development toward an ideal.

The Situation.

Though a prophet rose from the dead, he never could have persuaded the third George of England that under the fifth George the nation of George Washington would save England from destruction at the hands of the third George's kin. As old John Phoenix used to say, "truth is often more of a stranger than fiction."—Topeka Capital.

Pisistratus, the first lawgiver of Athens, when asked why he had made death the penalty for every infraction of his statutes, replied that it was none too much for the least crime and he knew nothing more severe for the greater. List of Crimes Recorded Against the War Lords

Crimes of German Militarist Leaders Set Forth by M. Martel—Civilians Ordered to be Shot.

Several respectable authorities in England have declared that there is no tribunal before which the Kaiser and his associates can be called to answer for their crimes, despite this, the Peace Conference has made an excellent beginning by appointing a committee to determine, among other things, the degree of responsibility for these offenses attaching to particular members of the enemy's forces, including members of the General Staffs and other individuals, however highly placed." Probably there is no sentiment more generally prevailing in the world to-day than the demand for the punishment of those who have fought the most atrocious war in history in the most atrocious way. If no tribunal exists for bringing these arch criminals to book, it is simply because the crimes of which they stand accused have been hitherto unknown.

What specifically are these crimes? An industrious Frenchman, M. Tancrede Martel has done the world a service by assembling in concrete form the particular offences charged to particular individuals in his recent book. "What Will Be the End of William and His Accomplices?" M. Martel has a compiled list, a kind of Who's Who in International Crime, containing 573 high-placed Germans who may with propriety be haled before the bar of justice. Most of the German leaders who have figured in the war news of the last four years figure in M. Martel's list. Inevitably the Kaiser stands at the head, and then the Crown Prince, Bethmann-Hollweg, Hindenburg, Mackensen, and all the rest follow in all their hideous eminence. The following are a few of the specific offenses which, according to M. Martel, demand the consideration of the Allies:

Von Hindenburg: As commander-in-chief in East Prussia ordered that bread which had been found soaked in paraffin should be given as food to the Russian prisoners. Being at Roisel (Somme) on the 10th of March, 1917, gave the order that everything should be destroyed, burned, and pillaged in the regions which the Germans were about to evacuate. Was responsible for the violation of tombs at Carlepont, Chaudor, and Roiglise in March, 1917.

Von Mackensen: Responsible for thefts, incendiarism, and the execution of notables and peasants in Rumania. Ordered about 1,000 Rumanian children, from 10 to 17 years of age, to be shot in the ground that they had conspired against him. Stole 70,000,000 in the occupied parts of Rumania.

Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: Massacred and hanged civilians in Russian Poland in 1915. Is responsible for the deportations of Lille, Rouzbaix, and Tourcoing, accomplished with the help of Von Graevenitz, military governor of Lille. Connived at the theft of money from the deportees.

Von Schubert: Shelled a number of old men, women, and children whom he had collected in the hospital at Brouage, on the ground that they were "useless mouths." Caused 31 girls to be carried off and placed at the disposal of his officers.

Von Bulow: Posted the following notice at Andennes on the 22nd of August, 1914: "It is with my consent that the whole place has been burned and about 100 people have been shot." Posted the following notice at Namur on the 25th of August, 1914: "Ten hostages will be taken in each street. If there is any disturbance in the street all the hostages will be shot."

Klauss: Responsible for massacres at Gerbeviller and Frambois. At Gerbeviller alone 70 civilians were assassinated. One of them, engaged in Red Cross work, was soaked in petroleum and burned alive.

Stenger: Author of the following order of the day: "All prisoners, even if taken in large numbers, are to be put to death. No living man is to be left behind us."

Von Graevnitz: Military governor of Lille, carried 30,000 civilians, including men, women and children, into slavery, and told the Bishop, who protested, to hold his tongue.

Von Dreicht: At Arlon, being drunk, ordered the execution of 117 hostages. Laughed when he was told, on recovering sobriety, that the order had been carried out.

Blegen: Responsible for the destruction of Dinant and the massacre of more than 600 persons, including 34 old women, 71 women, and 17 children under nine years of age.

Von Manteuffel: Ordered the burning of Louvain and the expulsion of 10,000 civilians from the town.

Von Rodeiski: Gave a formal order that all Cossacks who surrendered should be shot or hanged.

Major von Bulow: Author of the destruction of Ardchoit. Ordered 150 civilians to be shot. Compelled the women of the town to stand by, with their arms in the air, for six hours, witnessing the conflagration.

Eberlein: Boasted, in an article printed in The Muncher Neueste Nachrichten, that he had compelled civilians to march in front of his men as a screen against the enemy's fire.

Von Tirpitz: Responsible for the earlier submarine outrages.

Von Capelle: Responsible for the later submarine outrages. Gave stringent orders that hospital ships were not to be spared.

Farmer's And Dairymen's Of Peterborough District

When I began breeding Holstein Cattle six years ago, I had no inclination whatever of going into the business as a fad. What I wanted was a Utility Herd, a herd of cows that would produce 20,000 lbs. of milk or over in a year, and do it at a profit. I chose my foundation cows with this end in view.

As proof of the wisdom of this choice I developed the first 4 years old cow to make 20,000 lbs. in one year, also her nearest rival with 19,753 lbs. in one year. Later we developed Tochlta of Riverside, 24,094 lbs. milk, 1057 lbs. butter in one year, making her champion mature cow of the Dominion of Canada, a title she held for three years.

"Calamity Johanna Nig" came next with 25,443 lbs. milk, 1007 lbs. butter in one year, 108 lbs. in one day. At the time that this record was made her milk record stood first in Canada.

"Rooker Netherland Belle," another member of the herd, gave over 16,000 lbs. in eight months. At this time owing to the scarcity of help, brought on by the war, I was forced to turn to the short time test, known as the 7 and 30 day test. So far we have been successful in developing the second highest 7 day Jr. 3-yr. old in Canada for 1918, with 729.68 lbs. butter, 5[illegible] lbs. milk, in 7 days; 2--23 lb. cows, 2572 lbs. cow, an 18 lb. 2 yr. old, and have just finished testing 2 four year old cows, both making over 30 lbs. butter in 7 days.

The farm being sold, rather unexpected, and not being able to find accommodation suitable to handle a large herd, I am offering the entire herd at auction, at the Exhibition Grounds, Toronto, on April 9—11. Plan now to attend this sale. There are a large number of females going into the sale that are yet to be developed. They will do well for you as they have for me. If you want cows why not those that will give you a double profit. That's what you get from long distance Holsteins—an income from cream and milk and an income from stock sales.

Come to the sale of Horses and Farm Machinery to be held at the farm, Douro, ON TUESDAY, MARCH 18TH, at 1 o'clock, where you will have an excellent opportunity to look over the herd and have the breeding and records of each animal explained to you. It will be a pleasure for us to do so.

There will be sold at the farm on the above date an excellent outfit of Farm Machinery, all practically new and everything required to work a 200-acre farm, including an Empire Mechanical Milker, guaranteed to be in 1st class condition, 3½ H.P. gas engine, a power attachment for Ford car; 3 fine horses, 600 bushels of clean seed Oats, No. 72, and Hay. See posters.

Take an afternoon off and be with us.

DON'T SCOLD, MOTHER! THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

LOOK AT TONGUE! IF COATED, CLEAN LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if the tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach and liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, does not eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep handy, mother! A little given to-day saves sick child to-morrow. But get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Already over two thousand letters of condolence have been replied to by Lady Laurier, and they continue to be received in large numbers.

Specks Floating Before His Eyes

When specks start to float before the eyes, when everything turns black for a few seconds and you feel as if you were going to faint, you may rest assured that your liver is not working properly.

The essential thing to do in all cases where the liver is slow, lazy or torpid is to stir it up by the use of a medicine that will clear away all the waste and poisonous matter from the system, and prevent as well as cure all the troubles arising from this accumulated mass which has collected in the system.

Keep the bowels open by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and you will have no liver trouble of any kind. They will clear away all the waste and effete matter which has collected and make the liver active and working properly.

Mr. John R. Morrison, Grand River Falls, N.S., writes: "Several months ago I was troubled with a sour stomach, and had specks floating before my eyes. I took five vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which cured and cleaned my blood before any length of time. I told my friends about it and they, too, found themselves different since they took them. I recommend your pills very highly."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHAPTER CXLII.

It was the tone of Brian's voice, more than his words, which made Ruth ask again:

"Why?"

"Because I do not intend my comrades from over there shall know anything of my affairs," he returned so sharply that Ruth stared.

"What affairs? What is there we do you object to having them know?"

"Nothing that I do! All that you are doing." The old bitterness was there, and more. Those fellows think me a man," his hand sought and closed over the cross which decorated his breast. I should like them to hold that opinion for a while longer, if possible. That is the reason I did not ask Major Williams to dinner; the reason I never shall ask any of them here."

Without a word, Ruth turned away. She was very silent all through dinner, although her aunt, sensing some sort of a strained situation, talked more volubly than she usually did.

"I shall have to argue him out of that frame of mind," Ruth thought as she watched his face—almost sullen, so different from the brightness of the past days. "Poor boy, he is half sick yet, even if he has been so wonderful. I shall have to humor him, not feel hurt at things he says and does. "So, with an effort, she joined her aunt in her attempt to make things assume a happier complexion.

Her aunt left at eight o'clock. And it was with a little sinking of her heart that Ruth bade her good-bye. Brian would be all alone during the day until he was able to go out. It would make her absence all the more noticeable. Poor, sensitive Brian. He would have to get used to it. Her work needed her, had been neglected for him as long as he required attention. He must amuse himself with the baby and his books.

It was noticeable, however, that Ruth took great pains to have all the latest magazines, and many of the new books upon the tables, close drawn up to the couch, convenient to his hand without causing him to rise. She also gave particular orders as regarded luncheon—she came home each day instead of going to the nearby restaurant— providing everything Brian liked. But he did not recover his old manner. He talked little when she was at home, and once or twice had gone down town and come home very tired.

"Please don't try to go out alone, yet," she said one day.

"I shall go so often as I choose. Please let me alone."

The reply was so unlike the Brian who, even when in pain—as he was at first,—had a smile and gay answer for them all, that the tears filled her eyes, and she put her hand pleadingly upon his arm.

"Don't, Brian. You hurt."

"I am not the only one who hurts people; don't flatter yourself that I have a mortgage upon that emotion."

"Oh, Brian, I don't know what to do! You are very different lately."

"Been better if I hadn't come back."

"Please, dear!" the tears fell unheeded, "I can't bear to have you talk like that. Not come back to baby and me! It would have been too awful.

Then one day Mrs. Burliss came into the shop.

"Mollie King is back. She looks prettier than ever. She has had some wonderful experiences, and you should hear her talk about Brian. I guess he has kept most of his brave acts to himself. She says he was simply wonderful! that officers and men loved him, and that he could do anything in the world with his men; that they would follow him anywhere. You must get her to tell you some of the things she told me."

That night when Ruth reached home she noticed at once that Brian seemed brighter.

"You feel better to-night?" she said as she kissed him.

"Yes. Mollie King is back! She called me up and we had a regular pow-wow on the telephone."

"Did you ask her to come up?" breathlessly Ruth waited.

"Yes. You bet your life I did! I told her how infernally lonely I was lying or sitting here all day long. She is coming to-morrow morning to sit with me."

Ruth turned toward the kitchen. She feared she might say something she would regret.

"I told her not to dare to make any plans until I got back to the office," Brian's voice trailed after her, raised a little, and in it a vibrant quality she had not noticed for days "that I should expect her to spend the days with me. I needed a nurse."

"What shall I do?" Ruth said when the door between them had closed, "I can't let her get him interested in her again — and—it's so soon.' She wrung her hands in agony at the thought, "I can't! I can't!" she reiterated.

To-morrow—Ruth Reviews Her Life With Brian

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterboro and most all druggists under a guarantee of entire satisfaction or your money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:— Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh

INDIANS MAKE PEACE.

Canadian Redskins Set Their Brothers a Good Example.

War, mostly of the smoldering variety but which in past generations has blazed up and drawn blood, no longer exists between the Sitka and Wrangell clans of the Kock-Wan-Ton caste of the Thlinket Indian tribe of southeastern Alaska. Peace was declared at a meeting November 11th, the same day on which the world war armistice was signed.

The Indians have been intelligent enough to notice how well such matters are handled by their red brothers who live in Canada. The Indians decided to set aside their tribal customs. Disputes, the Indians decided, in the future will be settled by the white man's law, instead of by hostilities.

No Indian now living can remember the time when the Sitkas and Wrangells were at peace. There has been bad blood between them for years. The last battle attempt to make peace took place in the early eighties, when Jack Yuquan, father of one of the delegates at the last meeting, led his tribe of Sitkas to Wrangell to make peace. A war cry greeted their arrival and nearly all the visitors were massacred by the Wrangells. Chief Yuquan was among the Sitkas killed.

Old men of the tribes, it is said, refused to let the hostility die and endeavored to keep alive the fires of hatred. With the passing of many of the old tribesmen, however, the younger men, imbued with the ideas of modern civilization taught them in the government schools, decided they wanted peace.

In 1917, Chief Shaks of the Wrangells opened peace negotiations with Jack Yaquan of the Sitkas. He urged the sending of peace delegates to Wrangell where, he proposed, the leaders of the two clans should beat the old grounds. So at the close of the fishing season a delegation of Sitkas of "pow-wows" decided to let bygones be bygones and to abolish the old customs. Chief Shaks, the father of the peace move, died before the meeting was held.

So now there is peace on the northern waters and islands and the Sitkas and Wrangells will no longer live in fear of each other. When out on their hunting and fishing trips or when laying their winter trap lines they will visit each other and be friends.

This Bug Has a Cow's Face.

You would perhaps not notice this cowlike face and fur collar unless you should use a pocket lens, which every scout should have. Then you will find the monohammus or sawyer beetle extremely interesting, says Edward W. Bigelow, scout naturalist, discussing this curious insect in Boys' Life. These beautiful brown and gray beetles are, including the antennae, about an inch and a quarter long. The antennae or feelers are as long as the body in the case of the female and twice as long in the male.

Where shall you look for these curious beetles? Search among the needle-like leaves of the pine and fir. The larvae are found in the sound wood of these trees. Sometimes the mature beetles occur in such numbers as to do real injury to the trees, but ordinarily they are not very plentiful, and most scouts are not familiar with them, even where they are fairly abundant.

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, and bright eyes, give them to a woman and she is happy.

New German Drying Process.

The so-called Krayneska method, a new means of drying eggs, fruit juice and blood, has been demonstrated before the food authorities in Berlin and found worth exploiting to a large extent. The drying is done in a large iron cylinder five meters in diameter, in which a pair of big metal wings are quickly rotating, driven by a steam turbine. The fluid is lashed to foam and dried by the aid of a hot current of air that is continually passed through the cylinder. The dried product is in the form of a powder, which will keep for a long time and can be most economically transported. The dried products go through no chemical process and are directly soluble in water. Drying plants of this type for treating about 140,000 eggs a day will be erected shortly in Berlin and Bucharest.

War's Far-Flung Ruins.

Russian churches in Alaska have hard times making both ends meet since war's turmoil in Russia stopped the payment of money by the mother church toward the upkeep of these far-away parishes. All the churches in that section are now being supported solely by their small congregations. Many of the churches contain valuable paintings and jeweled robes.

In order to eke out his salary, one member of the Russian clergy, Father A. P. Kashevaroff, arch priest in charge of the Russian church at Juneau, took the post of inspector of customs at Hidden Inlet, near there, for the summer.

No Mephistophelean Monopoly.

The devil has no monopoly on the pitchfork.

Rev. William Barnes Lower, pastor of the Holy Trinity Presbyterian church of Logan, Philadelphia, recently spent his vacation working on a farm near Schwenksville, Pa., and sent a message to his congregation, urging the able-bodied male members to help farmers harvest their crops.

"If we can thresh grain in the field," was his message, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin, "we can thresh the devil in the front-line trenches he is building 'round our churches." — United States Employment Service Bulletin.

NO EXPRESSION IN THE EYES

Quite as Much in Those of Glass as in the Natural Ones, Is Recent Assertion.

A writer in the London Chronicle asserts that the human eye never changes its expression, and no doubt he is correct in that assertion. We may take it for granted, if he is just a writer, that he never discovered this for himself, but is merely recording a fact that has been demonstrated by scientific observers. The eye apparently expresses a variety of emotions, and writers as a class are continually recording these changing expressions with all the adjectival wealth they can command. The heroes, heroines and villains of fiction are always registering emotions with their eyes, and when you read the convincing descriptions you simply have to believe them. What is more, any day at the movies you can see the heroes, heroines and villains actually performing these stunts with their eyes. You don't have to take the words of authors for it; the movie actors furnish the Q. E. D.

So what is the use of contradicting facts that are universally recognized? Most of us meet and talk with several dozen persons every day, and we pass hundreds of others in the streets. If you observe the eyes of any of those persons you cannot fail to note that they reveal one or another mental or emotional state. The eyes are cold, indifferent, questioning, melancholy, petulant, mirthful, mildly amused or what not, as the case may be. They also reflect boldness, timidity, self-assurance, diffidence, coquetry and a variety of dominant temperamental attributes.

However, we are told that the eyes never behave in any such fashion, and we are forced to believe it. The eyes themselves are incapable of emotional change. Novelists are always having eyes "flash with rage" and all that sort of thing, and most of us are convinced that we have frequently seen eyes flash. But no rage or emotion of any sort can change the glistening of the eye. The flashing or glistening of the eye depends wholly upon reflected light. That light is reflected from two places, the pupil and the white, and neither of these brightnesses is governed by the mental or emotional state. The effect of the changing expressions of the eye is really given by the various flexing of the muscles in the flesh surrounding the eye and by the eyelids. The flashing effect is undoubtedly produced by a wider opening of the lids, which exposes more of the white for light reflection. In a "twinkling" eye it is not the eye but the lids and the surrounding muscles that really twinkle. As a matter of fact, a first-class glass eye would appear to be just as expressive emotionally as a natural eye.—F. H. Young, in Providence Journal.

Then It Seemed Plainer.

While waiting for a train home from the city one night Jones grew restless, and looked about for something interesting. His eyes fell upon a slot machine, and he promptly inserted a penny.

"I have often wondered," he remarked aloud, in the manner of all truly thoughtful men, "where the profits on these machines—"

"Where the profit on these affairs—"

So saying he shook the machine.

"I have often wondered," he continued, giving it another vigorous shake, "where the profit— Hang the thing!"

Then one of the porters came up and told him that the machine was out of order, and Jones realized at last where part of the profit came from!

Soy Bean Crop Important.

The soy bean was introduced into the United States as early as 1804, but it is only during the last decade that it has become a crop of much importance. At the present time it is most largely grown for forage. In many sections, especially southward and in some parts of the corn belt, a very profitable industry has developed from the growing of seed. During the past few years the acreage has increased to a very considerable extent. The large yield of seed, the excellent quality of forage, the ease of growing and harvesting the crop, its freedom from insect enemies and plant diseases, and the possibilities of the seed for the production of oil and meal and as a food all tend to give this crop a high potential importance and assure its greater agricultural development in America.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE FLIRTATION OF ANNE

She Knew He Was a Winner.

By RITA KELLEY.

The delayed invitation of Janet Fair's house party almost caused a rupture in the Halliwell family, so intense was the scramble to get frocks that matched the shoes, girdles to match the frocks, with sufficient of everything into the traveling bags and Anne off to the station for the 4:50 train. At the last minute she snatched from her writing desk a few pages torn from a magazine and stuffed them into her hand bag as she hurried down to the cab. Janet had sent her the story a fortnight ago, and the success or failure of the week end for her depended upon whether or not she waded through it before she reached Brentwood. Janet had set opinions about some things, among them her love for conventional Anne and an overweening desire to provide literature much diversified by commentaries for her best beloved.

Anne made the train. As she hurried down the platform and climbed into the car a feeling of wild good humor possessed her. The old cramping demureness that savored of self consciousness in her personality had been lost in the excitement of the last hour. She found herself within the car with a dizzy desire to do something rash.

She did not know what exactly. Then it flashed over her—no more old ladies or women with children or nice elderly men. She shuddered at thought of the innumerable times she had asked to share their seats—no. This time she was free from tradition. She would pick a winner! With brave determination she dropped her bags and set out down the aisle in quest of him.

He was at the extreme end of the car. Big and brown, and he looked the part. The little query was said, the alacritous moving of bags ended, and Anne sank into the man's place by the window, facing him, with a tiny feeling of exultation.

He was a winner sure enough, handsome and with the most charming manner imaginable. Anne dubbed him a Harvard man when he lifted his hat. They were all so delightfully gallant. She was not in the least embarrassed by his intermittent gaze, which was timed, as only a winner knows how, to meet her vagrant glances. She knew her hat was immensurably becoming, with the pink rose and soft plume against her brownish hair; also that her blue fox set was the latest cry in furs and her gloves and boots correct. It occurred to her presently, however, that she ought to convince the man of her complete disinterestedness in choosing him for a traveling companion.

Accordingly she drew the portion of magazine from her hand bag and settled herself comfortably. There were six pages of it, and she knew that, provided she read leisurely, it would last until she reached Brentwood. Janet had a third virtue. She considered, speculating subconsciously, with eyes fixed on the flowing landscape, over a long look which she had just interrupted, were his eyes brown or gray or green? Oh, Janet's virtue! Well, it was providing literature for traveling young ladies who were in danger of reverting without warning to embarrassing original self consciousness.

Janet had scribbled in her bold chirography wherever an interlineation was possible fond, foolish things which Anne soon forgot to read in her absorption in the story. She loved a horse, and this was a hero handled with the sympathetic touch of a lover of horses. Tears sprang to her eyes, to be succeeded by a smile, a low laugh or strained intentness and pain. She finished the story as the train whistled for Brentwood, with an overwhelming desire to lean over and tell the man facing her that it was the greatest story ever written; that she wanted to tell him about it; that she knew he would understand.

Carried outside herself, she leaned forward impulsively, her lips parted, eyes glowing, about to speak. Presto! Her mind sprang like a trap, and she bent over her bags instead, embarrassedly preparing to flee. She gave him the fleetest of glances as she rose, and he looked steadily at her while a suspicion of a smile, appreciative and friendly, came into his eyes. She had the story with her; but, suddenly following an impulse, she dropped it as a thing of no value upon the seat.

Janet Fair was in a state of woe. The lion of the house party had not materialized. Frantic telephoning and wires disclosed the fact that he had left town for Silox, next station beyond Brentwood, on the 4:50 train and had been seen no more. The Fair country place stood midway between the two stations used impartially by the Fair guests, and a coupe had met both stations, one bringing Anne Halliwell from Brentwood, the last woman guest.

"He is yours, dear," said Janet, drawing Anne out into the chill moonlight on the little balcony.

"Why don't you take him yourself?" laughed Anne.

"Can't. Never seen me. Told me confidentially that he adored the svelte, dreamy girl made of repose and inner reserves, and—I handed him over to you. You'll have to take him bodily, for Gladys Whitcomb has sharpened up her teeth and nails ready to spring and drag him off."

"But, Janet," protested Anne, "I never went in for a man in my life. I couldn't do it. I'd hate myself."

"I'm a deep dyed villain!" growled Janet, striking an attitude. "You blessed lamb, don't I know your proclivities? Rack your naive brain for a simple and good reason why I sent you a belated invitation, why I expected Aubrey Churchill on the 4:50 train, why"—

"W-was"—

Anne started in consternation, lost her balance against the low railing and was reeling backward when strong arms caught her and set her upon her feet. Then a traveling bag was flung upon the balcony, and, emerging from the shrubbery beneath, a man vaulted beside the girls.

"My lady of the story," he said, smiling whimsically upon Anne, who after one swift look was trying vainly to melt into the shadow, "I have a score to settle with you after I get something to eat. Just look at this saturated brow, will you? It's like a sponge. And these aching arms carried that bag ten miles on an empty stomach."

A terrifying silence followed the click of the window behind Janet's exit. Anne stood on the chilly balcony with the perfect stillness that precedes either attack or precipitate flight, gazing straight into the steady eyes of the man before her.

Then, turning swiftly, she wrestled with the window fastening for an instant and fled. The man, laughing softly, stepped into the library and called, "The tilt after the banquet, remember," as she escaped the room.

He was a young man who would have his way, Anne discomfitedly admitted later. She had been playing fox and geese with him desperately all evening, with the dawning conviction that she was the singular goose. When he cornered her in the dim library as the other guests drifted into the music room she almost gasped surrender.

"Now, Miss Story Lady," he said, thrusting his hands into the pockets of his tuxedo and looking tremendously handsome, with an expression of mock severity on his clean cut face, "why did you do it?"

Anne squirmed propitiatory to flight, but he blocked egress from the divan, and she settled back, with a laugh that tried to be trifling.

"It was a great story, wasn't it?" she said irrelevantly.

"Don't you know," he said, dropping down beside her, "that you ought to apologize for causing me to discommode our hostess.

Embarrassment enveloped Anne. She was groping desperately for that will-o'-the-wisp, her daredevilry, that had got her into this difficulty and refused to extricate her. "W-why didn't you get off?" she stammered, a flush mantling her cheeks. "I did not keep you there."

"But the story did." He smiled insistently upon her as he drew the pages from his pocket.

Anne's heart stopped. She had forgotten the scribblings on the margins when she dropped the story in the car.

"It seems we have a staunch admirer in Janet," he said gently, "and I, for one, quite approve of her. I was deep in a panegyric on your charms and virtues when the train went through Silox."

Anne groaned. She could not help it, knowing, as she did, the extravagance of Janet on paper.

"She has everything arranged," he continued, smiling subtly down at the helpless girl half facing him. "Bridesmaids—think of it—bridesmaids! We didn't either of us know that when we started out this afternoon, did we?"

Anne suddenly buried her face in her hands. He looked at her a moment musingly, then over so gently extricated her fingers and made her look at him.

"Janet is a clever girl," he drawled. "She said you would have to be taken with a trick."

Anne blinked. Where was her vaunted demureness? "No such thing," she blurted out. "I did it myself. I knew you were a sinner."

WAS NOTHING BUT COLD TEA

Interesting Query Now Is, What Did the "Rakes" of Flushing Think They Were Drinking?

An impressive entry in the influence-of-mind-over-matter contest is submitted by the Flushing correspondent. A prominent turner of an honest penny of Flushing, it seems, with many a sly, knowing and suggestive wink passed the word about that he was now in a position to supply prominent residents of that legally dry district with what he with an air of infinite facetiousness denominated cold tea, to be drunk on the premises.

Prominent "rakes" of Flushing thronged to the premises at once, a thriving business soon was built up and many a lip was smacked and many a genial jest was exchanged over the so-called cold tea, the consensus of the best opinion being that our turner of an honest penny must have procured for his patrons the private stock of some old Kentucky cellar. Finally one day there came along a phlegmatic, unimaginative fellow who ordered a beaker of cold tea in the accepted important but secretive manner, started to quaff and laid down the tipple with something, we are sorry to say, very like an oath. "Why, that's nothing but cold tea," he exclaimed with kindling anger.

Our turner of an honest penny frankly acknowledged that such in very sooth was the fact and had been the fact in very sooth since the inception of his little venture, smilingly reminding all present that he never had offered them anything but cold tea or sold them the beverage under any other name.

Our prominent rakes of Flushing, satisfied that they had been put upon and yet had no recourse, dispersed in no little confusion, thoroughly humiliated, chagrined and ashamed, for such is human nature, because they had been trapped into betraying their unfamiliarity with what it would have served them full to know.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely disappear and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

A Great Medical Triumph.

The report that Dr. Noguchi of the Rockefeller Institute For Medical Research has at last discovered the germ of rabies is of worldwide interest. It marks one more triumph of the remarkable institution founded by the generosity of a great American captain of industry. Professor Metchnikoff calls the discovery another milestone of bacteriological history. If the Japanese pathologist has solved the problem that has long baffled scientists his name will live in history. The horrible sufferings of the victims of rabies make this one of the most dreadful of all diseases.—Lesleys.

Ask the Thief.

The lawyer was trying hard for his client and was getting the points out in a logical manner. There was one thing he was not quite clear about and he accordingly said:

"I can't say exactly," the complainant answered dryly. "Your client had my watch."

Took Severe Cold ON HIS LUNGS

COUGHED PHLEGM and BLOOD.

On the first appearance of a cough or cold, do not neglect it, but get rid of it at once before it has a chance to grow worse, and gets settled on the lungs, causing bronchitis, pneumonia and other serious lung troubles.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will cure the cough or cold on its first inception and perhaps save you years of suffering.

Mr. G. F. Stratychuk, Canora, Sask., writes: "Last winter I took a most severe cold on my lungs and was coughing up phlegm and blood most of the time. I had the cough for over two months, and took a great deal of different medicines, but found no relief from them. At last a friend advised me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I did, and it gave me great relief in a very short time, and to-day I am enjoying good health again."

The marvellous results that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has achieved in its cures of coughs and colds has caused many so-called "Pine" preparations to be put on the market, which do not contain any pine whatever. See that you get the genuine when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NOW CALLED NICKEL-SILVER

Well-Known Metal Has Been Relieved From the Obliquity of Bearing a German Name.

One of the largest metal-handling concerns in this country has recently changed the name of the alloy heretofore known as German silver, and is now marketing this commodity as nickel-silver, and a publication devoted to the metal industry suggests that the word silver be eliminated entirely, as there is no silver in the combination. This publication says: "If the nickel is taken from an 18 per cent German silver alloy only a 'two and one' brass will remain. Why not then call the composition 'nickel-brass,' or, if commercial objections are too strong to be overcome at once, why not call it nickel alloy? The various contents of nickel may be designated by utilizing the different percentages that the alloy contains. Thus, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 15, 18 per cent, etc., nickel-alloy. It is a fact that some manufacturers are already designating the material now being sold as 'Sheffield plate,' as 'silver-plate on a nickel base.' We see no reason why the same argument does not apply to the alloy being called nickel-silver."

Air Raid Stories.

In a booklet recently published the Bishop of Stepney tells some amusing stories of the behavior of poor people in the East end of London during the raids.

One woman dwelling in a big block of model dwellings (writes the author) said to me, "You see, we're quite safe, because all here are contrite"—a fine frame of mind, only she meant concrete.

Another woman, a riverside dweller, who caught sight of a Zeppelin when she was out in her back yard in one of the earliest raids, said: "So I runs into me kitchen, and in a minute or two I looks out at the front door, and blest if it wasn't waiting for me there. I don't call it natural."—Pearson's Weekly.

READ "ADS" TO KEEP POSTED

Manufacturers and Dealers Have Much to Tell the Public, Through the Newspaper Columns.

Keep posted—for conditions are changing from day to day and the past is unlike the present.

Save time—for time, your time, the clerk's time, the dealer's time, the manufacturer's time, is the nation's most important asset.

Manufacturers will necessarily have to curtail their salesmen on the road, and the only substitute for salesmen is "silent salesmanship," i. e., printed advertising. Therefore retailers will be asked to send their orders for merchandise by mail, and the best way for manufacturers to make thousands of calls on retailers without employing salesmen is through printed advertising.

Advertising, too, must be used to tell you why you cannot buy certain goods, and to continue the good will and trademark value of such manufacturers in the minds of the consumer and the dealer so that, after we win the war, the sale of such products can be increased and multiplied. During the past four years no automobiles have been sold or offered for sale in Great Britain, yet the manufacturers of automobiles have continued their advertising unabated with the full approval of the government, and the good will and standing with the users will be 100 per cent after the war, rather than, say, 10 per cent if they had discontinued their advertising.

So read advertisements to keep posted as to what to buy and also to be informed why you cannot buy certain brands of goods because their manufacturers are devoting all of their time to building war products to help win the war, and keep a warm spot in your heart for the goods no longer available on the dealers' shelves, because they, too, like our boys overseas, will "come back" after the war and renew old friendships, and we want to be ready with our victory celebration and say "Welcome home again," advertised product—your company did good work for Uncle Sam and we are going to show our appreciation by buying even more of such product than before the war."

In that way the advertiser's good will will be maintained and he will draw dividends in increased sales after the war to make up for the loss of trade during the war.

Monarch's Hobby Is Botany.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is said to have one redeeming virtue. He is considered the best botanist in eastern Europe. At his summer residence just under Musalla, the highest peak of the Rhodope range, he has, or used to have, a wonderful rock-garden where not only Alpine and sub-Alpine plants are grown, but even representative specimens from England, as well as many rare native Bulgarian mountain plants. These last have peculiar scientific interest, for, while some of them are mere varieties of Carpathian or Alpine types, others correspond closely to those of the Caucasus and Asiatic highlands—thus dating from a period before the two continents were divided by the Dardanelles—while a few others, like the lovely Bulgarian gentian, are indigenous flowers not found elsewhere. But summer succeeds all too quickly to the time of melting snows that the full glory of spring flowers on the Rhodope range is seldom seen except by the shepherds of the mountain pastures.

Candy's Value Recognized.

Fifty years ago the candy of the country was almost invariably hard and coarse, and much of it unwholesome. Now the making of it has become a fine art, and the wizard of concoction and flavoring has a fortune at his command. Pure candy in moderate quantities is no longer regarded as a menace to the healthy stomach. It has been sent to American and British soldiers, while we have a recent, unconfirmed tradition that the lure of the gumdrop will enlist an Eskimo to almost any service. As candy takes its place among the articles that go to make up high living, we may assume that its consumption, even per capita, is steadily on the increase.—Boston Transcript.

Good Grazing Ground.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, recently stated that Northern Canada is not barren and that he expects the Canadian Government to convert it into one of the greatest grazing regions in the world for musk ox and reindeer.

"Northern Canada," said the explorer, "is the coming great grazing land of the world. It is called the barren ground only because there are no trees there. Alaska, too, is going to be not primarily a gold, pulp, coal and copper-producing region, but a grazing land. This will come about through the development of great herds of reindeer and musk ox.

"Twenty years ago the United States bought a herd of reindeer which, doubling in size every three years, has now increased to 100,000, and last year brought a return of 13 per cent. on the investment in the way of hides and meat. Reindeer meat is now being sold all over the Pacific coast, and even as far eastward as St. Paul. It is just as good as mutton and is liked better by those who know it.

"But even better for such purposes is the musk ox, which ought to be called the polar sheep. The fat of the musk ox makes about 100 pounds of tallow and the cow produces about 10 pints of milk. The milk is the same as that of the Jersey cow in taste and is rich in cream.

"According to experts to whom I have shown the wool of the musk ox, it is better in quality than that of the domestic sheep and twice as heavy. I am now proposing to the Canadian Government to buy musk ox for grazing in Northern Canada, and if the Government does this, as I believe it will, this territory, as large as the United States, will be turned into a grazing region comparing favorably with any cattle-raising land, like Argentina."—Christian Science Monitor.

Hairs Quickly Vanish After This Treatment

(Helps to Beauty)

Science has aided in simplifying the banishing of hairy growth from the face, and according to a beauty specialist, the most effective treatment yet devised consists of applying a delatone paste to the hairy surface for 2 to 3 minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. When this paste is removed and the skin washed every trace of hair has vanished. Be sure to get real delatone.

Suspicions Confirmed.

Little Laura was so quiet out in the kitchen that her mother suspected the child of some mischief.

"But you must be doing something."

"No, I ain't."

"Are you sure?"

"Well, I isn't doin' much."

"Tell me this instant what you are doing or mamma will have to come with the hairbrush."

After a moment's silence the little one replied:

Simple Enough.

"Here's an odd news note. A new Jersey trust company saved $75,000 last year by abolishing its legal department."

"That is odd. I wonder how it came to decide to do it."

The Derelict

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Marine Hardware" was the faded, paint-flaked sign that hung over the door of the most rickety little shop ever was. Its windows held an unattractive heterogeneous mass of junk. It was the typical second-hand ship chandlery store, the location out of the way, the proprietor resembling some mariner of a long past age, so gray, so frail, so spiritlike was he.

Few paused to glance through the grimed window, yet a young man, intelligent and brisk looking, stood staring with deep interest and eagerness at a ship telescope lying among a heap of other trumpery. He edged about to try and make out some letters scratched through the outer japanned coating. Then he went inside.

"Can I look at the telescope in the window, there?" inquired Alden Ross.

"Sure enough," croaked the old man. "It's fifteen dollars, and cheap," and he handed the object under discussion to the prospective customer. The latter uttered a quick, deep breath as he traced the words now plainly upon the surface of the telescope, "David Beckley, Ship Meridian." He took out his pocketbook and counted out the twenty dollars. "Five extra," he spoke in a strained, intense tone, "if you can direct me to the person who sold it to you."

"That's easy. The man I bought it of is One-Armed Petey, an old North Atlantic whaler. He came in after his last voyage with the telescope and a lot of other ship stuff. Said he found a derelict off the Labrador coast and gathered up the junk, as he was entitled to. There's his address."

Half an hour later Alden Ross was seated in a little room in a sailor's boarding house conversing with a queer, tangled up specimen of humanity, questioning him closely, arranging for a later call. Then, like a being all strung up over some fine idea, he hastened to the house of A. Beckley.

She was the daughter of dead David Beckley, captain of the Ship Meridian. Ross had known her, loved her for two years. She, her mother and two little ones lived in the old family home, owning some property contiguous, barely able to keep up the interest on loans and the taxes on the same. Ross had a few thousand dollars saved up and had asked Ada to marry him, but she persisted in remaining with her mother and struggling along, hoping to clear and save the property.

"It's my duty to the little ones," insisted Mrs. Beckley, and loyally, patiently she bore her great burden.

There was an unsolved mystery in the experience of dead David Beckley. From a far northern voyage he had returned half demented, ship lost, crew swept away, everything gone. He babbled continuously of a great store of treasure in the hold of the Meridian, but could not tell just where it had been wrecked. And now after the years Alden Ross had come across a clew that might lead to vast results for the benefit of the Beckleys.

"I have come to tell you of a decision I have arrived at," he said to Ada, and her mother. "I have a little money and if Ada will marry me it shall go into a common fund, and surely I am man enough to earn a living. This I advise. On the contrary, if you, Mrs. Beckley, are determined to sacrifice everything in the hope of finally saving the property, I have decided to start out to find the derelict Meridian."

And then Ross showed them the recovered ship telescope and told of One-Armed Petey. "The man says that he could locate the derelict," narrated Ross, "but that there were no evidences of any cargo of value aboard the ship. The hold had some whalebone, antlers, ivory and a tank or two of oil, but not worth the cost of removing. Of course this was only a superficial search. Mrs. Beckley, Ada, I am willing to risk my little fortune to go in search of the lost Meridian."

And from the look in the eyes of the widow Alden Ross knew that this last, desperate expedient failing, she would no longer hold, blindly to the fading vestiges of the estate, and the warm clasp of Ada's hand told him that she would become his, even though he failed.

Six months, nine months, a year, and two, anxious women waited suspensefully from day to day for the word from far away Labrador that did not come. Mrs. Beckley grew thin and haggard as the property, the charges of which she could not sustain, seemed slipping away from her. Ada, overworked and despondent, became ill. There was fever, delirium. Then, opening her eyes, weak and helpless, one morning, like sweet, healing balm, there floated upon her hearing the words:

"And so, dear mother, we attacked the sealed-in bulkhead of the old rotting Meridian. It was our last hope. And there, indeed, we found the treasure—the skins, seal, fox, wolf, for which David Beckley had exchanged the proceeds of his whaling expedition. It took my last dollar, but One-Armed Petey and myself hired sledges, canoes, and there is your draft from the Hudson Bay company for twenty thousand dollars."

WHEN LIFE SEEMED GOOD

All Trials and Troubles Trivial to True American Under Such Glorious Circumstances.

I got up in the morning feeling out of sorts.

I was blue and depressed and had many troubles.

I was short of funds and long on obligations.

I was in ill humor as I dressed.

Then I went to the front door and picked up the morning paper and I read:

"Yanks capture many guns and prisoners!"

"Yanks drive back the Huns!"

And I forget all my troubles.

And I gave one loud, American cheer.

Questions to Be Placed Before the Voters When Referendum is Submitted Government Held a Prolonged Caucus at Which Issue Was Thoroughly Discussed.

THE OLD ACT

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 13.—"Are you in favour of the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act? Are you in favour of permitting the sale and use of light wines and beer under prescribed conditions?"

These are the questions that will in all probability be placed before the people of Ontario, when the government referendum on the liquor question is submitted in late September, as now contemplated.

Premier Hearst has no statement to make in regard to any statement of policy on the part of the government, but does not deny that yesterday's prolonged session of caucus was devoted mainly to the laboured discussion of the whole situation.

Feeling is running high, and the government is beset by prohibition representatives and those inclined to favour the beer and light wine licenses. Consequently the powers are feeling their way most carefully in order that every phase of opinion may be given free vent on the question.

Another Clause.

Officials closely in touch with the situation declare that the above questions will be identical with those placed before the people by the government, but qualify the statements with the opinion that a further clause reading something like, "Are you in favour of the Ontario License Act," will be inserted in the referendum.

This it is explained will allow a definite expression for those who are not in favour of a return of the old act and yet have some fault to find with certain machinery of the Ontario Temperance Act. Answering the first question in the affirmative would mean favouring the old License Act, while many who are against the old Act and in favour of a return of the old Act options, would be forced into favouring the repeal of the latter through answering the question. It is felt that three questions, if placed in the referendum, will allow for definite expressions and preclude any possibility of doubtful intentions.

Ask the Other Fellow.

Hon. I. B. Lucas, when seen to-day, smiled and held up his hands when asked if he could forecast the probable form of questions that will be answered by the referendum.

"It is in the Premier's hands, ask him. I have nothing to say, and the Attorney-General closed up like a clam.

It is generally conceded by members in close touch with the situation that the referendum will be submitted to the people in late September or the first week in October at the latest.

(Special to Examiner.)

Parliament Buildings, Toronto, March 13. — J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario License Board, declined to offer any opinion as to the form which he considered the referendum on the prohibition question should take.

"Whatever system is ratified by the public and adopted by the government, we shall endeavor to administer to the best of our ability," he stated.

LABOUR ON LIQUOR.

Winnipeg Council Opposes Re-introduction.

WINNIPEG, March 12. — At the special meeting of the Trades and Labour Council called for the purpose of instructing delegates to the Western labour congress which opens at Calgary on Thursday, the following resolution, favouring continued prohibition, was passed by an overwhelming vote:

"This Winnipeg Trades and Labour Congress stands opposed to any effort being made to introduce the drink traffic."

One or two members spoke against the motion, but when the vote was taken there was not a single hand held up against it.

WILL NOT PUBLISH DE VALERA'S INTERVIEW

The Examiner together with many other papers throughout the country has decided not to publish the copyright interview with De Valera, the notorious Sinn Feiner. The interview which was written and signed by De Valera looks like unadulterated Sinn Fein propaganda and is entirely inflammatory and mischievous.

Planned to Go to Sweden

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 13. — William Hohenzollern, two months before the armistice was signed, planned an asylum in Sweden, but was prevented from going to that country by the Swedish government, diplomatic advices made public to-day disclose. The former Kaiser's plans had reached a point where a deal was virtually closed for him to rent the Castle Stora Sundby, situated on one of the large lakes in the centre of Sweden, about four hours' run by train from Stockholm.

Trinity Church Cleared of Debt

Two Presentations Close a Congregational Meeting.

At a congregational meeting of Trinity Methodist Church held last evening in the Lecture Hall, Mr. W. C. Switzer, chairman of the Canvassing Committee reported that sufficient money has been subscribed to cover the full amount of the debt of Trinity Church. The payments which represent a considerable sum will spread over five years.

At the conclusion of the Chairman's report, Rev. F. Malott, Mr. Edgar Burnham, Mr. J. M. Greene and Dr. Morrison gave brief addresses explaining how the canvas was made, how the money was raised and told of the receptions they had received at the hands of the people they had canvassed.

A Programme

A programme was given in which Miss Greta LeBar and Miss Corbett contributed heartily appreciated solos.

Votes of Thanks

On behalf of the congregation of Trinity Church a vote of thanks was moved and seconded by Mrs. R. F. Downey and Mrs. Robert Neil to the pastor, Mr. Switzer and the Canvassing Committee for the successful carrying forward of the canvas. Mr. D. W. Campbell and Mr. Norman Moncrief moved a vote of thanks to the Ladies Aid for the sum of $2,500.00 which they contributed toward the building fund.

Money Collected For the Soldiers

Dunsford Residents Give Returned Men a Practical Gift.

The residents of Dunsford and the surrounding communities are imbued with the right spirit when it comes to looking after the returned boys in that section. Recently, through the instrumentality of Mr. W. J. Thurston of Dunsford, the citizens collected some $1300 with a view to presenting every returned soldier who has been to France and Belgium with $45 and every soldier who has been to England only with $25. Already several presentations have been made and the boys have shown their great appreciation of the gift.

Recently presentations were made to the following returned men: Fred Ball, Martin Thurston, James Johnston, Bert Kennedy, W. Southwell and R. M. McMullen.

AFRAID OF GERMANY

In Five Years the Huns Could Muster an Army of Several Millions — France Cannot Forget.

WHAT FRENCH SAY

(By Wm. Philip Simms.)

PARIS, March 13. — Within five years after peace is signed, Germany will be able to throw a full officered army of several million into the field, providing the allies impose the volunteer system on the country, according to the belief expressed in French military and official circles to-day.

The French regard the proposed volunteer system, providing for a German army of 100,000 as a "potential and stupendous Saint Cyr" (the French West Point.) They declare Germany could easily manoeuvre the system so as to permit officer material to enter the standing army, which would become in reality only an officers' training school, yielding after four or five years the equivalent of 100,000 West Pointers. These would be sufficient to command and army of 10,000,000.

Cannot Forget.

France cannot forget that there are several million comparative youngsters in Germany who can already be regarded as veterans. In addition it is feared the twelve year term of enlistment would encourage young men to make army life their profession. Admittedly it is practically impossible to prevent a continuation of Germany's shooting and turnverin organizations which in the past were only thinly disguised military training centres. Germany, the French point out, could disguise the Turnvereins and use them as schools for privates, with the volunteer army as an officers' university. Thus should the allies consider Germany disarmed, and proceed to disarm themselves, Germany would at once become an immense standing peril. History, it is emphasized, has proven that Germany may be expected to turn any act of conditions to her maximum advantage.

In Napoleon's Time.

It is recalled that in the early Napoleonic era, when the army was limited to little more than a police force, she trained an entirely new army each year, with the result that she was able to place a formidable force in the field when the opportunity came.

The French press generally prefers to have conscription retained in Germany under allied control. If the allies decide to establish the volunteer system the newspapers express the hope that the league of nations will exercise the most drastic supervision over Germany's war-making facilities.

BATTLESHIP CONSTRUCTION

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, March 13. — Replying to a question in the Commons last night, Thomas J. Macnamara, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, said that no dreadnought battleships were under construction on December 31st last. Dreadnought battle cruisers under construction had been abandoned and the slips freed for merchant construction. On the same date, he said, Great Britain had 33 dreadnought battleships, and nine battle cruisers, all of which were in commission except two. So far as he knew, no capital ships will be laid down this year.

Strike Still Continues

New York's Transit Systems May Be Affected Owing to Coal Shortage.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, March 133. — Fear that New York's transit system would be stopped if the harbor strike continues because of the lack of coal to-day caused Frank Hedley, general manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, to appeal to Rear Admiral Ussher of the Navy Yard, for naval tugs to bring fuel to this port.

Hedley declared the coal now in the company's bins is only sufficient to keep the elevated and subway trans operating for four days.

Demands Free Trade for England

Question of Importations to be Reviewed Next September.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 13. — Free trade newspapers are sharply criticizing the Government's policy regarding importations, as disclosed by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction, in the House on Monday. He said that all importations of manufactured and semi-manufactured commodities which are permitted to enter Great Britain will be controlled by a system of special licenses until Sept. 1, when the question will be "reviewed." The newspapers denounce this proposal as an attempt to introduce protection without any mandate from the voters, and insist that a great majority of the voters are opposed to a protective system and declare that England is still a free trade country at heart. They say that "Great Britain gained her commercial and financial supremacy through free trade and can hold it only by free trade."

Result of a Deliberate Plot

(Canadian Press.)

BERNE, March 13.— Charges that the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, at Sarajevo on June 28, 1914, was the result of a deliberate plot led by the late Count Tisza, former Hungarian Premier, are made a pamphlet written by a priest, who was the spiritual adviser of the Duchess of Hohenberg, according to a Vienna despatch. Count Stephen Tisza, who was himself assassinated at Budapest on Nov. 1, 1918, was for many years one of the leading figures in Austro-Hungarian political life.

(Special to Examiner.)

LINDSAY, March 13. — At a largely attended meeting of the G.W.V.A. held last night it was decided to ask the government if a part of the arsenal could be used for vocational training purposes. Comrade Staunton promised to take this matter up with Dominion headquarters.

SPARTACANS DEFEATED

Prisoners Included Ten Women, Who Were Marched to Prison.

SITUATION QUIETER

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, March 13. — Government troops entered Lichtenberg after bombarding heavily the main Spartacan nests. Spartacans fled, leaving behind them their weapons and ammunition. Suburb is surrounded by government troops and the only chance the Spartacans have of escape is by discarding their weapons and concealing their identity by mingling with peaceable inhabitants.

One group of thirty prisoners captured included ten women. With their hands handcuffed behind them, men and women were taken through Unter Den Linden to the Moabit prison.

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, March 13.—Spartacan forces were abandoning positions in Lichtenberg yesterday. Government forces took a large number of prisoners, many of whom were executed summarily.

Tobacco Next To Be Prohibited

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Professor Frederick W. Roman, arch enemy of tobacco, who recently started a movement for a constitutional amendment prohibiting the use of that weed in any form, has modified his views.

He has discovered that tobacco has its uses.

For instance, he explains, it is helpful to kill lice on chickens. Also he has learned that it is used in the manufacture of dyes.

Because of this, he thinks that it is going to be rather difficult to pass legislation prohibiting its production so now he will devote his time to educating the people to the enormous waste tobacco causes.

"Eventually we hope to have tobacco abolished," declared Professor Roman, "but not in the immediate future. Tobacco has its uses, for instance, in the manufacture of dyes and as an insecticide in the care of poultry. For this reason it would be hard to get a law prohibiting its production. Our principal work will be to educate the people as to the tremendous waste tobacco causes."

"At present," says Professor Roman, "the campaign has three objects in view: To create sentiment and legislate against the use of tobacco by persons under twenty-one years of age; to bring about legislation prohibiting smoking in public places, and to educate the people to the great cost of the tobacco habit. Eventually we hope to have tobacco abolished, but not in the immediate future."

Government Has Not Been Able to Master Situation

Fighting Continues in Berlin Over a Front of Fifteen Miles—War Minister Noske Reported to Have Resigned.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, March 13.—Fighting was conducted in Berlin last night over a front of more than 25 kilometres (15 half miles) the city commander announced. It was uncertain when the government can master the situation, owing to the Spartacans' infiltration tactics. As fast as the troops reconquer an area the insurgents spring up in another quarter. Two hundred and fifty Spartacans, both men and women, were captured in the heart of the city last evening. They had gone to their secret headquarters there to get money, which was to be apportioned among the Spartacan forces as wages.

"Unconditional Surrender."

A wireless despatch received from Berlin to-day reported that War Minister Noske, replying Tuesday night to a request by the Spartacans for armistice terms, said the only conditions would be "unconditional surrender, including all arms."

War Minister Resigns.

War Minister Noske resigned Tuesday morning, it was reported in a despatch received from Berlin to-day. General Von Lagu is said to have succeeded him.

"People's Guard."

Despatches received here to-day said the Spartacans, caught between two fires, were evacuating their position in Lichtenberg. The Burgomaster is said to have appealed unsuccessfully to War Minister Noske to draw off his troops and replace them with a "people's guard," including Spartacans.

Salaries Increased.

The German government has announced that the salaries of Republican officials will be increased, resulting in an additional expenditure of one hundred and twenty-five million, according to a despatch received from Weimar to-day.

The new regulations are made to meet the conditions occasioned by increased hazards. These will consist of closer inspection and testing of all apparatus.

Conditions will also be made favorable for the prospector, amongst which will be a reduction of fees.

The Bye-Election

The bye-election in West Hastings to fill the seat of the late J. W. Johnston in the Ontario House will not be held until the close of the present session, according to announcement on reliable authority made this morning. This is according to the custom that the work of the session should not be interrupted by any election campaign.

MRS. COURTRICE TO GIVE ADDRESS IN PETERBORO

The visit of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, to Peterboro, under the auspices of Queen Mary Parent's Circle should be a event that will mean much in developing the proper relationship between the school and the home. Mrs. Courtrice who for the past four years has been a member of the Toronto Board of Education will give an address in the Collegiate Assembly Hall on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock. There will also be a musical programme. The public is cordially invited to be present.

Farmers Fail to Fill Out Forms

So far the income tax return which every farmer is required, in accordance with the Income Tax of 1917, to return to the Inspector of Taxation, 83 Brock street, Kingston, has been overlooked in a great number of cases. The penalty attached to such an oversight provides that every person who fails to make this return is liable to a penalty of $100 a day for every day the default continues, after the 28th of February, 1919; also that any person making a false statement in any return is liable to a penalty not exceeding $10,000, or to six months imprisonment, or to both fine and imprisonment.

The statement does not require to be verified under oath or to be sworn before a lawyer or Justice of the Peace.

Budget Has Not Been Officially Completed, But Practically All the Estimates Have Been Approved and Total Demands for the Year are Apparent.

MUNICIPAL RATE LIGHTER

Peterboro's tax rate this year will be 31 mills, according to Ald. W. H. Taylor, chairman of the Finance Committee, a meeting of which was called for last night, but failed to bring out a quorum. The city's spending departments have all submitted their estimates, and the Finance Committee has been compiling the list of appropriations, the total of which indicates a 31 mill rate.

The committee must revise the estimates a final revision and submit their statement to the Council, but the procedure is only a formality.

Last year's tax rate was 35.40 mills including the Provincial war tax of one mill. The following are the rates since 1913:

1914	24	mills
1915	24.50	mills
1916	24.30	mills
1917	29.30	mills
1918	34.40	mills

The Rate has Increased.

The city paid its patriotic contributions out of the current revenue last year, representing 4.82 mills. The wisdom of this action is amply demonstrated in the return to the normal expenditures of peace. There remains, however, .64 mills to meet the interest and the sinking fund for a previous patriotic grant. Deducting the special patriotic tax of last year, the rate was 39.58 mills, and compared with this figure the rate has advanced 1.42 mills to this year's level.

Practically all the appropriations for 1919 are higher, thus explaining the increase in the rate.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee alone has demanded $7000 more than last year; most of the committees followed this trend. There is also provision for half a year's interest and sinking fund on the new Hunter street bridge. Some salaries have been moved up a few notches, and it may be added that the general upward tendency that has pushed the rate to 31 mills is largely due to the increased costs of living and doing business.

The complete tabulation of the estimates and the year's financial story will be set forth in detail when the Finance Minister brings down his budget at the next meeting of the council.

FRANK JENNE says:

The more fact that the "Toot" "Arrow" insignia graces your collars, doesn't mean anything the public in general. But it mean absolute style and satisfaction to you. Some new shirts have just arrived. Come in and see them. "Quality Counts Most."

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' next headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, affords a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home, that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are anxious to discharge as far as possible, the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN.

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affiars of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a proribitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussians.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of worry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quality in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where greed is not condemned, the practice is known as "passing the buck." That things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent this standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can in peace time be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and while things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhood of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $20,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $20,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in "small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying presents for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted the favorite gift with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is For Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' Association, which is announced to take place in May, gives a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home, that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are anxious to discharge as far as possible, the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affiars of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention, that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a prohibitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussianite.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of worry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quailing in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where slang is not condemned, the process is known as "passing the buck." That things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is is somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent this standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can in peace time be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and when things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhood of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $20,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $20,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in 'small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying presents for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted his favorite gift, with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is for Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' new headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, will be a chance to every one to prove [illegible] who have been spared [illegible] hours, thus their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are [illegible] discharge as far as possible the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now, the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN.

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affiars of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention, that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a prohibitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussian.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of flurry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quality in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where slang is not condemned, the process is known as "passing the buck." That things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent that standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can, in peace time, be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and when things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhod of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $50,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $40,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in "small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying presents for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted his favorite gift with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is for Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, MARCH 13TH, 1919.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' new headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, offers a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home, that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are anxious to discharge as far as possible the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN.

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affairs of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a proribitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussians.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of worry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quality in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where class is not condemned, the process is known as "passing the buck." That things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent that standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can in peace time be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and when things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhood of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $20,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $10,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in "small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying presents for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted his favorite gift, with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is For Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, MARCH 13TH, 1919.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' Fund, headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, gives a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are anxious to discharge as far as possible the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now, the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodelling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affiars of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention, that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a prohibitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussians.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of flurry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wet, open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no reason in the near future for much unrest among industrial classes that which exists all, when hostilities, to blame the other fellow, in matters where there is not understood, the person to accuse as "profiteer" that has been engaged in really assisted, especially when the evidence is conclusive that it is in accordance with the law to put them [illegible]

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, MARCH 13TH, 1919.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. There should be one that all parents of children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' Association, which is announced to take place in May, gives a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are anxious to do things as far as possible the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN.

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affairs of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention, that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a prohibitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussianists.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of worry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the ventilation of Hon. Mr. McGarry's proposition that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide, open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no question in our near future that many family budgets will be strained to the limit to meet the increased cost of living. In practically every line of business this condition is to be found. In the matter of food, clothing, fuel, rent, etc., the cost of living has increased enormously during the past few years. Many people are wondering when the end is to come, and when prices will again be normal. Some are even wondering if prices will ever be normal again. Many people are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due entirely to the war, and that when the war is over prices will drop to the pre-war level. Others are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of gold is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of gold. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of goods is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of goods. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of money is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of money. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of credit is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of credit. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of labour is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of labour. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of capital is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of capital. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of transportation is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of transportation. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of communication is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of communication. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of education is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of education. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of religion is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of religion. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of government is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of government. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of law is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of law. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of order is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of order. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of peace is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of peace. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of happiness is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of happiness. Others again are of the opinion that the high cost of living is due to the fact that the world's supply of health is not sufficient to meet the demands of trade, and that the only way to bring prices down to the pre-war level is to increase the world's supply of health. EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhood of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This does not seem small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will make any that he received from the rest very small.

The President was unable to make any gifts personally, such as those of Napoleon Bonaparte at Berlin or any of the Czar of Russia or of the royal families of Europe. The President's money will continue to consist only of $20 gold pieces, which he carried from the start.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is for Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, MARCH 13TH, 1919.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' new headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, gives a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home, that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are anxious to discharge as far as possible the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN.

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affairs of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention, that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a prohibitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussians.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of flurry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quality in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where slang is not condemned, the process is known as "passing the buck." That things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is to somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent this standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can in peace time be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and when things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhood of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $20,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $20,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in "small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying presents for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted his favorite gift with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is for Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers, and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

OUR WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' new headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, offers a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home, that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are willing to discharge as far as possible the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now, the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN.

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affairs of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention, that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a proribitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussians.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of worry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the Conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quality in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where slang is not condemned, the process is known as "passing the buck." What things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is in somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent that standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can in peace time be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and while things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhood of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $20,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $20,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in 'small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying "presents" for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted his favorite gift, with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is For Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

MRS COURTRICE'S ADDRESS.

The bringing about of a closer relationship between the home and the school is the splendid mission of the Queen Mary School Parents' Circle, and this great progressive organization has been able to make great strides towards the achievement of its aim. The bringing to Peterborough of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto, member of the Toronto Board of Education, and a leader in the movement with which the Queen Mary Parents' Circle is connected, to give a public address upon this work, is an important event that it is hoped will be followed by the formation of similar circles in all the local schools that have not already been organized. Mrs. Courtrice will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening next upon the importance of parents familiarizing themselves with the school life of their children. She is an eloquent and convincing speaker, with a thorough knowledge of the subject, as she has not only been a member of the Board of Education in Toronto for four years, but has also been very actively identified with the home and school movement in that city. Her message will be one that all parents with children of school age should hear and the Assembly Hall should be crowded on the occasion of Mrs. Courtrice's visit. The members of the Queen Mary Circle are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in arranging this address, which is in line with the splendid record of service they have accomplished since the formation of their organization.

THE WAR VETERANS' DRIVE.

The people of Peterboro have never been given a proper opportunity to show their appreciation of the services rendered by the soldiers from this city during the war. The campaign on behalf of the Great War Veterans' nine headquarters, which is announced to take place in May, gives a chance to every one to prove to the men who have been spared to come home, that their fellow citizens are proud of them, and are ambitious to discharge as far as possible, the heavy debt of gratitude that is owing to them for what they have gone through in the interests of democracy and liberty. "Nothing will be too good for the boys when they come back." How often have you heard that expression? Perhaps used it yourself on more than one occasion, and you believed it, too. And now the boys are back, or coming, and the time has come for the people of Peterboro to make good their promises. By raising $15,000, which is the sum that is estimated as necessary to carry out the remodeling of the old Murray street Baptist church, Peterboro will be able to provide her returned soldiers with permanent quarters that will be worthy of the services they have performed, and also of the general record of Peterboro as a patriotic centre. A number of citizens, who have always been in the lead in furthering all patriotic efforts in this city, are throwing themselves into the Veterans' drive with the same enthusiasm with which they went over the top for the Red Cross and the Patriotic Fund. They believe Peterboro should do more than has been done for her citizen soldiers, and confident that the majority of the citizens are of the same opinion, they are looking forward confidently to the results of the campaign in May.

A WELCOME SIGN

The recent important changes in the local theatrical business furnish impressive evidence that there is no need to worry about Peterboro's future or to be pessimistic in regard to conditions generally. Mr. Small, who has purchased the Grand Opera House and the Paramount Theatres Ltd., Toronto, who have leased the Royal theatre are among the shrewdest amusement promoters in the Dominion. They evidently have no fears as to the present unemployment crisis continuing for any length of time or they would not have committed themselves to the investments they have recently made. They are concerns whose business success depends largely upon the financial condition of others and the fact that they have not hesitated to invest their money in Peterboro amusement concerns at at the present time is significant. They would not have done so had they not satisfied themselves after surveying the situation generally that there are good times ahead of Peterboro and that this city is to be regarded as one of the most promising in the province. Men of the type of Mr. Small and those conducting the affiars of the Paramount Theatres Limited are good judges in matters of this kind and the citizens of Peterboro should regard the transactions that have just been completed as good omens for the city's prosperity.

A WIDE OPEN REFERENDUM.

The offensive nature of the recent speech of Hon. T. W. McGarry on the prohibition question should not be overlooked in considering the contention that there is no dissension in the Ontario Cabinet over the matter. The Provincial Treasurer declared emphatically that he is not a prohibitionist and went out of his way to affront the temperance organizations of Ontario. Sir William Hearst and Hon. Mr. McGarry cannot find common ground upon which to stand if these are the real convictions of the Provincial Treasurer, for Sir William is a proribitionist, and cannot surely join with his lieutenant in the insinuation that the committee of One Hundred and other temperance leaders in the province are Prussians.

As a matter of fact there seems to be a great deal of flurry in government circles over the prohibition question. Yesterday the conservative members held a three-hour caucus to discuss the Government's temperance policy, the second gathering of the kind that has been held recently. No decision has yet been announced, but the statement in the Government organ, the Mail and Empire, "that the members while still more or less in the dark as to the details of the Government's policy in regard to the referendum, had received an assurance that when the referendum is submitted to the people it would be in such a form that all opinions upon the subject of temperance could be recorded," shows that the influence of those members of the Government who are opposed to prohibition is beginning to assert itself. Many Government supporters have been urging that the referendum should contain clauses in regard to the sale of wine and beer, and to the opening of government liquor shops, etc., and present indications point to the verification of Hon. Mr. McGarry's prediction that the plebiscite will be taken in "wide open fashion."

WAGES AND PRICES.

There is no quality in our poor human nature more easily brought out than that which tempts all, when trouble arises, to blame the other fellow. In quarters where slang is not condemned, the process is known as "passing the buck." That things are wrong is readily admitted, especially when the evidence is irresistible; but that it is to somebody else's duty to put them right is firmly asserted. Illustrations of this may be found in the current discussions respecting the rate of wages and the cost of living. Wages in many lines of employment were largely increased during the war. Now that the war is over—for it is assumed that the temporary suspension of hostilities will be confirmed by the work of the Peace Conference—some people contend, with some logical ground, that wages should be reduced. But labour hastens to say that wages cannot be reduced, because the cost of living has not shown much sign of coming down. Indeed, the latest statistical reports indicate that the cost has increased rather than diminished since the signing of the armistice. Now comes the food producer, who says that he cannot afford to sell at lower prices, because the cost of labour—both of the labour directly employed by him and the labour employed in the manufacture of the things he uses—has kept his cost of production at high figures. So the merry war goes on, each party insisting that on the other rests the responsibility of the uncomfortable situation, and that if there is to be any reduction the other fellow should begin it.

Wages will not for a long time—perhaps they never will—return to the figures of pre-war days. There has been a decided advance in the standard of living of those who are commonly spoken of as the working classes. To a considerable extent that standard will remain—a situation not to be regretted in the general interests of society. But, making due allowance for this, it would be a mistake to suppose that wages can in peace time be long continued on a war-time scale. Many of our labour leaders insist that there can be no reduction. Even so level-headed a man as Mr. Samuel Gompers has spoken on that line. No doubt every attempt at reduction will be resisted, and grave troubles will in this way arise. But economic law seems to say that some reduction is inevitable. Already the labour market in some quarters is beginning to exhibit signs of supply exceeding the demand. With the return of many thousands of soldiers this over-supply will increase. Either wages will fall or there will be such a curtailment of operations as will prejudice the interests of labour. A leading employer said lately: "I see grave trouble ahead. Now that war orders are stopped and we are thrown upon our ordinary channels of business we cannot afford to pay these high wages. The business that we can get will not warrant them. But I am not going to fight my men on this wage question. I will gradually reduce my staff, and curtail my operations. I may even have to stop business entirely until more normal conditions arise."

There is one advantage that will accompany the reduction of wages when it comes. High wages certainly make for high prices, and while things are costly men are often obliged to deny themselves the enjoyment of these things. High wages and high cost of materials operate, for example, as a check on the building trade. Only building operations of an urgent character will be undertaken. In the case of a proposed construction, desirable but not urgent, the owner says, "I cannot afford to build at such a cost; I will wait."

A reasonable reduction of labour's wages, with a corresponding reduction in the cost of living, would do much to restore power to the wheels of industry that will slow down or stop under present conditions. And the working man, reluctant though he will be to accept the lower wage, will in reality be better off than he would be under the conditions that would accompany a continuance of the present cost of labour and food. There are situations that under economic laws must arise in the not distant future. But the road to them will not be smooth.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The knell of barbarous poison gas," says a newspaper heading. But alas, it did not refer to Sir Sam Hughes.

Hon. Bob Rogers, in his Toronto speech, showed the door to Liberal members of the Union Government. They had promised to go back to their own party when the war was over, Mr. Rogers remarked, and as honorable men, they should keep their promises.

The debate on the speech from the throne had to be adjourned, because there was not a quorum of members present. And yet the people are waiting to hear some members talk about the uneven administration of the Military Service Act.

$2,000 In Tips

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson's first trip to Europe cost him in the neighborhod of $2,000 out of his own pocket. This dent small as it seems besides the gifts made by European rulers when they visit foreign capitals, will probably find its twin in his pocketbook when he returns from the next voyage.

The President was unable to make any great bestowals, such as that of President Poincare of $20,000 to servants of the Czar in Petrograd or $20,000 to the royal household of Sweden. The President's money was scattered in "small" tips of $25 and $50 to porters in trains, at hotels and in the palaces he visited. He also spent considerable money in buying presents for attendants for Mrs. Wilson, himself and his staff. Framed photographs of himself constituted his favorite gift, with gold cuff links running a close second.

FINISH "BAY" RAILWAY

Outlook is for Government Action this Year.

OTTAWA, March 12. — Members from the Prairie Provinces are continuing to press the government for a definite announcement that the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed this year. Frequent conferences are being held with the Ministers and it is stated that the outlook for government action is improving, and that at least a portion of the 92 miles of track required to complete the road may be laid during the coming summer.

"DALLYING WITH THE DEMON"

By H. F. GADSBY.

(By H. F. Gadsby.)

The Demon Rum— in the soft disguise of beer and light wine—is coming back for an intelligent answer. What will Parliament say to him? Will Parliament vote as it drinks? These are delicate questions.

What is the attitude of Parliament toward the liquor problem? Well, I should say it was this — that the boldest holds his breath, which doesn't require much boldness or much holding now that breaths are weak through the increasing scarcity and dearness of strong drink.

One thing is certain—Union Government is not going to give Canada anymore prohibition than she actually wants. Prohibition is not a moral question at Ottawa —it is a political one— and it will be decided on the basis of the greatest good for the greatest number of votes. If Quebec says beer and light wines, if Ontario says the same thing—it's a cinch that Ottawa is not going to say something different. A Union Government which hints at compromise with the tariff—lest the tariff destroy it—is not going to show less of sweet reasonableness toward a certain revulsion of feeling which it senses in regard to prohibition. If it does it is going out of its way to invite trouble. I have yet to see the Government, however moral, which is willing to die for a moral issue. We hear a great deal about sacrifice, even now, but the Government does not include itself in any of the sacrificial lists which have been drawn up for the general welfare.

All of which leads up to the statement that Parliament will not interfere with the domestic arrangements of the provinces further than to see that their domestic arrangements are made secure by federal legislation. In other words Parliament will see to it that the wet provinces keep their wetness to themselves by passing the necessary law to prevent the wetness spilling into the dry spots. What Parliament says to the provinces is in substance, "Go as far as you like—forward or back— and we go with you." Union Government aims to please everybody and if everybody isn't pleased then so much the worse for Union Government. As Abraham Lincoln might say, "you can't please all the people all of the time, but you can perhaps keep from slipping for another year." I understand that even Leader Rowell reckons with the mutability of public opinion and declares now that he never advocated total prohibition—which may be true in the letter but equivocal in the spirit.

As usual the "drys" are perhaps more evident in their earnestness. They have taken to heart the advice "write to your members of Parliament" and the personal letters come in shoals. Also the petitions—they keep falling like leaves on an autumn day. What the letters chiefly dwell on is the moderation of their request. Nail it down for another year—that is all they ask. It is almost a sign of weakness—an admission that they have bitten off more than they can chew. It is the first time in the frantic history of the dry movement that they have yielded ground. They ask that it be accounted for meri.

But the wets are very much in earnest, too. They assail the public with full page advertisements—the newspapers must be waxing fat on these alarms—so that the member of Parliament who runs may read. Moreover if he doesn't read he may never run again. The result is that timid politicians are finding the courage of their convictions. They begin to indulge in real talk instead of the old cant. They do not overlook the fact that fifteen hundred trades and labour unions, out of nineteen hundred, have asked for better beer and more of it. These are the days when Labour must have its head. This fact alone is support enough for anything Parliament may do for Labour to make Capital easier in its mind.

It's the poor man that has suffered most. The rich man has had his whiskey, his gin, his wine all this time in his well-stocked cellars. As the supply ebbs and the danger of thirst comes nearer, he feels his views on absolute prohibition changing. When he gets another chance he will probably vote for a reasonable liquor policy —something that will lay the ghost but will not banish spirits altogether. But the poor man has had no such solace. His good beer—his chief substitute for riches—has been taken away and a two and a half per cent belly-ache put in its place.

Major Power, M.P., believing that this is outrageously unfair, will introduce an amendment, if the situation warrants it, confiscating all the private supplies so long as the working man does not get a square deal. Major Powers' amendment is well contrived. Even the prohibitionists can vote for a policy which puts everybody on an equal footing. If Canada goes bone-dry it must be bone-dry clear across and clean through—no class exemptions— no hoarding. Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

It is Labour which throws a new light on this question of prohibition—a light which Parliament cannot help seeing. From the great republic to the south comes a cry—no beer, no work. The common sense of Parliament construes that this way—better beer, less Bolshevism. Last year, while the war was still on, there were a few war Bolshevists who aired their views in Parliament. But now that Bolshevism is in real menace these amateur anarchists have hauled down the red flag and are now saying "anything for a quiet life."

When the Government passed that bone-dry order-in-council Bolshevism was only a plaything and beer could be kicked in the bilge. But now that Bolshevism is getting saucy —well something must be done to make us forget our taxes. Moreover, the Government has to scratch up three hundred million dollars a year to carry on and the twenty-two million dollars we threw into the gutter a few short months ago is now worth picking up again.

OUR SUIT DISPLAY

Is a Revelation of Dame Fashion's Favorite and Popular Modes

Without doubt the style creators have entered with great enthusiasm into the brilliancy of the new season brought about by Peace. So many practical suit ideas, at once novel and exclusive, could not be possible except for the desire to return to bright and joyous activities.

The assemblage presents suits of appealing charm and beauty, including copies and adaptations of costly models, fashioned on the season's most approved lines and embracing the newest style touches.

Have already created a stir among well-dressed women on account of their unusual chic. Popularity for hats of this fashion is well-earned by the fact that they are so becoming. Their very simplicity makes them well liked, and the fact that they possess cleverness of style as well as quality of material and trimmings makes them an unusual value at this price.

I cannot prophesy accurately what Parliament will do with the liquor problem but I can set down some of the questions that reasonable men in Parliament are asking. For instance, they are asking what is the moral effect, on the national character, of a law which engenders the lowest class of spies and turns a large number of decent citizens into law breakers and liars? How about increased efficiency?" Is it better to have beerless, driven, sullen labour— or labour reasonably contented with its lot? How about "economic waste?" Is waste just waste—or is it thrift in disguise, something saved from the strain of life? Does the working man feel more cheerful when he hands Mr. Flavelle seventy cents a pound for bacon or when he pays five cents for a cool drink after a hard day's work in the foundry? Does he feel that prohibition is a blessing or simply a ruse of the employer to get more work out of him and of the food profiteer to get more money?

Parliament is disposed to admit that the war is over and that circumstances alter cases. The altering circumstance, as I see it, is the attitude of Labour toward the liquor question. If Labour doesn't get a little mild refreshment it may take up with something a great deal worse—anarchy for example. Besides there are our allies, the French. Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Two Mountain, made a palpable hit in the House the other day when he seized on the presence of General Pau to score a point for light French wines. Are we going back on our comrades in democracy now that the war is over or is the Entente Cordiale—all the more cordial, for an advantageous trade arrangement—to continue?

Parliament shows a new frame of mind toward prohibition this session which leads to certain honest questions. Did somebody slip something over on us while the casualty lists blinded our eyes with tears? Did the cold water people act by while we were looking the other way? Was prohibition a mood—all blue—or was it a conviction? Did we give up drink because giving up drink was the fashion—horse races, baseball, banquets, time, money—all as nothing compared with the lives our boys gave up on the battle field? Did we give it up because it was the easiest, nearest, long-distance way of martyrising ourselves—of suffering something for the war which implied personal discomfort? Why did we give it up? And when we gave it up did we mean it?

Union Government has a ticklish job ahead of it to make the right diagnosis. It's the doctor.

LONDON "BOBBIES" GIVE UP SWORDS AND REVOLVERS.

LONDON. — The last vestige of military equipment was taken from the London police when an order was issued by the Commissioner of the Metropolitan force for the return to the stores of all swords and scabbards.

In the old days superintendents, inspectors and all mounted men carried swords, and were instructed in cutlass drill. The weapons were occasionally used in the suppression of riots. Years ago the inspectors were deprived of their swords, which they hung in the police stations. The order withdrawing the swords will not lead to the withdrawal of automatic pistols, a supply of which is kept in every police station for use in case of emergency.

In ordinary times the London "Bobby" goes out for duty armed with no more effective weapon than the law and the impressive dignity of his six foot personality.

Always ready and willing to entertain You

A HOME to-day without music is just as incomplete and out of date as one without running water. For the presence of music is just as essential to our comfort and happiness as other modern conveniences.

The one ideal way of bringing every kind of music into your home is to buy a

Pathephone

This most versatile of musical instruments is always ready with just the right kind of music to suit your mood—a snappy jazz—a dreamy Hawaiian serenade—the latest Broadway hit or one of the old but ever beautiful songs of Grandma's day—all reproduced perfectly and with a new charm by means of the smooth Pathe' sapphire ball which never requires changing and never damages the record.

The Pathephone is built in a variety of styles to suit every taste and every purse. Compare any Pathephone with any other talking machine in the same price class—note the superior quality of material—construction—finish and above all—TONE. Do not allow a smooth sales talk to influence you when making your purchase. Use your eyes, ears and brains and buy the instrument which your own judgment tells you, not only produces all of the music better than any other, but also represents the greatest value for your dollars.

Here are the principal advantages of the Pathephone—weigh them in comparison with any other make:—

1st—It will play any record—(do not deliberately buy any machine which will only play a part of the available store of music.)

2nd—Pathe' records are all played with a sapphire ball which never injures the records and never has to be changed—(steel needles rip and tear the record and are a constant expense and bother.)

3rd—Pathephones are copies of beautiful old furniture and yet they cost no more than ordinary phonographs.

5th—The sound chamber is all wood—this results in a richer fuller tone—(most phonographs have a part metal horn.)

The Pathe' dealer will show you how easy it is to own a Pathephone, how a small cash payment—probably less than you expected to pay—will bring to your home the greatest entertainer ever invented.

U.S. Delegates Are Raising Objections as They Feel It Will Give Great Britain a Monopoly.

PARIS, March 13.— Realizing the possibility of a virtual monopoly of cable communications by Great Britain should her claim to the captured German cables be sustained, the American delegates to the Peace Conference are endeavouring to make a strong presentation of their case before the naval authorities, to whom the subject has been referred. The naval experts who first considered the question were unable to agree, and the Supreme Council, upon motion of Secretary of State Lansing, referred to naval experts the question still involved. These experts are being assisted by the Americans for a

early if the [illegible] British cut the two German [illegible] from Emden to America, [illegible] the Azores and also [illegible] Monrovia, [illegible] and Brazil. The [illegible] one of the [illegible] to Halifax, thereby [illegible] transAtlantic [illegible] they gave to the French Government, which so far has made no attempt to utilize it, probably because of the scarcity of submarine cable material and of cable laying ships.

Prizes of War.

The British now claim that these cables are prizes of war. They do not intend to allow their return to Germany or to regard them as subject to disposition by the Peace Conference. The American delegates however, contend that the cables were unlawfully cut and unlawfully reconnected, because the U. S. was not at war when this was done and had an interest in them as being one of the termini. Nor, they claim, was there proper warrant for the cutting of the cable between Liberia and Brazil, as both these countries were neutral at the time it was done.

Repair Work Saves St. Paul's, London, From Catastrophe

Delicate Task of Restoration Has Consumed Five Years, and Seven Piers Still Have to Receive Attention.

St. Paul's Cathedral in London has been undergoing repairs. Seven piers have yet to be restored if they are to be preserved. Canon Alexander has asked for £50,000 to complete the work. According to "The Westminister Gazette":

"The last stone in the restoration of the south-west pier was placed in position by Canon Alexander a few weeks ago after five years of uninterrupted work and anxiety; and it is gratifying to know that the first, and, perhaps most critical, part of a far reaching scheme—the practical rebuliding of this vital support of the dome—has thus been brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

"It is clear, however, from the fact that the cement injected to solidify the walls has in some places found its way out through long fissures into the street and garden outside, that the whole of the South Transept has been deadly shattered by the excessive weight of the dome, and it may yet be found that the southeast pier, on which the work is already steadily progressing, is in a condition not less serious than that of its neighbour. The widespread use of iron, which has everywhere rusted and spit the masonry is only one of several causes of deterioration.

"If the work had not been taken in hand when it was it is evident either that some disaster would before long have befallen the cathedral, or that the advancing decay would have rendered the task of repair almost, if not quite impossible; and in any case there has been a danger of falling stones, which, though diminished, is not altogether removed. The slowness of the preservation work has been due to the extreme delicacy of it, as well as to the constant interruption of the services."

Voice of the People

RE HUNTER STREET BRIDGE.

On the article published in Saturday's issue of the Examiner, March 8th, it is the voice of the local Labourers' Union as well as the general public, as we are all greatly concerned in the building of the new bridge, that the rate of wage that is laid down for out side labourers to start on May 1st is not exhorbitant according to the high price of the necessaries of life and living in general, and as we are given to understand by our local papers, to which the public look for news, that practically all the officials of the city's corporation are receiving an increase in their salaries, surely we as ordinary working men, who have the sympathy of the public in general, do not think that 50 cents per hour will be out of reason, as we all have got to live, and with the price of living at present—and we can see no change in the near future—it will keep the workingman's pocket pretty low, and we would like to state that as regards the bringing in of outside labour to our city, as one of our City Fathers was talking about, we think that there will be plenty of our own citizens to do the work, and if the contractors, whoever they may be, will pay the price, we are sure they will be fuly compensated with the work the men will give them in return. So now, thanking you Mr. Editor for this valuable space in your paper, we beg to remain,

Yours,
A. E. MILLER,
Cor.-Sec. Local 437.

SPARTACANS DRIVEN OUT

CONSIDERABLE QUANTITY OF ARMS WERE CAPTURED BY GOVERNMENT TROOPS.

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, March 13. — The German government forces, after lively fighting, have succeeded in driving the Spartacans out of east end section of Berlin, including Liechtenberg, according to the Berlin despatch. The occupation of the district, the message states, was systematically carried out by the government troops. Considerable quantities of arms were captured. Losses on the government side are declared not to have been heavy.

"The bestial acts of cruelty by the Spartacans have been fully confirmed," the message adds.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. G. H. HEFFERNAN

Evening Was Pleasantly Spent in Games and Music.

On Monday evening, March 3rd, Mrs. George Hefferman, of Norwood, formerly Miss Mamie Allen, organist of St. Joseph's church, Douro, was surprised by the choir of St. Joseph's church, which, accompanied by a number of Mrs. Heffernan's friends, assembled at her home and presented her with a handsome mahogany music cabinet. The presentation was made by Miss May Whibbs, while a suitable address was read by Mr. Arthur Carveth expressing the regret felt by the choir at her leaving and the appreciation of all for her faithful and efficient services while at St. Joseph's. To the address Mrs. Heffernan made a fitting reply.

The remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in games and music and after dainty refreshments had been served the young people returned to their homes.

Formerly Resided in Peterboro

Mrs. Elva Brown Received Fatal Injuries While Horseback Riding.

While horseback riding in Azusa, California, Elva Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Armstrong, formerly of this city and now of Somerville, West Virgina, received injuries which subsequently resulted in her death on February the 8th. It will be remembered that three years ago the Armstrong Family Band visited Peterborough with the Coop and Lent circus, and at the time Mr. Armstrong's daughters, who headed the parade as buglers, attracted considerable attention, while their trapeze work in the "big top" proved one of the features of the circus performance.

At the time of her death Mrs. Brown was 27 years of age.

Interment took place in a temporary vault in Azusa until Brown's Amusement Company, of which her husband, Mr. Sam Brown, was proprietor, returns east.

Immigration of Orientals Becomes Menace on Coast

VANCOUVER, March 12.— Public bodies in this city are beginning to agitate for serious restriction of the Asiatic immigration into this province. The Orientals are becoming a serious menace both from the economic and moral standpoints. They are competing on unfair terms with the whites in a large number of lines especially since they have branched so largely into the employing line. Under the head tax-system they can import as many of their fellow countrymen as they can pay the head tax on and the newcomers must stay in their employ until the indebtedness is wiped off.

This is practically the indenture system and the Chinese who are established in the community generally pay the new arrival a very low wage in order to utilize his services for the longest possible time at the lowest possible rate. Farmers and fruit growers in the Fraser Valley and other agricultural districts are complaining loudly against Chinese competition. The whites have to pay much higher wages and they get much shorter working days in return. In the coast cities Oriental stores constitute serious competition to the regular merchants whose overhead is much greater, and in Vancouver especially Oriental stores are locating in considerable number on the main business streets and in the most exclusive portions thereof.

Investigations made here and at Ottawa that this year the Chinese are coming in here at the rate of 300 per month, while the gentlemen's agreement made several years ago with Japan whereby the Japanese Government was not to permit more than 400 Japanese to enter Canada in a year, is, it is charged, being disregarded. Last year and the year before together saw over 1,700 Japanese enter, instead of the 800 under the agreement. So serious has the situation become that even the Chinese consul in Vancouver is advising that no more Chinese be allowed to come in and that the head-tax should be returned and all those deported, who have come in since the signing of the armistice.

Not only is organized labour aroused to the seriousness of the menace from cheap Asiatic labour, but many Orientals are to-day holding jobs which should be given to returned soldiers. Nobody has so far suggested any punitive action against the Asiatics already here, but practically every citizen west of the Rockies is of the opinion that the time has arrived when Ottawa must put the gate up if British Columbia is to remain a white province.

"Personal Column"

NEW YORK, March 12.—The New York Times says:

For reasons that will remain mysterious, the British make much more—and better use of the "personal column" in their newspapers than do Americans, and as a result even the most staid of the London journals contain in surprising numbers brief advertisements of a remarkably "human" sort—of the sort that reveals now comedy, now tragedy, with a frankness rarely shown in this country, though Americans are supposed to be much less reticent than the English.

And some of the London "personals are very amusing. Observe, for instance, this one, from a recent issue of The Times:

A DISCHARGED, DISABLED one-legged fool of an OFFICER has lost nearly all his wound and service gratuities through unwise speculation. He has, however, £120 left, and also an intense faith in the kindness of human nature. To justify this faith he appeals to financial men stockbrokers, race horse owners and others to give him a little inside information by which he can increase his capital sufficiently to get married. Despite this advertisement, advertiser is the soul of discretion and as close as an oyster. Will financial and sporting papers please copy? Box P. 488, The Times.

UNCONSCIOUS FIFTY-THREE DAYS.

Kansas Girl, Typhoid Patient, Perplexes Doctors.

KANSAS CITY, March 12 — Ill of typhoid fever for eleven weeks.

Those are the two facts in the case of Miss Adelaide O'Dowd, the 16-year-old daughter of Michael J. O'Dowd, 5716 Wyandotte Street, which, according to the physicians, have made it one of the most unusual cases in medical annals.

That typhoid fever should continue for such a length of time without the germs either losing their force or causing the death of the patient, is unknown. The fact that the disease should cause total unconsciousness is even more unusual, the physicians say.

For almost eight weeks Miss O'Dowd has lain in her room as though dead. Not once has she shown any signs of regaining consciousness. According to the physicians her present condition is remarkable considering the nature of the case. She has lost much weight, but her heart continues to perform its normal functions.

DOCTOR COULD NOT READ X-RAY PLATE.

About eight weeks ago, Mr. J. G. Nichols, Cobourg, had the misfortune to fall on the ice and strike his shoulder on the sidewalk. He had an X-ray photograph of the shoulder taken at Cobourg Hospital, one of the first taken on the new apparatus installed, and the doctor who read the plate stated a piece of bone had dropped away from its place and to have it join properly, it would require a plate, screwed on to both sides of the broken piece. On Friday another X-ray specialist visited the hospital and re-read the plate, stating that the other doctor had misinterpreted the plate. The shoulder bone had been broken, but was knitting properly and an operation would not be needed. Needless to say Mr. Nichols' was a much pleased man.

The Westerners Are Determined to Get Better Tariff Conditions

Farmers Are Keen for Free Trade —Look for a Sharp Reduction.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 13.—"As Richardson said, we don't want to hold a pistol to the government's head on the tariff," said a prominent western member to the Examiner this morning, "although we are determined to get some relief.

"Talking of weapons, however, it is the western people themselves who are holding a pistol to our heads. Their attitude is such that we will likely be forced to demand from the government radical changes, and at this present session. Our people are in no mood for delay."

This member did not wish his remarks to be taken as a criticism of the westerners' zeal or as an inference that their views were based on force rather than reason. "The general public in the west," he said, "has been studying not only the tariff but the whole subject of political economy in a way most easterners never think of doing. The Grain Growers and other societies have been distributing serious economic literature for years, and as a result the western farmers are well informed on the technical aspect of the problem, as well as being keen for free trade on emotional grounds.

A Business Way.

This business-like way of dealing with the subject is reflected in the methods of the western members and representatives of the agricultural interests here. Not content with any general agitation, they are perparing definite proposals and specific schedules of what they want, showing the results of granting such reductions.

In previous conflicts between the high and low tariff interests, the organization of the former was much more acute and effective than that of the latter, but this time it will be a battle royal between equal forces.

What is hoped is that there will be some middle ground, some spirit of co-operation and conciliation which, although realizing that a reduction, and probably a sharp reduction in the tariff is inevitable, will try to bring it about in a way that will neither disturb industry too much in the transition period, nor arouse bad feeling between the opposing interests. That is why a good many people think that some sort of board of inquiry should be set up, which could study the problem efficiently and dispassionately. If the personnel of the Board were such as to make a westerner sniff at its motives it would be useless, but if its personnel were fair and progressive, its investigations should be to the benefit of the general public, comprising the various special interests involved. Meanwhile, in their present mood, the westerners do not seem to look with any too much favour on any proposal which in their mind savors in the least of procrastination.

Specific Point.

There is one specific point on which the westerners are annoyed.

They resent certain manufacturers' tendency to use the seven and a half per cent. extra war tax as a pawn in the present game. The low tariff men say this item has nothing to do with the general problem, and that if is taken off, it merely restores the status quo, and gives the base from which further reductions should proceed. They deride the idea that in itself it represents even temporarily a possible limit of reform.

Premier Dobbin Will Head the Mock Parliament

Ex-Alderman Dobbin Will Be Seen In a New Role.

The Epworth League of the George St. Meth. Church will present with the assistance of friends who are implicated in the presentation, an entertainment in the form of a Mock Parliament, in the Sunday School Room, on evening of Friday next, 14 inst. The Hon., the Lieut Gov. will open the House with a Speech from the Throne that will be a masterpiece. It will contain promises never intended to be kept. With stand off other promises nopieces, insincere and broken. Outline propositions making for the general happiness of mankind and forecast doings of portentious significance to the country at large. This address must be heard to be depreciated.

Private Bills

Measures that will if passed, effect the district and neighborhood, will be submitted in the shape of certain Private Bills, while an other equally elegant Bills the public weal will be well looked after.

There are assurances that the Lieut Gov. will represent what he represents with dignity and courtesy. The Speaker will be as austere as he knows how to be. The Clerk of the House grave and dignified. The Sergt-at-Arms, a man of large importance and marked efficiency. Premier F. H. Dobbin will, as all Premiers do, stand off criticism and inveigle the Leader of the Opposition to wield a critic's axe with consideration and discretion. The members as a body, will look pleasant.

William Elphick Dropped Dead

Was Doing Some Shopping When Attacked by What Appeared to Be a Fainting Spell

While making some purchases at a store on George Street this morning, William Elphick, 624 Rubidge Street, suddenly appeared to faint and in a few moments was pronounced dead by Dr. D. Carmichael and Dr. T. N. Greer. Mr. Elphick left the house this morning apparently in perfect health, promising, however to take the elevator in the store for which he set out to make his purchases, a precautionary measure against an attack similar to those from which he had suffered some time ago and which were caused by hardening of the arteries.

Deceased was born in Brighton, England, and came to Peterboro in un when a young man. In 1866 he came to the city to reside and had up to the time of his death been a faithful and valued employee of the Quaker Oats Co. In religion he was a Presbyterian and attended St. Andrew's Church. He was a member of the Masonic Order."

The remains will be taken on Saturday to Hastings for interment by the noon Belleville train.

FOUND FINNS STARVING.

Capt. Krantz Tells of Widespread Want he Observed on a Trip.

HELSINGFORS, March 13 — (Via Paris.) — All Finland is underfed, and fully one sixth of the people are actually starving. American food that has arrived or en route is the only thing that stands between fully half a million starving Finns and death.

These are strong statements, but they are borne out by actual, accurate investigation.

Captain August A. Krantz, United States Food Commission, who has just returned from a fifteen days' trip through southern, eastern and interior Finland, said to-day:

"No one can picture the terrible food conditions in the greater part of the country, money means nothing, the Government food cards means nothing — there is simply no food to be had. Children are dying by the hundreds from "swelling sickness," caused by malnutrition.

"In thousands of homes there is nothing to eat except possibly black, soggy bread made from a 25 per cent. mixture of rotting oats or rye flour, milled whole, with 75 per cent. birch bark sawdust and ground barley straw. It is impossible to get food.

"One man near the eastern border handed me a purse containing 40,000 Finnish marks ($8,000) and pointing to his starving children, cried, 'For God's sake, buy some food for them.'"

Stolen Tools as Wedding Present

Series of Thefts at Cordova Mines Uncovered by County Constable Moore.

A clever piece of detective work featured Chief County Constable Moore's investigations that led to the arrest of an employee of the Cordova mines, east of Havelock, on a charge of stealing mechanic's tools and other articles belonging to the company which had been disappearing strangely from time to time. In his quest for evidence, Mr. Moore visited the express office in Havelock and found a package destined for Port Hope which had been consigned as a wedding present by this employee. His suspicion aroused, Mr. Moore opened the package and discovered a collection of tools, planes and similar goods. The accused pleaded guilty of the theft of these articles when he appeared before Magistrate Langley at the Court House this morning, but Mr. Moore asked for a week's remand to enable him to continue his enquiries into the loss of the materials of which there has been no trace.

School Holidays Not to Be Changed

PUPILS WILL HAVE THE USUAL TEN DAYS AT EASTER.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 13. — Despite the havoc wrought in the school year by the influenza epidemic last fall, the kiddies of Ontario will enjoy their usual ten days vacation at Easter.

Dr. Colquehoun, the Deputy Minister of Education, stated this morning that there would be no curtailment of the holiday period, as an amendment to the Education Act would be necessary if such a step were taken. "But have the summer holidays not been shortened by advancing the examination dates?" he was asked. "No; only the Departmental examinations are optional and need not be written on by any students who do not wish."

Black Smoke Threatens to Claim the World's Title

Johnston, in Signed Statements, Says Willard Was Permitted to Win Four Years Ago.

(Canadian Press.)

HAVANA, March 13. — Jack Johnson, the former heavyweight champion, in a signed statement, declared that his fight with Jess Willard in this city four years ago, was a pre-arranged affair and that he allowed Willard to win. The former champion declares that unless Willard agrees to fight him within a reasonable time he will claim the worlds title.

A CRUDE JOKE.

(Canadian Press.)

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 13. — "Jack Johnson simply needs the money and is trying to put over another match," was the comment of Jess Willard, when shown the statement received from Havana to-day, in which Jack Johnson claimed that the championship bout with Willard four years ago was a pre-arranged affair.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," Willard continued. "I refuse to dignify the statement with a denial for as far as I am concerned it is simply a crude joke.

"MADE IN HAVANA"

NEW YORK, March 13. — Tex Rickard, promoter of the Willard-Dempsey heavyweight championship bout scheduled for July 4th, laughed heartily to-day at Jack Johnsons' alleged confession, "made in Havana" that he laid down in his fight with Jess Willard four years ago.

Johnson is discredited and is making a big bid for publicity," said Rickard. 'He is a four flushing, as he always does and no decent promoter can afford to have anything to do with him. I am sure that I won't."

The fight could not have been faked. It went too far. Frame up bouts never last twenty six rounds Johnson's statement is pure, unadulterated bunk—no one will believe a word he says. He is worse than Fulton."

Jack Curly, promoter of the Johnson-Willard heavyweight championship battle, and one of Willard's managers, to-day branded Johnson's confession as a "pathetic, child-like whine coming from an ignorant mind, from one who realizes he has gone to the end of his rope."

"The world knows my feelings toward Jess Willard, but I cannot lie strong enough even to injure that ingrate and give any colour of truth to Johnson's story," said Curly. "Willard defeated Johnson in Havana in as square and as honestly fought contest that was ever pulled off."

O.H.A. AT DENT'S REQUEST ASKS FOR AFFIDAVITS FROM HAMILTON PLAYERS

Toronto, March 13.—Capt. Willard Box, of the Dental Hockey Club's O.H.A. senior team has requested the Ontario Hockey Association to demand from the players of the Hamilton senior team affidavits to the effect that they have never, at any time, transgressed the O.H.A. amateur rule. The O.H.A. has notified Manager "Paddy" Jones of the Hamilton team to have his players make the affidavit as requested. The action of the Dentals has caused a sensation in hockey circles.

Many aspersions have been cast on the eligibility of the Tigers under the O.H.A. amateur regulations. Cooper and Mattie were investigated some time ago and Cooper was notified that his certificate had been cancelled. Early in the season the O.H.A. conducted an investigation into the hockey careers of some of the Hamilton players, but did not ascertain anything that warranted them in refusing to issue certificates to the players. There were plenty of indefinite rumours concerning the amateur standing of some of the Hamilton players, but nobody could be found who would give evidence under oath as to the ineligibility of any of them.

The action of the O. H. A. in the event of the Hamiltonians being found ineligible is problematical. St. Patrick's and Dentals may be ordered to play for the senior championship.

February is the proper month in which to fix the hot bed for early vegetables.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Jess Willard is More Interested in the Money Than Anything Else

Don't Care a Whoop What Happens So Long as He Gets a Few More Iron Men—Fans Want a Knockout.

(United Press)

By Tom Lewis

NEW YORK, March 13.—Big Jess Willard, King Bee of the Heavy Weights, doesn't care a whoop where Tex Rickard holds his little reception on Independence day.

"The play's the thing," said old kid Shakespeare, not a bad champion in his own day. But Jess, seeing issue with the imortal Bill sees things in a different light.

"The dollar's the thing," says Jess, and Jess ought to know, if rumor is to be credited he has stacked up quite some pile.

"What do you like, short fight or long fight?" a U. P. Correspondent shot at Jess at his Lawrence, Kansas home.

"Short fight if it will bring more money," was Willard's comeback. "Makes no difference, long or short will do. But the money's the thing. But I haven't much to say about those things. Rickard will do the money part, I'll do the fighting."

Tex Rickard's intimation that the fight will be staged over the five furlongs course has created quite a stir among the devotees of the padded mitt. Opinions, pro and con are pouring in.

William A. Brady, who once guided the destinies of Jim Jeffries, says, "Rickard will be obliged to pull the scrap off in or near New York. If he hopes to break even, more over, Brady thinks Dempsey will tear Willard's crown off.

Tom Andrews can't see the short distance thing at all, and thinks Rickard is too wise to attempt it.

Wants a Hayrake.

Eddie Randall, St. Louis fight arbitrator, wants it to be a 25 round argument and clamors for a decision.

Mike Collins, Minneapolis boxing promoter believes that bout in New York would draw well over a quarter of a million. His prediction is that it would draw less than $100,000 west of Kansas city.

Doping the fight, Collins sees Dempsey dispatching Willard in less than ten rounds.

"It would be a big attraction for the east," says Mike Mooney of the Missouri Athletic Club, "but I think it should go to the full route."

Meanwhile silent Tex Rickard, sawing wood with quiet abandon looks on from the sideline and awaits final action of certain gentlemen occupying legislative positions. Yesterday's boxing hearing at Albany brought him good cheer. Little was done but there was much talking, and for the present Tex is content to let the other gents talk.

Tex not unmindful of the fact that seven four round bouts in San Francisco recently drew $90,000, is like Willard. The dollars, the thing, and Tex likes the big centres. Experience has taught him that here the dollar circulates quite freely.

May Bowl With Curling Stones

Mr. A. R. Moore wishes to notify Andy Webb, chairman of the committee extraordinary, Alex Kay and other members who are interested in the idea of using curling stones on ball bearings for summer use, that he has been assured by expert mechanics at the Cordova Mines that the plan is feasible to the engineering experts and was surprised at their pronouncement. In fact he had approached them with diffidence, fearing that they might declare it a damfoolidea, but everything is rosy and if the chairman will proceed with negotiations, arrangements may be completed for this summer

Hamilton Win Senior Title

Soundly Beaten by St. Patrick's, Fail to Succeed in Capturing Round.

TORONTO, March 13. — Playing in sensational style from start to finish St. Patrick's team last night defeated Hamilton Tigers by 5 to 1 in the O. H. A. senior final fixture at the Arena. The visitors came here with a seven goal lead, and therefore won the championship and the Allan cup by three goals on the round. The Green Shirts with Frank Heffernan back on the defence, made the far famed Tigers look ordinary, and it was the concensus of opinion of the spectators that the best team did not win the title.

Over five thousand attended and they saw one of the most thrilling, up-hill struggles ever staged in the city. They were kept in a frenzy of excitement throughout and as the Irish gradually reduced the lead the din and noise was terrific. Frank Heffernan was given a great hand when he skated out and he fully justified his reception. As a defence player he stands alone and all the trickiness of Roach, Green and Matte availed them nothing when attacking the Irish citadel. Had Heffernan not been taken ill when his team so badly needed him the Irish would undoubtedly have won the O. H. A. championship.

St. Patricks forced the play from the face-off and although they were easily the better they failed to score in the initial period. In the second they notched two to Tigers' one and in the third added three more.

Dempsey Arousing General Interest Among Fight Fans

Within the last quarter of a century or so two championship fights have exceeded all others in stir created before hand and interest at the time. They were the Sullivan-Corbett and Corbett-Fitzsimmons mills. The Willard-Dempsey match, bigger than either of the others in a money sense, probably will equal them in a general interest when the place of the match is settled and there is assurance that the contest will be secure from interference. Whyfors are Dempsey's rush to fame his appeal as a real fighter and worthy prospect as a champion, the size of the purse, and the fact that it will be Willard's first finish fight since he won his title from Johnson.

Dempsey is building up a larger following than any heavyweight since Corbett's time. It is yet to be seen whether his bout with Willard will arouse the intense, heartfelt interest of the Sullivan-Corbett match. Sullivan was Sullivan, the most epic ring figure of the age, and Corbett, fool-hardy for tackling him in the estimation of most folks but cocksure in his own, was a new type, suave, good looking and at ease in evening clothes. He interested more classes of persons than ever before had been interested in affairs of the squared circle, and in such places as clubs and homes, where ring affairs at best were but casually mentioned, there was real interest in how the urbane Corbett would fare in his daring project.

Then came Fitzsimmons, the freakish, the crafty, the terrific hitter, who had beaten a great favorite, Jack Dempsey. Corbett, with his big and loyal personal following also was a home product. The sporting world was agog again and more than the sporting world, as when Corbett fought Sullivan, was far from apathetic. The defeat of Corbett was a greater shock than the defeat of Sullivan, who was old and in poor trim and a bitter disappointment because a home bred and a national favorite, beau sabreur of the ring, so to speak, was beaten by a foreigner. But as a rugged, primitive fighting type—and to whom does such not appeal?—Dempsey is the most conspicuous figure since Sullivan.

BUFFALO HERD ON SALE.

Hundreds from General's Ranch Reach Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., March 12.—What is said to be the first herd of buffalo ever offered for sale on any open market in the world was received in South Omaha yesterday. The herd of twenty-three is part of a herd of 250 buffalo from the famous Trinchera Ranch, formerly owned by General Palmer and located near Fort Garland in south-western Colorado. The herd being privately owned and raised on a private ranch, the government has raised no objection to the sale.

Buffalo steak will be on sale at public markets here within a few days. It will probably sell for about $1 a pound, stock men say.

RETURN TO VERDUN
City Council Returns to Ruins of Former Home.

PARIS, March 13.—The City Council of Verdun returned to the ruined city yesterday.

"It was an act of faith in the future of the city," the Verdun correspondent of the Petit Journal comments, "for there are only two or three hundred inhabitants there, compared with 20,000 before the war. Before the others can come back, houses, furniture, food, everything has to be provided to receive them."

It was recently stated that the amount of damage at Verdun was 80,000,000 francs. The members of the Council hope that the former prosperity of Verdun will be restored.

Local Tributes to Late W. H. Denham

The chimes of St. John's church at three o'clock echoed the tolling of the funeral of the late W. H. Denham at Akron, Ohio, the home of his boyhood. The Quaker Oats factory was closed and silent to-day, and its big Union Jack flew at half mast. Further tokens of respect to the memory of Mr. Denham were paid by the city's flag flying at half mast. On the Turner and other factories this form of tribute was also followed. It was learned that many handsome floral mementoes had been ordered by local citizens and associations from Chicago florists through local agents. The citizens were represented at the funeral and graveside by Mayor Duncan. Peterborough has not failed in its efforts to express its feelings of sadness and sense of loss in the death of the former manager of the local branch of the Quaker Oats Company, and collections will linger with kind-minded, sympathetic persons; in short the deeply human and manly phase of Mr. Denham's character will be remembered even above his high talents in business.

British Veterans Rejoining Army By the Hundreds

LURE OF KHAKI STRONGER THAN CIVILIAN LIFE FOR MANY—EMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS SOLVED BY ENLISTMENT

LONDON.—Thousands of the British army who recently became so war weary that they openly threatened mutiny unless they were discharged have turned about face and are volunteering for the new army, according to the military authorities, who assert that they are satisfied that there will be little difficulty in obtaining the 900,000 men who will do Great Britain's share in guarding the peace the Allies have won.

The causes said to have sent the men flocking back to the colors are the unexpected large war bonus offered to men who "take on" and the acute industrial situation. The first factor has been of prime importance in the case of boys from eighteen to twenty-one who have been two or more years already in the army and who have no trade to fall back upon in civilian life.

In the new army they will be fed, clothed and sheltered and draw a minimum of about $5 a week as pocket money. They have quickly awakened to the realization that there is no such prospect awaiting them on a return to "civies."

Tax Shortage Seen

The industrial upheaval plays the main part in the decision of the older men. In the first rush for demobilization no man was permitted to go who had not a definite offer of employment. The government did all in its power to make certain that such offers were bona fide, but in spite of every precaution thousands of men got their release on bogus papers.

These men soon found themselves in an unenviable position. They could not get work and they faced some very unfavorable inquiries if they applied for the out-of-work pay provided for those who are idle through no fault of their own. The recruiting sergeant was an easy road out of their troubles, and that astute individual, who draws a bonus for each recruit, was not blind to his opportunities.

Enamored of Army Life

A third factor of minor but real importance, is the fact that numbers of men who have been home on liberal leave since the armistice was signed have discovered that they are not nearly so happy out of khaki as they imagined that they would be. They frankly admit that they miss the companionship of the army, the lack of responsibility and the easy hours. Now that the war is over the army is resting on its laurels, and in the great camps around England "work" is confined to one hour's parade, a day with football games, paper chases and other sports. That is a considerable contrast to eight or nine hours of monotonous toil in a shop or factory.

The army authorities have not so far made public any figures on recruiting, but some indication is offered by the experience of two battalions in one of the largest camps in the south of England. In one unit, where all the men had seen service overseas, more than 20% reenlisted in less than two weeks. In the other, an "A4" battalion, made up of boys under military age, more than 300 took the oath in the same period, a large number for the regulation period of twelve years.

Will Erect New Sunday School

Trustee Board of George Street Church Met Last Evening.

At a meeting of the Trustee Board of George street Methodist church held last evening, the matter of better Sunday school accommodation was considered, and also the present debt of $8,000 on the church. After a discussion, in which all the trustees took part, a motion was unanimously carried to authorize a campaign for subscriptions to raise money to pay the debt and towards the erection of a new Sunday school building.

Committee Appointed.

A committee was appointed by the Board to act with representatives which the Official Board and Sunday school will be asked to appoint to take charge of the work of securing subscriptions. One trustee has offered to pay one-sixth of the debt. At a previous meeting if the whole amount were raised this year, and at last night's meeting, when a larger project was taken up, he said he would give one sixth of the whole amount.

A little over four years ago the Sunday school with the exception of the Board, took up the subject of raising funds for a new building and did raise several thousand dollars, but the war put an end to the project for the time. With the subscription given last evening and the enthusiasm for the erection of a new school building shown by all the societies of the church there is every reason to expect that the campaign will be very successful.

Pays Tribute to Canadians

Proud to Have Canadians in Kinmel Camp.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, March 13.—Bishop of St. Asaph, in the neighbourhood of Kinmel Camp writing to the "Times" pays the highest tribute to Canadians there in regard to their treatment of inhabitants of that part of Wales who he declares were proud to have these fighting Canadians in their midst.

Respecting recent riots he points out that discomfort and continual delay in sending these men to their homes after being led to believe they were going immediately was grievous trial on the patience of any men, especially when they read in Canadian papers of "Conscripts" arriving home after doing no fighting and being acclaimed with the rest as Canada's heroes. This smouldering quickly burst into flames.

Early Settlement Is Looked For

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 13.— Early settlement of New York harbour strike was predicted to-day by Department of Labour officials when they were advised that some of the private boat owners were willing to accept the proposal of their employees. How many owners had reached this decision was not stated.

Rev. Mr. Clare of Orono, conducted the ceremony.

They were married in the sun room in the alcove banked with flowers. The bride, who was given away by her father was beautifully gowned in rich castor colored Duchess satin with silver trimmings, and wearing a Brussels net veil with bandeau of orange blossoms and an exquisite bouquet of Calla Lillies and carnations. A buffet luncheon was served. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold wrist watch. The bride's travelling suit was of Belgian blue taffeta silk with hat to match.

The wedding was very quiet owing to the absence of the bride's brother Gunner V. E. Bullock, of the 2nd Canadian Field Artillery, France; who has been over seas for over two years.

Many useful and costly gifts were received testifying the high esteem in which they were held.

The happy couple left in their car for a brief honeymoon; on their return will reside on Church street, Orono, Ont.

WM. HY. HAYNES DEAD

For Many Years Agent of G.T.R., Can. Express and G. N. W. Tel. Co.

He was a native of St. Mary's, but some 25 years ago came to Campbellford from that town, and was engaged for a time in the stationery business. For many years he was local agent for the Canadian Express Co., the Grand Trunk Railway System and the G.N.W. Telegraphs. Four sisters, Mrs. Bailey of Saskatoon, Mrs. Armstrong of Hanover, Mrs. W. E. Carnahan of Campbellford and Mrs. (Rev.) F. E. Malott of Peterboro, and one brother, Samuel, who resides near St. Mary's survive. Service was held this afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. E. Carnahan, after which the remains were taken to St. Mary's where interment will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner,

"The question of good roads is today perhaps engaging the attention of the public to a greater extent than it ever had before in the history of the province," said Hon. F. G. McDiarmid. The most outstanding event during the past year, I presume, is that the Federal Government in recognition of the importance of good roads has agreed to assist with $20,000,000, to be divided among the different provinces on a basis of population.

The minister declared it his opinion that it was the intention of the Ontario government to pursue an aggressive policy of good road construction. He believed that all the recent legislation facilitating the construction of good roads, heralded an important program in connection with the work of construction.

"There has been some objections in regard to provincial highways," he said. But I believe this objection is founded on misapprehension of the whole scheme and how it is to be undertaken. It is not the intention of the department to construct expensive highways when traffic demands do not warrant, large expenditure. The department officials will study the requirements of the various sections, instead of creating new roads the minister went on.

The Ontario government was merely improving existing roads where traffic was heaviest.

There had always been provincial highways in the province, only they had never been known by that name. We intend to go on with our work on the provincial highways and to take advantage of the assistance which we will get from the Dominion Government. That assistance will reduce the cost to the province and to the counties. To-day it is 70 per cent. for the province and 30 per cent. for the counties, but we will be able to reduce these figures. What is the matter with Peterboro county? Are we going to sit back and watch all the counties around us pick up the plums and get the loose change this wealthy motorist has and Peterboro never get a chance to bleed him?

J. N. Malco, farmer.

GRAIN MARKET

Corn markets reacted yesterday after the heavy buying movement of the past few days. General conditions are practically unchanged, as the farmer is still reluctant to let go his holdings, though it is said that prospects are that there will soon be a freer movement. Long interests in the speculative market tried to let go a little yesterday, and the selling movement soon became general, prices tumbling sharply. Cash markets were also slightly easier. Manitoba oats and barley came down a peg, but Ontario barley cash quotations were advanced to the dollar mark.

Manitoba wheat—In store, Fort William; No. 1 northern, $2.34 1-2; No. 2 northern, $2.20 1-2; No. 3 northern $2.17; No. 4 wheat, $2.11 1-2.

Welcome English Women.

Sir Edward Kemp, speaking to the Canadian Associated Press about the many thousands of English women who have become the wives of Canadian soldiers and will now see the Dominion for the first time, expressed the earnest hope that Canadian women as one additional war effort will establish in each city reception committees to extend to the newcomer a welcome which will leave no uncertainty in their minds concerning the position they are expected to take in Canada's future life.

Their welcome, he added, should be as cordial as that extended to the men returning from the war.

Nearly all savages have sound teeth. Imperfect teeth are a sign of civilization.

LABOUR AND SOLDIERS ARE NEGLECTED IN THE HOUSE

OTTAWA, March 14.—Thos. Foster, although his speech was, on the whole, neither exciting nor significant, did raise one real issue. He complained of Cabinet Ministers sitting in the Senate rather than in the House of Commons. The three cases at present include the Departments of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, the Post Office, and Labour.

Particularly as regards Soldiers and Labour, it does seem inexplicable that there is neither a Minister nor a Parliamentary Undersecretary in the House of Commons. As for the Post-office, although it is not of such vital concern, the present incumbent of the portfolio, Senator Blondin, was defeated for the House of Commons, and his appointment to a Cabinet position in the Senate is against all constitutional practice. No adequate defence has ever been made by the Government, and if the Opposition were alert, they could force an issue here.

No Representative in House.

For practical purposes the case of Labour is the most flagrant. In a time when labour problems throughout the world have reached a pitch of emergency and importance they have never had before, we have a Government which has no representative of the Department of Labour in the House of Commons. If, for some involved reason, the Government found it necessary to put the Minister in the Senate, they could at least have appointed a Parliamentary Undersecretary in the Commons, who would be responsible in that House, and who could speak in the debates and on the estimates.

If you ask the Government about the question, the answer they give is that some other Minister, in the House of Commons will act, when necessary, for the Department of Labour.

Problems Neglected.

The result of the lack of representation of the Labour Department, coupled with the absence of private Labour members, means that labour problems in any concrete specific treatment are woefully neglected in the Commons, and workmen themselves get the impression that they have nothing to hope for from Parliament, and begin looking elsewhere for redress and advance.

Although technically the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment is not represented in the Commons, Col. Hugh Clark will probably act for it as as well as for the Department of Militia, of which he is the Parliamentary Undersecretary. Hugh Clark, however, with all his attractive qualities, is not regarded very seriously as an administrative or near-Ministerial figure, and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment will not get the attention it deserves, nor such as it would get if it had a Minister in the House.

Military men there, including a number of officials, are frank in their denunciation of the present distribution of portfolios. They think the appointment of an aggressive Minister of Re-establishment in the House of Commons, subject to direct criticism and review, would at least be a move in the proper direction.

AFTER AN OPERATION

Ohio Man Tells How to Gain Strength.

East Liverpool, Ohio.—"After an operation, I was weak, run-down, and slow to recuperate—I was advised to take Vinol, and the results were wonderful. I have a good appetite and sleep fine. I am always glad to tell anyone, what Vinol has done for me."—Joseph Weiss.

There is no secret about Vinol. It owes its success in such cases to beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body building and strength creating tonics.

In Vaudeville.

Draft men coming to Camp Kearny recently for training decorated the railroad cars in which they traveled with all sorts of mottoes and inscriptions.

When they got there they were required to wash them off. However, one car got away from camp in some unexplained fashion, while these words still adorned its sides:

"This is the bunch that's going to make the kaiser whistle the 'Star-Spangled Banner.'"

Peculiar Cause for Divorce.

In a divorce case at London, England, the petitioner, a lance corporal in the Gordon Highlanders, said his wife, an Englishwoman, refused to be seen with him on the street because she did not like him in a kilt. When he was on leave later she greeted him with "Oh, those d—— kilts!" The husband was granted a decree.

cases ended in death. So a recent Canadian investigation showed. These were not cases of infectious disease—of consumption—of typhoid. They were cases where a person had sustained some slight injury—a cut, a burn, a pin-prick—and where the wound being closed, not serious enough for careful treatment, had been neglected. Blood-poisoning and death resulted.

CURED OF DYSPEPSIA

BY USING

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

The symptoms of dyspepsia are so numerous and diversified in different individuals that probably no description could exactly represent them as they occur in any given case, but a few of the most prominent are a rising and souring of food, pain, flatulence and distention of the abdomen, a sensation of discomfort after every meal, which is sometimes followed by sickness and vomiting.

To get rid of dyspepsia a careful arrangement of the diet is necessary and due time must be given for the digestion of the meal.

You will find that Burdock Blood Bitters will help with this digestion. It does this by toning up the stomach in such a way that the dyspepsia soon disappears.

Mr. Robt. Baldwin, Winnifred, Alta., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters for curing dyspepsia, of which I had been a sufferer for years. I have tried a good many doctors' and proprietary medicines, so one day I thought I would try something different. I got a bottle of B. B. B. from our local store, as it was about the only remedy he kept, and I can certainly say that I was more than pleased with the results, as I got better right away. I will always recommend it to other sufferers."

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Ruth Reviews Her Life With Brian

CHAPTER CXLIII

Ruth tossed uneasily all night long. But when morning broke she had come to no decision regarding Mollie King, how to prevent her coming to Brian. Insensibly she realized that Mollie felt free to come to him because of their experience overseas, and also because she could come as nurse—in a sense.

Brian had seemed so happy to know she was back. It could mean but one thing: that he was still interested in her, if not in love. So, Ruth thought, and so was miserable. "Oh, dear, the world's all wrong!" she sighed as she tried to put Mollie from her mind and failed. That she might be wrong, and the world right, never seemed to occur to her. What she did was for the comfort of all. Why couldn't Brian see it?

At breakfast he was still in a happy mood, while Ruth was, if anything, growing hourly more miserable. Neither was it entirely due to thoughts of Mollie King. In some way, she was beginning to feel that she must be in the wrong. That she had not been able to hold him—make him happy—proved it.

Yet in what had she failed?

Surely she had done all any wife could do and more. She had been true and faithful; she had worked to make them comfortable—so she pretended to herself; she had never cared for anyone but Brian; and now he—she—were neither of them happy.

It was hard to leave him with that expectant look on his face, that it had been the day before when he had almost suggested. Yet, even so, it again was not entirely because of Mollie King; it was the feeling that she, his wife, had in some way failed him. Failed the man, the soldier whose fearlessness had brought him recognition.

Had she failed him And in what way?

There was in Ruth a vein of sentiment, a love of romance, which she had suppressed. There had been, too, a lack of sympathetic understanding, especially of Brian's viewpoint. That he, too, was full of romance, sentiment, and had hidden it from her to a great degree because of his feeling that she cared more for her work than for him, she had no way of knowing. So they had stumbled on, from almost the very first.

If Brian and Ruth could have talked over things calmly, quietly dissecting their differences, each trying to get the other's viewpoint, there might have been a different story to tell. But Brian's impatience, what Ruth called his "determined unreasonableness" had prevented this, in fact had made it impossible. Not that Ruth was not stubborn, too—she was. Yet they might have avoided a great deal of useless clashing, so much useless unhappiness, had they each really tried to see things as the other saw them.

All that morning at the shop Ruth was distrait, her mind with Brian, instead of on her work. She had left him "primping," as he called it, getting ready for Mollie's promised visit.

Slowly she walked home to have luncheon with her husband. She passed several soldiers, some of them bearing marks of the battles thru which they had passed, a leg or an arm missing. But every one had a clear, straightforward look in their eyes, the look Brian had when he first came home—a look so different from the one he had when he told her he would not invite Major Williams to dinner,—because of her, her work. She recalled how bitter was his tone when he said that "over there, those fellows thought him a man." She also recalled (altho it had not impressed her at the time) the convulsive way his hand had closed over his cross.

Poor Brian. Why wouldn't he be sensible?

Then as she neared home there rushed over her a desire to give up everything and be to him all that he wanted her to be. To win this soldier husband back!

Not one thought of Mollie King came to her as she walked along. Not one feeling of resentment against Brian. She only grasped the one vital thing: Brian was her husband, she his wife; yet she was losing him again. That was the way she felt about it. She had lost him before he went away. When he came back to her and she had nursed him, she felt he was hers once more. Now she had that terrible feeling again that he had gone from her.

She rushed into the room where he sat, and, throwing her arms about him, she said:

"You do love me, don't you, Brian? Tell me you love me better than anyone on earth." Then she burst into a flood of tears which frightened him. He drew her head upon his breast, over the cross, and with loving words he quieted her, assuring her of his love.

"Mollie didn't come," he told her after a time." She telephoned it was impossible. She is still under orders you know."

To-morrow—Ruth Confides in Her Employer.

Airplane Cameras.

The airplane camera is fixed either to the side of the machine or below it. It must be and is of signal reliability. Plates add weight to the cargo of an airplane, and there must be no wastage through inefficiency in the camera. Aerial photographers are the detectives of the air. A mark appearing at a spot where no mark was visible in a previous photograph of the same place may indicate some important change in the enemy's organization, and extreme care is taken to insure that the mark is not the result of a fortuitous finger print. Thumb marks are the deadly sin in the royal air force photographic service.

More Diversified Farming.

In the census report of 6,361,502 farms in the United States in 1910, no one's mental picture of a typical farm is verified by general facts. Only one crop, Indian corn, was produced on more than three-fourths of the farms, the precise percentage being 76.7. Only two crops were produced on one-half of the farms or more, and these were hay, with 73.5 per cent and potatoes, with 50 per cent. Apples, with 48.9 per cent, nearly reached this class. On more than one-fourth of the farms only three other crops were produced—oats, 34.2 per cent; peaches, 29 per cent; and cotton, 28.9 per cent.

Bull Bulletin.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, tells a good story on a broker friend who was advised by his physician to spend a few weeks in the West.

For some time the broker had been affected by a nagging fever, which the doctor thought would disappear under the influence of a dry climate.

The physician, desiring to keep in touch with his patient, suggested that the latter should telegraph him a daily record of his temperature, taken morning and evening. To this the broker agreed, and at the end of the first day in the West, he sent the following telegram:

"Temperature bully. Opened 97, closed 102."

The Admiral's Broom—and—Up From Somerset — H. Ruthven McDonald 216053

"The Admiral's Broom" is a ballad vigorous and tuneful, having the swing of a rollicking song of the sea and possessing breadth of dignity as well as strength of workmanship. His rousing baritone solo as rendered by Ruthven McDonald is remarkable for clearness of enunciation, and the listener will have no difficulty in following every word.

"Up From Somerset." The old song has all the qualities of the good old times, the expressions used possess the power of conjuring up pictures in the mind of the listener, which is one of the highest qualities of art. Mr. McDonald's voice is not only flexible in volume but he can phrase with delicacy and the tones of his upper register are remarkable for their richness.

CANADIANS SHOW THE WAY

By ROLAND HILL.

OF the many experiences in quaint places in which the Canadians found themselves doing war duty those of the Canadian Forestry Corps can claim almost prior place. In 1917 Britain, France and Italy were all appealing for lumber—and more lumber. The Allied forces in Salonika were crying for it in the worst kind of way. Russia offered a supply if cutting could be organized. So into the four corners of Allied Europe were sent Canadian timber cruisers, men who had foraged through Northern Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. Some of them could speak no language but their own, but they knew what they were after and they could tell to the thousand how many billion feet could be cut from a forest. At one time, after three Ontario men had cruised Crete and Mudros, a Canadian mill outfit was started on its way to the picturesque Mediterranean. But the Royal Engineers decided to do the job and the Canadians were robbed of one of their quaint experiences. Parties were sent to Russia and were about to start operations when the distant rumbles of the revolution were heard and they were withdrawn.

IN THE VOSGES AND JURA.

The best record of the Canadian Forestry Corps, outside of that done for the British was the supplying of every class of lumber direct to the French Armies from the Vosges and Jura Mountains, on the Swiss border, and from the Landes and the Gironde, south of Bordeaux, in sight of the giant Pyrenees. In the north Canadian uniforms came to be known in the quaint mountain villages and the peasants opened their homes to the strange men from across the Atlantic. Down in the Landes, where reigned a "dolce far niente" almost Spanish, the vigor and expedition of the Canadian woodchoppers was a perpetual marvel. Some of the Canadians from Acadia found distant relations of the early settlers, through Cabot and Carter, in the mountainsides of the Jura.

One day in the early spring of 1917 two Canadian officers, chatting with the engineer of the Paris-Switz rland Express, told of the big engines that drove the Canadian Pacific trains over the big grades of the Canadian Rockies. They were critical of the toy French engine. They were invited to take the trip over the divide into Pontarlier, the sentinel town on the international border. On they climbed and when the end of the run was reached two begrimed, but happy, beings, climbed off the engine, honorary members of the French Railwaymen's Union. One man had worked the engine up the winding grades and the other had stoked. One was a professor of mechanics at McGill University and the other was chief engineer for one of the biggest lumber companies in Ontario. That was the kind of material the Forestry Corps was composed of.

When the timber famine came along the fighting fronts of Europe, the extreme east of the French lines and fortresses, like Belfort, were pleading as urgently for timber as the rest. There were huge forests but no machinery or men to cut them fast enough for military needs. Heavy timber meant the saving of Frenchmen's lives, so a bargain was struck that treble the amount cut and delivered by the Canadians in the Vosges and Jura for the French armies would be delivered in standing timber near the British lines. In two weeks boilers and mills from the faraway Dominion were installed in the mountains, and loading-sidings were blasted out of the solid rock cuttings through the mountains. The peasants who formerly cut the big trees used to slowly bring them miles down the mountain roads by ox teams into the valley towns, where there were ancient mills still driven by water wheels. Ten trees a day was a good average for the mill to saw.

Then the Canadians came on the scene. There were many engineering difficulties to overcome. The supply of water for the big Nova Scotia boilers was solved by their own men and miles of piping were laid that defied gravity by artful pumping. Light railways were built through the forests and the mud roads were macadamized by mountain rock which were crushed in our own outfits. In the various mills at the end of the war the output of all sizes of timbers had reached 400,000 feet daily, more than the whole Jura produced in a year before hostilities broke out. Fifteen or twenty mills of Canadian type were distributed at strategic points—anyone coming on the scene might have thought themselves to be in Northern Ontario or British Columbia. The clever engineers of the Forestry Corps were always willing to help the villagers. They showed them how to harness the rushing streams that irrigated the vineyard slopes, and turn them into power for electric light or to run their wine presses. One Canadian major who had been in the wooden pipe business on the Pacific coast, gave up his trade secrets in the fraternity of water-tanks and water systems were planned for villages that for centuries had drawn buckets into the communal stream.

In the south of France the famous pine forests which Napoleon planted for the peasants yield them fortunes in resin and turpentine. It is estimated that the value extracted from each tree per year is five francs, but in forty years the tree goes mature and there were millions of these trees ready to be cut into railway sleepers and inch planks badly needed for the war. The French Government had difficulty in buying them from the unsophisticated peasants. A government official went with a bank of France cheque to close a deal with one old forester near the Spanish border. It was for quarter of a million francs and a fortune for the old man. He tore the cheque up as worthless, he could only think in terms of metal coinage. For several weeks the deal hung fire and then he exchanged the sterile forest for a productive one fifty miles away, asking as his price one hundred extra trees. The rapidity with which the Canadians cut the forest amazed the Frenchmen. They called them the "madmen of the woods." They were all good [illegible], and hundreds of the men [illegible] had never had the nerve to [illegible] or been in hospital [illegible] by the kindly Canadian surgeons attached to the corps. Bolshevism in Canada

THE statement recently made by Mr. C. H. Cahan, K.C., head of the Canadian Department of Public Safety, regard to the spread of Bolshevism Canada, is deserving of the most reful attention. Mr. Cahan quite idently, in making his statement, s not mean to be, in any sense of e word, an alarmist, but he does an to offset any tendency on the rt of the public to underestimate e seriousness of the position. Mr. ahan declares, quite roundly, that e Bolshevist and Socialist element Canada is of a particularly vicious pe, and gives it as his opinion that, it is not dealt with promptly and riously, "it will almost of a cerinty lead to trouble which may asme most serious proportions and nsequences." The movement has, appears, spread in all directions. nearly every industrial centre, om Montreal across the prairie proces into British Columbia, anches of the Social Democratic rty, which is frankly Bolshevist in tendency, have been instituted. The latform of the party is, Mr. Cahan eclares, of an ultra-revolutionary haracter, as is made evident in a eady stream of literature, publishd in half a dozen languages, which as been issuing, and is still issuing, rom the printing establishments of he party in Montreal, Toronto and innipeg.

Now Bolshevism in Canada is, erhaps, no different from Bolsheism anywhere else. At this date, he world needs no introduction to , or any explanation as to what it eans and what are its fruits. There , however, in Canada, as everyhere else, one conspicuous feature bout Bolshevism to which attention eeds to be directed and redirected. y study of the position in the Dominion shows that wherever Bolsheism is a growing movement it is mongst the alien elements of the mmunity, and the very fact that he great mass of the Bolshevist litrature seized by the authorities is rinted in various different languages itself evidence of this contention. n the course of his statement Mr. ahan declared that he has in his ossession the names, compiled hrough the Canada Registration oard, of no less than 63,784 Rusians of sixteen years and over, some 9,000 Austrians, and thousands of ermans, Bulgarians, and members f various Slavic nationalities, all of hom are more or less affected by olshevist propaganda. It is the same verywhere one turns. In the United States and in Great Britain, Bolhevism, although it may attract oth- adherents to a limited extent, akes root and thrives mainly mongst the foreign elements.

What the Anglo-Saxon race thinks f Bolshevism was shown, with unistakable certainty, the other day n Great Britain, in the result of the ecent election, when every candiate who was suspected of so much s being sympathetic toward Bolshevism was defeated at the polls by an verwhelming majority. Canada, no oubt, has a more difficult problem n Bolshevism than has the United Kingdom, because this country has n proportion to its population a far arger foreign element. The great act, however, remains true that it s mainly amongst the foreign element that the doctrines thrive, and anything in the nature of a Bolsheist landslide in any of these countries is unthinkable. This consideration is, of course, very far from beng an argument for a doctrine of aissez faire in dealing with the matter. It is, indeed, neither an argument for optimism nor one for pessimism, but a simple statement of a fact which should be taken into account whenever the subject of Bolshevism is considered. It amounts to this, that Bolshevism in Canada, as in the United States and in the United Kingdom, is largely parasitic on the life of the country, and can in no circumstances, as far as can be seen, develop into a really national movement.—Christian Science Monitor.

"Orion" Type of Stars.

The youngest stars of which we have knowledge are the "Orion" type of stars. The constellation of Orion is composed mainly of them, as well as parts of Taurus, the Pleiades, and parts of Perseus. In color, they are much like the Sirius type, bluish white, very brilliant, but a spectroscope at once detects the difference between them. Stars like Sirius and Vega are surrounded by hydrogen gas, but the Orion stars have no hydrogen, and are made of helium and nebula. They also have great volumes of fine nebula about them, showing that they are still in the process of condensing and of a primitive star matter.

WHEN NOYON WAS EVACUATED

Despairing Villagers Could Not at Once Believe That Savage Huns Were Really Gone

Noyon was before the war just one of the many sleepy old French provincial towns, with an hotel de ville, and a cathedral, and little gray streets twisting out into a rich, green agricultural plain; now, writes Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant, in the Century, it will always be remembered as the town nearest to Paris—only 62 miles away—where the enemy stayed for two and a half years. It had been used during the occupation as a sort of concentration center from the actual firing line. Before the retreat however, virtually all the useful members of the community had been deported; all the men between sixteen and sixty—there were a good many of territorial age not mobilized during the first days of the war, and therefore caught by the German invasion—and most of the women between the same ages except those who had dependent children. It was, then, a community largely made up of old women and children and of the very old, who, on a certain Thursday in March, were ordered to go into their houses, close their shutters, and not come out for 48 hours. Promptly a series of explosions began, very alarming explosions, which made the poor people inside tremble. What new horror were they up to now? The sounds went on for a day and a half, gradually growing fewer on the second morning. By afternoon, strangely, nothing whatever could be heard; not a voice, not a rumble. The boldest spirits pushed open the shutters a little and perceived that the streets were absolutely deserted—the gray-green soldiers were nowhere to be seen. Slowly and cautiously, halting at every step, they ventured out and up into the center of the town, coming back with the astonishing news, the news nobody dared believe, that the Germans were gone. They had blown up the bridges, burned a few factories, cut down trees along the roadsides, and made off. Even then the French inhabitants believed there must be some trick about it; and when their own soldiers, looking unfamiliar in blue uniforms instead of the old red and black, entered the town the next morning, they cried, in the midst of the tears and welcomes, to hold them back lest they get caught in an ambush. It was true, though; the people of the Noyon region were again free citizens of France.

Young Wife—I am afraid, dear, that our trip to Europe will be very expensive.

Young Husband—It may be a trifle expensive, but just think what a delightful time we will have.

Young Husband—Yes, we have had a pleasant enough time, but just think what an expense it has been.—New York Mail.

He's a Thrifty Fighter, Too.

Proof that the American soldier is not forgetful of his financial obligations toward the "folks at home" is found in the report of the Knights of Columbus' general secretary at an embarkation camp that during two days he sent express company money orders aggregating $12,000 to soldiers' relatives, this sum having been intrusted to him by American fighting men.

NO DOUBTING HIS MEANING

Corporal's Words Must Have Contained Full Information Even to the Most Unintelligent.

This week's story from the front: A certain company sergeant major was not popular with his men. They accused him of having cold feet.

One day the company went into a rest camp 20 miles behind the firing line, where it was an impossibility any shells could reach them. The ground, however, was very waterlogged, and a fatigue party was detailed to dig a drainage trench.

Presently a sergeant happened to pass that way.

"What are you digging there?" he shouted to the corporal in charge of the job.

A grimy face, from which the sweat was pouring, popped up from the trench. It belonged to one of the sergeant major's most persistent and relentless adversaries.

"Diggin' a communication trench from the sergeants' mess to the sergeant major's dugout," he shouted, in a voice well within hearing of the mess tent, at the entrance to which the N. C. O. in question was standing.—Pearson's Weekly.

POSTAL SYSTEM IN DISARRAY

German Government at Its Wit's End to Stop Thieves From the Goods in Transit.

Extraordinary steps have been taken by the German government to call a halt to the thieves within the postal system. It was claimed that out of ten parcels sent three would disappear. Packages to soldiers at the front containing food, delicacies and clothing would disappear more frequently than any other shipments. All appeals to the patriotic spirit of the thieves were of no avail. The percentage of thefts increased steadily. Finally the government was compelled to take drastic and systematic measures. The military branch was called in and stations of control manned by non-commissioned officers and soldiers were planted at principal railroad points in the empire. The employment of more youths is blamed for the deterioration of the postal service. Practically all the employees of military age had to join the army and their places were filled by boys and girls. Besides, the scarcity of food tempts many to steal.

New Motor.

An "air motor" that recompresses air in the tank by means of the compressed air on its way to the cylinders of the motor, thus requiring only one filling of the air tank, is an invention claimed by J. W. Justus and Fred Rudolph, mechanical engineers of Atlanta.

BEFORE OR AFTER INFLUENZA

By Dr. M. Cook

The cool fighter always wins and so there is no need to become panic-stricken. Avoid fear and crowds. Exercise in the fresh air and practise the three C's: a Clean Mouth, a Clean Skin and Clean Bowels. To carry off the poisons that accumulate within the body and to ward off an attack of the influenza bacillus, take a good liver regulator to move the bowels, such as Castor Oil or a pill made up of May-apple, leaves of aloe and root of jalap, to be had at any drug store, and called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The system should be built up by the use of a good iron tonic, such as "Irontic" tablets, to be obtained at some drug stores, or that well known blood-maker and herbal tonic made from roots and barks of forest trees—sold everywhere as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.,

For a tonic that will freshen up the blood, clean the digestive tract and put new force and vim into you, I know of nothing better than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—and it contains no alcohol or narcotic so is perfectly safe to take.

WINDSOR, ONT.,—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his 'Pleasant Pellets' are wonderful medicines for home use. I used to suffer with weak lungs, smothering spells and sick-headaches, but since I have taken the above mentioned medicines these conditions have left me.

"Such medicines as Dr. Pierce's are worthy of praise and I am very glad to add my testimonial to the thousands of others."—MRS. ELLEN HARDING, 11 Erie Street, West.

Year's Sugar Crop.

The area of the sugar-cane crop of 1918 in the United States is estimated by the bureau of crop estimates to be 532,880 acres, or 12 per cent above the acreage of 1900, as reported by the census. The estimate is for ribbon cane only, and hence sorghum is excluded. Ninety per cent of the total ribbon-cane area is Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. Of this total area about 53 per cent is intended for sugar, while the remainder, 47 per cent, is mostly intended for sirup and for planting part of the next year's crop.

Why Can't I Get to Sleep?

Thousands of people all over the country ask this question but still continue to toss night after night on a sleepless bed and it is impossible for them to get a full night's refreshing sleep.

Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease, has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quietened except by the pernicious use of opiates or narcotics. Or again, you have heart palpitation, and sensation of sinking, a feeling you are going to die, or perhaps you wake up in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and the only way that you can get relief is to sit up in bed.

To all who suffer in this way, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer an inestimable boon. They bring back the much needed night's rest by improving the tone of the nerves, strengthen the heart, enriching the blood and making the whole organization act in harmony—then you sleep as peaceful as a child.

Mrs. James Latimer, 39 Leinster St., St. John, N. B., writes: "At night I could not sleep. I had to sit up in bed, my heart beat so fast and when I walked up stairs I would get all out of breath. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I can sleep all night, and am not out of breath after walking."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Concrete Ship Not New.

That the much-talked-of new concrete ship Edith, generally considered a discovery in ship building that will revolutionize the industry, was antedated by some 12 years in the Philippines is a fact not generally known, even to Filipinos. The bureau of navigation of the islands constructed in 1906, however, a floating re-enforced concrete dock for the use of boats in the Pasig river, a dock which is in use to this day, and perhaps the first success achieved in the use of concrete in shipbuilding.

Remarkable Tactics.

In "ground flying" tactics the pilot acts mainly on his own personal initiative, and he must be prepared to attack the enemy wherever he may be found, either with bombs, grenades, darts or machine-gun fire. Thus German officers in charge of ammunition dumps have every reason to fear the approach of British "low fliers." The fear of machine-gun fire is even greater, and whole German regiments have been decimated and demoralized by British airplanes.

Few People Know This

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

CHAOS IN BOUNDARIES.

Frontiers in South America Are an Uncertain Quantity.

The frontiers of Bolivia, like those of most South American countries, are very uncertain, and a map of South America made in Bolivia includes a vast portion of the level lands east of the Andes called the Chaco. A map of South America made by the Argentine Republic shows Bolivia as an entirely different country, with no Chaco within its boundary. Then a map of South America made in Peru includes a vast hinterland of Amazonia, while one made in Brazil shows the Brazilian frontier away over in the territory marked Peru on the Peruvian map, while the map makers of Ecuador and Colombia show an entirely different disposition of the lands at the headwaters of the Amazon from that described by the Brazilian and Peruvian map makers.

There is, however, a commission composed of Brazilians and Peruvians who are at the headwaters of the Amazon delimiting the frontiers of Peru and Brazil and incidentally rectifying the claims of Ecuador and Colombia. Meanwhile Bolivian soldiers are fighting Argentine soldiers on the Chaco, and so the question stands. In 1902 King Edward VII. delimited the frontiers of Chile and Argentina, but the Chileans thought he gave the Argentines too much, so they allow the adventurers and bad men of Chile to go into this disputed territory, and they swoop down from the hills and capture the cattle upon the Argentine plains just as the highlanders used to do in Scotland. – Peter MacQueen in National Magazine.

FOOD AND FUEL ARMIES.

What the Increasing Population of the World May Force.

According to Professor H. N. Dickson of the University college, Edinburgh, the world is beginning to feel the pinch of fuel and food. The professor told the scientists gathered at Birmingham to attend the annual meeting of the British Association For the Advancement of Science that the human race was in the position of a family which had occupied the same farm for centuries and had so increased in numbers as to outgrow the productiveness of the place, making a removal to other land necessary. Only in the case of the human family there is no means of migrating to another planet.

Wheat acreage, this learned geographer tells us, is not keeping pace with the increase of population, and "the crisis will be upon us before the end of the century." The supply of coal will last less than three centuries. The only course open to us, he says, is a stock taking of our resources and a redistribution of population, with an emphasis on the raising of food.

While Professor Dickson does not say so, his idea seems to be that as a nation tells off so many men to serve in its army of defense, so the world of the future will have to tell off so many men to serve as food raisers. Eventually we shall find that country planning will become as important as town planning—which seems to be reasonable enough.—Exchange.

Drop in Irish Birthrate.

The Irish registrar general's return for the first quarter of this year shows a drop in the Irish birth rate of 3.6 below the average for the previous ten years. The marriage rate is practically stationary. The death rate is 3.3 below the average.

The general prosperity of Ireland is reflected by the fact that the returns on Irish pauperism show a decrease of 3,128 in the average number of workhouse inmates.

You Do Say, Mr. Fisherman!

J. W. Partridge, federal fisheries commissioner, is trying to encourage housewives to buy sea fish.

He was discussing the virtues of the sea fish the other day.

"Do you believe, Mr. Partridge," asked a bystander, "that the sea trout is as good a pan fish as the lake or stream trout?"

"Well, I wouldn't say for sure," says J. W. P., "that's all a matter of taste."—Indianapolis News.

NO NEED TO WORRY

Despite Croakers, Human Race Is Not Deteriorating.

Facts Brought Out by the War Show That Men Today Are as Strong Physically and Morally as Ever in History.

The big average height of the men drafted into the United States army is being widely commented upon in the press, and it appears that the facts justify the favorable remarks being made, observes the Montreal Gazette. Records of the quartermaster's office show that the Americans who are donning the army uniform today are bigger than the men who fought in former wars. The size most in demand for the standard army shoe in the past was 7E, while the average size of the marching shoe today is 8½ D, and that of the field or trench shoe 9E. Two styles are issued, for it has been found by experiment that soldiers require a larger shoe for the trenches, it being necessary to wear two pairs of socks at a time in cold and wet weather. Similarly, the present-day American soldier has to be provided with a size larger than his predecessor, in coats, shirts and breeches. He is a bigger man all round, which is decidedly satisfactory from the national point of view.

Events in other belligerent lands since the war began have served to prove that men generally are as strong physically and morally as ever they were in history. The long campaign in the trenches in Europe has put the soldiers to a greater test than the fighting men of the past were submitted to in the worst of the numerous old wars. They have stood that test, and the hundreds of thousands who survive the cannon's blast and the rifle's bullet will emerge physically fine specimens of manhood.

It is not necessary to look to the United States or over to Europe to see that the human race has not deteriorated. Canada is a small nation compared with its tremendous neighbor and with other allies. It had a population at the census in 1911 of 7,200,000, about half of whom were males. Out of the young manhood part of this total 500,000 men have measured up to the severe medical test of the army and some tens of thousands of others have been examined and rejected for minor defects that do not interfere with their life as civilians and do not threaten to shorten their days appreciably. The men who were taken to the field of war have lived in the open, through the heat of summer and the cold and snow and wet of winter, and the thunder of the guns has been constantly in their ears.

The stress of the deadliest warfare has not broken their spirit and they stand ready today to face attack from a powerful enemy and to deliver it in return. In view of these facts, the little bodies of gloomy and narrow-minded persons who meet periodically and resolve that the race is degenerating physically and morally should rest from their croaking for the time being. Actual conditions are confounding their slanderous assertions. The race is stronger today than ever.

Fat That Shows Soon Disappears

Prominent fat that comes and stays where it is not needed is a burden; a hindrance to activity, a curb upon pleasure. You can take off the fat where it shows by taking after each meal and at bedtime one Marmola Prescription Tablet. These little tablets are effective and harmless as the famous prescription from which they take their name. Buy and try a case to-day. Your druggist sells them at 75 cents or if you prefer, you may write direct to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich. You can thus say good-bye to dieting, exercise and fat.

Democracy.

"Well," said the captain of artillery as he stood watching three Yanks playing baseball in the Tuileries gardens in Paris, "I guess that if we came over here to make the world safe for democracy, we have finished the job and can go home.

"Look"—pointing to the three ball players. "One of those men is an American soldier, one is a Y. M. C. A. secretary, and one is a darky from an American stevedore regiment. The white soldier's father was killed while fighting to free the slaves, the 'Y' man's father was a slave owner and the darky's grandfather was a slave. They are playing ball in the grounds that were once the private grounds of an emperor. If that isn't democracy to the nth power, what do you call it?"—From a Red Cross Scrap Book.

New Kind of Candy.

If someone offered you a box of chocolate bonbons which were so delicious that you apologized for the number you ate, and then someone told you that the chief ingredients of their interior was p-o-t-a-t-o-e-s, wouldn't it surprise you? Food Administrator Peden of Texas, who had this experience, was more than surprised. The filling of the bonbons was suggestive of coconut and very delicate to the taste. Potato candy is a logical follow-up to tapioca flour bread, whale steak, mesquite sirup and other interesting food revelations brought about as a result of the war.—Dallas (Texas) News.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and health fully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

BOYRIL

ALL SORTS OF AFFLUENCE

Great Mistake to Get the Idea That Wealth Consists Only in Possession of Money.

Riches and money have been commonly but mistakenly synonyms. A mother with a group of children may consider these her jewels, albeit by a bank examiner's rating she would be poorer than Job's turkey. A man with houses and lands may be destitute in human affections eddying round his chair and table, and so in life's paramount values the balancing of the account shows a deficit, though under the dollar sign he may be able to figure a fortune.

Each soul selects the sort of affluence it prefers, observes a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger. You may choose that you will gain the whole world, no matter what becomes of the spirit. Years after it will be a sad thing to see the gross materialist you have become. You may be sated with the pleasures of the senses, but you have missed the best things life has to offer. You may be the chief target for the income tax collector, but the children of the regime do not love you.

The man or woman is rich who has acquired sound, seasoned, lasting friendships, true through thick or thin. Any other sort of prosperity is much affected by fair weather or foul. When mere money has taken wing out of the window the attacties of the heydey of sunny prosperity abruptly decamp, even as rats flee from a sinking vessel. But the assets of character that link those we love to us enduringly, with the grappling hooks of steel, are proof against corrosion or burglary and will stand any strain that is put on them. Who dares to call me poor if I can keep the unbroken circle, on earth or in Heaven, that love has once established?

What a fallacy to define riches as anything sensual! For all that is of the flesh fleshy and of the earth earthy must one day perish like weeds that are slain by the reaper in the hot sun. Only love and truth and beauty and their divine fellowships are immortal, and only these are worth the husbandry of the undying soul.

He who has his fortune in these commodities is entitled to be called rich. Time and change and adversity have no power upon them. They are the only things a man can take with him when he goes. In the process of acquiring them they become part of him inseparably. He who has them "wears his commendation in his face," for it may be read as he passes that his converse is with the higher and finer things, and his daily walk is on the plane where the noblest meet and greet familiarly.

That Was All.

Barber (beginning the hair cut)—Have you heard the story about the man that—(resuming business)—want it short, sir?

Customer (a tired editor)—Yes; a mere synopsis will do!—Tit-Bits.

Fruit.

A fruit is the same as a vegetable, considered botanically; popularly a fruit is a vegetable production that may be eaten without cooking; a vegetable is such a production which is cooked before it is eaten.

The female brain begins to decline in weight after the age of thirty; the male not till ten years later.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE AND SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

MADE RECORD TIME

How Two College Youths "Took In" Washington.

What Might Be Called a Personally Conducted Tour, With "Thoroughbreds" Doing the Conducting —Didn't Even See Potomac.

Two college youths who spent a few days some weeks ago in Washington en route to their homes in this city thought that as the weather was so delightful, and as they were both expert horsemen, they would enjoy a tour of the parks and the surrounding country, of which they had heard so much. They engaged what they supposed were two thoroughbred riding horses, and arrayed in swagger togs, they started out on their observation tour.

They noticed that both steeds had a furtive look in their eyes that seemed to be at variance with what the liveryman had said about them, and the sight of the youths in their riding clothes seemed to arouse suspicion, for horsey No. 1 edged away as far as he could from the aspiring young collegian, who was going to make a record as a fine horseman, while horsey No. 2 looked so long in his mind that he held his head way down as far as the halter would let him and looked the picture of shame.

The liveryman had declared that these two selfsame animals had officiated many times at the finest mounts in Washington, but the war spirit must have gotten into their veins, for the instant their riders swung into their saddles both steeds made a mad dash up Pennsylvania avenue, and so rapid was their gait that some people thought war had been declared or a second edition of Paul Revere had arisen to warn the surrounding towns that the enemy was in sight.

The more their riders tried to calm them down into anything like a respectable pace the more extra speed did those hotched animals develop. One of the riders, a little in advance of his companion, yelled: "I don't know where this horse is going, but I'm with him, I tell you that," at which sign of co-operation horsey commenced to go around in a circle and followed that up by a route that might be described as north by southeast.

In the meantime the other man was having troubles of his own; his noble beast, apparently a great lover of nature, seemed bent on treading a flowery pathway by heading for all the hyacinth beds in the park.

"Quawake, Awake, Beloved," was their battlecry. Over bridges and along dusty highways streaked these two modern John Gilpins, one of whom had long since lost his cap and his hair, but their fighting blood was up and they hung on with more skill than grace.

One found breath enough to yell: "There's the Potomac river," to which the other answered, "I'd like to look at it, but I'm too busy."

After covering miles of broad highway and dashing through toll gates without even so much as "excuse me," these unrighteous animals commenced to show signs of settling down and their riders managed to halt them in front of a rural tavern.

They dismounted feeling as if they had been run over by a steam roller. Horsey No. 1 seemed proud of his work, but horsey No. 2 had evidently been to congress and kept his own counsel.

What those two collegians said to the liveryman when they got back could not be repeated in these columns. All they know about the scenery around Washington they have gleaned from an illustrated booklet.—Buffalo Courier.

Canadian Appreciation.

And what names were ever better earned than those thus rendered to Uncle Sam? (On July 4 last.) They would be strange allies whose hearts would not be warmed by such loyalty and sleepless energy as the United States has shown for the cause of the entente from the moment it declared war on Germany. No friend in need could make more strenuous and sustained efforts to hasten to lend a hand than the United States has kept up from the beginning of its belligerency. Difficulties that seemed insurmountable to anything but American resourcefulness have been overcome, and from this time forth the United States will have to be reckoned with as a heavyweight in the war.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Coughs and Colds.

In the season when coughs and colds are prevalent any method of preventing them and checking the first symptoms without drugs may be of inestimable value. Therefore the following suggestions are offered in anticipation: When you find you have a cough and before it gets to be deep seated go into the air and practice deep breathing. Draw air into the lungs until they are completely distended, raising the arms above the head during inspiration to more fully expand the chest. Hold the air in the lungs for a few seconds; then breathe it out slowly. Repeat the operation a dozen times or more and after an hour try it again. Persistence in this treatment will often cure a newly contracted cough in a few hours. If the cough is of long standing, pain may be felt under the shoulder blades and across the chest during the breathing, but as this is caused by the tearing away of adhesions of the lung tissue it will usually pass away in a day or two, and the fact that it is felt shows that the lungs need thorough inflation.

TOUCHED BY SERVICE FLAG

Youngster on Brink of Disgrace Resolved to Be Worthy of Emblem Displayed in His Honor.

"Why the service flag?" is an old question, but from one of our middle West towns comes a new answer.

A wealthy family in an Indiana town had a son, who had never done anything to reflect honor on his family—a family which was proud of its famous ancestry. He didn't enlist when this war broke out, and then tried to evade the draft, but was compelled to go in a recent call. He entered a training camp a few miles from his home town.

Rules and a regular life were hard for him. Smarting under a well-deserved reproof, he one night decided to desert. He slipped away from the camp and, under cover of darkness, made his way to his home in order to get his civilian clothes and better effect his escape.

Just as he was ready to scale the front veranda of his home he noticed the service flag in one of the house's great front windows. There it was—in the most conspicuous place the house afforded—a great silk flag with its one blue star.

"It's for me," the boy thought.

Through his mind passed the memory of his life—a failure in winning any of the honors his family had wanted for him. No college diploma, not even a high school one, had he received—nothing except this one star in this flag had he ever let his people claim as his contribution to the family famous name.

He turned back toward the sidewalk. "They'll get to keep that honor," he told himself. "I'll make it bigger, too," and he slipped back to camp, elated to find that his absence had not been discovered.

TWO DIFFERENT THINGS.

Showing How Gossip Distorts a Little Question of Fact.

The two girls—and these were not any particular two girls, but any two girls met on the street—kissed, made faces and started to chatter. And the first girl said:

"I want to congratulate you, dear."

And the second replied:

"Thank you. But what for?"

"I hear you are going to marry Dick Henrooster."

"Who ever told you such a ridiculous thing as that?"

"Why, your best friend, Daisy Sturtium."

"Listen, dearie. I don't doubt your honesty, but I can't believe that Daisy ever said any such thing. She knows everything about me, and we have never had a quarrel, and she isn't a cat. Be fair. I'll leave it to you. Did she ever tell you that I was going to marry Dick?"

"She did."

"Would you mind repeating her very words?"

"She told me distinctly, 'Grace Pansibed is engaged to Dick Henrooster.'"

"Aha! That's how these stories get started. I see. I am engaged to him, and Daisy told the truth. But what right have you to gather from that fact that I am going to marry the little fool? Gossip, that's what it is—just mean gossip. Can't a girl get engaged to a fellow without having a bunch of busybodies running about telling that she is going to marry him?

"We girls have a rough row to hoe."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Ailments of Change of Life.

"During Change of Life I had hot flashes, dizzy spells and every month I was filled with misery I had a constant dull pain, and would always feel tired. I suffered in this way for five or six years and was treated by a physician and took different remedies without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took it, and I believe I would never have been well if it had not been for the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am recommending your medicine to women ailing as I was, for I think it will carry them safely through the Change of Life, and relieve the ailments that come at that period."—Mrs. ALEXIS C. NANGLE, Galatia, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches, and "the blues," should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Constipation.

Prunes washed and eaten raw are very good for this trouble. Eat six or eight a day as many days as necessary.

Dates are also good, eaten in the same way.

These are simple remedies and require time and patience. What helps one person has no effect upon another. The best way to regulate this trouble is by diet instead of medicine. A cupful of hot water taken half an hour before breakfast is also good, and, above and before all, regular habits.

HAD AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

American Picture Dealers Now Have Europe at Their Mercy.

"The United States is now selling European pictures at a great profit and is no longer buying in our market."

These words of Berheim, a former picture dealer, sum up the present condition of the picture market, where in, as dozens of sales this year have shown, there has been a slight falling off in prices. For several decades the Americans have been cleaning up at the European salerooms, sometimes paying a price which brought them ridicule from collectors and dealers on this side. Now it is apparent, however, that the Americans hold a commanding position in the world's picture market, and the European dealers are glad to go to the United States to buy back works of art at a price yielding handsome profits to the American purchasers.

The impression all along has been that these European purchases were made with the object of forming magnificent private art collections in the United States and that the higher prices sometimes paid for coveted pictures merely reflected the keenness of American connoisseurs to take the best Europe had to offer. It is now felt however, that many of these purchases were made as a business investment by the shrewdest business men in the world who are now giving Europe an opportunity to acquire the canvases at prices yielding a considerable profit to the Americans.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

WELL SATISFIED WITH "FIND"

Columbus Rejoiced Over Belief That Natives He Found in America Would Make Good Christians.

Columbus landed on a small island, "one of the Lucayes, called in the Indian language Guanahani," the intrepid navigator afterward wrote. Later the island was called San Salvador, and now is known as Watling's island.

There was discovered in Spain in 1825 the manuscript supposed to be Las Casas' abridgement of Columbus' journal of his first voyage to America, and from this we have some interesting details of the actual circumstances surrounding the discovery of the new world.

The people of the island straightway collected together when Columbus landed, according to this journal. Here follow his precise words:

"As I saw that they were very friendly to us and perceived that they could be much more easily converted to our holy faith by gentle means than by force, I presented them with some red caps and strings of beads to wear upon the neck and many other trifles of small value, wherewith they were much delighted and became wonderfully attached to us."

Columbus comments that the people appeared to him to be very poor because they went about naked. He noted that all the natives he saw were young, none being above thirty years, and that all of them had fine physique and short, straight hair. He believed they were from the continent and was of the opinion that they would make good Christians, as they appeared to have no religion at all.

SLEEPING IN DOSES.

Short Slumbers Said to Be Better Than Long Ones For Invalids.

French physicians are claiming wonders for the benefits which result from sleeping in doses. Too long continued sleep has a tendency to stupify rather than to strengthen, while a shorter sleep, repeated at intervals through the twenty-four hours, has a much more stimulating effect.

Experiments have been made on patients in the free hospitals and clinics who were suffering from mental depression and physical exhaustion. They were allowed to sleep for three hours and then stay awake for four, again sleep for three and then awake for four, and so on through the twenty-four hours, and their recovery was found to be far more rapid and satisfactory than that of those who slept for long periods and then were awake for correspondingly greater lengths of time.

If this fact becomes universally recognized and established as a truth there is no prophesying what strange results may occur, for if all people decide to sleep in such spasmodic snatches there will have to be considerable of a change in all business arrangements.—Chicago Tribune.

WOMAN'S HAIR REACHES TO KNEES

Mrs. Esther Emery, now visiting friends in the city, is the fortunate possessor of marvelously beautiful hair, which, when loosened from its coils falls to her knees. Moreover, is of soft, silky and fluffy texture and in colour a glorious glossy gold. Yet, just one year ago she was threatened with baldness. Urged to tell how she had obtained this wonderful growth in so short a time she said: "Had anyone told me such marvelous results could be accomplished so quickly, I positively would not have believed it. Twelve months ago my hair, which then barely reached to my shoulders, was falling out at an alarming rate and growing very thin, actually exposing the bald scalp in several spots. It was dull and lifeless in colour, turning grey in patches and very dry and brittle. My head was covered with dandruff and itched like mad all the time. I tried fully a dozen different hair tonics but they were all the same and never did me a bit of good. One day I chanced to read in my home paper of a simple home prescription to make the hair grow that was recommended by a well known physician. It said that by taking ordinary Lanoxade Compose and mixing with Bay Rum and Menthol Crystals and applying to the scalp each night with the finger tips that new hair would grow very rapidly. I decided to try it, and I had my druggist mix two ounces of Lavona de Compose with 4 ounces of Bay Rum and one half drachm of Menthol Crystals and started to use it. My, how quickly my hair did grow. First, the hair stopped falling, the itching ceased and the dandruff disappeared. Then tiny little hairs appeared all over my scalp. These grew and grew as though nothing would ever stop them. They are growing yet, and, while, of course I have used the treatment steadily and expect to continue it, at least until my hair reaches the floor, I might have stopped and be perfectly satisfied at the end of three months. I think that any woman can get long, thick beautiful hair by using this prescription as I have recommended it to several friends, and all are delighted with the result. The prescription is very inexpensive and any druggist can fill it.

Those who use it should be careful not to get it on the face or where the hair is not desired.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Dangers in Dust.

All dust is dangerous. Housewives do not appreciate the immense advantage of using damp dusters, which really remove dust instead of whisking it into the air like the dry duster, so that it has to settle somewhere else.

Here, for example, is a list of diseases commonly contracted through ordinary house dust: Swelling of the throat, chronic inflammation of the eyes, diphtheria, asthma, laryngitis, consumption, chronic inflammation of the throat, septic wounds, lockjaw, pneumonia, peritonitis and bronchitis.

All walls and furniture should be carefully rubbed with a damp cloth frequently, never with a dry one.

It is not really a curious thing that after spring or autumn housecleaning numbers of most households suffer from bad colds, nasal catarrh and other ailments.

They have caught it from the germs which have been ruthlessly whisked about the house during the process of cleaning up. Be careful with dust and use damp cloths in handling it.

Asthma.

One means of obtaining relief when suffering from the complaint is to extract the juice of eight lemons and mix it carefully with one ounce of honey and one ounce of cod liver oil. Take two tablespoonfuls of the mixture when the cough comes on. Physical exercise for ten or fifteen minutes, either night or morning, is advisable, and sufferers should pay careful attention to diet, avoiding all indigestible foods.

HEAT MAGAZINES.

A Device That In the Future May Do Away With Stoves.

Heat magazines are now being built to be a substitute for stoves. The particular purpose for which they have been designed is to use electricity to store up heat in the hours when the demand for electric power is small and when consequently electricity may be supplied at a very greatly reduced rate. This is usually between midnight and 5 o'clock in the morning, when few electric lights are being used, few motors are in use and most of the great plant at the electric power house is idle.

Then during the hours of daylight and evening the heat magazine can be made to give out its warmth. The magazines are big steel boxes about the size of a large stove.

In the center is the apparatus to turn electricity into heat and round this are masses of metal that absorb heat. These are built to withstand heat up to 1,000 degrees. All around these heat storage blocks is very heavy insulation to keep the heat in, in the same way that the heat is kept in a fireless cooker.

When it is desired to have the magazine give out its heat a damper is opened and a passageway thus provided for air to enter the magazine, become heated and pass out into the room. The damper can be used also to regulate the amount of heat coming out.

Electricity is ordinarily too expensive for house warming use, but it is coming into practice in some localities where the power is cheap.—Saturday Evening Post.

Artificial Meat.

Artificial meat that closely resembles butcher's meat in taste, but has greater food value, is claimed to have been produced by a Belgian chemist. The artificial meat is made from malt grains which are washed, pressed and treated with sulphuric acid and lime. The mass is then filtered and dried until it has the appearance of a paste and has the flavor of real flesh.—Popular Mechanics.

His Excuse.

One Camp Custer rookie claimed he should have a deferred classification and to substantiate his allegation referred to Deuteronomy 24-5:

"When a man hath taken a new wife he shall not go to war, neither shall he be charged with any business, but he shall be free at home for one year and shall cheer up his wife which he has taken."

"Well," said one of the army clerks after sizing up the bird making the claim, "I guess she would need cheering up if she picked off that lemon."

Hot Water for Sick Headache

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast for awhile will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a scarcely noticeable twinge which is not unpleasant.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Results are quick and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Bayou Bridge

By NELLIE CRAVIE GILMORE

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

With head bent and lips tightly compressed, Matilda hurried swiftly past the cabin down a steep clay road and on to the bayou bridge that led to rural delivery box No. 38, on the other side.

It was a gusty, disagreeable day. At intervals, the rain whipped down in sheets, alternately slackening to a sticky, penetrating drizzle. The wind tore at the willow branches that dipped into the stream, and the waters of the bayou writhed under its violence.

Half way across the bridge an aggressive gust suddenly seized the girl's umbrella and flung it viciously into the [illegible] water. Turning involuntarily, with a futile grab at the flying parachute, Matilda abruptly twisted her foot sideways, catching the heel of her boot in a crack between the planks. Just then an angry cloudburst broke relentlessly upon the unprotected head of the hapless prisoner, and with hands tightly gripping the railing of the bridge, she waited, with all the patience she could command, for the fury to subside.

Presently the wind ceased, the rain shrank back into the clouds, and the head of the sky broke up in patches of blue and silver. With renewed hope Matilda scanned the road from east to west. And then a [illegible] of glories! A man was just heading into view on the brow of the hill opposite. She watched him eagerly, thankfully. But as he came nearer, near enough for her to recognize the broad, upright shoulders and the massive head under the dripping Panama, her eyes widened and the blood began to pound in her throat and temples. Mallory Cheatham—the very last person on earth she wanted to encounter!

In her hand was the still unposted letter, addressed to him. It contained only a few lines, but it had taken her half the night to make up her mind what to say, and the other half how to say it. She had refused him, firmly and finally.

When he was almost up to her, Matilda's face grew scarlet with blushes. Held like a criminal in the pillory, she returned his look of consternation with one of belligerent silence.

After Cheatham comprehended the situation, a smile struggled through his astonishment.

"I was beginning to grow impatient of your answer, dear."

"Do get me out of this!" she interrupted petulantly, flinching with pain as she gave her foot an impatient twist.

Full of solicitude, Cheatham stooped, and with a few deft manipulations, succeeded in loosening the imprisoned heel.

"And now," said he, rising and looking ardently down into Matilda's decidedly cross face, "don't I deserve something for that?" He eyed the latter covetously.

But the girl said nothing, and she did not yield up the letter, either.

"It's addressed to me, isn't it?" urged Cheatham in a crestfallen tone.

"Yes, but—Oh!" Just at that juncture an accommodating zephyr lifted the envelope from her fingers and tossed it out on the water, where a still more accommodating current bore it swiftly into the eddies.

"You—you've changed your mind," he said at last, very gravely, after his recent exuberance.

The guilty crimson flushed over Matilda's face, and without a word she turned and began to retrace her steps back toward the camp.

As they came in sight of the campers' tents, Cheatham paused and looked sternly into the face of the girl at his side.

"Mallory!" The exclamation was sharp, indignant, but Matilda's eyes lifted their sober curtains long enough to emit a lambent little flash that was nothing if not contradictory.

"If you care to come into the camp until I can change these rags," she said demurely, "I think—I think we can talk better."

Cheatham divested himself of his raincoat and left it on a bench in the yard. Inside he loomed about the little "reception parlor" of the tent, waiting, like a caged lion, for the girl to make her appearance.

She came in at last, gowned in some diaphanous white thing that Cheatham thought made her look exactly like a star floating in a gauzy silver cloud. She was shifting, and her eyes, as he held them in his own, were soft and dreamy with their subtle confession.

Cheatham reached forth eager arms to draw her into them, but the apologetic entrance of an ebony-faced individual caused him to reconsider for a moment.

"I begs pardon, but somebody wish to speak to Miss Driscoll on de 'phone."

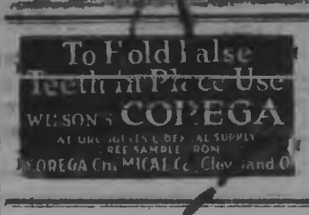
"Be good enough," said Cheatham, "to tell the gentleman that Miss Driscoll is—is engaged."

When the door had been closed, humbly and obsequiously, he turned to Matilda for corroboration.

The next minute he was holding the white cloud against his breast, and the star seemed to have no objection to its new firmament.

Less Cement Produced.

Statistics of the cement industry in the United States in 1917, prepared by the United States geological survey, indicate that the total shipments of Portland cement from the mills amounted to 90,788,474 barrels, valued in bulk at the mills at $122,745,088. This represents a decrease in quantity of 4.1 per cent and an increase in value of 17.8 per cent compared with 1916. The production of Portland cement in 1917 was 92,814,292 barrels, compared with 91,521,198 barrels in 1916, an increase of 1.4 per cent. This production holds the record, the next highest output, 92,097,181 barrels, having been in 1913.



Come, Let Mother See!

When the child droops, won't play or is restless, pale and grunty, look to see if the tongue is white, the breath feverish, the stomach sour. Then hurry, mother, but don't worry! Give Cascarets, the harmless candy cathartic. Children take Cascarets without coaxing—only 10 cents a box!

TO MOTHERS! Nothing else "works" the nasty bile, the sour fermentations and constipation poison so gently but so thoroughly from the little stomach, liver and bowels like harmless Cascarets. While children usually fight against laxatives and cathartics, they gladly eat a candy Cascaret. Cascarets never gripe the bowels, never sicken, never disappoint the worried mother. Each 10 cent box of Cascarets contains directions for dose for children aged one year old and upwards.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad for the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for ready use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in; it makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

A patent has been granted for an electrically illuminated key-hole.

Argentina has begun the manufacture of incandescent lamps in a new factory.

A guage has been invented for accurately determining the amount of moisture there is in lumber.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little judgment.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—it costs but a few cents—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can get rid of a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—but soon new hair—growing out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and sure cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries it.

TROUBLES COST HIM A FORTUNE

Texas Farmer Suffered for Fifteen Years—Is Relieved by Tanlac.

"A few bottles of Tanlac have done me more good than other medicines and treatments that cost me a small fortune," says C. C. Fisher, a prosperous farmer living at Irving, Route 1, a few miles from Dallas, Tex.

"For fifteen years," he continued, "I suffered so terribly from stomach trouble that I thought I could never get well. Everything I would eat went back on me and I would belch up my food so sour that it would nearly strangle me, the gas on my stomach would press on my heart so as to cause it to flutter and I would have the hardest time getting my breath. I was really in such awful condition that I felt like I had about got to the end of my row.

"But I feel now like I am good for many years yet, for Tanlac has fixed me up right and everything I eat digests without any bad after effects and since I have stopped forming in my stomach I am not troubled with gas, sourness or shortness of breath. I have gained six pounds already and am working hard on my farm every day now and am glad to recommend Tanlac for the wonderful way it has helped me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Limited. In Havelock by A. C. Denike. In Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd. In Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter. In Gelert by A. J. Scott. In Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Timber Wealth of Dominion

THE main distribution of the commercial timber throughout the Dominion has been estimated by the forestry branch of the Department of the Interior to be as follows:

	Acres.
British Columbia	50,000,000
Alberta, Saskatchewan Manitoba	11,000,000
Ontario	70,000,000
Quebec	100,000,000
New Brunswick	9,000,000
Nova Scotia	5,000,000

In all the provinces of Canada there are, says the Canadian Forestry Journal, large areas of non-agricultural lands which have been so completed denuded of forests by unwise methods of cutting, or by fire, or both, that they are in a wholly unproductive condition, due to the complete destruction of all young growth and seed trees. Only by planting can such lands be restored to productivity within any reasonable length of time and thus be made to play their proper part in the economic life of the country. Nowhere in Canada has such as excellent start been made toward commercial forest planting as in the Province of Quebec, and even here the work done constitutes only a small beginning, in comparison with the real needs of the situation. The lead in this direction has been taken by the Laurentide Company, and the Riordon Pulp & Paper Co.

The Laurentide Company is the pioneer, having commenced planting operations in 1908, and up to the present a total of 453 acres has been planted up by this company, mostly with Norway spruce and white spruce, with a smaller representation of white pine, Scotch pine, red pine, poplar and other minor species. About 1,500 trees are planted to the acre, so that the total number planted to date aggregates some 680,000. During 1919, the Forestry Division of the Laurentide Company expects to plant about 500,000 young trees, mostly Norway spruce and white spruce. The program for 1920 includes the planting of 700,000 trees, and, for 1921, 1,000,000 trees, mostly white spruce. The rate of planting is to be increased until it totals 2,000,000 trees per year.

Quebec province possesses 130 million acres of merchantable forests, of which about 48,000,000 acres are included in the fire-protected territories of the St. Maurice, Ottawa river, Laurentian and Southern St. Lawrence Associations. Another fifteen million acres of Quebec's forests are privately-owned, about nine million acres being in the seignories.

At a recent sale of white pine by Gustave Boswick of Berthierville, P.Q., a price of $17 per thousand board feet, standing, was realized. Nothing below 16 inches diameter was allowed to be cut on Mr. Boswick's property.

In France, in the last sixty years, 2,300,000 acres of absolutely waste land of various descriptions were reclaimed by forest planting at a total cost of $15,000,000. These areas are now estimated to be worth $135,000,000 and furnish annual crops valued at $10,000,000.

The British Government, says Pearson's Weekly of London, has a scheme in hand to create a wind screen of trees along the top of the cliffs of the exposed western coast at a cost of twenty millions. This screen will not only supply much-wanted wood, but will prevent the salt Atlantic gales sweeping over and souring the land behind it, so freeing millions of acres of land for wheat and other cereal cultivation.

Prices of farm land in various parts of Ohio are being determined partly by the value of the standing timber on the tracts as found by the Department of Forestry at the Ohio Experimental Station. In a number of cases the value of the timber has been estimated by foresters, then the final price is put on the acres by the owner when the actual worth of the trees is known.

Some of the big trees of California are from 300 to 500 feet high, have a diameter of 20 to 60 feet, and some of the trees are 4,000 years old. These trees existed when Abraham went to Egypt, were in existence when Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed, and were nearly a thousand years old when David slew Goliath. All these, though, are mere infants compared to the dragon trees of the Canary Islands, one of which, we are told, was 42 feet in diameter when the Spaniards landed in 1402, and when destroyed by a storm in 1851 was supposed to be over 3,000 years old.—Canadian Forestry Journal.

Natural Bridge in the Philippines.

A remarkable natural bridge in the Philippines was recently discovered by Mr. Paul R. Manning. Although only about thirty miles south of Manila, it is believed never to have been visited before by white men, and it is the first large natural bridge reported in the Philippines. It is on the Lucsuhin stream, a couple of miles west of Silang. The stream runs through a canyon, and the space beneath the bridge forms a tunnel, about thirty-five feet broad and some 250 feet long. The floor of the bridge, now about 150 feet above the stream, bears evidence of having once been the bed of the latter.—Philippine Journal of Science.

Want the Lions Spared.

Although the natives rejoice whenever a lion is killed, the intelligent African farmer does not take the same view of the matter, protesting that the lion is really a great help to him, killing, as he does, other animals which prey on the planted crops. In one season it is claimed that 350 lions were slain, and this number, it is estimated, would have been responsible for probably 30,000 zebras and antelopes, which destroy valuable crops as fast as the farmer can plant and grow them. The agriculturists declare that if the lions are left unslaughtered for a few years they will so reduce the crop destroyers that farming will yield large profits.

OUR "SLIMY BRIGANDS"

CLASS WAR URGED BY THE BOLSHEVIKI.

Important Menace Which the People of the Dominion Must Face—Soldiers and Members of the Working Classes Are Being Incited to Raise In Revolution and Cause Chaos In Society.

THE statement made some time ago by Mr. C. H. Cahan, head of the Canadian Department of Public Safety, to the effect that the Bolshevist and Socialist element in Canada is of a particularly vicious type, is being steadily borne out by the new facts which daily are coming to light. The movement, as was made clear by Mr. Cahan in his statement on the subject, has spread in all directions. In nearly every industrial centre, from Montreal across the prairie provinces into British Columbia, branches of the Social Democratic Party, which is frankly Bolshevist in tendency, have been instituted. The platform of the party is of an ultra-revolutionary character, as is clearly evidenced by the tremendous flood of literature published in half a dozen different languages which has been issuing, and is still issuing, from printing establishments of the party in various centres, particularly Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

One pamphlet in particular, which purports to be a manifesto issued by the Provisional Council of Soldiers and Workers Deputies of Canada, is worth considering and may be taken as typical of them all.

It must be remembered that the literature is addressed to and circulated amongst the most ignorant sections of the community. The language adopted in all of them is, therefore, as might be expected, of the most ultra-provocative nature. The utmost ingenuity is expended in the way of phraseology to excite the passions of those to whom it is addressed and to discredit every one who may be suspected of holding differing views. Thus the pamphlet under consideration is addressed to Comrade Soldiers and Workers, and plunges into the matter with a lurid picture of the utter subjection of the working classes to their "capitalist masters," who take their place in the story as the "slimy brigands." The action of the "slimy brigands," according to the pamphlet, is certainly tyrannical enough. In spite of all the laws of the land and of the control of Parliament and people, the brigands are pictured as forbidding the working people to say anything except what they desire they shall say; forbidding working-class organizations to exist; suppressing working-class papers; forbidding groups of more than three soldiers from standing in the streets; and threatening workers with imprisonment if they dare to do anything which will prevent them making larger profits. Having thus placed before their readers a wholly imaginary picture, painted in the most lurid colors, the writers of the pamphlet ask, with fine scorn and finer alliteration, if this is what they want after all these years of "slaughter, slavery and servility."

Turning to the question of reconstruction, reconstruction is discovered to be a word used by the slimy brigands and their hirelings to "fool the workers." What it really means, the pamphlet declares, is that the capitalist class is working hard to find some means of keeping the working class "contented with their slavery," and the only solution is that the workers "forcibly take over all factories, railroads, mines and mills in the name of the working class," whatever that may mean in a country which by the law of the land forbids anyone but to be a worker, and to use them for themselves and "suppress" all those who try to prevent this.

As to the vote, the pamphlet declares it is only a "trick used to fool the workers." The House of Commons is only used to hide the uncontrolled dominance of the "slimy brigands" and the victory of the workers over these brigands does not depend upon getting men elected to the House of Commons or city councils, but it depends upon revolutionary action of the workers to arm themselves and disarm and suppress the capitalists and their followers. "The workers and soldiers must rise and throw off their oppressors, seize all property in the name of the working class; elect delegates to their councils, and these councils can easily legalize any acts which they may find it necessary to take in dispossessing the capitalist class."

In this grand triumphant march toward freedom no one is to be listened to except the working classes." The "slimy brigands" have long since been swept aside, but the working class must not allow any sympathy or consideration to be extended to the "petty shopkeepers." Above all things the workers must not listen to the newspapers. The "jackals of the yellow press" are pictured as engaged in a campaign of the most deliberate untruthfulness in regard to the situation in Russia, and several pages are devoted to a wonderful picture of the Utopian conditions, in the view of the writers of the pamphlet, existing in that country. The Red Guards of Russia are pictured as engaged in a holy war against "Russian brigands," and then after a wonderful tour de force in the way of a description of the condition of the Canadian workers during the present winter comes the battle cry in italics: "The time is ripe for revolution and you must rise."

What their obvious task is, once they have risen, is set forth in inflammatory terms. Soldiers are bidden to take over control of the army by ousting their officers who are described as being members of the odious capitalist class, and electing their own officers, so that the army may be used for the workers. Workers at the same time are advised to drop their tools rather than produce any longer for the "parasites," the capitalists. Having united in the workers' councils, they must next proceed to take over the factories, engines by force from the capitalists, and to run the industries for their own benefit. And so, with the happy state of things realized—the workers at the head of industry, the soldiers at the head of the army, and all authority gone but their own—the duty of both is now plain. They must act together to combine for the purpose of forming the Workers Republic of the World!

CHANGING OUR DIET.

Fish Has Grown Popular During War Time.

War time food conservation campaigns in the Canadian Northwest have changed the appetites of the people. Hundreds of tons of fish and game, once deemed unfit as food, are being consumed each month throughout the Dominion.

Whale and flatfish seem to lead as sea foods, while beaver and other fur-bearing animals, hitherto unthought of as table delicacies, likewise are given prominent places in the food lists.

Whale meat, which failed to win recognition in Canada until last summer, is being sold by the ton from Vancouver to Halifax. The Dominion Food Board's success in the campaign to market Pacific flatfish is indicated by the official estimate that 3,500,000 pounds have been consumed in six months. Fishermen formerly threw away this fish.

Until 1918 trappers retained only the pelts of beaver. The Minnesota campaign in behalf of beaver flesh as a food attracted attention in Manitoba and hotels in that province added beaver meat to their menus.

Later someone discovered that chickens "went wild over beaver" and resulting experiments indicated that a diet of beaver meat improved the egg-laying qualities of hens in cold weather.

Wild rice that grows in abundance in the Northern Lake districts also was ignored until American and Canadian commission men in eastern cities began making steady demands for it. Canadian people started eating it after it had gained popularity in hotels.

Odd outfits resembling sail boats have been constructed to thresh the fields.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier. It is also cheap, as three ounces of orchard white, any drug store, and two lemons from the grocer are sufficient to supply a quarter pint of the sweetly fragrant lemon lotion. Shake well and massage daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough hands.

The Berlin Insurrection Is Considered Suppressed

Disarmament of the Population Will Be Hastened—"The Hyenas of Revolution."

PEACE DELEGATES

(Canadian Press.)

BASLE, March 14.—Berlin insurrection may be considered as suppressed, Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence, announced in the Assembly at Weimar yesterday, German despatches reported. Only one suburb remained to be cleared of Spartacans, the Minister stated.

Disarmament of the population must be hastened Herr Noske said.

"It is especially the fault of certain newspapers, notably the "Frei Heit" und "Red Flag," continued the Minister, "that acts of pillage, brigandage and murder have been committed in Berlin, as they have been inciting the people for months past. Independent Socialists did all they could to support these disgraceful, shameful actions. The great mass of workmen of Berlin are honest men, but as in all great movements, impure elements seem to have crept in among loyal, thoughtful workers. The hyenas of revolution began to intrigue before martial law was proclaimed and before troops had been ordered to advance upon Berlin.

Equal Footing.

All German delegates to the Peace Conference will be on an equal footing, although Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Minister, will be their leader. The party will not have power to make final decisions, that being vested in the Cabinet. It will be accompanied to the Conference by a large, although as yet undetermined group of experts, clerks and secretaries. The selection of peace conference delegates was reached after a long Cabinet meeting which began on Wednesday and lasted far into the evening.

FARMERS OPPOSE DAYLIGHT SAVING

The following resolution was unanimously passed by the Keene Live Stock Shipping Board of the United Farmers of Ontario:

March 12th, 1919.

Moved by P. Donaldson, seconded by S. Braden—

That this Board, representing a large section of the farming community of the Township of Otonabee, after one season's experience of the operation of the Daylight Saving Act, find it to be a great inconvenience and annoyance.

While we can see that the Act is of benefit to a section of city dwellers we submit that it is contrary to all principles of democratic government, to impose an annoyance on the majority for the benefit of the minority.

Further with regard to the stand very largely taken by the daily press of Canada, viz., that Daylight Saving having been adopted by the United States for this year, Canada must of necessity follow.

We desire to place on record our most vigorous protest against the truckling attitude by a part of our people as being beneath the dignity of a strong and free nation and we hereby request our secretary to forward a copy of this resolution to our Dominion member, Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, and to request him to see that everything possible is done to promote our desires in this matter.

Spartacans Shot Down

War Minister Noske Finds Effective Way of Dealing With Rebel Prisoners.

By Frank J. Taylor.
(United Press.)

BERLIN, March 14.—More than a hundred Spartacans chained together in the prison court yards were shot down by machine guns on Wednesday afternoon. War Minister Noske ordered that all Spartacan prisoners shall be executed similarly.

Government troops completed the capture of the suburb of Lichtenberg yesterday. The railway station, where the insurgents had made their final stand, was taken by storm. The Spartacans suffered two hundred casualties.

A meeting of the Workmen's Soviets was surrounded by soldiers yesterday afternoon. No attempt was made to interfere with the proceedings, but the delegates were under constant menace of rifles and machine guns.

They protested to the Government, but Noske refused to withdraw the troops.

Spirit Rising.

Resistance by the insurgents is lessening every where in the city. More than 200 Spartacans have been rounded up. The Government press office has issued official denial of the 'frightfulness' stories given out by it earlier.

Berlin's spirit is rising as the result of reports of early peace and food relief.

Sleeping Sickness Follows Influenza

Several Large Cities Report Presence of the Disease.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 14. — The sleeping sickness, which has made its appearance in New York, Philadelphia and other American cities, may possibly be an after effect of the influenza epidemic, according to an opinion expressed this morning by Colonel J. W. S. McCullough, the Provincial Officer of Health. The disease is one which has been unknown in America until very recently and no cases of it have as yet been reported in Canada, although Col. McCullough states that there is a possibility that it may spread to this country.

The sleeping sickness is caused by an inflammation to the brain membrane and is not to be confused with the sleeping sickness common in Africa and other tropical countries which is produced by the bite of the tsetse fly and is almost invariably fatal.

SPEEDING UP CONFERENCE

League of Nations May be Incorporated in the Peace Treaty—Meeting of Neutral Nations.

LESS DISCUSSION

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 14.—With President Wilson's arrival in Paris to-day the machinery was set in motion for rapid consummation of the preliminary peace treaty.

The schedule meeting of the Supreme War Council was cancelled to permit of a series of rapid fire conferences by the President, Premier Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau and other leaders.

As all details of the treaty have been virtually completed by the various committees, the main problem was that of reaching final agreement. The leaders, in ratifying each detail will draw up the formal draft. All indications to-day were that the treaty would be finished by March 20 and the Germans called in about March 25.

Delegates Present.

Whether the League of Nations would be incorporated in the preliminary treaty had not been definitely determined and invitation has been sent to all neutrals to have their representatives here at the peace delegates in unofficial conference before the end of next week, thus giving the non-belligerents an opportunity to present their ideas, as it states the League covenant is "on the table" in the peace conference. Committee hearings, as well as another preliminary session will be necessary if there are to be any amendments to the constitution, or if the covenant is to be finally adopted before the preliminary treaty is submitted to the Germans. These discussions must thus be carried on simultaneously with the completion of the actual peace terms should the covenant be included in the treaty. It was believed this would be possible, if there were but few amendments.

Indicative of the desire to speed up the peace programme it was intimated to-day that formal meetings will be scarce during the coming week, the work being handled mostly by the leaders, so as to get the maximum results with minimum discussion.

Favour Geneva.

Sentiment to-day seemed to favour Geneva as the seat or capital of the League Council. The Belgians are conducting a propaganda in favour of Brussels, but that city is practically eliminated by the fact that Belgium was one of the belligerents.

The Supreme War Council has reserved settlement of the Turkish and Albanian frontiers. The German boundaries, however, will be included in the preliminary treaty.

The problem of feeding Poland has narrowed down to the necessity of getting the Polish divisions from France to their home country to keep the railways open. The Germans have been consistently obstructing the sending of these troops through Danzig, but pressure soon will be brought to effect their entrance.

Appointment Is Opposed

Returned Soldier is Appointed to the Inspectorate of Durham and Northumberland.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 14.—In connection with objections raised in some quarters to the appointment of E. E. Snider as school inspector for the district of Durham and Northumberland, Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, told the Examiner to-day that Mr. Snider is fully qualified for the post by reason of his long years of experience as principal of the Port Hope High School.

"In addition to his valuable services in recruiting the Durham and Northumberland County Battalion," Dr. Cody explained, "Mr. Snider accompanied the unit overseas and fought at Vimy Ridge. He will be required to pass certain proficiency tests in order to qualify for the position of inspector, but they are mainly along the lines of school law and management, with which he is thoroughly familiar. In virtue of his services overseas I should not allow a minor point of technicality to block his appointment in any case."

HAVE WE ANY RIP VAN WINKLES IN PETERBORO?

Have we any Rip Van Winkles in Peterboro?

Everybody knows the story of old Rip Van Winkle. He was the rather lovable Civic Slacker of his own time. Rip was lazy. He didn't care very much what happened around him. If the local Board of Trade of that period had asked Rip to spend one evening at the Secretary's office to discuss certain city improvements, the old man would have yawned and said, "No; I can see you need me, but I'd rather go hunting in the mountains with my dog.

Strangely enough towns and cities do not wait on Rip Van Winkles. Progress is made in SPITE OF THEM. A few human clinkers do not keep a bright fire from burning.

Why not enter into the spirit of the thing—as your neighbor does—whole heartedly, rather proudly, conscious of being instrumental in making a better town—a more successful one. It is selfish to do otherwise, no matter HOW you look at it.

When you see earnest men getting together at the BOARD OF TRADE and hear new projects for development being discussed, hustle over and join in—be a Factor. Make your personal service indispensable.

For of one thing you can be dead certain—the town will boom ahead somehow—even without you. How much better to feel that you are one of the swiftly, surely moving cogs.

The Olympic is Back Again On the Canadian Service

Minister of Militia Denies Allegation That Two Big Ships Were Taken Off Canadian Transport Service at His Request—Five Thousand Men on Way Over.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 14.—"We did not ask that the Olympic and Aquitania be taken off the Canadian transport service," said Major-General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, in reply to an allegation to that effect, made in England by Lieut.-Col. A. Pratt.

"We were, as a matter of fact, unable to get rates on those vessels," he said, "though we closed, through the War Purchasing Commission, a contract for 29 vessels, and we anticipate a movement of thirty thousand men a month during the present and coming months. Our whole problem was to have the debarkations properly distributed so that we could accommodate the men in the trains as they came. But we never gave any orders to have the Olympic and Aquitania removed from the service."

General Mewburn stated, however, that the Admiralty had some objection to the Olympic and Aquitania coming to Halifax on account of the docking facilities there not being capacious enough to accommodate such large vessels without danger.

The Olympic, however, is again back on the Canadian service and is expected shortly with five thousand men.

Ludendorff Denies Story

Says Published Summary of His Book is Untrue.

(United Press.)
(By Frank J. Taylor.)

BERLIN, March 14. — General Ludendorff, former commander in chief of the German armies, to-day repudiated the alleged summary of his book recently published, in the New York American.

"The New York American's statement is entirely untrue and misleading," said Ludendorff. "The New York American has no knowledge of my book. I protest energetically against the statement that I hold his Majesty the Kaiser, as solely responsible for the unrestricted submarine warfare."

COMMITTEE WILL MEET GOVERNMENT

Statement of Policy by Dominion Prohibition Committee.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 14.—Statements of policy by the Dominion Prohibition committee, which is to meet the government this afternoon, and whose officers are Judge LaFontaine of Montreal, George A. Warburton, of Toronto, and D. B. Harkness of Winnipeg, include: That the provisions of the Order-in-Council, "legislation" prohibition, importation, manufacture and shipment to prohibited areas of intoxicating liquors for beverage uses should be continued in effect.

That this "legislation" should not be discontinued without a vote of the electors of Canada on the question of its continuance or discontinuance.

That if there is to be a plebiscite, it should not be taken until the return of the soldiers.

Six Months' Notice.

That there should be a six months' notice of a plebiscite. Later requests of the Campaign Executive include that in any plebiscite, there should be equal rights for women as voters, and that the manufacture of intoxicating liquor for export purposes should not be permitted.

Questions considered of "special importance" are:

The continuance of the definition of "intoxicating liquor" in the Dominion legislation as "any liquor or beverage which contains more than two and one half per cent. of proof spirits," and (2) the forming which the question should be stated in case a vote of the citizens of Canada is decided upon.

Skating To-night Best of Season

Ice Could Not Be Better—Band Concerts To-night and To-morrow—Skating Saturday Afternoon.

The Brock street rink still continues to have excellent ice. It could not be better than it is for to-night, and it cannot be hurt in any way before to-morrow night, so there will be a big crowd on hand on both occasions.

The rink usually closes with to-morrow night, but as long as the ice lasts there will be skating.

Band concerts every night, Saturday until 10.30 o'clock.

BE LIBERAL TO-MORROW FOR ORPHANS' FUND

When you are being solicited to-morrow by the ladies who are undertaking the tag day collection, kindly bear in mind what it must cost to feed, clothe, educate and give medical attention to upwards of fifty children that have no other home than that of St. Vincent's Orphanage, where they are given most tender care and every advantage to become useful men and women.

Any institution of this kind that is doing such a work deserves the hearty support and co-operation of all the citizens.

The committee feel that the response will be very generous as the object is such a worthy one.

WAGE DISPUTED IN POLICE COURT

A wage dispute took place in police court this morning when Mrs. F. Hailey claimed the sum of $15 being wages for a month. Mrs. Hailey was engaged as cook but was discharged before one month had expired.

Mr. Harry Bush, who was on the bench allowed the claim.

Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared for Mrs. Hailey.

CAUSE OF DELAY.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 14.—(Reuter's.)—Announcement is made by Reuter's Limited that one of the chief causes of delay in repatriating troops, has been dock strikes in London, Glasgow and Liverpool. A large number of ships which were due to sail in February, are still in harbour. It is hoped that the situation is now easing.

SPENT WEEK IN TORONTO

SPEECH IN THE HOUSE

OTTAWA, March 14.—The most humorous speech of this Parliamentary session was made by Mr. Joseph Archambault, the brilliant member for Chambly-Vercheres, who won fame last year when he gave proof that soldiers' votes were improperly recorded against him in the last election. Replete with rich humor, it relieved the monotony of the debate, and well delivered it was easy to listen to. It made such a hit with his colleagues on the Opposition side of the House that they gave him a tremendous ovation when the House took recess for lunch.

In "Toronto the Good"

Mr. Archambault said that if it was the intention of the Government to have total prohibition he hoped it would not be a law of exemption like the Ontario Temperance Act. He had the pleasure a short time ago of "spending a week in Toronto one Sunday." This Irishism from a French-Canadian brought down the House. He wanted to see the beautiful residential districts in Toronto, so he hired a taxicab. He learned from the taxicab driver that a man in Toronto was now rated, not according to the amount of money he had in the bank, but by the quantity of liquor he had in his cellar. "No wonder," he commented, "there is a field for Bolshevism when we have such measures as the O.T.A. Why should the rich man be able to have as much liquor as he likes when the poor man is not permitted to have a glass of beer? If total prohibition is passed let us clean out of the cellars. Let us publish a list of those who have liquor in their houses, or let us pass a law which will compel the hypocrites to wear on their lapels a badge with a yellow star for every case of liquor they have in their homes. If we had that law some of the most ardent apostles of prohibition would look like Indians. If we are going to have total prohibition let us have machinery that will enforce law so that dynamite whiskey, squirrel gin and rot-gut whiskey will not ruin the health of those who are not millionaires and profiteers."

"Minister of Unpreparedness"

Mr. Archambault twitted the Government supporters over their vote last session on the motion to abolish titles, and pictured them as servile slaves crouching before their master, Premier Borden, when he threatened to resign if they did not turn a somersault in the titles question.

He characterized Hon. Mr. Calder as "the Minister of Unpreparedness," the reference being to the Minister's demobilization and repatriation scheme and his recent confession that the soldiers refused to be demobilized according to the plan prepared by the Government. He questioned Mr. Calder's Liberalism and enumerated the alleged sins of the Union Government.

Bouquets for Calder.

"There is no Liberalism there," he declared with emphasis, pointing at the Government benches. He condemned the "forcible sending of men to Siberia," and asked Mr. Calder if that was Liberalism. He deplored the "flagrant abuse of the War Measures Act." He denounced government by order in Council, and claimed that several orders in Council had not been published until they had been in operation for seventeen months. Government by secret order in Council, he asserted, was worse than Kaiserism in the heyday of its activity, and the Liberalism of Calder was the Liberalism of the Middle Ages when men were sent to the dungeon at the will of the autocrat. He said that if Mr. Calder could justify the elasticity of his political conscience he would merit the name of "the Bob Rogers of the Union Government." Mr. Calder, he averred, had "clothed himself in the livery of heaven to serve the devil."

Lovely Luscious Grapes.

The House was convulsed with laughter as the speaker described the recent visit of the "Canadian job printers and advertising solicitors" to Britain and France, and the members literally roared with mirth as he told of a banquet at the Mansion House in London, where Mr. E. L. Richardson, editor of The Winnipeg Tribune, and M.P. for Springfield, sat near a basket of fruit, and put away $11 worth of grapes. Hon. Mr. Carvell, who is usually as solid as an Indian Chief in the House, laughed till tears rolled down his cheeks.

TENSION IS RELIEVED

Peace Negotiations Will Continue Now Woodrow Has Arrived on the Scene.

FINAL STAGES

(United Press.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

PARIS, March 14. — President Wilson, arriving in Paris to-day, found himself in a vastly different Europe than the one that he discovered in December, or even the one he left a month ago.

Whatever effect his dash across the ocean had in the United States, observers here declare the effect in the old world was greater still. Everyone here tensely awaited Wilson's arrival, realizing that the final stages of the preliminary peace settlement have been reached, and that the next few days will be the most momentous since the conference began.

GOVERNMENT IN CONTROL

Food is Needed in Germany to Offset Bolsheviki Menace.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 14.—Brigadier General George H. Harris, head of the American military forces at Berlin, has been here for several days to appear before the Supreme War Council to render a report on the military and economic situation at the German capital and throughout Germany. When General Harris and his party left Berlin, the government forces, under Gustave Noske, German War Minister, had the upper hand, and in the Generals' opinion the government will control the situation, particularly if food is sent to aid in holding back the Bolshevik menace from the eastern border. The public of Berlin, according to General Harris, shows little evidence of panic. Streets have been crowded with people, including women and children, but the military forces have kept the crowds constantly moving. The rattle of rifles and machine guns echoes throughout the city both day and night, but Spartacan bands have been gradually driven back and have lost control of strategic centres. Thousands of Russian prisoners at various camps in Germany, General Harris says, are clamouring to return home, but this would present a serious problem. For it would mean the sending of six hundred thousand Russians into the hands of the Bolsheviki. It is believed that a strong military zone in Poland, between Russia and Germany, together with food relief, offers the surest means of holding back the Bolshevik advance.

THE WEATHER

Last night's lowest temperature was 3 degrees above zero; the previous night 6 degrees above. Today is bright, clear, crisp and cloudless, and with the barometer at noon standing at a higher point than I have ever seen it before, namely 30.04 inches. This reduced to sea level figured (Peterboro is 750 feet above the sea) would make it about 30.74 inches. This means that a very pronounced high pressure area is today passing over this section, or in other words the atmosphere is particularly heavy and dense just now. W.P.

HELP THE CHILDREN.

The annual Shamrock sale in aid of the St. Vincent's Orphanage will be held to-morrow, and it seems scarcely necessary to plead for a liberal response on the part of the people of Peterborough in answer to the appeal. The splendid work in looking after neglected and dependent children that is being carried on by the Orphanage is so well known and generally recognized that a reminder that to-morrow is the day of the annual collection should be sufficient to ensure a response worthy of the occasion. The ladies who have the campaign in charge will be on the streets early with a liberal supply of shamrocks, so that there will be an opportunity for everybody to indicate their appreciation of the work that is being done. This annual appeal on the Saturday before St. Patrick's Day has been carried on for a number of years, and has invariably met with a splendid response. There is no reason to doubt that to-morrow's total will be worthy of the cause for which the campaign will be held.

THE LABOUR SITUATION

The state of the labour market in Peterboro is shown by the fact that up to yesterday the manufacturers of Peterboro had applied to the local Government Labour Bureau for help exactly once. During the period that the bureau has been opened only one manufacturing concern has asked the officials in charge of the office to furnish a man. It may be that some of the manufacturers have engaged the labour they needed without consulting the bureau but even allowing for this the conditions are such that Mr. Hugh Robertson and Capt. Morrison are having difficulty in finding positions for the daily increasing number of unemployed.

On the other hand there is no dearth of positions on the farm. The bureau has a list of many farmers who require help and they are offering from $40 to $60 per month with board. These wages are about the record for this district for farm work and it is hard to understand how men many of them who have had training on farms should be satisfied to idle around Peterboro when positions of this kind are open.

The two greatest problems that the local bureau has to handle just now are to find positions in the city for the hundreds of men who want them and to secure men to fill the many situations that are open on the farms of the district. One problem would appear to solve the other but in practice this has not proved to be true. Even men with farm experience refuse to accept the chance to get back to the land.

USELESS GOVERNMENT LITERATURE

There are many editors throughout Canada who will await with interest the result of the inquiries made by Mr. I. E. Pedlow, member for South Renfrew, as to the number of propaganda publications issued by the government and what they have cost. The same question must have often times entered the minds of newspaper men as they continue to load the waste-paper baskets each day with the mass of government literature that floods in with every mail. It is hard to see how the money that is expended on such pamphlets is justified. Many of them so far as their contents go practically duplicate each other and it is doubtful if ten per cent of them are read. Especially in connection with the various departments arising out of the war there been a constant stream of literature the value of which is doubtful at least. Add to all the useless publications that issued by the Department of Public Information and popularly referred to as Rowell's Weekly needs to be the least needed and the greatest waste of public money. Mr. Pedlow's inquiry will bring the matter to the attention of the House of Commons and steps should be taken to eliminate a great deal of the propaganda material which unfortunately is costing much more than the results achieved warrant.

THE CITY'S RESPONSIBILITY.

It seems to be the general opinion of the many citizens who are interested in the endeavour to have proper bathing facilities provided in Peterborough that the $500 grant recommended by the Property committee is far from being sufficient, and that the aldermen, instead of handing the problem over to a public-spirited organization that is already doing great service and should not in fairness be asked to assume any further responsibility, should establish public bathing places as a municipal enterprise. The Playgrounds Association has its own field of work, and for what it has accomplished in solving the question of looking after Peterborough's little folks during the summer months, the community should be grateful. It would be an imposition on the part of the City Council to dodge the civic responsibility in connection with the bathing place question by simply handing over $500 to the Playgrounds Association and instructing the members of that organization to go ahead and do the work.

Several years ago when there was a general campaign during the summer in an effort to awake the members of that year's Council to a realization that there were hundreds of people in Peterborough who wanted it made possible to bathe in comfort and safety in the Otonabee, Mr. Meserve, who was at that time secretary of the Y.M.C.A., went to considerable trouble in securing information as to how municipal bathing places were conducted in other cities. As the result of what was learned from his inquiries, tentative plans were prepared of a bathing house that it was thought would meet the local needs. These plans are still available and the members of the City Council would be well advised in considering the whole question thoroughly, going into the information that has already been secured before making a final decision.

The building suggested by Mr. Meserve would be practically self-sustaining because it provided for individual dressing room 3 ft. by 6 ft. in size, provided with a lock, and it had been found from the experience of other places that the fees secured from the rent of these compartments, added to the revenue secured from the rent of towels and bathing suits, more than paid the cost of maintenance.

It is the belief of those who noted the surprisingly large attendance of bathers at Inverlea Park last summer that a bathing house on the lines suggested would be a profitable investment for the city. It could not be built for $500, of course, but in the dividends of good health and amusement that such an enterprise would yield, the providing of a proper swimming place would be more than justified.

OUR RETURNING SOLDIERS.

"The city of Montreal appeals to every citizen to decorate his house or place of business with bunting on the day of the welcome; particularly those who have houses or offices along the route; expects all bells, chimes and factory syrens to celebrate the arrival; asks employers to give several hours' holiday to their employees so that they can line the streets; do everything possible to welcome and do honor to those who have suffered and sacrificed for the triumph of liberty and democracy."

Such is the context of a paragraph from an article in a prominent Montreal paper in connection with the intended ovation to be extended to the returned heroes from one of the metropolis' Highland battalions due to disembark within the next few days.

The city is pleased to proclaim a school holiday so that the children can participate in the memorable event, and goes so far as to suggest that the spacious square of the Champs de Mars be reserved for their special benefit.

Unquestionably the return of our soldiers in unit form offers greater facilities for an endeavour, on our parts to express our admiration and heartfelt appreciation to those who have borne so valiantly the many trials and sacrifices of war, and by their brave deeds, unity of purpose confidence and obedience to their leaders, and dogged determination have played a never-to-be-forgotten part in the signals of a history culminating in victory achieved for God, for honor, for King, and Empire.

But need we in London allow the more frequent manner of their returns to account for the nonchalant air with which they are invariably greeted? Can we pursue our ordinary daily duties (which incidentally we are pursuing because young Canada in arms has so permitted us to do) with the thought that a sufficient sign of appreciation can be extended to the oft-times scar-marked man by the kisses and joy tears of their blood relations, and automobiles of a few munificent souls who, thank goodness, find pleasure in doing a little act of kindness to many a lonely "Tommy," or still more prominent at times the stereotyped phrase so productive of emotion: "London Welcomes Her Returned Heroes"? The latter is becoming a bromide in a class with a flower bed of a Canadian jail, which used to bear a floral inscription "Welcome."

In Ontario we consider ourselves the symbol of a unity of purpose-possessors of a nationalistic soul to which the homogeneity of ethics, language and ideals, tend to give birth. But do our mental eugenics radiate the acts that such a happy combination should bring forth?

We who have striven at the mote that we considered detrimental to the vision of our lower provinces are allowing our lower provinces to be the "Good Samaritan" who pours in oil and wine while we pass by on the other side.

With the almost daily return of small batches of troops, we cannot expect perpetually bebuntinged buildings, school holidays and cheering masses of gesticulating humanity, but is there not a better medium than the more dominant "passing by on the other side" show, which is gradually becoming second nature to us?

November 11 found us giving voice to the pent-up feelings of four years of subjected emotion; gold stripes or chevrons on the arms were once more fondly gazed upon as in the day if their innovation; crutches neath khaki arms found resting-places for themselves and the pained yet smiling owners in motor cars driven by those who read the meaning neath these insignias of honor, and for one "perfect day" humanity was preaching the doctrine of brotherhood that our pulpits have stood for since sacrifice became the emblem of the Christian era.

But there are still gold stripes and chevrons "over there," stripes that speak of a the unflinching khaki line at St. Julien and of many a moment heroically passed in the "Valley of the Shadow."

The numerous benevolent works and organizations which our citizens have inaugurated for the physical welfare and general comfort of our returned men bespeak a general willingness on the part of all to participate to their utmost in any undertaking that will tend to enhance the soldier's homecoming from war-worn soil.

But do we show fitting appreciation by sitting in our arm chairs congratulating ourselves on the munificence of our subscription to this and to that while the gold stripes and chevrons go past our very doors for the first time in years?

It has been said that enlisting in the service of one's country in times of war is nothing more than is expected of a man under ordinary circumstances. Quite true. And in like manner the getting out with the "Glad to se you back" look is nothing more than is expected of him whose calling has been that of the "Man behind the man behind the gun."—London Advertiser.

"Life of the Mighty Napoleon"

Subject of Interesting Address Given by Dr. Jessie Birnie at Meeting of the Peterboro Art Association.

At a meeting of the Woman's Art Association held at the public library this week, Dr. Jessie Birnie gave an interesting address on the Great Drama of Napoleon's life.

She began her address by a sketch leading up to the Reign of Terror, and pictured the period in the darkest colors. The period, the speaker said, of madness, suicide and despair, was the stage set for the first scene in the opening act of the Great Drama of Napoleon's life. Dr. Birnie then went on to say how difficult it was to give an idea of the life of a man who had accomplished so much as a military leader, an administrator and as a statesman. It is equally difficult to convey an idea of his character because he had been an enigma to his contemporaries as he had been to all following generations. But upon ane thing all writers and friends agree, that he was a man of superb intellect, of immense will power and unbounded energy.

His Element.

Napoleon himself said that work was his element, that he had been born and made for work, and that he had never been able to ascertain his capacity for work. In reading his life we cannot help but be impressed with the belief that he was a man of destiny, that fate shaped his career even from the cradle, for he was in the Island of Corsica immediately after its accession to the French throne and was therefore born a Frenchman. It can be seen what benefit this was to the Emperor of all the French. He was also educated in France, being sent to the military school of Brienne, and after to the military college at Paris from which he graduated at the age of 16, and received his commission in the army. His salary then amounted to the munificent sum of $300 in our money. Out of these he endeavored to educate his brother Louis as well as send help to his widowed mother. He denied himself the necessities of life and lived in a bare room containing only a table, chair and bed. So greatly did the burden of his responsibilities press upon the young boy that he once considered suicide but fortunately met a friend on the way to the Seine for this purpose who sympahtised with him and lent him money to tide him over his difficulties.

Began Career.

Napoleon began his military career in rather an unfortunate way. While on his first furlough he visited his native Island of Corsica and embroiled himself in politics with the idea of freeing Corsica and making of her a republic. For this purpose he took up arms but was unfortunate in all his military expeditions. At the age of 24 Napoleon was known as a refugee from Corsica and a leader of forlorn hopes. But if he could have looked into the future, he would have seen that destiny was pressing him from a smaller into a larger sphere. His fate was not to be the first president of the republic of Corsica, but Emperor of all the French. His conspicuous military talents were first shown at the siege of Toulon and from that time he was rapidly promoted from one command to another.

He was a general and known as a brilliant officer when he first met Josephine, who at this time was a charming widow. They were soon married, and as Josephine was at that time 32 and Napoleon 25, he put his age forward 18 month, and she excusably put hers back four years, so that according to the marriage certificate there was little difference in their ages.

War With Germany.

The French at this time were preparing for a terrific onslaught on Germany and Austria. Two large armies were to be sent to the Rhine to invade Germany, while a smaller army of 40,000 was placed under the command of Napoleon. The campaigns were to be fought in the neighborhood of the Rhine, but the genius of Napoleon soon transformed the situation for he brilliantly defeated in turn four larger Austrian armies sent against him, each of them better equipped and bigger sign the peace of Campo Fornio by which they ceded Belgium to the French and all the German provinces on the French bank of the Rhine.

Return To Paris

Then he returned in the halo of of glory to France loaded with masterpieces of art for the Paris museums.

Years after Napoleon was asked where was the happiest time of his life and he answered his first campaign in Italy. "What shouts of Long live the Liberator of Italy, What enthusiasm there was, and all at the age of 21. I saw then for the first time what I might become. I already saw the earth beneath me as if I were being carried through the air."

Dr. Birnie then described his return to Paris and the fetes, festivities in his honor of which he soon wearied, Paris, to use his own words, weighing upon him like a cloak of lead. He soon set forth on his Egyptian expedition where he was successful until his fleet met the British navy when he was forced to retreat.

While he was away things had not been going on very well in France. Paris was torn with factions and the people dreaded a return of the reign of terror. Napoleon heard of this and with his usual insight for realizing the psylogical moment returned unexpectedly to France. He was welcomed with frenzied enthusiasm. The result was inevitable, the government was overthrown and consulate formed with Napoleon as first Consul Dr. Birnie then gave a brief description how from a thin, sallow youth he had developed into a handsome man. He now showed his wonderful administrative powers, and statesmanship renovating every department of state, reorganizing the army, founding the Legion of Honor and collecting all the laws of the country into a form known as Code Napoleon.

Private Life.

The speaker then briefly described the private life of Napoleon and later the call toi arms after his unsuccessful attempts to make peace with other nations. She told of the consummate skill with which he planned his campaigns and of the subsequent return of all the provinces lost in Egypt. And now she said visions of a crown began to float before Napoleon. His brilliant military career his wise administration and the plots formed against his life by the Royalists roused in the people the wish that he should be an heridiatry ruler and plebiscite being taken he was elected Emperor of France by an overwhelming majority. Then followed a graphic description of the court of Napoleon and of the festivities which continued for weeks until Napoleon became aroused to activity by a coalition which was formed against him by England, Russia, Austria, Naples and Sweden. Napoleon prepared for the conflict with his usual energy. He planned a campaign by which he separated the allied armies, defeating Austria and marching upon their capital routing the Russians, making Germany a vassal of the French crown and in three weeks overturning Prussia and taking away one half her possessions. He was now supreme ruler in Europe and threatened to dominate the world. He looked past Europe, sent an exploring expedition force to Australia and another military one to the West Indies and consolidated his possessions in North America. "Now," said the speaker, "unbounded power had changed the character of Napoleon. The man who was first consul loved melancholy music and to listen to the winds had become moody and ill tempered. The effect of unbounded power had been too much even for the super intellect of Napoleon. He foolishly dismissed all his wise councillors and chose men of Mediocre ability in their place and acted so arrogantly as to again arouse the nations of Europe gainst him, this time they succeeded.

Battle of Waterloo.

Lack of time did not allow the speaker to dwell on the wars. She touched, however, upon the Battle of Waterloo and said "it was magnificently planned and that it should have succeeded but that the stars in their course fought against Napoleon, that Napoleon himself could never understand how he lost that battle. Fate who had woven such sombre colors in the life web of Napoleon in his earlier years now withdrew her brilliant hues forever and ended as she had begun in sinister shades.

Far into the Atlantic lies a lone island, wind swept and barren, St. Helena. From every point nothing can be seen but the wide heaving ocean. This was the spot chosen by the British to whom he had surrendered himself as his prison. For a residence he was given a tumble down mansion, draughty and overrun with rats and separated from the rest of the island by a deep ravine. So terrified were the allied nations that he might escape that two regiments of soldiers and a company of artillery were sent to guard him, while round

Instructive Address Delivered to the Engineers Last Evening

Mr. E. V. Moore Reviewed the Peat Situation and its Value as Fuel.

Mr. E. V. Moore, addressed the Engineers Club last evening at their regular monthly meeting held in the Empress Hotel. Mr. C. Canfield, president of the club occupied the chair. The speaker of the evening gave very interesting and instructive address on the manufacture and use of peat as fuel and illustrated his remarks with lantern slides.

"Peat," said Mr. Moore, "is a black spongy mass of decayed vegetable matters which occurs in deposits of from an acre to many square miles in area and varying in depth from a few feet to as much as sixty feet. In appearance a peat bog is a level tract of country usually covered over with short thick growth of shrubbery. Over 37,000 square miles of peat bog is known to exist in Canada. Seven peat bogs are conveniently situated with respect to Toronto that can supply that city with twenty-six million tons of fuel. Other bogs are situated adjacent to other centres of population in Ontario.

How Many Uses.

"Raw peat is a very peculiar material," said Mr. Moore. "When first excavated it is usually quite brown in colour but it turns black in a very short time. Since the solid material of peat is practically all combustible it is only necessary to get rid of the water in it and have the resulting material available as fuel. Peat with a low water content compares with ordinary steam coal about as ten to seven. Peat is suitable for domestic consumption in the fall and spring and can also be used to advantage in power plants. It can also be used for cooking range and almost any kind of stove which has to be fed continuously. For the man who is unfortunate enough to have to buy his fuel in small lots, peat should be a satisfactory substitute for coal. A great deal of misunderstanding seems to exist as to the matter of cost as applied to fuel. The consumer wants how any kind of fuel costing perhaps one dollar to a dollar and cents a ton at the mine can raise in price to five dollars or more when it reaches him. As a matter of fact the cost to the consumer of any fuel is made up backward to the cost of delivery and overhead charges.'

Government Aid

"The small amount of peat fuel thus manufactured in a single season has made it impossible to get any figure like a reasonable overhead charge per ton. It has made it equally impossible to obtain for the special freight rates which I have no doubt will be allowed as soon as any considerable amount of peat fuel has to be moved. It has made it impossible to protect the retail fuel dealers sufficiently to induce them to provide the necessary storage in their yards with the special equipment necessary to handle and deliver this class of fuel as cheaply as it should be. An endeavour is being made with the aid of the government to manufacture peat fuel in sufficiently large quantities to eliminate some of the many difficulties outlined."

Will Help Huns to Stimulate Their Lost Trade

Germany is Securing Bond Against Further Military Aggression.

(By W. J. Mason United Press)

NEW YORK, March 14.—The final solution of what to do with Germany has been reached by the Peace Conference simultaneously with Pres. Wilson's return to France.

German trade is to be stimulated into normal productivity with Allied help, while at the same time Germany is to be securely bound against the possibility of further military aggression. The German people will be fed and will be permitted to enter the world's markets with their wares, because by no other means can indemnity due the Allies be collected, but Germany is not to be allowed to possess an army and navy capable of offensive action and as a further safeguard against imperial ambitions, the annexation of Austria to Germany will probably be prohibited for the time being. This is the way the peace delegates have solved the most vexing problem of the conference, while President Wilson has been in the United States. France's fear of a future attempt by Germany and Austria united in a single military comommwealth, will be removed by the practical disarmament of German people and the reduction of Germany's population instead of its increase through the addition of Austria. In exchange for this concession France shows a willingness to consent to Germany's industrial reconstruction as a means of paying the war debt.

The Chilean government has taken steps to electrify three sections of its railway system.

Spiritualist Church

Service will be held Sunday Evening, March 16th, at 7 o'clock in W.O.W. Hall, George Street.

There will be a short address and written questions answered. Everybody welcome.

Situation Is Getting Worse

OVERWHELM SIBERIA

(Canadian Press)

Honolulu, March 14.—Gen. Robert Paris of the French Army returning from Siberia where he was associated with the Czecho-Slovak command, said to-day through his aide that unless the Allies intervened immediately with sufficient forces, the Bolshevik forces would overwhelm Siberia and the Germans would gain an unshakable grip on Russia. He said the Czecho-Slovaks having lost half their strength and being worn out without support, were withdrawing, leaving Siberia helpless. Conditions are growing worse steadily. Ten divisions, he said, could reach Moscow through Siberia and reestablish order in Russia.

Will Maintain Maritime Rights

Stirring Address to the British Empire League.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, March 14. — The hope that Great Britain would never hand over her maritime rights to any league of nations was expressed by Sir Edgar Bowring, Newfoundland High Comissioner, at a luncheon tendered him by the British Empire League.

The speaker dwelt on Britain's invaluable services in the war and referred to the work done by the Newfoundland contingent of men, whose quality was unexcelled. He stated that the Newfoundland government was arranging to settle returned soldiers on the land, and emphasized the importance of an improved Atlantic service and cheaper rates. He said that the development of Newfoundland was proceeding rapidly, especially in waterpower electricity.

Frills of Fashion, introducing New Colorings

You simply must have a frill on something—dress, coat or blouse—to be in fashion's favor these days. And how delightful it is when the styles which are in vogue are those which are almost universally becoming. Thus it is with the soft and graceful frills which form so many of the neck finishings now, and that can soften even the hardest neckline. Soft georgettes and fine nets and muslins are the charming fabrics chosen mostly for these frills of Fashion. They come, too, in various colors and color combinations; and in different styles and widths. Suits and Dresses

Adapted To Make Their Progress Along The Highway of Fashion

Grace is the Keynote in both the new suits and dresses. And the materials are supple and pliant, so that they will fall in beautiful folds when draped. All the artistry of the wizards who rule the world of Fashion seems to have been directed this season to achieving sheer beauty of line and color. Navy blue and dust color in a thousand variations are emphatically the main theme in the color harmony, but soft tans, greys, olive green and lovely off shades of blue are also good.

The tendency in women's dresses is for simplicity of line, or else Fashion ceases to be demure and indulges in extravagancies of adornment. So varied are the styles that milady has a wonderful array from which to choose this season. We mention here two strikingly stylish examples.

A becoming street dress comes in dust color tricotine of lovely soft quality; plain tailored bodice with cross-over side fastening in front. Tight sleeves slit at the cuff and button trimmed. Deep crushed girdle of Foch blue satin gives a delightful touch of color. Three shaped frills fall below the girdle and are piped with blue. Price..... .....$65.00

For an afternoon gown, there's an elegant model of foulard georgette in black and white coloring. It has a round collarless, satin bound neck, a deep girdle of black satin and underskirt of the same material, over which the georgette is gracefully draped. Priced at....$85.00

The new suits this season truly reflect the joy of Springtime for every line is so crisp, the colors so fresh and the gay little waistcoats and vestees so youthful-looking. Just to see them is to want one. Fitting examples of their charming sprightliness are described here:

About one model, we say, it is graceful, dignified, extremely modish and altogether distinctive. Fashioned of elegant quality serge, in navy blue. The skirt is plain, but for narrow side panels, edged with black silk braid. The coat is plain and narrow to the waistline and then falls in graceful roll pleats. A long shawl collar runs to the bottom of the coat. Smart vest and collar of grey, khaki-kool. Price $79.00

An entirely different style is in navy blue serge, and it is the essence of chicness. A plain tailored skirt is topped with a short box-style coat, which has a wide band of black silk braid around the bottom. Collar of black charmeuse lined with Victory rose silk. Priced at $49.00

Footwear Individuality in Our Spring Shoes

For street wear the Oxford carries all before it and holds the very first place in the footwear world, with high shoes of light colors, following next in line. Our shoe assortments are now featuring the very latest ideas, both practical and novel. The newest styles are here quite moderately priced and splendid values.

Petitcodiac is Burning Fiercely — Moncton Fire Brigade on Way to Conflagration.

(Canadian Press.)

AMHERST, N.S., March 14.—A disastrous fire broke this morning in the prosperous town of Petitcodiac, twenty-three miles from Moncton. It is thought to have originated in a blacksmith shop. It rapidly spread in all directions. Among the buildings destroyed were the Bank of Nova Scotia, the post office, both railway stations and many retail stores. The fire is still raging with unabated fury and is threatening the eastern end of the town. The Moncton Fire Department is on the way to Petitcodiac, but it is doubtful whether it will arrive in time to be of much service.

After it had destroyed the business section of the town of Petitcodiac and done damage to the extent of $150,000, the fire which broke out there shortly after midnight, was put under control at noon to-day. There was no loss of life.

Meeting of the Poultry Men

A Number of Birds Were Placed on Exhibition.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterbor Poultry Association brought out a fair attendance of fanciers and they spent an enjoyable as well as instructive evening. It should be remembered, however, that the general public are cordially invited to these meetings and as the poultrymen have no trade secrets and are always willing to give to others the benefit of their experience, this service should be taken advantage of more than it is. At this season of the year there must be many who are having poor hatches etc Why not try to find the reason and eliminate such losses? Specimens of the Barred Rocks, White Wyandotte, Golden Wyandotte, Black Lanston and Black Cochin Bants were on exhibition and Mr. Harry Lush was asked to judge them. After placing the awards, he pointed out the strong and weak characteristics of the different birds. The winners were as follows: Barred Rocks, Jos. Kelly, White Wyandottes, W. Sheldon, Black Langshans and Golden Wyandottes, H. Lush, Black Cochin Bants, W. Nesbitt.

Next Meeting

At he next meeting Mediterranean classes are expected to be out in force and Mr. Brault who will judge them has donated a sweepstake badge for the best bird in the show. A special prize will also be awarded to the best bird shown by anyone who was not on exhibition at the 1919 show. The Mediterranean classes include the Leghorn, Minorca, Andalusian, Ancona and Spanish, but all other varieties will be welcome on the 2nd Wednesday in April.

Move for Better Train Service

Conference Will be Held To-morrow At Ten O'clock.

Mr. D. McMillan, divisional superintendent and Mr. A. E. Horning, district passenger agent of the G.T.R. will be in the city to-morrow and will confer with the Railway Committee of the City Council of which Ald. Edgar is chairman. Commercial travellers and all interested in transportation matters concerning the Grand Trunk Railway are asked to be present. The conference will start at ten o'clock to-morrow morning. Its chief object is to urge upon the railway officials the desirability of restoring the train leaving for Port Hope in the morning and returning to Peterboro at noon.

Voice of The People

Toronto, March 10th, 1919.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Writers in the press seem given to exaggerated statements concerning the increased death rate during the epidemic of Spanish influenza because whiskey could not be obtained more easily and used more freely.

The following manifesto on the subject of drugs and alcohol in India was recently issued by a large number of medical men, including Surgeon-General G. J. H. Evatt, Alfred Pearce Gould (Vice-Chancellor of the University of London), C. W. Salesby, M.D., F.R.S., Frederick Treves (Surgeon-in-Ordinary to the King), and G. Sims Woodhead, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., (Professor of Pathology in Cambridge University). It ought to have weight with reasonable and thoughtful people.

"1. Alcohol, cocaine, opium and intoxicating drugs (such as bhang, ganga and charas) are poisons; (2) even a moderate use of them is harmful, especially in tropical countries like India. They are of no avail permanently to relieve physical and mental strain; (3) those who confine themselves to non-alcoholic drinks, and who avoid the use of intoxicating drugs, are capable of more endurance, and the better able to resist infection and disease; (4) alcohol is in many cases injurious to the next generation, especially through its favouring influence upon venereal disease; (5) alcohol aggravates the evils of famine; (6) alcohol is useless as a preventive of plague; (7) alcohol lowers the resisting power of the body against the parasites of malaria and the microbes of tuberculosis; (8) all that has been said applies with equal force to opium and intoxicating drugs; (9) we, therefore, appeal to the people of India to maintain and extend the practice of total abstinence as enjoined upon them by their religious and social obligations."

These men apparently know what they are talking about, as they occupy the very highest places in the medical world to-day, and can scarcely be called fanatics.

What is true with regard to India, is equally true with reference to this country.

Yours faithfully,
J. H. Hazelwood,
Department of Social Service.

"POP" DUNN IS DEAD.

Famous Oarsman Dies in New York

(Special to Examiner.)

NEW YORK, March 14. — Funeral services were held to-day for "Pop" Dunn, the famous oarsman, known throughout the United States and Canada. He was for ten years president and captain of the Sheepshead Bay Rowing Club.

A Dangerous Method

One of the things we have to contend with is the tendency of people when they think they need glasses to equip themselves with "Ten Cent Store Glasses." Supplying glasses to meet individual needs and requirements is our business. We have years of scientific training and experience. We know—we don't guess.

In the long run, it will cost you much less in dollars and cents to have your glasses made by us than to take a chance and buy them "ready made."

PARIS, March 14.—President Wilson, returning to the Peace Conference after his trip to the United States, arrived in Paris shortly after noon today.

Farmers Will Hold Banquet

Mr. John Maharg, M.P., of Moose Jaw, Will Speak.

Arrangements have been completed by members of the United Farmers living around the city of Peterborough for a visit to the city on March 27th, of Mr. John Maharg, M.P., of Moose Jaw, Sask., one of the most noted leaders in the farmers' movement in Canada. A banquet will be held in the evening, which will be addressed by Mr. Maharg. It is understood that some representative city men will be invited to the meeting.

Mr. Maharg is the President of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, which represents about 30,000 organized farmers, and is the President also of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, Ltd., one of the largest grain handling companies in the world. This company controls 309 local elevators in Saskatchewan, and a big terminal elevator at Port Arthur, which cost between two and three million dollars. The profits of this company have ranged as high as $675,000 in a year. For several years Mr. Maharg was the President of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. He is one of the Western farmers who is playing an important part in political matters at present at Ottawa, he being a member of the Union Government. Naturally great interest is being taken in his approaching visit. It is expected that there will be a large turnout of farmers from not only the vicinity of Peterborough to hear him, but from other points in the county as well.

the island for ever, circled the watchful British fleet. His life here was trivial in the extreme. What strikes one about his life here says Lord Roseberry was the utter weariness and futility of it all. One is irresistably reminded of a caged animal pacing up and down in his den and gazing at the outside world with fierce despair in his wild eye.

Death Soon Came.

But soon death came to his release. He was seized with an incurable disease. As long as possible he sat up in his chair. In conclusion Dr. Arnic gave a graphic description of his death.

As his life ebbed slowly away a great storm raged outside. The wind rushed up from the ocean, roared over the land, swept around the house, shaking it to its foundation, and then died wailingly away into the distance. In Napoleon's room, his friends stood watching the passing of the mighty spirit. He died at 6 o'clock. The storm was over and the sun shone again. Sorrowing friends looking upon him saw again the beautiful face of the First Consul. Sorrow, sadness, despair and death had refined his features and they beheld again the companion of their youth, the Liberator of Italy and the Saviour of France.

YOUR DOG VERSUS MY DOG

Editor, Examiner:

The "Voice of the People" is again being raised over the eternal question of the rights of the canine within the city. It presages the approach of another spring, and is an infallible indication that "the winter of our discontent" is near-an end. The attack on his dogship is rather earlier than usual, and is really not due until the "green gets into the trees," until the tender buds begin to shoot, and the price of eggs drop. But there has been so little to find fault with, in the way in which the weatherman has handled the situation for us during the season from which we are emerging, that we must really look around for something else to jump on, just to keep ourselves in form. And as the dog never can talk back, we naturally pick on him. Of course there are dogs, and dogs. Now take the case of my dog. That dog can do just about everything but talk. He can run faster, jump higher, and bark louder than any dog I ever saw. You should see him take after the neighbours' cats. Gee! he has them up in the trees most of the summer, and he can lick anything in dogskin that comes around the place. People on our street don't think a dog is a nuisance. Why, last summer this dog of mine went across the street to a neighbours, where they kept some very nice chickens. He began playing with them, and was having the time of his life when the lady of the house came home, and being afraid he would overheat himself, she sent him home. I was speaking to her next day, and asked her if she ever saw such a playful pup as that one of mine. She admitted that she had not, and said she was very sorry she hadn't any more chickens at present, but there would be another hatching out in a few days, so I could count on my dog having another romp with them shortly. That dog took after another neighbour's cat, side dog. The cat crawled through the wire fence behind the flower beds, and sat there, just to tease him. But she didn't know my dog. He just started in to dig a hole in the flower bed, to get under the fence, and at that cat. He threw those flowers high, wide and handsome, and dug a hole you could bury a horse in. But he got there, and treed that cat. They had a man come up next day and fill up the hole. They say they would miss that dog awfully if I ever made up my mind to part with him. Those people who want dogs tied up, are a bunch of cranks. That dog of mine never did anybody harm since I have had him. He would not bite anyone so long as they leave him alone. There was a lady passing the house one day, and my dog was out in front. She was afraid of dogs, and shook her parasol at him, to scare him away. But he ain't one of the kind that scares; he growled and barked until she had to go across the street to get by him. If she had minded her own business the dog wouldn't have noticed her. Some people are all nerves, and don't like dogs. Serves them right if they do get bit. If these people who complain of their lawns being spoiled by dogs would fence in their lawns, the dogs would never bother them. There have always been dogs in the world, from the beginning, and you know what Mr. Ham Burnham thinks about people who would disturb the laws of the Creator. Some people complain about the barking of dogs at night. Their slumbers are rudely broken they say, and they would have the City Council pass laws prohibiting dogs from barking at night. I say, if a dog was not intended to bark, why was the bark put in him? Nature put the bark on the outside of trees, but on the inside of dogs. And the dog, in order to get the bark outside of him, has to make a noise. The bark will stay on the outside of a tree, but it won't stay on the inside of a dog. Therefore if our City Council were to pass a law prohibiting dogs from barking, they would have the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Dumb Animals right after them. Why all this fuss about dogs anyhow?

STANLEY TIMMINS.
Midland Free Press.— A message was received here on Monday by Mrs. Thos. Timmins that her son, Stanley, had passed away at Prince Albert, Sask., on the previous day.
Mr. Timmins was born in Janetville and came to Midland with his parents in 1880. He was raised and educated here, going west early in life he engaged in railroading on the C.P.R. in the Rockies. When the C.N.R. commenced operations in the west he secured a position with them and worked his way up to be conductor on a fine passenger train running out of Winnipeg. Some two years ago he contracted diabetes, and owing to his ill health was transferred to an easier run from Prince Albert to Regina. A few weeks ago, while on his way south he took the 'flu' and had to return to his home, where he succumbed to that disease.
Mr. Timmins was one of the most popular conductors on the C.N.R. His genial and obliging disposition won him friends wherever he went. He is survived by his wife and four children, his mother and sister, Miss Tilly, of Midland; sister, Mrs. Wm. Pethick, of Peterborough, and a sister and brother in the west, Mrs. W. T. Lane, of Ft. Saskatchewan, Alta., and R. J. Timmins, of Calgary, who were with him at the time of his death.

She was a faithful and consistent member of the Murray street Baptist church.
There are left of the immediate family, besides her husband, Mr. Wm. Pilling, four daughters, Mrs. John Rome, Mrs. George Burton, Mrs. Samuel Gerow, and Mrs. Robert Briggs, all of the city, also one son, William, of Souris, Manitoba. New England and Canadian Advancement Association Will Visit Peterboro

Association is Composed of Chamber of Commerce Officials and Its Object is to Promote Friendly Relations and Increase Business.

PLANS FOR TRIP

(Special to The Examiner.)

MANCHESTER, New Ham., March 15.—Choosing this city as the most convenient and central point for their first get-together meeting, at which time the proposed new charter will be accepted, officers and final arrangements for the Canadian tour will be made, Members of the New England and Canadian Advancement Association, composed of Chamber of Commerce officials from nearly all New England cities, with a few additional interested business men, have been arriving here throughout yesterday and last night. Following the acceptance of the charter and election of officials this morning, balloting for the delegation which is to tour every city in the Dominion of Canada was commenced.

Plans For the Trip.

Plans for the trip, which are to be made by eleven delegates, call for the initial visit to Sydney, N.S., continuing west throughout each province to British Columbia, touching only the largest cities west of Winnipeg, Man.

Every New England State, with the exception of Rhode Island, is fully represented in the organization, and the two delegates from each State is to deliver addresses at each Canadian stop, featuring their home State and its offerings as well, listing that of the Canadian points with existing conditions there.

Canada's Imports.

Canada's imports, barring the last four years, were three billion and a half, of which well over two-thirds came from the United States, while her exports for the same period amounted to nearly five billion, two billion coming from the country. This organization warrants a get-together programme with a view of increasing in detail and practically advancing the after the war friendly feeling.

At each stop the presentation of the organization colours are to be made. Ontario is listed with twenty-four stops, including Peterborough. Special interest prevails in Peterborough on account of its grain and lumber exports.

His Civilian Record.

May I suggest to the government that every man be treated according to his civilian merits? These are democratic days. We should not say to discharged men: "Were you an officer?" or "Were you a private?" We should say: "Now you have finished with war, we must deal with you on a civilian basis. What were you before you joined up? What do you think you are best suited for? With you time is precious, just as it is with us. We want to help you to earn a living in the way that you can earn it best." Treat discharged men according to their abilities, and not according to the positions they have held in the services. That is the real solution of the problem—the key to the satisfactory settlement of the difficulty of the discharged. Square pegs in round holes are a nuisance everywhere, as we in the army know only too well. Let us go forward.—London Daily News.

TEETHING TROUBLES

Baby's teething time is a time of worry to most mothers. Baby's little gums become swollen and tender; his bowels get out of order and constipation, colic or even diarrhoea sets in. To make the teething period easy Baby's Own Tablets should be given the little one. They sweeten the stomach; regulate the bowels and keep baby good natured. Concerning them, Mrs. Marcel D. Blanc, Memramcook, West N.B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past six years and have found them indispensable. To my mind nothing can equal them in curing the fever accompanying teething. I would not be without them and can strongly recommend them to other mothers." Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE MISSIONARY'S SAMPLES.

Shed Some Light on the Neighbor an Insight Into the Future State.

A missionary returned recently from India, where he had spent many years. At the big hotel he stopped at while in town he found little to complain about except the absence of the very torrid sauces and spices to which he had become accustomed in the far east. Fortunately he had brought with him a supply of his favorite condiment, and by arranging with the head waiter these were placed on his table. One day another guest saw the appetizing bottle on his neighbor's table and asked the waiter to have him some of "that sauce."

"I'm sorry, sir," said the waiter, "but it is the private property of this gentleman."

The missionary, however, heard the other's request and told the waiter to pass the bottle.

After a moment he turned, with tears in his eyes, to the missionary.

"You're a minister of the gospel?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you preach the doctrine of everlasting fire?"

"Yes," admitted the missionary.

Germans Prepare to Flood World With Substitutes

NEW YORK, March 14.—Germany is now preparing to deluge the world with substitutes. Trade reports coming out of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce tell of extensive arrangements for the manufacture of certain make-believes discovered during the privations of war. One of these is cotton cloth made from the fibre of the burning nettle. The company started in a modest way under the simple name of "Nesselanbaugesellschaft." Its business increased and made necessary the more ample one of "Nesselfaser-Verwertungsgesellschaft."

This infant concern is planting great quantities of nettles and forming regular plantations. The whole basin of the former Teltover Sea is now an ocean of burning nettles; they have spread through miles of alder woods, followed into regular farm fields and cover thousands of acres in the Bruesack, Settin and Celle districts. The farmers don't like them but textile specialists have discovered that nettle cultivation really improves the soil. Incidentally stems of rushes are mixed in to produce a "valuable" substitute for hemp and jute.

Peat Fibre Mixed With Wool

Great store is set on this rush business. "Typha" (alias rush), says a commerce report quoting a German paper, "up to now has been considered a useless weed growing pond grass. It has been found to be of greatest value and service. It is believed it will prove of considerable economic value after the war. Special harvesters are being constructed to reap the 'rushes.'"

No doubt as to the success of nettle cotton cloth is expressed in the report. "Instead of the former process of steeping," it explains, "an engineer has invented a chemical process for the extraction of the glutinous matter of the plant fibre. This makes the whole thing both possible and important to a large scale production."

"Then," it is said, "peat fibre and wool makes an excellent cloth. Thus it seems that the peat fibre cannot go it alone. It has to be mixed fifty-fifty with wool. This mixture, the German experts agree, "gives a very strong and durable material that looks extremely well and is excellent for men's clothing."

Substitute for Cement

Synthetic rubber has been given up. It was all right for a war need, but it cannot compete with the genuine article. Its cost is much higher than London quotations for the real gum. The same fate, for a different reason, overhangs the employment of lupine for flour. Its cultivation is easy, it requires no fertilization, its roots enrich the soil with nitrogen and the flour tastes good, is very nutritious and fitted for bread making, but until the bitter acid has been removed it cannot prove serviceable.

And here is a substitute for building cement. Common lime is so treated that it has the same qualities as cement in hardening in water. It has been extensively used in smaller residences, found cheaper than cement and seems to be a complete substitute.

Germany produced numberless substitute articles, more than seven hundred being condemned by the government. Some are regarded as valuable and will be pushed for domestic and foreign trade. As a whole these substitute materials cannot in the future make up for the imports of raw stuffs Germany will require, and they cannot free Germany from her foreign economic dependency. But they may be used in an attempt to build up an extensive foreign trade.

Great Millennial Hope.

The horizon of the hopes of man is never quite so clear that the exact moment of sunrise or of sunset may be marked. But a great millennial hope is none the less to be treasured as the goal of all striving. Just when its object will be reached—if that object be an enduring peace, and if the means for securing it be that perpetual alliance of free nations which now appears to embody the most promising plan yet devised for its attainment—none may certainly declare. But whatever methods may be pursued to this end the hope behind it and the confidence that it is a reasonable and righteous hope are the highest justifications for everything that everybody can do to achieve the victory of the allies with whom our nation is joined. There is no weapon in the spiritual armor of the noncombatant that needs more constantly to be kept bright.—M. A. De Wolfe Howe, in Atlantic.

CATTLE MARKET

Last Monday was a "blue" day in the local cattle market, the first of the kind for some time. Contributing causes were the marine workers and railroad strikes in the vicinity of New York, which cut off temporarily the demand for export cattle for that port. Also the rather heavy run of cattle offering, coupled with the fact that the average quality was the lowest for this season. The consequence of all these adverse conditions was a sudden drop in prices. Butcher cattle of practically all grades suffered a decline of 50c. to 75c. cows and medium butcher steers and heifers being hit the hardest. Tuesday's market brought little change in prices, but there was a fair clearing of left over stock, the fresh receipts for the most part being held over for Wednesday's market. Results justified the policy of those who held their stock over, for Wednesday saw an active enquiry for all grades of cattle, and the declines of the first two days were fully recovered on the third day. Although the New Jersey marine strike was still unsettled, there has sprung up a fair sized export demand for the Buffalo and nearby markets, which cleaned up any cattle of the desired quality, regardless of weight, at good firm prices, ranging from $14 to $15.50. Good butcher steers and heifers for local requirements were again selling firm, anywhere from $12 to $13.75 and medium stuff from $10.50 to $11.50.

Fat cows were again selling firmer, but bulls were not quite so active.

There were a few enquiries for stockers and feeders, but this trade generally was quiet.

Calves were strong all through the week, going up to $19.25 for the top.

Sheep and lambs were also strong and generally higher.

All efforts on the part of the packers to get prices down on hogs were failures, for the market steadily climbed, reaching the top for the week-end, and nearly the highest for the season at $19.25 fed and watered basis.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Ruth Confides in Her Employer

CHAPTER CXLIV

Ruth realized, for the first time that nothing counted save Brian. Money, beauty of surroundings, ease and luxury, meant nothing compared to the desire to possess him entirely his love as he had given it when they first came to New York and lived in the little flat up the three flights of stairs, and she did her own work; when he used to come running up three steps at a time whistling, and catch her in his arms and waltz about the little living room or kitchen.

She forgot her hatred of drudgery in her desire. She forgot also her love of her work. Her heart ached with the longing for his love, and the old-time heart expression of it.

But she also owed something to Mandel. She knew she was almost indispensible, now under the after-the-war business conditions. She would say nothing to Brian—not until she had talked with Mandel. But before she slept, that night, Ruth had decided upon a course that only a short time before she would have deemed impossible.

Strangely, after making her decision, she slept more soundly than she had in months. Once or twice during the night she woke and raised herself on her elbow, trying, in the darkness, to distinguish the features of "her soldier" as he lay sleeping in the bed so close to her own. Then dropping back to sleep at once.

"I shall go down town to-day," Brian said abruptly at breakfast. "I've loafed long enough. My leg is pretty nearly all right, and I can't afford to stay idle any longer," he waited a minute then added ,"living on you."

"Oh, Brian, don't talk that way."

"It's true. Except paying the rent, I haven't done one thing toward running this shebang since I came back. It's getting on my nerves."

"How much money have you saved, Brian?" His astonishment at Ruth's question was evident.

"Half my pay, about. I haven't had it all, but I'll get it. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. But I wish you would take a better office, dear. That horrid little two-by-four place isn't fitting for a man wearing that." She pointed to his breast.

"What's that got to do with it? That's all over now. The hum-drum everyday life enters; exit everything else." His tone was light, yet Ruth sensed a bitterness.

"Wait a few more days, Brian. I don't believe you are fit to work."

"If you think I will stay another day in this place alone, you've another guess coming. It's worse than the German guns, this facing the long hours here with nothing to do but think. No one to talk to but Rachel and a baby that can't answer. No, I shall go down this morning." Then, as he noted the real distress on Ruth's face, he added: "I won't stay long at first, just an hour or two."

That morning Ruth asked Mandel if she might see him in his private office. He acceded to her request at once.

"I must leave you, Mr. Mandel, as soon as you find some one to fill my place," she said quietly.

"Leave me? What"—

"I want to tell you just why, may I? Have you time to listen?"

"As much time as you want."

Ruth told, in a quiet, restrained voice, of her marriage, of her aunt's objections, of her own luxurious bringing up, and of her dislike for house work. Then she told of Brian, as he was when she had married him. She said nothing of Mollie King, but she told that she nearly had lost him before he went to war. She did not spare herself in the telling, and she glossed over Brian's faults. In fact she did not admit that he had any. She told of the call of Major Williams, and of how Brian felt about his comrades knowing that she worked outside of the home.

"He may be old-fashioned," she smiled as she said it, "but I love him, Mr. Mandel, and I shall never make him feel that he cannot ask anyone to his home again. I have been selfish while not meaning to be so. I have made him unhappy while looking for happiness myself."

Mandel asked many questions, all of which Ruth answered frankly. Then he said:

"Go at once, Mrs. Hackett. You never will know what your being here has meant to me. I want still to be your friend. And—if he will let me, your husband's friend also." He then told Ruth of something he had in mind, which sent her home fairly walking on air.

TOPSY TURVY HUNDOM.

Lieut. Allan Had Exciting Time In Germany.

After being reported missing and believed killed, Lieut. Arthur Allan, R. A. F., Canadian diving champion, whose home is in Toronto, recently arrived back from Germany. He took part in a bombing raid on September 29, but, owing to trouble with his machine, was cut off from the rest, attacked by five hostile aircraft, and chased them. He was finally compelled to land in German territory, having run out of petrol.

While being transferred with 54 officers from Landshet to Pillau, Lieut. Allan's experiences were a unique commentary on the topsy-turvy conditions following the signing of the armistice. Their party was guarded by six soldiers and a sergeant, while one German officer was allowed to act as escort, but had no authority over his men.

At Dresden the Hun officer and the sergeant got into a violent altercation and things looked very bad for the former until a British officer stepped up and rescued the officer from the new German democracy. Lieut. Allan states that everywhere German officers, especially Prussians, were removing the regimental badges from their helmets to avoid identification.

On reaching Berlin, Lieut. Allan and the other R. A. F. officers stepped off the train and went to the next station in the centre of the city, their escorting officer and his revolutionary guard failing to notice their absence. They wandered about the streets for two hours.

Their reception from the civilians was so cordial that the British officers were perplexed until one German, more candid than the rest, explained that they hoped soon to go to England or America. One woman with a prepossessing daughter made matrimonial offers on behalf of the young lady to one of the fairmen. Cigarettes were given to the "tourists" and invitations to dinner extended, the menu not being divulged.

Though scowled at by soldiers, no insult was offered, and one Prussian guardsman warned the party about the presence of machine guns at certain points in the city. The one exception to the general air of kultured hospitality was a venerable woman who vented her feelings in constant repetitions of "Englander Schwein."

The general impression seemed to be that the officers were the advance guard of the victorious British army. Everyone admitted that the Germans had lost the war, and even conceded that "for a short time" conditions would be hard in the fatherland.

Marched Into Germany.

For Capt. the Rev. Robert Pearson, M.P.P., B.A., soldiers' representative in the Alberta Legislature, it is claimed that he has the distinction of being the first member of the Canadian army of occupation in Germany, to reach Canada. Interviewed, Capt. Pearson had many interesting reports to give in connection with conditions in the occupied country.

He has been commanding officer of the 9th Canadian Area Employment Company, stationed at Bonn, Germany, which is situated on the banks of the Rhine, and famed in history as one of the greatest centres of learning in Central Europe. Incidentally, it was the scene of the boyhood studies of the ex-Kaiser and later of his two sons, the Crown Prince and Prince Eitel Frederick.

Speaking on business conditions in the occupied district of Bonn and Cologne, Capt. Pearson declared that although everything appeared in good order, the people appearing to be well-dressed, there is an underlying restlessness in it all. There is a marked absence of nourishing food in the stores and in all cases the prices are exorbitant. At many places the children could be seen eating the black bread of war time. An inkling of the conditions may be better appreciated by a comparison of prices paid for necessities as compared with those of Canadian goods; Some of these cited by the visitor are: Soap $1 a cake; coffee $4 a pound, while meat (beef) recently $2 per pound, has been reduced to $1.60 per pound. The meat in general use is horseflesh, the price of which far exceeds that of even the highest grades of more expensive meats in this country.

"A considerable feeling of satisfaction was manifested by the Canadian troops as they marched on toward the Rhine," said the soldiers' representative, "and although the marching conditions were very severe there was such a splendid esprit-de-corps prevailing that, despite worn-out socks and bursting boots, the men doggedly plodded on, face to the front and scarcely a man dropped out during the entire eighteen days' march."

Capt. Pearson, who was formerly a well-known Methodist minister in the west, having been secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Calgary before enlisting, went to the front as a combatant officer, taking command of a company of the 28th Battalion. He took part in several notable engagements, being wounded in one of the hottest battles along the Somme.

Lightest Known Wood.

A consular report from Port Limon, Costa Rica, gives interesting details concerning the trade of that region in balsa or corkwood (Ochroma), said to be the lightest of all known woods. It has long been used in tropical America for making canoes and a special type of raft, also known as a balsa. It is very porous and a good insulator against heat and cold, and the report above mentioned states that it would be valuable for airplane construction. The young trees are soft and very sensitive to injury from vines. The trees are dioecious, the male tree being known as bumbo and the female as balsa real. The shipment of balsa wood has apparently not assumed large proportions, owing to the difficulty of transporting it from its native forests to the railway.—Scientific American.

English Poetry as Chants.

Masterpieces of English literature are now being set to chant music by the West London Ethical society. Swinburne's "The Holy Spirit of Man," Walt Whitman's "Whoever You Are" and Wordsworth's "The Soul That Rises Within Us" are among the poems lately thus sung, partly as unaccompanied solo, partly as harmonized chant. The president of the society entertains the rather bold hope of eventually obtaining the introduction into the English church service of readings from the masters of English literature.—New York Post.

Cure That Cold Don't Get Gripped

Take them at once when you feel the first chill or shiver—the first symptoms of a cold.

Taken then, they will prevent the Grippe. Taken after it has developed, there is nothing better for the pain and fever.

"Well," said the artist's wife, "I'm glad on one account that Reginald has become a cubist."

"What is that?" her friend asked. "Is he making more money than he did while he was painting real pictures?"

"No, he really isn't making as much, but formerly he had to hire girls to act as his models. Now all he needs is a pile of kindling wood."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Horse Deal.

In the hay market one afternoon recently a couple of farmers stopped to talk crops and horses.

"Are you in the market for a good horse?" asked one.

"Always ready to dicker," the other answered.

"Ever see that little bay mare of mine?"

"I think I know the critter."

"How'd you like to own her? She's yours at rock bottom price."

Gathering up his lines preparatory to leaving the spot, the other farmer replied:

"Well, John, I'd buy her this morning, but I hate to burst a dollar."—Youngstown Telegram.

Suffered Since Childhood!

Kidneys at the Root of the Evil

Think of it! The joys of youth marred by agonizing pains, and all hopes of a bright future blotted out by thoughts of a life burdened with Backache and other sufferings.

Such was the case of Mr. A. Cail until a good friend advised him that there was a remedy for his trouble and he would find it if he used Gin Pills. Read what Mr. Cail says:

"I was troubled with my Kidneys since childhood and spent a large amount of money on doctors trying to get cured. Instead of getting better I kept getting worse until a friend of mine advised me to try Gin Pills. I did so, and after taking one box I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

This remarkable testimonial was written by a man whose statement cannot be doubted. His reason for writing this letter of praise was—gratitude for relief that Gin Pills brought him. Suffering, you do the same if your case was similar? If you suffer now—don't suffer any longer. Use Gin Pills and obtain relief from Kidney or Bladder Trouble, and the pain, suffering and incapacity that they cause.

OUR INDIAN BROTHERS

SPLENDID RECORD OF REDMEN IN GREAT WAR.

Recent Reports Indicate That the Population of Aborigines in the Dominion Has Been Steadily Though Slowly Increasing—They Are Responding More Readily to Opportunities and Gaining More Wealth.

THOSE Canadians who still linger under the impression that Indians have no place in modern life except as interesting and rapidly disappearing remnants of a race with a picturesque past will learn to the contrary from the annual report just issued for the year ending March 31 last by the Department of Indian Affairs. In Canada there are now living 109,294 Indians, including 3,206 Eskimos, and that population is slowly but steadily increasing. Consumption, smallpox, measles and other diseases are still bad enemies, but experience for generations with these diseases is bringing about a certain immunity not equal to that enjoyed by whites, but enough, together with the better sanitary measures and methods of precaution taught under the aegis of the department, to prevent the wholesale decimation once reported.

The fact that the Indian must be reckoned with as a permanent Canadian asset lends further interest to this blue book, with its analyses of results attained by the Indian in many fields of endeavor. That he responds to opportunity and intelligent treatment is shown by the results chronicled of the "Greater Production" campaign started by the department among the Indians and the efforts put forth under the advice and assistance with seed, etc., of the department. There was great improvement at the Sarnia and Muncey Reserves, for example, and many Deseronto Indians had crops equal to any in Ontario.

James Fenimore Cooper introduced to us the Indian as a warrior. The annals of Canadian Indians in the present war show that they have not fallen away from the traditions of their ancestors. There has been much misconception as to the attitude of the Indians to the war. They secured the right to exemption from the operation of the Military Service Act because the Indian is very insistent on his treaty rights and will fight to the last gasp in modern ways to retain them. "We have treaty rights, and only independent and unconquered nations have treaties," say many of them. But turn from this controversy to read the war record of the Indians under enlistment. More than 3,500 Indians have enlisted, according to the records of the department, approximately 35 per cent. of the Indian male population of military age resident in the nine provinces. There were many others of whom the department had no information. Take the Indians of the Okanagan Agency as an example. In the Head-of-the-Lake band every unmarried, able-bodied male member between the ages of twenty and thirty-three went on active service, and other Okanagan bands gave almost equally splendid service. In the case of the Mississaugas of Scugog every male member of the band went overseas except one old man of sixty-five.

One Okanagan Indian, Pte. Geo. McLean, won the D.C.M. by killing single-handed nineteen Germans and capturing fourteen others with the aid of a dozen bombs. Lc.-Corpl. Johnson Paudash, M.M., 21st Battalion, a Mississauga of Rice Lake, was in every battle from Loos to Passchendaele, and distinguished himself many times. As a sniper alone he is reported to have killed 33 Germans. Many other Indian soldiers gave exceedingly good service as snipers. Capt. A. G. E. Smith, a Six Nations Indian of Brantford, was awarded the Military Cross.

Pte. Semia walked more than 500 miles from Lake St. Joseph, in the Patricia District, to enlist, and many others walked similar distances. John Campbell, a full-blooded Indian from the Far North, traveled three thousand miles by trail, canoe and river steamer to enlist at Vancouver. He started from the Arctic coast near Herschel Island, walking to the head of the Porcupine river, and thence to Fort Yukon, where he worked several months to secure the means of transportation to Vancouver.

In the nine Canadian provinces the Indians have a total income of $8,418,307, made up as follows: Value of farm products, including hay, $2,834,149; value of beef sold and that used for food, $388,885; wages earned, $2,043,137; receipts from land rentals and from timber, $137,088; earned by fishing, $823,-395; earned by hunting and trapping, $945,527; earned by other industries and occupations, $690,595; annuities paid and interest on Indian trust funds, $555,628.10. The capital of the Indian Trust Fund during the year increased to $3,665,187.35 from $7,870,230.36. The land sold for the Indians during the year amounted to 34,545 acres, realizing $136,230.98.

The quantity of surrendered lands in the hands of the Department was approximately 240,600 acres. The principal outstanding on account of Indian lands sold amounted to $3,305,519.84, a great deal of which is not yet due. The total value of real and personal property of Indians in the nine provinces is placed at $65,285,112. The total area of all reserves is 4,928,736 acres, of which 2,527,683 are under wood, 2,321,270 cleared but not cultivated, 179,374 under actual cultivation, and 753,909 fenced. Of this the Ontario reserves total 1,038,761 acres, the area under wood being 900,568 acres, cleared but not cultivated 70,876 acres, under actual cultivation 67,317 acres, and fenced 116,297 acres.

Caruso's Wonderful Chest.

Dr. William Lloyd, the English throat specialist, says of Caruso: "He is unique among tenors as a singing machine. The distance from his front teeth to the vocal cords is at least half an inch longer than that of any other great tenor I know, which accounts to a great extent for his extraordinary compass, pitch and volume of voice."

As an illustration of Caruso's phenomenal chest capacity Dr. Lloyd mentions that the other day the great tenor stood in his drawing room with his back against the wall. "When he had emptied his lungs of air we pushed my concert grand piano close up against his chest. He drew in a deep breath, expanding his chest, and pushed the piano some inches along over the carpet. This tremendous power accounts for his ability to sustain a note for forty seconds or more."

Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Famous Airman Speaks.

Maj. Robert Leckie, D.S.O., D.S.C., D.F.C., a Toronto airman with a distinguished record, who recently visited his home on leave, is looking forward to joining Col. Collishaw in the first flight across the Atlantic in April or May. Maj. Leckie has been overseas as a member of the R.A.F. for three years.

The major is of the opinion that the time is at hand when Canada should decide what her policy is going to be regarding an air service. One suggestion is that Canada should contribute to an Imperial Flying Corps, and another is that she should maintain and equip her own air force. There is much to be said in favor of either course, says the major, but the main issue needs attention at once.

Will the Government allow the hundreds of trained flyers now overseas to find employment with foreign Governments? he asks.

The size of any Canadian air force must be governed, Maj. Leckie believes, by the requirements of the country's army and navy, both of which will come to rely more and more on aerial reconnaissance. Airplanes will be used, he says, instead of a flotilla of light cruisers and destroyers, for scouting purposes, as they are much swifter.

Maj. Leckie thinks that if possible Canadian aviators should be given an opportunity to serve the Canadian Government.

VOYAGE OF HARD-LUCK SHIP

On Trip From Calcutta to United States She Had Many and Serious Troubles.

A steamship that arrived the other day at an Atlantic port after a three months' voyage with 117 passengers had troublous times logging the long course from Calcutta and South Africa, says the New York Sun. She stranded off an uncharted channel of Madagascar and was forced back to Durban for repairs.

She sailed again after three weeks' delay, returned because of a fire in the jute cargo in her after hold and finally got away. Three days out Edward Gibson, automobile agent of Detroit, died of influenza and was buried at sea. Then two Chinamen indulged in a dispute about the merits of their respective tongs; one cut the other in the abdomen, and believing he had committed murder, jumped overboard and was drowned.

Everything might have been placid aboard ship thereafter had it not been for two "nationalists" from the Transvaal, who noisily advocated the smashing of all flag allegiance and said particularly hard things about the Stars and Stripes and the British ensign. They were surprised when they were held up and sent to Ellis Island on the charge of uttering seditious sentiments. Their fellow passengers said they were among the I. W. W.'s of South Africa.

Dr. James Denton of Stamford, Conn., who had been 14 months in the Belgian Congo helping to treat about 5,000 natives for tropical diseases, praised the Belgians for their swiftness in driving out the Germans and regretted that he had come back too late to join the medical forces in France, as was his intention.

Mrs. Edward Calvert, who is known as Mme. Gainsborough to folks of Cape Town, and who coolly admits that she is the "smartest milliner in South Africa," comes here to buy goods.

LEFT BOTTLE AS SENTINEL

About 10 o'clock on the morning of the brigade's arrival at a beautiful little town that looked, under the morning summer sun, as if it might be a million miles from the battle front, the peaceful scene was accentuated by two boyish privates of squad 17 size, obviously strays from their company, at the side of the street just around the corner from headquarters.

One was sleeping, as only a soldier who has seen five days of battle can sleep, his head dangling carelessly over a mud-stained pack. The other had one shoe off, and was regarding ruefully, but rather listlessly, his capital wound of battle, a blistered foot. Before them, as conspicuous as the top sergeant at morning roll call, stood, in its labeled and tinseled glory, an empty champagne bottle. Every rank from sergeant to brigadier general passed them, tried to look shocked, and failed.

By-and-by the second private stretched his foot over the curbing and went to sleep, too. It wasn't until afternoon that a noncom, rounding up stragglers, awoke them.

"Where did you get that champagne?" asked the noncom (with motives beyond question).

"Well," explained the smaller of the pair, "we hadn't had anything to eat but iron rations for five days, and not much of that, then we lost our outfit, and when we landed here we started out to buy something. The only thing on sale in the whole town was a bottle of champagne, so we bought that."—Stars and Stripes.

Perseverance Does It.

"It's the allies' perseverance that won this war," said Senator Lewis.

"The allies suffered defeat after defeat, but from each defeat they learned something.

"It's like the advice which the editor of the Cannaminson Scimitar gave to an unlucky wooer who had been rejected by seven girls in turn. The editor wrote:

"'Unlucky Wooer—Go ahead. Don't be discouraged. Never say die. You must have learned a lot by what you have gone through. Strikes us, you must hold something like a record. Well, stick all your experience together and make love to the next girl who comes around and takes your fancy. If she don't reciprocate try another. Remember, you only want one girl to say 'Yes' and she'll probably last your life.'"

How It Would Help.

The "patriot" who talked a lot and did very little was holding forth as usual.

"I'm thinking seriously of offering my motorboat to the government," he brayed.

"Do you mean the boat you had me out in last summer when the engine stopped and we had to row ten miles back?" asked his friend.

"Yes, that's the one."

"Well, if you want to do your country a service," said the friend earnestly, "you should have given that boat to the Germans.

Vergil's Tomb in Danger.

The tomb of Vergil is in danger of destruction. This has for centuries been one of the literary shrines in the neighborhood of Naples. Whether the ashes of the poet were really placed there no one can be sure. But it is in the region which he loved, and the tradition that names it his last resting place may easily be correct. But the base of the hill has been honeycombed in recent years by quarriers of building stone. The work was done carelessly, and a few weeks ago the whole side of the hill caved, leaving the tomb perched on a lofty pinnacle of rock.—Boston

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS BEFORE BREAKFAST IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER IS TROUBLING YOU.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver troubles, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat, and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys active and the blood pure, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Seventh Day

By JULIA RICHARDSON

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

David Stirling, lieutenant-to-be, climbed the hotel steps wearily, acknowledged mechanically the greetings of the usual porch squad of people, and dropped into a chair—comfortable, but far from the receding crowd. Seven times he had repeated these motions with the same dejectedness, the same absent-minded manner, the same weary dropping into a chair.

Immediately afterward, the heads of the rocker brigade would meet, and the buzz of whispering voices arise, some sympathetic, some mildly angered. Scraps of sentences drifted to Dave's ears, such as, "Too bad! Poor fellow. It must have been her fault." "I wonder what the quarrel was about anyway." Some maintained that it was not her fault, but his fault. David tried to remember their names for future reference.

In the meantime, on this seventh day, Dave lit a cigarette and stared moodily out over the sea and sky, spread lavishly before him as if to console him with their beauty. For a time, the poetic half of his nature responded enough to isolate him from his disturbing thoughts. The sky was like turquoise, he thought, the sea like sapphire, the clouds and foam were pearls—but at this point his mind wandered to diamonds—engagements—girls—one girl, in particular. And he was back again in the world of his troubles. For the seventh time Dave reviewed the chain of events. Two weeks ago he had come to spend a month at the quiet summer resort in Maine to be near Carol Thatcher, his fiancee, before he left for the Southern training camp.

The first week had been Elysium, Utopia, and heaven all combined. Every night marked the end of a perfect day. Bathing, boating, fishing, walking on soft grass or cool pine needles or luxuriant white sand, not on hot pavings or cobblestones. And then—one day he was to meet Carol in their favorite spot, a large, cleared spot in the woods called the Cathedral, with moss for carpet and straight pines and spruces for pillars. As he approached the place, he heard voices, one masculine, the other Carol's. Dave could not be seen through the thick growth of trees.

The masculine voice said, "Then I am to have the pleasure of marrying you?"

Carol's laugh rang out, "You certainly are if I have my way about it, John, you old dear. Why, I've planned it for the last four years, ever since you entered, you know."

Dave did not quite understand the last sentence, but the first had been sufficient. He thought he understood that perfectly. Waiting to hear no more, he turned abruptly and made his way back to the road.

That evening a bellboy had given him a small package and a note, the package containing Carol's diamond, the note a frigid one to Mr. Stirling, saying that his unexplained failure to keep the appointment that afternoon seemed to the writer sufficient reason for discontinuing their betrothal.

"A mere alibi," muttered David. "She wants to be free for the other man, of course." Thus began his gloomy day on the porch, preceded by a brisk walk or a swim every morning. Carol had been playing with him, evidently, for the sake of the good times, his companionship—and of course, the diamond. All the while for four years she had loved this other man John, curse him! Dave was through with women—absolutely!

During the week the two avoided each other persistently, a fact soon noticed and recorded in the porch annals. Carol, just to show that she did not care, flirted outrageously with young and old alike.

David left the hotel rather early, taking a longer route to avoid meeting anyone he knew. As he entered the Cathedral from one path, a figure in white entered on the opposite side. It was Carol.

"Good evening," she said coldly.

"Good evening," replied David in the same tone, "Allow me to congratulate you on your coming marriage." It was the last thing he had intended to say, but in his confusion the words were spoken. Carol's eyes opened wide. "I'm sure I don't know what you mean, Mr. Stirling," she replied, trying to appear casual and indifferent. This was the first time the two had been together for a whole week—moreover the moon was shining, the setting ideal for romance. What each wanted most was to fall into each other's arms. But they had quarreled—hence the brave attempt at distant formality.

So David explained. As he explained, Carol's eyes grew happier and happier, merrier and merrier until they twinkled with laughter.

"David, you goose, do you know who that was? 'John' was John Flockton, an old playmate of mine. Four years ago he entered a school of theology and now he's a full-fledged minister—just received his degree. He's stopping a few miles from here and had motored over that day for a short call. Of course, I want him to marry me, that is—marry us. Do you understand now?"

"I do," said David, happy for the first time in seven of the longest days of his life.

German Hold on Roumania.

Germany is not an immediate neighbor of Roumania, but her relations have had particular significance. The old German, that which existed up to 1871, the sentimentalist and culture-seeking Germany of Goethe and Schiller, was loved in Roumania. At the beginning of the ninetieth century many Roumanian boys were in the universities of Leipsig and Munich, and many German merchants and professional men were established in Roumania. When Roumania elected, as King, Prince Carol Hohenzollern, these relations became still closer. But almost coincident with his arrival, Prussian arrogance began to make itself felt and Roumanian antipathy towards Prussia was aroused. Before the war the Germans, in spite of the Roumanian dislike for them, were attaining a strong economic hold on the country, which was the largest market in the Balkans for their trade. Most of the oil business was in their hands, and the greater part of the public debt was floated in Germany. But not because the Roumanians preferred it so. Since 1863, when the last Roumanian loan was floated in England, in spite of every effort, Roumania has been unable to raise a penny anywhere else. Roumanian loans, however, were always in British and French money, but they passed through German hands first. The Germans were Roumania's brokers and took advantage of them. Even the financiers of France did not help Roumania. The present Premier of Roumania, Marghiloman, who was Minister of Finance in 1913, after the Second Balkan War, went to Paris to negotiate a loan of 50,000,000 francs. He did not succeed and after some days in Berlin, the German Bank Disconto put at his disposal the money required, provided by French capital! I mention this fact because, whatever kind of peace we may have, if the Allies continue along the same lines the Germans will again have economic and consequently political influence; and the German political influence means war and disaster again and again. The humiliating conditions of the Treaty of Bucharest imposed by the Germans have left a painful scar in the Roumanian heart.

Napoleon Still Points Way.

In a tiny French village that is hardly a village any more, since shells almost removed it from the earth, one building has a tower standing untouched. A platform tops this tower and a miniature figure of Napoleon stands there facing and pointing toward the positions held by the Germans.

Thousands of shells have whizzed and exploded by this tower, but none has touched the tower or the figure of Napoleon pointing northward. Thousands of Americans, thousands of tracks, quantities of guns and ammunition and supplies have rolled over the main street by this figure pointing the way to the boche during the last few weeks.

Everyone has marveled that the tower with the miniature Napoleon withstood all bombardment, and many an American passing the statue among the ruins has remarked how appropriate is this defiant figure pointing the way.

War's Changes in Canada.

Canada opened the year with problems confronting her, perhaps the most serious in her history. During the war she has accomplished wonders, and still greater wonders will probably have to be accomplished by her. The population of Canada total about eight million, and she enlisted for active service roundly 400,000, or one in every twenty. Of these 55,000 have died and probably 45,000 more have been so physically impaired as to be comparatively useless for practical industrial endeavor.

Canada has thus to face a net loss, on one side, of 100,000 able-bodied effectives, besides paying a heavy burden on their account, either as pensions to themselves if alive, or to the dependents they leave if dead. On the other side is the fact that Canada, during the war, has been transformed from an agricultural to a manufacturing country. Vast industries have been called into being, such as those for making munitions, and now these must be resolved back into agencies of peaceful industrial progress.

In the manufacture of munitions were employed some 250,000 workers, with probably 750,000 more engaged in the output of other war materials. The shutting down of these factories will mean the throwing out of employment of a total working army to be brought home for demobilization. Even if these factories be kept going, the continuance will solve only one aspect of the industrial problem, namely, the keeping employed of those who have entered these works since the war began, leaving the returning soldiers to be provided for. But obviously these soldiers are, above all others, the ones most entitled to first consideration.

In Canada, counting the dependents of both soldiers and "war-workers," it is safe to say that some two million people, or about one-fourth of the entire population, will be affected by the new conditions now arising.—American Review of Reviews.

Canada's Standing in Stock.

In Holland, before the war, there were, on the average, twenty-nine cattle of all kinds to each hundred acres of land in farms, in Denmark 25, in Germany 16, in France 12, in Italy 10, in Australia 8, in the United States the same, and in Canada only six.

Canada makes an equally poor showing in dairy cattle, Holland having 16 to each hundred acres in farms, Denmark 14, Germany 8, Great Britain, Italy and France 5 each, United States 3 and Canada 2. Australia and Argentine are lower still in this scale, the former having one cow per 100 acres in farms, and the latter one to 200 acres.

In hogs Denmark, before the war, had 22 per 100 acres, Holland 19, Germany 14, United States 8, Ireland 7, France 6, Great Britain 5, Italy 4 and Canada 3.

Fertility From Rain and Snow.

Rain and snowfall do more than provide the necessary moisture for crop growth. They add to the fertility in the soil as well. Mr. Frank T. Shutt, Dominion Chemist, has been carrying on an investigation for years at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, for the purpose of learning how much fertility is provided in this way. Taking the average of ten years, he says that over 6¾ pounds of nitrogen per acre was supplied at the Ottawa farm in this way—a little less than 6½ pounds by rainfall and over one pound per acre by snow.

Law on Pulling Down Trousers Leg.

It is hard to believe that a man who was sober would spend half a minute, or seven seconds, in pulling down one leg of a pair of trousers. But we cannot say as a matter of law that if he was sober he did not do so. What we do say, however, is that when a man has at least the whole highway, including a sidewalk devoted to foot passengers from which to choose his way, it is not the act of a prudent man who wants to pull down one leg of his trousers to select a street railway track eight seconds ahead and away from a corner from which an electric car may emerge at any moment, and to stoop over to pull down his trousers without again looking up until he is run over.—See Jordan v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 120 Mass. 1.—Law Notes.

HE ATE HIS BOOTS.

Experience of Heroic Bishop in the Far North.

"I'll eat my boots!" is an expression that many a man has given vent to, but few there are who have accomplished the task. The Bishop of Yukon is one of them.

Rev. Isaac O. Stringer, D. D., Bishop of Yukon, Dawson, is his full title and address. As befits his boundless parish of towering peak and mighty canyon with their rushing cataracts, the bishop is a big man, mentally and physically. He is a quiet man, speaking only when there is something to be said, and, unlike some lesser divines, he stops when he has finished. He is such a man as Ralph Connor would delight to immortalize.

The lure of the wild gripped Isaac O. Stringer when he was a student at Toronto University and Wycliffe College. An urgent demand for a man to go to Herschell Island in the Arctic, near the mouth of the Mackenzie River, came in, and as president of the Missionary Society of Wycliffe, young Stringer was expected to find the man. Student after student refused to face the exile and danger of what was then an unknown but certainly desolate region. The inhabitants were reputedly barbarous and dangerous, and the proposition failed to attract anyone, with the exception of the Missionary Society president himself. Realizing that he had no right to ask another man to go where he would not go himself, the president volunteered for the post. His offer was accepted, and Isaac Stringer disappeared into the snow and loneliness of the far Nor'-West for two years. At the end of that time he reappeared for a short time, only to return to his distant parish carrying with him the girl who had promised to wait and share his lot should he decide to make his home in the Yukon.

For many years the Rev. Mr. Stringer and his wife labored among the Eskimos of the Arctic coast, apparently without any results. Results, however, came in a hurry, and now there is hardly a stronger native church in Canada than that to be found at the mouth of the Mackenzie river. For twelve years the devoted missionary and his wife labored in their lonely field until impaired health compelled Mr. Stringer to accept the rectorate of White Horse in the Yukon Territory. Not long afterwards Bishop Bumpas retired from active service and the choice of a man to take his place fell upon Rev. I. O. Stringer.

Since his appointment to the bishopric Dr. Stringer has worked heroically, covering his territory completely. The dangers he has faced and overcome are such as fall to the lot of few men, even in these wild and desolate regions. Blazing trails on foot, with dog team and pack horse, carrying the gospel into every corner of that vast region, has all been part of the day's work.

It was while on one of these trails that Bishop Stringer ate his boots. Returning across the Rockies after a visit to a far-distant post, he and a companion got caught in a fog. For several days the fog did not lift and the two men were compelled to proceed blindly by guesswork, carving footholds in the wall of perpetual snow that confronted them. Their provisions gone, they were compelled to shred and eat their mucklucks, or Eskimo boots. Spent and famished, they managed to reach an outpost, but the dangers they came through can be appreciated by the fact that a year later a party of Northwest Mounted Police were lost in the same spot and none returned to tell the tale.

The only starch about Bishop Stringer is in his collar, and that is a concession to the human weakness of the conventional east. In the Far West he is one of the people, and it is said that he infinitely prefers the cheery and unconventional "Hullo, Bish'!" of his parishioners to the prim and proper "Your Lordship."

On one occasion as the Bishop, swathed in his traveling furs, stepped from his dog-sleigh he was accosted by a teamster coming in the opposite direction.

"Hullo, stranger; Where you come from?"

The bishop told him and asked how the trail was ahead. The man's answer was a stream of profanity, copious and complete.

"How'd you find the trail?" asked the teamster at the close of his ornamental oratory.

"Just the same!" said the bishop, quietly. "Just the same!"

The Wolfe dinner which prior to the war was held every New Year at Westerham, Kent, England, where the hero of Quebec was born, was not revived this year, many of the old attendants still being in France. An interesting proposal, however, is afoot to secure a German gun captured by the Canadians to place in front of the fine statue of Wolfe, unveiled on New Year, 1911, by Lord Roberts.

YOUTH IS PRIDE OF ITALY

Only Twelve Years Old, but He Has Won Great Distinction as a Brave Soldier.

On going to see the army of the Grappa a writer for the Marzocco met the smallest soldier in the Italian army—a boy refugee of twelve, in the telephone service. His uniform bears distinctive marks for wounds. Besides he has been decorated. His name is Patriarca. He was born at San Daniele of Friuli. His parents died when he was very young and he worked in a carpenter's shop.

After Caporetto he left his native country, and from that day the war began for him. In the retreat he joined a detachment of arditi, and with them performed prodigies of valor. On Monte Tomba, in November, when the German hordes pressed on from the Quero to overcome the defenses of Mount Grappa and of the Piave at one stroke, he went out in a squad with several arditi. He carried three hand grenades, larger than his little hands, but the arditi had taught him to throw them like stones at the swallows.

He arrived at the lines and pushed on to a point well within the enemy lines till he reached a group of Germans, comprising a Prussian officer and three soldiers with machine guns. A grenade shot out from his hand, and it was well aimed. The officer was crushed to earth. The frightened soldiers raised their hands. The boy threatened them, gesticulating with the other bombs.

He drove the three big soldiers before him like sheep, dragging their machine gun. This story, which reads like a fable, is only a single page in the marvelous military history of Master Patriarca.—Italian-American News Bureau.

QUIET AND PATIENT PEOPLE

In spite of the excesses that have marked the ascendancy of the bolsheviki in Russia, the typical Russian is a patient, kindly and orderly sort of person. Mr. Greiner, who visited Russia as a member of the American railway commission, tells the readers of Russia that he found Russians better behaved in public than Americans often are.

The trolley cars, he says, were always jammed with people, mostly by soldiers who did not pay fare. In America, in such circumstances, we find that as soon as a car stops the rule is usually each man for himself and the devil take the hindmost. It was therefore a surprise to us to observe that in Petrograd the people would of their own volition form a line and take their turn in getting on the car. We saw the same characteristic everywhere. Although there were no traffic officers on the streets, vehicles of all kinds in the most crowded thoroughfares worked their way through without undue disturbance or interference with each other.

All Russians smoke cigarettes, and the supply is short. When a dealer gets in a new stock he puts up a sign to that effect; but the people do not crowd into the store in the way that American storekeepers like to see, but form a long line on the street, each person taking his turn in getting cigarettes, and all without any confusion or apparent regulation. They followed the same procedure in getting food, especially bread and milk; we saw lines of people standing all night long in order to get an early supply in the morning. They talked to each other cheerfully and constantly and appeared to be enjoying the occasion.—Youth's Companion.

Know the Trees In Winter.

No tree lover should be content to know the trees only in summer. The summer trees may be more beautiful than the bare trees of winter, but it is the leafless tree that most clearly betrays the specific arboreal characteristic. Leaves are distinctive, but the distinction is somewhat superficial, for the leaves are no more than the summer dress. When the leaves are gone the tree stands more truly disclosed. Yet comparatively few of those who familiarly know the trees of summer can readily recognize all their friends in the honest nudity of winter.

Fish Fertilizer.

The oldest industry to make use of waste for fertilizing is the fish industry. The custom of fertilizing crops with fish existed among the Indians before the arrival of white settlers. It is said that for fertilizing corn one or two fish were buried in each hill. This procedure was adopted by the colonists, and at the time of a large catch the surplus fish were simply spread broadcast over the fields. In places where fish were plentiful this disposal of an oversupply of fish has been practical until very recent times.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruit laxative for stomach, liver, bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

The Lawyer's Choice.

A judge and joking lawyer were conversing about the doctrine of transmigration of the souls of men into animals. "Now," said the judge, "suppose you and I were turned into a horse and an ass, which would you prefer to be?"

"The ass, to be sure," replied the lawyer.

"Why?" asked the judge.

"Because I have heard of an ass being a judge, but a horse never."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me. A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Yes, Bon-Opto is a prescription and not a secret remedy. Its constituents are well known to eminent oculists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice in patients whose eyes were stumbled through overwork or strain. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by WARNE DRUG CO. & OTHERS.

One Year Ago Germany Launched Master Offensive On the Western Front

Strange Contrast in Paris To-day —Laughing Crowds Throng the Streets and Children Play Beneath Wheels of German Guns.

AUTOCRACY CRUSHED

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 15.—One year ago to-day the world hovered in anticipation of the launching of Germany's master offensive of the war. On March 21 the blow was struck.

To-day the final work of the peace settlement was well under way, the terms of which will bring Germany militarily to her knees.

No greater picture of the triumph of right over might could be presented than the contrast of the President of the world's greatest democracy riding through the streets of Paris to-day on his way to the peace deliberations and these same streets a year ago.

A brilliant moon will bathe the boulevards and the beautiful Champs Elysee with silver light to-night. A year ago the same brilliance would have meant terror and destruction, as the German airplanes were around. Sirens shrieked, the streets became deserted and the city seemed scarcely to breathe. At night laughing crowds thronged the streets. Hundreds of children played in the Champs Elysee this afternoon beneath the wheels of long lines of German guns, which a year ago were hurling death in support of autocracy's last assault.

IN GERMANY.

In Germany, hunger and revolution have taken the place of Junkerdom. The allied delegates to Brussels have presented the final conditions to Germany by which she is forced to turn over her magnificent merchant fleet as part payment for food from the larders of her enemies.

As the committees were winding up the work of their final recommendations, the word from every delegation was, "We are now waiting for President Wilson." Numerous questions are awaiting his final word. For instance the matter of the disposition of the German fleet will be presented to him for his opinion.

With France and Italy desiring a portion of these vessels, it is apparent that a disagreement also has developed between the naval and the civilian representatives on other delegations. The naval men, in what might be regarded as a curious manner, from the standpoint of precedent, favor sinking the ships. One of their arguments is that such a course will be in alignment with the disarmament move. The civilians oppose sinking the ships on the grounds of economic loss. Excepting such side issues the stage has been completely set for speeding the work of bringing about peace.

If all moves on schedule the treaty may be ready and the Germans summoned by the anniversary of the very day when they began their last desperate attempt to conquer the world.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

Would-be Assassin Makes Amazing Statement

(United Press.)

PARIS, March 15.— Emile Cottin, under sentence of death for shooting Premier Clemenceau, probably will be executed within fifteen days, it was announced to-day. The young anarchist was convicted and sentenced after a trial lasting but a few hours. He was pale and nervous throughout the proceedings.

A great crowd attended the trial. Cottin was in charge of four Republican guards.

Cottin made a most amazing statement after Capt. Morin, the prosecutor, had asked for the death penalty on the ground that there had been premeditation and no mitigating circumstances.

Cottin said he was a militant anarchist, an anti-militarist, an anti-patriot, and against all constituted authority. "I would have shot the Kaiser with more relish than M. Clemenceau, because he too represented authority," he continued. "I have no country. My country is the world.

He made a long rambling statement saying that he glorified in the deed he had done and that he favoured Bolshevism and Spartacanism and wished to strike down all who were in authority.

Wilson Will Be Candidate

Pershing, Harding or Wood Will be Republican Candidate.

(Special to The Examiner.)

RICHMOND, Vt., March 15.—Woodrow Wilson will again serve the United States as President, according to Norman E. Mack, New York's former National Democratic chairman. Mack, here on a visit, predicted that Wilson will be the choice of the Democrats in 1920.

Pershing, Harding or Wood will be the Republican candidate is Mack's opinion.

FRANK JENNE Says:

Among the new "hat arrivals" at my shop are types of headgear worthy of the best dressed, most carefully groomed gentlemen in the land. There is a nicely shaped, new, soft hat for motoring and business, and there is a score of other new styles from which to pick one for the purpose you wish. "Come to me."

THE PEACE CONFERENCE

Wilson Will Urge the Inclusion of the League of Nations.

MILITARY TERMS

By Carl D. Groat.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 15.—President Wilson to-day was expected to urge the inclusion of the League of Nations in the preliminary peace treaty with Germany. It was understood he believes that such a course not only is possible, but advisable.

The President's position in this regard was to be made known, it was understood, either at an informal meeting this afternoon or at the session of the Supreme War Council, called for three o'clock this afternoon. At the noon meeting he was to be officially acquainted with the progress made in the peace work during his absence.

Despite the activities of the various committees while the President was away, his return has given new impetus to every department of the Peace Conference, owing to the fact that settlement of many questions was contingent on his judgment, and leaders were more hopeful than ever to-day that the preliminary treaty would be ready for submission to the Germany between March 20 and 25. Under this schedule there will be an early meeting of the League of Nations committee, of which Wilson is chairman, at which various nationalities, including neutrals, will be sounded for suggestions and amendments. The President pointed out that he does not expect the complete structure of the League to be erected at once, but it is understood he favours adoption of the present constitution with a minimum of amendments as a foundation.

The meeting of the Supreme Council this afternoon was called specially for the purpose of discussing military terms of the treaty, preparatory to drawing up the complete peace next week.

Four Thousand Men Are Still Out in New York.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, March 15.— The New York harbour strike dwindled rapidly to-day as the boat owners met the men's demands for an eight hour day and higher pay, and operations were resumed.

According to the estimate of President Delahunty, of the Marine Workers' affiliation, four thousand men were still on strike this morning. This is about thirty per cent. of the number that originally quit.

(Special to Examiner.)

License Inspector Luke became suspicious of the contents of the rig and the result was the arrest of Krestyl and his appearance in the police court yesterday. He was fined $200 and costs.

Acute Unrest in Germany

British Troops may have to Enlarge Bridgeheads.

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, March 15. — "Acute unrest prevails in the whole Westphalian industrial region and it will probably be necessary to enlarge the bridgehead in that direction," says a despatch to the Mail from its correspondent with the British army.

The German province of Westphalia is one of the most important industrial districts of Europe. It has one of the richest coal fields in the world and the iron industry there has been developed on a vast scale. The British bridgehead east of the Rhine is semi-circular in shape, centering about Cologne, the radius of the circle being approximately about eighteen miles. It does not reach the line between the Rhine provinces and Westphalia at present.

Unless the ship is delayed by severe weather, she is expected to arrive here next Wednesday.

LOCATING BOUNDARIES

Map Makers of Europe Will Soon Have a New Job on Their Hands.

THE PROGRAMME

(Special to Examiner.)

PARIS, March 15. — The British programme at the peace conference is understood to contemplate the signing of separate preliminary treaties with the Central Allies as soon as possible after Germany is disposed of. Next would come the consideration of any amendments to the present constitution of the league of nations and then the league would be whipped into permanent form. The final peace treaty would follow, and would include league of nations plan.

The leading thought amongst the British at the present moment seems to be to strip the preliminary peace terms of all unnecessary incumbrances and secure the signature of that document so that the world can begin to settle back to normal. One of the first questions to be considered by the council of ten will be the boundary between Poland and Germany.

The Polish Boundary Commission, as well as the general territorial commission has virtually agreed unanimously on this boundary. While no official announcement has been made it is known that Danzig is included in Poland, and that the commissions have agreed upon a boundary which would give Poland strategic points which should make her an effective barrier between Bolshevism and western Europe.

World's Happenings

PARIS, March 15. — The German delegates will be given three days in which to sign the peace treaty. They will be conducted from Versailles to Paris each day under guard.

THE HAGUE IS CAPITAL.

LONDON, March 15. — It is learned that probably the permanent seat of the League of Nations will be at the Hague instead of Brussels as at first suggested.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

PARIS, March 15.—Emile Cottin, who recently attempted the life of Premier Clemenceau, was sentenced to death yesterday.

AMAZONS IN BERLIN.

LONDON, March 15. — Special despatches from Berlin say that women with knives hacked to death many who were taken prisoners.

PLANNING CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, March 15. — United States Senators are planning a campaign against the League of Nations project.

DEFINITE DECISION TO-DAY.

PARIS, March 15. — The Supreme Council will meet to-day to definitely consider all naval and military conditions to be imposed on Germany.

Carmania Will Dock To-morrow

(Special to Examiner.)

HALIFAX, March 15. — It was announced at the Robert Reford agency here to-day that the steamer Carmania, which is expected to dock at 7 o'clock to-morrow evening, will not proceed to New York, after landing the Princess Patricias, 49th Battalion and other units of the third division, but will take on freight and passengers here, sailing, it is anticipated, on the 25th for Liverpool.

Prof. Bell Went to Germany Some Years Ago and the Huns Secured His Plans.

DEADLY GAS

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 15.—Dr. Montraville Wood, Chicago, who was engaged in the secret service of the United States ferretting out hidden wireless plans for one and a half years, declared here yesterday before the Brantford Kiwan's Club that Prof. Alexander Graham Bell was the real inventor of the Zeppelin airship and that Count Zeppelin had actually stolen the plans from the inventor of the telephone. Many years ago Dr. Bell visited Germany and went to Zeppelin to purchase aluminum, when the latter begged for permission to carry out the construction and to name the ship the Zeppelin. It was then that Dr. Bell's plans were secured by the Germans and their airships were the result.

Dr. Wood declared that the gathering of peach stones by the different Allied nations was not for the purpose of making gas masks, but to make a deadly gas, of which several tanks arrived in France just before the armistice.

Not Much Hope for Better Train Service

Meeting Was Held This Morning in the City Hall — Officials Present.

Mr. S. McMillan, Divisional Superintendant of the G.T.R. and Mr. A. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent of the same railroad, met the Railway Committee of the City Council in the Committee room this morning at 10 o'clock.

Ald. Edgar, Chairman of the Railway Committee occupied the Chair. Representatives of the Commercial Travellers' Association and Campbellford were present and advanced many suggestions regarding better train service in this vicinity.

Ald. J. J. Turner in addressing the meeting emphasized the fact that money had to be spent in order to get money. He spoke especially on the train service which at present exists between this city and Port Hope.

He asked for the return of the Port Hope train which used to leave Peterboro at 8 o'clock and return to the city at 12 o'clock noon. "This was a very satisfactory train," he concluded.

Mayor Duncan asked that the Belleville train which arrives here at 8.26 in the evening be continued to Lindsay. At present it stops at Peterboro.

Mr. Stanley Couper, President of the Commercial Travellers' Association advocated putting the Belleville local back at 7.50 p.m., instead of 6.50 p.m., the time at which it arrives in the city now. In this way direct communications could be made with Toronto. The restoration of the "Two Spot" which ran from Belleville to Brockville on the front was asked for.

Dr. George Hay, V.S., Mayor of Campbellford, did more than intimate that a train going east later in the evening was necessary for the welfare of his home town and the travelling fraternity in general.

SAFETY FIRST.

The Ontario Safety League's latest action in issuing a circular to automobile owners in the province, urging them to be careful in their driving, will be commended generally. The circular reads as follows:

"To Drivers of Vehicles: There are a great many fatal automobile accidents each month within our Province, and we ask your earnest and sincere help to prevent them. Let us cut out these accidents by driving more slowly and more carefully, exercising special care when approaching railway tracks, churches, schools, at street intersections, and in congested centres. Look always—and always keep your car under control."

That there is need for such a warning will not be denied even by motorists. There is too much reckless driving; too frequent an inclination to take chances and in many cases too great a tendency to ignore the rights of pedestrians. The man on foot still has the legal right to cross city streets—although the insolent soundind of auto horns by inconsiderate motorists often makes one doubt whether or not the law has not been changed and that the streets belong to the automobilists. The advice of the Safety League is sound and should be acted upon by the owners of cars throughout the province. A few seconds gained at the danger of human life do not compensate for the risk taken.

THE STORY OF THE CELLAR.

Whatever may be their views in regard to the prohibition question, those who read the report of the speech delivered in the House on Thursday of Mr. Joseph Archambault, member for Chambly-Verchères, cannot fail to have been impressed by his references to the people whose cellars are full of liquor. Mr. Archambault uncovered the weak joint in the Ontario Temperance Act, the section of the Act which permits individuals to have and consume on their own premises, and which has resolved itself into class legislation, in somuch as the rich man with a thirst was naturally able to lay in a private stock, while his brother with less of this world's goods to his credit, found it impossible to secure an adequate supply. This condition of affairs has done more harm to the cause of temperance in this province than any other feature of the government's legislation, and Mr Archambault's advice to "clean out the cellars" has been echoed by more than one conscientious supporter of prohibition, who realized that under the present system the poor man was being discriminated against. The men being discriminated against. The men-jocular proposal that the people with liquor in the cellars should be compelled to wear a badge with a yellow star for every case of liquor in their homes might make the average Ontario city look like a Union convention of half a dozen fraternal societies.

WOULD BE A GREAT PITY.

The case on behalf of the people who favour the re-enactment of the daylight saving system this year is adding and there is apparently some danwhich says:

A despatch from Ottawa yesterday states that there is some doubt that the order-in-council authorizing the Daylight Saving plan will be passed. Objection to the scheme is developing and there is apparently some danger that unless the friends of the measure come to its rescue it may be dropped.

It would be a most unfortunate thing if this happened. Every city and town dweller in Canada benefitted by the arrangement last summer. To many thousands of these it was a veritable God-send, giving as it did an extra hour for recreation or healthful outdoor work and saving materially on lighting bills. The United States and Great Britain have continued the arrangement and if Canada fails to follow the example of the latter country complications are bound to result. It is true that the farmers, from whom the only serious objections are coming, did not directly benefit by the scheme. Probably a small proportion of these, truck and dairy farmers, found it a hardship to begin the day at the very early hour necessary to catch the city markets under the new arrangement but these are, after all, only a small proportion of the farming population. It would be a great pity if Parliament allowed itself to be stampeded by the outcries of a small section of the population against a plan which involves such a real benefit to the majority.

The views so expressed by our Montreal contemporary have been endorsed by the urban press in all parts of Canada, and the government would be well advised not to be carried away by fears of losing popularity in the rural sections.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The latest intelligence from Ottawa is that the government is preparing to drop the daylight saving scheme. The reason has been summed up by the Toronto Globe as a desire on the part of the government to save votes in the country districts and this explanation is probably the correct one, in view of the strong opposition that has been made by the farmers to a continuance of the scheme this year. This opposition, it is said, developed strongly at the recent government caucus, and as the city members did not press their side of the case very strongly, the government has practically decided to throw the measure overboard. The situation in the caucus was much the same as arises sometimes in the case of the vote on a money by-law in a municipality. The opponents of the by-law usually fight the proposition tooth and nail and while possibly the majority of the ratepayers favour the measure yet their support is lukewarm and indifferent and as a result the Opposition often have their way.

However, the issue in regard to daylight saving is not yet settled. It is complicated by the fact that the system will be used again this year in the United States and as a result there will be confusion along the border, especially with the railways. It looks as if the latter would be forced to adopt the United States' time no matter what Ottawa decides and so if the scheme is not re-enacted by the government, the railways will be operated according to the one time system, while the rest of the country will be an hour different. This will cause far more inconvenience to more people than the farming community suffered last year, and even in the face of the opposition from the rural districts the government would be well advised to consider something more than the vote-producing potentiality of the policy they adopt.

A COMMENCEMENT.

The news that General Liman von Sanders, former German commander in chief in Turkey, whose villainies are notorious, has been arrested while on his way to Berlin, together with several Turkish officers charged with violation of the rules of war, will be noted with unconcealed satisfaction. It is a commencement, it may be trusted, of a large number of similar arrests, commencing with that of the former Kaiser of Germany, which will be ordered by the allied authorities. There were hopes that Marshal Foch might himself command certain German leaders and highly placed criminals to be handed over to the authorities under the terms of the armistice and in order to prevent the possibility of their escape from justice, and if there are further violations of the armistice pending the signature of peace many would like to see such a condition imposed.

The prompt handing over to the Allies of the principal criminals who planned the war and carried it out with calculated brutality and in violation of the rules of war and of humanity must certainly be made a condition of peace with Germany and its accomplices; otherwise there will be great difficulty in bringing the culprits to justice. The news which gained currency a few days ago that the committee of the peace conference, intrusted with the consideration of the matter had decided that there was no law or precedent under which William Hohenzollern himself could be proceeded against for his share of responsibility in connection with the war and its brutalities caused a feeling of profound disappointment, and there was corresponding relief when it failed to receive verification. There may be no absolute precedent for the prosecution of a monarch for conspiring to cause war and for permitting his army and navy from carrying it on with unspeakable atrocity, but the peace conference was not formed merely to act in accordance with established precedents but to create them wherever necessary.

If it were true that the former Kaiser could not be prosecuted for his share in the war it would be still more true that his agents could not be prosecuted, for they could claim, and very likely truthfully, that they were acting under specific orders, and that as loyal soldiers, sailors and subjects they were bound to obey. Justice will not be satisfied until the Kaiser and his creatures, the military and naval leaders who ordered the atrocities in invaded countries and on high seas, and the villains who so ruthlessly and gleefully committed them are brought before an international tribunal and made to suffer the full measure of punishment for their crimes. Ferdinand of Bulgaria, Enver and Talaat and other monsters who were responsible for the crimes in Serbia, Armenia and elsewhere have all to be called to account and the sooner steps are taken to secure their persons the better.—New York Herald.

CORNCOBS PUT TO GOOD USE

Belief That They Can Be Made the Nucleus of a Great and Profitable Industry.

Corncobs—a great waste product in the world's greatest corn-producing nation—have been made to yield adhesive gum and other useful substances in quantities sufficient to convince chemists of the United States department of agriculture that the nucleus of a profitable and important industry lies in this direction.

In addition to adhesive gum, experiments have produced cellulose and glucose, both of which have many commercial uses. The glucose as produced crystallizes well, and it is believed can be used in the same ways as crystalline glucose from starch. Manufacture of alcohol by the fermentation of corncob glucose appears practicable if sulphuric acid is obtainable cheaply.

To utilize corncobs commercially, the chemists believe, a large and costly plant would be necessary, and the bureau of chemistry does not advise any enterprise of the sort in war time.

MUST HAVE CONTRACTS FOR ELECTRIC POWER

Sir Adam Beck Replies to Lakefield Interests.

LAKEFIELD, March 15.—The following letter has been received by Mr. W. Sherin, village clerk, re the Hydro Electric Commission, taking over the dam at Lakefield.

Hydro Electric Power Commission
Toronto, March 8 1919.

Mr. W. Sherin
Municipal Clerk and Treasurer
Lakefield Ontario.

Dear Sir,—Yours of the 4th instant enclosing resolution of your Council requesting the Commission to take steps to expropriate the Dickson Company's Property at Lakefield came duly to hand.

I note what you say respecting the advisability of this property being secured for the municipality rather than for a private company and you ask that the commission take steps to expropriate.

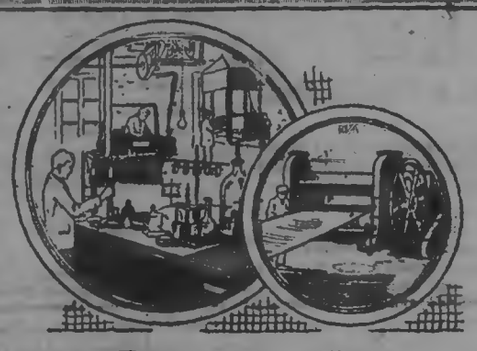
Under the Power Commission Act before any proceeding of this kind can be entered into, it is necessary that the Commission should first have contracts for the power to be supplied to make sure that the money invested will be revenue producing, and the Commission's right to expropriate water power and sites has only been exercised where there are a group of municipalities or customers to contract for and receive the energy.

Yours truly,
A. Beck, Chairman.

MRS. COURTRICE TO GIVE ADDRESS IN PETERBORO

The visit of Mrs. Courtrice of Toronto to Peterboro under the auspices of Queen Mary Parent's Circle should be an event that will mean much in developing the proper relationship between the school and the home. Mrs. Courtrice who for the past four years has been a member of the Toronto Board of Education will give an address in the Collegiate Assembly Hall on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock. There will also be a musical programme. The public is cordially invited to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Park, the Misses Harington, Caldwell and Grieve and others will contribute to the musical programme.



Why Dominion Friction Surface Belting is more than Waterproofed Cotton Fabric

While all rubber transmission belting is built on the same principle and one piece looks much like another, there is a vast difference when in actual use on the pulleys.

In Dominion Friction Surface Belting the difference is so markedly apparent that it admits of no comparison.

While we use only the highest grade cotton fabric and vulcanize it to give strength and resistance to water, then take out the stretch and cure it properly, we have advanced far beyond these primary requirements, and have developed through more than fifty years of research and thousands of experiments a rubber friction compound that makes our belting take a grip on the pulleys which eliminates practically all wastage of power.

Our belting experts will be glad to demonstrate how this dual purpose belting will "speed up" your production just as they have for many other Canadian Manufacturers.

The services are at your disposal through any of our service branches, phone or wire the one nearest you, it places you under no obligation.

Sanitary Inspector Reports Some Dairies Are Unclean

AN IMPORTANT DUTY

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton has just completed another inspection of the premises of fifty-four dairies, which furnish the bulk of the milk consumed in Peterboro. They are located in the townships immediately adjoining the city. It is probably generally known that the thirty-five vendors in this city obtain a considerable quantity of their milk from farmers who are usually engaged in both dairying and agriculture. It is part of his duty to obtain from the dealers information pertaining to their sources of supply, and consequently his investigations lead back to the ultimate stables where the cattle are housed during the winter months.

Some are Excellent.

Mr. Stapleton stated that some of the dairies are above criticism. These are owned by farmers who are interested in their industry and in their herds. In quite a few cases they have on their own initiative carried out extensive improvements in their stables with the object and doubtless with the effect of making their premises as sanitary as possible. The winter rations to their cattle are not stinted, and thus the milk is not only protected from foreign contamination but it also possesses a richness that is the "proof of the pudding." This "collar" of cream at the top of the bottle is a visible quality that specially appeals to the consumer. It is the dairyman's Babcock test, and the deeper the layer of cream the higher the householder's appraisal of his daily milk.

Mr. Stapleton stated that it was a pleasure to visit these dairies, to realize that the proprietors are keeping abreast with the advanced ideas in their industry, and are actually anticipating suggestions and demands which, they evidently recognize, their customers have a right to advance and insist upon fulfillment. Their stables are well ventilated and lighted, the walls are white-washed, and the cattle are kept clean and well combed, a condition which most persons will understand as a first necessary to proper care. The bedding is ample, and in the words of the dairy instructors, the herd is made happy.

Some are Fair.

There are other farmers who are only half hearted in their work, and probably only half convinced of the desirability and value of unflagging attentions to their cattle and to the stables. They have been requested and some of them warned to put their premises in better condition, and of this class there is hope that they will gradually qualify for ranking with the best.

Others Are Intolerable.

At the bottom of the list are the careless dairymen, who are unworthy of their industry. "I have warned these fellows," Mr. Stapleton remarked, "that they must clean up, but it seems to be no use. I told some of them this week that unless I saw a marked change when I made the next visit they will simply be prohibited from selling their milk in Peterboro."

These farmers have been tolerated too long. If they will not realize that they are inviting disaster to the business that yields a fair percentage of their profits; they should be made to understand that their carelessness is a menace to the health of the citizens who buy their milk. Another consideration is the fact that vendors do not keep separate the milk they purchase from the producers, and it probably happens that in the mixing the best milk is reduced to the level of the bad.

There are farmers who retail the milk they have secured only from their own herds, but the mixing practice is not uncommon. These third-rate daiymen are almost beyond redemption, the Sanitary Inspector has concluded. Their stables are unspeakable, their cattle are not bedded and their feed runs largely to straw. The stalls are the limit of uncleanness, and the appearance of the cows may be visualized, but not described. Mr. Stapleton says that these stables should be banned, and the local authorities are armed with plenary powers.

Hesitates to Prosecute.

It may be observed here that the present Sanitary Inspector is cordial to newspaper men, he is also reticent, but it is obvious that he is reluctant to prosecute offenders against the public health laws. This applies to citizens as well as to dairymen, but the policy of persuasion can be carried too far. When personal requests and appeals fail, then demands should be backed up by the court penalties.

It is unnecessary to refer to the importance of maintaining the purity of the city's supply of raw milk, but in fact that the Sanitary Inspector's visits to dairies are not frequently mentioned should not be interpreted by some milk producers as a sign of local unconcern. The citizens simply intrust this responsibility to the Inspector, and they would probably welcome regular reports of the conditions which he finds in his visits to the dairies.

Publish the Names.

The butter fat tests are in a sense quantitative rather than qualitative, and the farmer who is selling milk that registers high in richness, and whose stables are scrupulously clean, should be reported even as the butthe fact that the Sanitary Inspecare made public. Dairymen should be rated in some way that would indicate the sanitation of their dairies. Farmers who try to ridicule modern treatment of milk should be the first to disarm criticism of their own methods by employing the most approved ideas in the housing and care of their stock. There is no burdensome expense in keeping the stalls clean, the milk wholesome, the cattle combed. Light, fresh air and whitewash will soon run away with the profits.

These are the essence of the conditions the Inspector demands, and which the citizens confidently expect him to enforce. It will be encouraging to know that Mr. Stapleton is giving this daily vigilant attention and it will be more than satisfactory when he can report that all the dairies have complied with his requirements.

You're getting a June Style in a March Maxwell

THE MAXWELL car of today is so vastly improved in appearance that many persons believe we have produced a new model.

That is not the case.

It is the same chassis, scarcely with a change, on which 300,000 Maxwells have been built.

But it is a better looking car. It is finer in finish; angular lines have been straightened out; fenders improved; bonnet simplified; cowl made flush with the top line of the body; seats thickened by three inches; circassian cloth installed; gas tank hung in the rear, etc.

There are twenty-four things done to make it more beautiful.

We made the Maxwell simple to start with five years ago. Then we kept on making and making these cars all alike. We have now completed 300,000 of them.

There is logic in doing one thing and doing it well. We have followed that logic. And results tell today.

Maxwells have always been noted for their reliability. Now they will become noted for their beauty.

And today we are in a position to give you a June style in a March Maxwell, which a year ago seemed quite out of the question on account of the war.

Come and see the latest Maxwell.

"Just Do As They Please"

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, March 14. — Edward W. Nesbitt, M. P., for North Oxford, and one of the members of the parliamentary committee investigating soldiers' pensions, this morning remarked during the course of an inquiry: "In London there is nobody in command—they just do as they please."

"There is a district officer commanding for the London district," said Col. O'Brien. "Oh, yes," persisted Mr. Nesbitt, "but they just go as they please."

Soldiers' Comfort Club of Lakefield

Final Meeting Was Held This Week —Records Destroyed.

LAKEFIELD, March 15.—The Soldiers' Comfort Club held their last meeting on Thursday afternoon and shipped their last bale to the headquarters of the Woman's Patriotic League of Toronto. The bale contained 189 pairs of socks. The Soldiers' Comfort Club was organized in the Town Hall on September 28th 1914 with a membership of 26. Mrs. F. J. Tate was president, Mrs. J. N. Sherin, vice president, Mrs. Graham secretary and Miss McKibbon the treasurer. In October 1915 it was decided advisable to create the office of supply secretary and Mrs. Hilliard received the appointment and did the work in a most capable way until the club closed.

The offices were capably filled during the four and a half years that the club existed and comparatively few changes were made. Mrs. O. A. Langley and Mrs. Marling held the office of president in turn. The office of secretary changed several times and was filled by Mrs. Bailey, Miss Lilia Burgess and Mrs. Roland Johnson, successfully. Miss E. Griffin followed Miss McKibbin as treasurer, Miss E. Griffin in 1916 was made assistant supply secretary.

For the first two years of the war every Lakefield recruit was given by the club a parcel of comforts after he enlisted and in November 1917 and 1918 each church was given a pair of socks for each of their members overseas. The remainder of the work was shipped to Mrs. Van Kougnet of Toronto at be headquarters of the Woman's Patriotic League.

In January 1915 a hunting Union Jack was brought and presented to B. Co. 46th Regiment of Lakefield. This company sent almost every fit man to the front and several made the supreme sacrifice. This flag, which it was hoped would be flying when the boys return, was unfortunately destroyed in the Town Hall fire.

Records Destroyed

It is a matter of great regret that the records of the first year's work (until Oct. 1915) were destroyed in the fire at the Town Hall but since that date the following supplies have been shipped:—

Socks	2526 prs.
Scarves	84
Trench caps	295
Guaze Shirts	241
Gauze underwear	35 sets
Mittens	31 prs.
Feather Pillows	2 doz.

A sketch of the Comfort Club would be incomplete without making mention of the veteran knitter, Lakefield's grand old lady, Mrs. McDonald, who though over ninety when the war began has knitted more than one hundred pairs of socks for the club. Mrs. McDonald received honorable mention from the King and the Duke of Connaught.

EGG-O Baking Powder

The heavy Government Standard flours need the strength of Egg-O to make a light baking. Egg-O has two actions. It rises in the mixing bowl when cold water or milk is added and continues to rise in the heat of the oven, thus making a light cake doubly certain.

What the Peterboro Stores Offer

By the signing of the armistice there has been a reaction in the millinery marts. This would appear to be a far fetched idea, but is confirmed by the milliners of Peterborough, and proved by the brilliant effects shown at the millinery openings, which took place this week and will continue at the big shops during the balance of next. While in previous years the millinery openings all took place at the same time, the sudden cold snap caused some of the large dealers to defer the openings for a few days. All the stores feature the brightest colours, symbolical of the spirits of the people over the cessation of hostilities.

The New Alpine Shade.

A casual glance at the display on the tables remind one irresistably of a gay bed of tulips. Red of the brightest Victory shade, green in the new Alpine shade, jay blue which is distinctly new, and Victory blue, conspire together to make a startling and attractive effect. The dust shade, the one contradiction to the statement that brilliant hues are necessary to the well dressed girl, is holding its own in calling forth admiration. Brown and taupes are being used extensively in combination with some more brilliant shades, and the effects are charming.

The Shapes.

The lines of the hats this year are particularly beautiful, so much so that they require little trimming, and what little is used carries out the gaudy effects in the shapes themselves. Flower and fruit clusters are in profusion, while a novelty in the way of burnt or glycerine ostrich mounts are being used. In the every day hats, Mary Pickford shapes are being extensively featured. These are as charming as the actress herself, and promise to be popular. Small hats rolling from the brim are also smart, but a decided preference is shown for sailors by all who can wear them, and with the exquisite colourings and lines it would be difficult to find any one who could not be suited. A few tams are being shown and are charming in their simple lines. Bandeau trimmings are a feature in the demi-dress millinery, and make a really lovely finish for the cleverly-made hats.

Matrons Hats.

Sombre and prosaic lines in matrons hats are a thing of the past. The woman of mature years is not allowed to become old by having a few dark dismal shapes to chose from. The hats for her to choose are marked by their simple lines and cleverly contrasted shades, with which they are made as charming as her daughters'. Purple is the general shade used in the hats for the matron.

Dress Hats.

The dress hats are wonderfully beautiful and of the most delicate shades of coral and American beauty. Streamers once so popular and deservedly so on account of the graceful effect accomplished by properly adjusted ones, have returned to claim their own in this year's styles. Veils in either flowing or tight variety are deservedly popular, while the absolutely new variety which is caught in at the neck by a collar band of the same shade as the hat, is being shown extensively.

Black Hats.

On account of the large quantity of black which is being used this year, the milliners have combined to produce some exquisite millinery, and the variety in black hats is larger in all the shops this year than ever before.

"Government" Was Defeated On Daylight Savings Amendment

And Mock Parliament at George Street Sunday School Ended Its Interesting Career Last Night—A List of Strange and Amusing Bills and Motions.

SUCCESSFUL PERFORMANCE

The Government was defeated in a division on an amendment to the Daylight Saving Bill at last night's session of the Mock Parliament in the Sunday School room at the George Street Methodist Church. The "galleries" were full for the opening ceremonies, and listened intently to Lieut.—Gov. Walker's speech from the throne delivered deliberately and with studied emphasis upon the important subjects upon which it touched. The parliament was a clever and humorous imitation of legislative formalities and atmosphere. The procedure was precise, the decorum was impressive, the rules were strictly adhered to, though here and there slight acerbities of debate were delightfully interspersed with the wit and humor, the grave speeches on questions of extreme moment and the interruptions from the "back benches" that made this parody on Parliament a pleasant evening's entertainment.

The members did themselves credit in their addresses which almost without exception were given without embarassment and stage-fright that usually affects amateurs in oratory. This session was modeled upon the provincial house and was carried out with close fidelity to its forms and methods. Even the mace was there, a one time reading lamp on its own tall pedestal dressed up in a burlesque effect and revealing the art of Mr. F. H. Dobbin.

Mr. Speaker, Rev. A. J. Thomas, had the rules at his finger tips, the Premier, Mr. Dobbin, was persuasive as he guided his followers and his bills, and Dr. Harvey, the leader of the Opposition, was alert, critical and a strong debater. Altogether it was a thoroughly successful effort and the members of both parties are to be congratulated upon the ideas they presented in their arguments, which were pointed with wit and humour, and when the occasion demanded with ironic gravity that heightened the amusing phases of some of the bills that were drawn in the lighter vein.

The Government's undoing developed out of its bill providing for Daylight Saving of one hour by advancing the clocks from March 31st to October 30th. The Opposition proposed an amendment that beginning on June 1st and ending on August 31st the clocks be advanced another hour, thus making a saving of two hours of daylight during the summer months. In the ensuing vote the amendment carried and the Government was defeated with its measure. The Leader of the Opposition was then called upon to form a new Government, and the House adjourned.

"To regulate the length of whiskers."—By Miss Outram and Mr. Oke.

"To provide seats for all young men who wait outside churches on Summer evenings, during service. Also light refreshments."—By Dr. Harvey and Miss Buck.

Bill Discussed

The discussion of the bill regarding the restricting of the immigration of foreigners into the province, the member from Lovesick pointed out that they came to the country, amassed a small fortune and left for their native land taking with them their fortune, and practically losing the sum to the country where it was made. All who come are the lower class. Here the speaker explained for the benefit of an interrogator that by lower class he meant those of a stature between 3 feet 4 inches and 4 feet 11 inches. Moreover such abominations as pool rooms were practically all in the hands of the foreigners and the country is therefore under moral obligation to protect the morals of the people by excluding such immigrants. The seconder of the bill, one of the fair sex, said that now that the ladies had the say in Parliamentary proceedings things would be changed. She demanded an appropriation to send all the eligible young ladies in the country overseas, where the matrimonial germ seemed contagious.

Menial Work

Mr. Parsons, the Opposition, asked how, if immigration had been restricted in years gone by Columbus would have landed. He pointed out that as practically all our industries are developed by foreign capital, that the menial work of the country was done by the foreigners. "Picture yourselves," he said "Sam Oke having to rise in the morning and iron his own laundry before he goes to work. Such a condition would arise over the exclusion of the Chinaman." He enlarged upon the reflection cast upon a country which must confess she was not large enough to absorb any immigrants who came.

Economy in Coal

The second bill urging compulsory economy in the use of coal was brought in by the member from Douro, who pointed out that with the influx of the English wives who are unused to the Lady of the Snows a vast amount of coal is bound to be wasted. The speaker urged the compulsory use of dark clothes to absorb all heat possible, also the restriction of tasks set out by teachers for the pupils and which necessitate the needless use of fuel at night. The latter argument was received with hearty applause. In seconding the bill Miss Fennett pointed out the happiness resulting from the restriction of coal in the lessened task imposed upon the ash man. By saving fuel, she said, the whole world might be made happier. She pointed out the leakage of fuel in lodges and the coal which might be saved by church union.

The Opposition, Mr. Charles Armstrong, member for Springville, objected to the bill on the grounds that such a restriction would infringe on the liberty of the citizens.

Compulsory Exercise of the Franchise

The member from Chandos in an impassioned address urged the compulsory use of the franchise on the grounds that by so doing the members who represent the people could more consistently represent what the people want. She herself had been elected by an overwhelming majority, "having secured four of the five votes polled in her constituency, but felt that there were those who did not come out to vote. The member from Skugog in seconding the bill objected to the fact that the Chandos member had said all there was to be said but advised in future that if the people were too lazy to go to the poll the poll should be brought to them.

The Opposition pointed out that there were two reasons sufficient to upset such a bill. First the inconvenience caused to the man say, from Peterboro, who was at the time of election in Sault St. Marie, and secondly that such a measure would enhance the liberty of the people.

Prevention of House Cleaning

Dr. Harvey, representative from Bobcaygeon in leading the discussion felt sure that he had the sympathy of every male member. He told how the process of house cleaning destroys the nerve and quoted several fatal results from the unnecessary operation. His seconder, the member from Selwyn, quoted statistics of the number of family quarrels resulting from house cleaning and of the results of it in filling the gaols and clubs of the country. The Opposition contended that sanely undertaken house cleaning with the co-operation of the male member of the household would not result in any unpleasant situations but rather save the house from destruction by the rats and mice.

The House at this point had the bill called by Premier Dobbin the most important bill which had ever confronted the House, the bill to suppress the reckless use of the pump at the George Street Parsonage. This occassioned considerable discussion.

If Strength Declines As Age Advances Follow This Suggestion

So many women grow old before their time, perhaps your wife or sister. A little while ago, buoyant, full of vigour and activity — she enjoyed life and imparted pleasure to the whole family; but now in a few short years she has faded and lost colour and strength. She is just ready to develop some disease that will further weaken and debilitate. You remember how it began; failure of appetite, tired in the morning, found house work burdensome, always nervous and a little irritable. It's a shame to let her go down hill further when you can build her up so quickly with Ferrozone. The change this nourishing tonic makes in a weak woman is surprising. It gives great zest for food, increases appetite and digestion enormously. The blood gets richer and stronger and adds new life to every cell in the body. A rebuilding process works through the entire system. The first week will show an improvement, and a month or two will fatten up the thinnest, most run-down woman you can think of. Take Ferrozone if lost sleep, or nervousness, or weakness use it when run-down and feeling poorly — it will do you more lasting good, keep you in better health than anything else. Just as good for men and children, too, because Ferrozone is harmless and safe. 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Sunken Eyes Brighten Quickly Health Returns

In a Message to Ailing Women Doctor Hamilton Tells How It Is Done.

In speaking of the ills from which women suffer, Dr. Hamilton points out that nine out of every ten women are by nature inclined to habitual constipation. Harsh purgatives are resorted to which only intensify the trouble. Although not generally known it is a constipated condition of the bowels that causes half the sickness and tired weariness with which womankind is so familiar. It was after long years of study that Dr. Hamilton perfected the pills which have been of such marvellous benefit to humanity the world over. In his pills Mandrake and Butternut every sufferer will find an absolute specific for constipation, sick headache and biliousness. It is safe to say that Dr. Hamilton's Pills bring better health and keep the system in a more vigorous condition than any other medicine ever discovered. At all dealers, in 25c. boxes.

A MYSTIC MEDLEY OF CAWS

A great flock of crows held high carnival in the pine trees at Jackson Park a few days ago. They may have been celebrating the advent of Spring If so their revel was premature for they must have shivered through long cold nights since the big demonstration attracted all the crows in the county. You might have seen them approaching from all directions announcing themselves with raucous calls or perhaps effervescing with that spirit of fellowship that breaks out on such occasions in another plane with "Hail, hail the gang's all here." They circled about the tops of the tall nodding trees, dipping and "zooming," now floating with wings aspread and occasionally settling in the highest branches, swaying for a moment, but only a moment, for they were restless and perturbed, then with an awkward plunge they were out again in the air that was black with them. And all the time the whole assembly was talking at once. It was somehow suggestive of the bedlum that is Bolshevist. A continuous caw-caw, with a nasal twang to it, especially among the tenors, indicated unanimity whatever it was all about. Perhaps, however, it was the rook's idea of incantations to the slumbering life beneath the white blanket with its warm lining of last year's leaves, a mystic ceremony above the common tomb of the peasant dandelion and the princess violet, calling them to the resurrection. Perhaps these many wintered crows have a wisdom of their own. If you judge a man by his environment or his companions, consider the associates of the crow. He loves the dark old pines, builds his ramshackle nest in the tall forks and rears his young in their arms and shade. To these generations the pines have imparted the secret of their sighs, maybe the answer to the riddle of life and the phenomena of the strange stirring in the buds of the beeches and willows, and returning life where all seems dead. If so the crows may have imagined themselves weaving a fanciful spell over the May flowers, bidding them throw back the door of the tomb, and step forth in their wistful splendour to the glories of new life and happiness with the wild columbine, the blue flag and the buttercups. So the crows weren't "Bolshing" after all, with their strident iteration of the harsh cry not only note they know. Anyway you may be certain that the grass and leaves, and flowers will soon appear to join their dusky friends of the air and to mystify man with the wonderful works of the Creator.

Boston Cafe Sold to a Toronto Man

Mr. N. Douros has sold the Boston Cafe to a Toronto restaurateur and with Mr. W. Coros will confine his attentions to the Albion Sweets. The sale of the restaurant took place this week and the new propsietor will take charge on Monday. Mr. Douros has been unwell since an attack of influenza last fall, and decided that it would be better to devote his time to the confectionery business in the hope that a measure of relaxation would enable him completely to regain his health.

Peterboro is the Only County to Turn Down Good Roads Policy of the Government

Hastings and Durham Are Two Fine Examples of Progress—Few More Scenic Driveways in the Older Part of the Province Than the Rice Lake Road.

WHAT THE MAP INDICATES

Up to date, there is only one county in the Province which has not declared its intention to come in on the Provincial-County good roads scheme, and that is Peterborough, which could stand a good deal of road improvement, and which, it will be seen, leaves quite a gap in the good road construction plan in the central-eastern part of the Province. The map, which takes in the Counties of Durham, Victoria, Northumberland, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, and Frontenac, provides a fine illustration of the popularity of the good roads movement, and shows the extent to which the individual counties propose to claim the assistance of the Ontario Government in the construction of their County-Provincial roadways. These roads, it will be remembered, are those towards whose improvement the Federal Government is contributing forty per cent. of the costs with the Ontario Government paying sixty per cent. of the balance, thus leaving but 24 per cent. of the cost to be carried by the municipalities.

Starting at the east, Frontenac is an illustration of a county which is providing a good internal roadway system, but which so far has failed to link up with the adjoining counties to any great extent. The lower roadway along the south which links up with the counties on either side, is a part of the Provincial highway, and therefore cannot be included in the County-Provincial system. With this exception, there is only one county roadway linking up with Leeds and one with Addington, but there are a number of roads radiating from Kingston and tapping the lake district to the north. Chief of these are the roads running north to Battersea and Perth road, and the double branch penetrating the Godfrey district.

FEW ROADS NAMED.

Lennox and Addington, though showing a progressive spirit, has not yet designated many county roads to come under the Provincial scheme. There is no cross road, joining up with the counties on either side, as the one cross line shown on the map is a part of the Provincial highway. Running north and south, there is a main line directly north from Napanee to Roblin, from where it swings east to Croydon, and then zigzags north along Bear and Beaver Lakes to Malabar. The eastern branch from Napanee runs through Napanee Mills and Newburgh until it strikes the old north-and-south road, which it follows north to Tamworth, while a branch crosses from Tamworth to the Croydon road.

Hastings, it will be seen, is a real network of County-Provincial roads, and up to date has been the most enthusiastic of the eastern counties for improved roads. On the east there are two links with Lennox and Addington, which have yet to be picked up by the latter county, one being at Marlbank, and the other being the old Flinton road which taps northern Lennox. On the west, there are three through links with Northumberland, in addition to the Provincial highway, these being the Alden Ross, Stockdale, and Harold-Burnbrae roads. There is as well, a connection provided from Marmora into Peterborough County, which as yet has not been picked up by Peterborough. On the south, there are two connections with Prince Edward, one being at Napanee and the other being the bridge at Belleville. As the map will show, the interior of the county provides a very desirable linking up of all the main centres, such as Sterling, Tweed, Ivanhoe, Madoc, Marmora, etc., while even the northern part of the county is fairly well provided for, as far north as Bannockburn. From the latter point there is a proposed line running to the northern border of the county at Thanet, angling to the west through Mill Bridge and following the old gravel road. A second northern line runs directly north from Mill Bridge to Steenburg and St. Ola, neither of which is shown on the map.

USES OLD ROADWAYS.

Northumberland has a good foundation upon which to build, and has taken the old main-travelled roads running from the lake shore north and has turned them into a part of the County-Provincial scheme. In spite of the shape of the county, few cross roads have been provided so far, though there are the three spurs which branch into Hastings county. There are four main trunk roads north, from Brighton, Colborne and Cobourg, two being from the latter centre. The Brighton road runs through Newcomb Mills to Campbellford and taps Peterborough County at Trent Bridge, with a branch from Campbellford into Hastings through Burnbrae and another branch from Newcomb Mills through Stockdale. The Colborne road angles through Norham and Warkworth to Hastings, thus providing a fine link with Peterborough. The two main roads are from Cobourg north, the eastern line running south of Rice Lake to Hastings, and the western looping around the west end of the same lake to provide the necessary link with the city of Peterborough to the north, provided, of course, Peterborough county fills in the gap. This western route from Cobourg also taps Gore's Landing and Harwood, and it may be said in passing that there are few more delightful or more scenic driveways in the older part of the Province than the Rice Lake road skirting the shore from Harwood to Gore's Landing and around to ...

Any motorist who has ... drive over the central ... will see from the map ... is being attempted, ... be done before some ...

The Peterboro Manufacturers Are Co-operating With Labour Bureau

Seventeen Were Placed This Week Optimistic View of the Future.

YOUNG APPLICANT

The manufacturers are co-operating with the Labor Bureau to the last ditch at present and the situation for the men out of work is looking decidedly brighter this week. All the manufacturers with one exception have agreed to cooperate to the last with Mr. Ed. Robertson and Mr. A. S. Morrison in the placing of men who apply at the bureau. With both factions working together the average placed this week was considerably higher than usual. Of forty-eight applications seventeen men were placed. Twenty-five of these are returned soldiers twenty of whom wanted work, three vocational training and two pensions. Eleven of the returned men were immediately placed. Mr. Morrison is inclined to take a very optimistic view of the labor situation and believes that if the men are only able to hold out for a few short weeks that the manufacturers will experience a shortage of men towards fall. "The Bureau itself," he said "is only in its embryonic stage and we are beginning to make real progress."

The Youngest Applicant

The Bureau knows no distinction of age and the applicants who came in range from the tiniest applicant who has called and who could scarcely look over the three foot railing to ask what the prospects are for a fellow of his age were to men well up in years. Women still appear to be shy about applying and only four have called as yet, these to ask for house work. One more returned soldier bank clerk who made application at the bureau has been placed in office work.

Although the officials in charge of the Bureau keep in touch with prospective positions for their applicants out of the city they have not sent any out of town this week.

WEAK, WORRIED WOMEN

Can Find New Health and Strength Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

It is useless to tell a hard-working woman to take life easily and not to worry. To do so is to ask the almost impossible. But, at the same time, it is the duty of every woman to save her strength as much as possible; to take her cares as lightly as may be, and to build up her strength to meet any unusual demands. It is a duty she owes herself and family for her future health may depend upon it.

To guard against a complete break down in health the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. No other medicine does this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This medicine actually makes new, red blood, strengthens the nerves, restores the appetite and keeps every organ healthily toned up. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep their strength and keep disease away by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have done more to lighten the cares of weak women than any other medicine. Among the many women who have reason to be thankful for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, is Mrs. Milan Bailey, Utterson, Ont., who says: "Two years ago I got weak and badly run down and could scarcely do my housework. I grew so thin that my friends used to comment upon it. At that time my baby was six months old and the care of it and my housework was almost too much for me. It was at this stage that my husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I had been taking them long we could see an improvement in my condition. For months I had not been sleeping well and natural sleep returned and I was not so nervous. Then my friends began to comment upon my improved condition and tell me how much better I was looking. By the time I had taken six boxes I felt completely cured, and have since enjoyed the best of health. Now I never fail to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when any of my friends are ailing."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How the County Road System Would Benefit Otonabee Township

Ex-Warden W. A. Anderson is in Favour of a Forward Movement – Many Main Roads.

To the Editor:—Of the nearly 200 miles of roads in the Township of Otonabee, about 45 to 50 miles are used to such an extent that they would be designated as County Roads and accepted by the Highway Department of Ontario as such.

There would be three or four main or county roads into Peterboro that would serve nearly all those who make frequent trips to the city with milk, cream vegetables etc. On a certain mileage near the city the city as well as the province would pay part of the cost of the roads, whereas at present the people of the Township pay all the cost.

There would be a county road past Keene Station and another past Indian River Station, the province paying at least 20 or 40% of the cost, and perhaps 60% on some of it—at present the farmer is paying it all.

Factories Benefit

All of the five factories handling milk or cream are located where there would be a very considerable part of the milk they receive hauled over some portion of these main roads, and the cheese and butter would go from the factories to the above-mentioned stations or to Peterboro on county roads (most of the way) now used by the farmers and kept up by themselves.

All of the churches and nearly all of the schools in the township are on these main roads.

So far as Otonabee is concerned it cannot be successfully argued that any considerable number of farmers do not use these main roads a great deal. They only have claim to the name "main roads" because they carry more than an ordinary amount of traffic.

For many years every property in the township has paid about 1½ mills annually for these main roads, in statute labor or in cash whether it is located on the main road or not, whether the tax-payer uses the road or not, whether the road is destroyed by frost, by storm, by farmers' wagons and horses, farmers' automobiles or by motor cars or trucks from Peterboro or from cities more distant.

With all the statute labor and considerable money that has gone on these roads since the inception of the first Provincial County Road Scheme in 1901 (17 years' work) would the township now have more or less to show for the expenditure that has been made if these roads had been added to their own outlay, the provincial money and supervision.

What I have found in some counties that years ago started a system of County Roads is straighter and wider grades, better small bridges and culverts and usually a better system of gravel or crushed stone than we have.

Main Roads

How long can the rate-payers of Otonabee afford to do without the present available assistance to help them build and maintain their main roads? They cannot any longer keep these roads as they have been with so small an outlay.

If instead of 1½ mills, three mills were levied; about $3,000 per year, would be received from the province and City of Peterboro making in all nearly $10,000 annually to improve these roads.

The Reeves of the townships in the County system each year decide on the amount required to do the work needed that year and the superintendent carries out the directions of the Reeves. Of course there is also inspection by the department, that is necessary, and is or should be worth something to the system.

In addition to paying all the cost of the roads at present there are many automobiles in the township paying a license to the Government, which will, if not accepted by Peterboro County go to other County roads.

The war is over and men are out of work, is it not time to undertake some work so badly needed on our roads?

As for frontage tax, the improvement of the main roads are of so much importance to all, and the cost say 3 mills so small that there is not the slightest need for worrying about a frontage tax for ordinary County Roads in Otonabee,

Respectfully Yours,
W. A. Anderson.

The outside market was very small and produce scarce.

Potatoes at $1.35 a bag and apples at 60 and 80 cents a peck.

NO CONSTIPATION NO PILES

We think, without a doubt, that constipation is the most prevalent, and at the same time, one of the greatest troubles human nature is afflicted with, and causes more sickness than anything else.

Unless a free action of the bowels occurs at least once a day, constipation is sure to ensue, then comes the sore and uncomfortable piles, sick and bilious headaches, coated tongue, obnoxious breath, sour stomach, heartburn, water brash, and many other ailments.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus removing the constipation and its allied troubles.

Mr. Dan Doucette, Eel River Crossing, N.B., writes: — "Having been troubled for years with constipation and trying everything I know of, a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I used four vials and am completely cured. I can gladly recommend them to anyone who suffers from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have been on the market for the past 26 years, and have been used with the best results by thousands of people in that time, and we have yet to hear of a complaint as to their curative powers.

Price 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

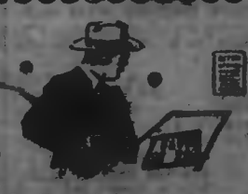
A Dangerous Method



One of the things we have to contend with is the tendency of people when they think they need glasses to equip themselves with "Ten Cent Store Glasses." Supplying glasses to meet individual needs and requirements is our business. We have years of scientific training and experience. We know—we don't guess.

In the long run, it costs much less in dollars and cents to have your glasses fitted by us than to take a chance and buy them "ready made."

No More Days Of Less

Meatless, heatless, wheatless are days of the past; but the thrift born of them is with us to stay.

To demand the utmost for a dollar is one great lesson the world has learned. Along with other days of less, it has cancelled days of less service.

Service has always been the Goodrich measure of the value of tires; that is, what a tire proves itself worth you in service on your car, and on the road.

You see promise of service in the burly, full rounded bodies of Goodrich Service Value Tires; and their thicker SAFETY TREADS, extra wide to fortify the sidewall against rut grinding.

Joseph Grierson to Plant and Take Care of Parks for $860

Tender is Recommended by Parks Committee for Council's Approval—Six Tenders Were Received—Specifications of the Work.

WILLING TO PURCHASE TOOLS

The tender of Joseph Grierson, 96 Douro street, to plant and take care of the Central and Victoria Parks this year for $860 was recommended to the Council for acceptance last night by the Railway and Parks committee. Ald. Edgar presided, with Aldermen McIntyre, Turner, Taylor and Morrison present. The tenders were as follows:

Wm. Pearson, 650 Bethune street, $1,000.
Joseph Grierson, 96 Douro street, $860.
H. E. Hawley, 351 Charlotte street, $800.
John McFarlane, 261 Lake street, $875.
Frank Wise, $875.
Peterborough Floral Co., $1,000.

Mr. Grierson's tender was accepted on motion of Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. McIntyre.

In his letter to the committee he pointed out that several beds that were usually planted on the north side of the park had not been included in the specifications, nor had there been provision for plants around the fountain. His suggestion that ten dollars would cover these extras was approved by the committee and the money will be paid for this work.

Willing to Buy Tools.

The Horticultural Society offered to hand the park tools to the city, reserving the right to sell them at any time. Ald. Edgar remarked that he believed these appliances had been purchased with money received from the city in the past for the care of the parks.

Ald. Turner suggested that they might have been paid for out of the subscriptions of the members of the society. He stated that the Horticultural Society must have been economical in its expenditures judging by the splendid premiums they had distributed. He proposed that the society be requested to set a value on the tools and if the price was reasonable that the city buy them outright.

Mr. Grierson has had experience in the planting of the local parks, having performed the work at times as an employee of the Peterborough Floral Co. several years ago.

Specifications For the Parks.

1. The contractor will thoroughly rake and clean both of the parks in the spring as soon as the weather will permit, and shall roll the grass.

2. The contractor will prepare the clean all the walks in the parks and lay them in with cinders where required, and will also keep them cleaned and rolled during the season.

3. The contractor will keep the grass cut and neatly trimmed and watered in both parks.

4. The contractor will prepare the flower beds for planting and give them a good coat of fertilizer, which will be supplied by the city. The beds are to be filled with as follows:

Victoria Park:

Two (2) beds, 60 ft. by 6 ft. four (4) rows of geraniums, one (1) row of cannas, and a border all around;

Circular bed 20 ft. in diameter with tropical plants;

The Central Park:

Two (2) circular beds 7 1-2 ft. in diameter to be filled with tropical plants, or these beds may be changed in shape to occupy the same space.

5. The plants are to be of good quality and of good healthy stock, and subject to inspection by the Parks committee of the City Council, and are to be arranged so as to make a pleasing display, and no annuals are to be used. Any plant dying before July 1st must be replaced by the contractor. The beds must be planted in the spring and completed not later than June 5th.

6. The flowers and plants must be removed from the beds immediately after October 1st, and the beds must then be prepared for bulbs and 5,000 tulip bulbs planted.

7. The leaves must be raked off both parks in the fall and burned or otherwise satisfactorily disposed of, and the park left in a condition satisfactory to the said Parks committee.

8. The seats must be taken from the band stand in the Victoria Park in the spring and placed in proper places in the park and removed in the fall and stored away in the same place.

9. The contractor will be notified of demonstrations or special meetings other than the regular band concerts.

10. The contractor will be paid in monthly instalments the amount of his contract less 15 p.c. of the whole amount which will be retained as a guarantee of good service until the contract is completed at the end of the season to the satisfaction of the Parks committee.

11. In addition to the flower beds in the two parks above specified the contractor will prepare a flower bed in each of the small parks or gores, one at the corner of Hunter and Park streets and the other at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets. Each of these beds must be circular and 7 1-2 ft. in diameter and to be filled with foliage plants, the centre of the bed to be higher than the margin and sloped up to the highest point. The foliage plants must be arranged in rows of different coloured plants, that is, each row of one colour and planted from the margin up to the centre and no row of plants of the same colour to be next each other.

The specifications as to flower beds, planting the flowers and removing them, etc., as above given and applying to the parks, shall apply to these last two flower beds.

COUGHED, COUGHED ALL NIGHT LONG

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes at night and prevents sleep. Sometimes it is a constant cough, cough that will not be quieted.

Sometimes it is a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult, and sleep impossible.

Whatever kind of a cold or cough you have, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you need to cure it, for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined wild cherry bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Miss Margaret Landy, Bristol, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you the benefit I have received from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Last fall I took a severe cough and cold in my head. I was unable to do anything. At night I could not sleep, but cough, cough, all night long. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the second bottle was used I was entirely cured, and I have found this the best cough medicine I ever buy."

Do not accept any other "pine" preparations when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." This remedy has been on the market for a quarter of a century. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SPORTING COMMENT

Poor old Bombardier Wells! He's in again. George Carpentier took the trip across the Channel to see his old ring mate listen to the birdies singing after W.O.W. Beckett knocked him for a goal in the fifth round. The Frenchman must have felt very sorry to see his dear old rival tumble over without his being on the special delivery end of the punch. W. O. W. Beckett will now meet Frank Goddard to see who will mingle with the French ice since Bombardier O. S. Wells has been eliminated.

Babe Ruth, who has made a name for himself as a slugger on the baseball diamond, is reported to be anxious to try his hand as a slugger in the ring. So far he has shown his fistic inclinations in a wireless way by acting as second for Chick Hayes and imparting his ideas as to what Chick should do to his rivals. Hitting the ball on the nose is another thing from hitting a husky "pug" on the proboscis, and Babe might find his batting average a good deal less than .300.

Tex Rickard wants to insure Willard and Dempsey with Lloyd's for $50,000 each to protect himself against possible loss. An insurance broker who would write policies to guarantee the fans against seeing a "shimmie" dance instead of a fight would make a fortune.

NINE SAILORS WERE DROWNED.

American Transport Struck a Mine and Was Sunk.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 15.—Nine sailors are reported drowned in the sinking of the American transport Yselhaven, which struck a mine at 1.35 o'clock Friday morning, according to a report to Lloyds. The Yselhaven was bound from Baltimore to Copenhagen. Thirty-five survivors have been landed at Hartlepool by a British steamer.

NOT MUCH HOPE FOR BETTER SERVICE

Mr. Charles Dawson, Deputy Reeve of Campbellford also spoke in favor of putting these trains back on the service.

Mr. Dan McMillan said that he thought Peterboro had been very reasonable in what she asked but he thought that nothing could be done in augmenting the service at present. The soldiers were coming home in thousands and all equipment available would be diverted for troop trains.

"Very Fair

He discouraged the Campbellford delegation when he said he saw no hope for a night train for Campbellford. There was no money in it for the G.T.R. and he felt confident that another train could not be put on.

"The commercial travellers are very fair in their requests," concluded Mr McMillan "and they will get all due consideration from me."

Mr. Horning said the G.T.R. were forced to make reductions in the train service and that they cannot return to pre-war service at once. The thing must be done slowly. He wouldn't promise anything definite but hoped that the service of last summer would be restored. He stated that the "Two Spot" train between Brockville and Belleville was now under consideration for restoration and that the commercial travellers thought it would be well patronized. At present branch lines generally have only two trains each way a day and although the schedule of these trains could be changed to fit with local needs he felt that no more trains could be added to the service. Summing it up Mr. Horning said that he couldn't see much hope other than the restoration of the train service of last summer.

Mr. Maurice Rosenburg representing the travellers asked that something be done for a better train service to Lakefield, but this suggestion met with the same fate—only hope but no promises.

Farmers Ready To Go on Land

Help Scarce and Wages High—In Good Shape.

With the coming of spring the farmers are beginning to make preparations for spring seeding operations. The fall ploughing so far as Peterboro County is concerned was almost nearly completed when the frost came so that the majority of farmers will be in good shape to get under way early. Many farmers are experiencing difficulty in getting help and high wages are being paid for good men.

LITERARY NEWS NOTES

THE ANXIOUS DEAD

O, guns, fall silent till the dead men hear
Above their heads the legions pressing on!
(These fought their fight in time of bitter fear
And died not knowing how the day had gone.)

O, flashing muzzles, pause and let them see
The coming dawn that streaks the sky afar!
Then let your mighty chorus witness be
To them and Cæsar, that we still make war.

Tell them, O guns, that we have heard their call;
That we have sworn and will not turn aside;
That we will onward till we win or fall;
That we will keep the faith for which they died.

Bid them be patient, and some day, anon,
They shall feel earth enwrapt in silence deep—
Shall greet in wonderment the quiet dawn,
And in content may turn them to their sleep.

—From "In Flanders Fields," a collection of the late Col. John McCrea's verse just published by William Briggs.

The fact that Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, the inimitable cartoonist, is a humorist, verbally as well as pictorially, is not generally known. A story told by one of his friends the other day, however, pretty well illustrates this point, and also gives the lie to some of the critics who have found fault with the Captain for leaving active service during the latter part of the war. Bairnsfather was well in the middle of things in the fighting around Ypres and was rather seriously wounded. In writing to his father at the time, he expressed the incident thus: "As a result of the recent occurrence at Ypres, I am docked for repairs." Bairnsfather, by the way, has had a somewhat interesting history. Born in the Himalayas, he spent his early life in England and India. On reaching his majority he entered the army, was drawn to the Engineers, and here his facility with the pencil apparently came out. It took the incidents of the war, however, to make him popularly known. One of the British "Brass Hats" in commenting on Bairnsfather's work as reproduced in the several editions of "Fragments from France," noted that "Here was one man who was worth several army corps."

Whatever the reason it is well established that a widespread interest in a new book makes an immediate demand for information regarding its author. This was strongly illustrated in connection with the unique novel of last fall, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Apparently several United States writers, unfamiliar with V. Blasco Ibanez, the author, attempted to romance considerably regarding him, and some rather interesting comment on this, as well as even more interesting information this time authentic, is given by John Garrett Underhill, in his introduction to Ibanez's new book, "The Cabin," published in Canada by William Briggs, this spring.

As a matter of fact, as well as being a novelist whose works, while only introduced to America within the last year, have been well known both in France and Russia for some time, he has considerable European reputation as a controversialist, a politician, an orator, a traveller, an expatriate, a ranchman, a duelist and a journalist—an interesting combination surely. Born in Valencia, Ibanez lived the greater part of his early life in Spain. Some years ago when Anatole France was doing his utmost to uphold the Gallic tradition in South America Ibanez was moved to transfer his interests to the Argentine. He lived the life there, bought a huge ranch and an American tractor or two and settled down to farm as well as to write the characteristic Argentine novel. Unfortunately for various political reasons the Spanish residents made his life rather unbearable and in the midst of the novel he suddenly returned to Paris, where he has since resided. "The Four Horsemen" is characterized as the writer's greatest service to humanity; "The Cabin," his new book, is designated as his chief contribution to art.

Some novel light on the mechanics of authorship was given in a story recently by H. C. Witwer, one of two of whose books have become somewhat popular in Canadian literary circles within the last year. "When I tried to break into the game," notes Mr. Witwer, "I wrote bales of stuff, working every night and all day on Sundays. It all came back as soon as I sent it out. My greatest drawback was my meagre education. The editors told me that my plots were good but my English was stilted and crude. Finally it was my wife who hit on the solution. 'Harry,' she said, 'I think I have found the thing you can do best. You have a sense of humor and your slang, while embarrassing at times, is funny. Stop writing English and write slang. Write some of those stories you tell me, just the way you tell them, and I know they'll get over.' I have been writing slang ever since," Mr. Witwer noted, and to evidence how successful the departure was, it is probably only necessary to explain that last year he sold three novels, five photo-plays, one play, and one hundred and fifteen short stories. His last novel, "A Smile a Minute," covers characteristically the experiences of a Big League Baseball player on his return home from war service.

Special music will be provided at these services, and strangers will be heartily welcomed.

For Rough, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin

As March winds, flying dust and dirt, are apt to injure any complexion, this information will be of special value right now. If you have any cutaneous blemish don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Beside it is much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, liver patches, sallowness, red veins, blotches or any surface eruption. The affected cuticle is absorbed a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for one ounce of mercolized wax and use it like you would cold cream. Remove in the morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple, harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles or furrows a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel will prove wonderfully effective.

Taggers Having Good Results

Expect to Equal, if Not Exceed, Last Years Objective

At noon to-day the hearty response to Shamrock Day indicated that the objective of $1,000 would be reached and passed by a considerable sum. The ladies in charge said that the labor situation with so many men out of work was reflecting to a certain degree on the sales, however, those who could give did so and did so nobly. The result of last year's Shamrock Totalled $1,060 and it is confidently expected this year's coleletion ently expected this year's collection

MUSIC IN THE HOME

KNOW YOUR PIANO

In addition to the technical knowledge of music the musician should understand as much of the mechanical part of the instrument as it is convenient to learn. The teacher should take pride in knowing names of the good, the medium and the poor makes of pianos and their approximate price. Above all, musicians should realize the possibilities also the limitations of a piano, the proper placing in a room and its correct and general care. Most every possessor of a piano really knows the latter, but how few of them put this knowledge into practice.

Those who play in public should know exactly how to produce the best effects from their instruments, at all times and in all places. Usually the lid of a piano should be closed for accompaniments and open for piano solo. Yet there are cases where this should be reversed. This depends wholly on the volume of tone of the piano, the voices, the location of the piano in the room, the size and acoustic qualities of the latter, the distance of piano from the audience, the technic and the tone production of the performer, etc. All of these things should be carefully observed and considered by a pianist before playing. Oftimes failure seems to meet the pianist from lack of forethought in arrangement for playing, not from any lack of skill on the part of the performer.

TWO OLD CRONIES

The other evening the writer was sitting before a cheery grate fire engrossed in the story of frontier life in the far west. One chapter related the doings of a group of six old prospectors, fast friends, who once a year used to holdon reunion at one of their cabins. The meeting described was on a Christmas Eve. Old Pete produced a fiddle. Only one of them could play and he was long out of practice. But he attempted some of the old familar airs that all had known from boyhood. The music went on tune after tune. There was real brotherhood anyway, but the music seemed further to cement the relationship.

The incident brought to mind a nearer-home scene of two old cronies well into the 70's. In their youth and early manhood both had played the fiddle well. Both for long, however, had given it up and yet they had never lost the taste for the violin. Indeed it seemed to grow, and as they passed over the crest of life's journey the pleading tones of the fiddle seemed to go through their beings with an extra thrill.

Then one of the cronies got a phonograph as a gift from his son. From that time the two old retired men who had had their day of activity and who spent much time together now had an additional pleasure in life. They never tired of particularly violin records. They had their favorite tunes played by Heifetz, Tosca, Seidel, Zimbalist, Kathleen Parlow, Elman, Maud Powell, Ysaye, Jacques Thibaud, Albert Spalding, Kubelik, Eddy Brown, and Kreisler. It was a great pastime just listening to, comparing and contrasting the playing of these different artists. And it is a fine thing to see something than can so brighten the last years of our fathers' and mothers' lives.

THE WHEAT PROBLEM.

British Government Will Buy From Argentina.

Much interest attaches to the published statement that the British Government has established a credit of $240,000,000 in Argentina with which to purchase wheat at a price of approximately $1 a bushel; also that the wheat supply of Australia, so long unavailable because of a lack of shipping, is now pouring into Great Britain at about the same price as the Argentine wheat. It is announced also that there will be a liberal supply of wheat available from next year's crop in the Ukraine and in Siberia, all of which gives an optimistic tinge to the world food situation.

Despite this releasing of a goodly quantity of cheap wheat, the American farmers are assured of $2.20 a bushel for their 1919 crop, the same price that they received in 1918. The President has promised that next spring he will appoint a commission of experts to investigate the facts relative to the cost of production, and that if these facts show that a higher price than $2.20 should be guaranteed he will adopt it. This action in the United States must have its effect on Canadian wheat.

There no longer exist any restrictions upon the used of all-wheat bread imposed by the food administration. Within the last few days orders have gone out to the hotel and restaurant keepers informing them that the regulations went into effect early last year were killed off and that, among other things, they were free to serve as much bread as the customer wants.

If England and France buy Argentine and Australian wheat at $1 a bushel and only resort to the $2.20 American wheat to make up their deficiency, it seems probable that the food administration will be left with a liberal supply of wheat upon its hands for which it must pay the American farmer $2.20. This will impose something of a burden upon the taxpayers of the United States, but it will assure the agricultural interests of a good profit in recognition of their efforts to increase the grain production to meet the war emergency.

The apparent plethora of breadstuffs, however, does not reduce the danger of starvation in the Balkan states and in certain parts of Russia, a condition which has been predicted by Mr. Hoover. Transportation facilities are not available for carrying relief to these sections, and they are doomed to a hard winter. Even France and Belgium are facing a serious food situation because of their inability to get enough ships to haul grain for them. But in spite of these unfavorable phases of the situation, the summer on this continent appears to have a seat at the head of the table.

GROCERIES.

Coffee Prices Due for a Sharp Advance—Tobaccos Lower.

"Canadian Grocer" says coffee markets continue their tendency towards higher levels, and it looks now as though a general revision upward in prices to the trade must soon be necessary. Stocks in hand in Canada are becoming pretty well depleted, and new arrivals just about due have been bought at figures which will mean a probable advance of about four cents per pound.

Tea seems to be holding its own, and whereas freight rates which have been quite a factor in the cost are lower, the markets at primary points have advanced more than offsetting the decline in transportation rates. It is understood there have been some fairly substantial parcels exported from Canada, and it would not require much of this business to place the tea trade in excellent shape as regards supplies.

A decline of 7c. per pound in one line of tobacco and 3c. in another was made last week. Peanut butter is lower. Steel wool is being quoted, and higher prices have been named on washboards.

And some people make us tired—because we can't run fast enough to get away from them.

Hun Had Found Picture.

Nearly four years ago Mrs. Lanchetti, of Toronto, sent a postcard group photograph of herself, her husband and two daughters to her son, Pte. Frank Lanchetti, with the 75th Battalion in England, then on his way to France. He was wounded on August 4 last year after much hard fighting and is now slowly recovering from wounds in the back. His father has gone to see him. The other day Mrs. Lanchetti received from B. Lunau, a Toronto boy with the Canadian troops, the picture she had sent to her son. On the back he wrote that he had got the picture from a "Fritz" and had forwarded it to the family address on the back. It apparently had been lost on the battlefield by Pte. Lanchetti, picked up by the Germans and recovered by Pte. Lunau.

"There's a Reason"

Germany Will Be Allowed 370,000 Tons of Food Monthly

Germany Expected to Receive at Least 1,500,000 Tons Until April—Rations in Country Exist only on Paper.

Brussels, March 17. — The German delegates here definitely accepted on Friday the offer of the allies for a monthly ration of 370,000 tons of foodstuffs for Germany in payment of which they are to turn over to the allies the German mercantile fleet and German owned securities.

SMALLER THAN REQUIRED.

BRUSSELS, March 17. — At the conference here to determine the feeding of Germany, the German delegates protested that the amount to be allowed them was smaller than they required and were pessimistic as to the arrangements of satisfactory terms. Also Vice-Admiral Roslyn Wemyss, chairman of the allied delegation had presented the conditions decided upon by the entente the Germans asked to be allowed to withdraw for consultation. They then formed three sub committees to deal with questions of finance, food supplies and mercantile marine.

WHAT WAS EXPECTED.

BERLIN, March 17.— Germany expects that the allies will provide food supplies until August 15th which is the earliest possible date that flour from this year's harvest can be counted upon, said Under-Secretary of State Strain before leaving for Brussels.

Herr Von Braun said Germany would ask for 1,400,000 tons of grain, and a monthly importation of 100,000 tons of porks and fats, in addition to condensed milk, rice, oatmeal, and other commodities required particularly for invalids, infants and hospitals.

He estimated the cost of shipment at 5,000,000,000 marks. It is a matter of great importance that the food arrive at the earliest possible moment. Only under these conditions is it possible to combat Bolshevism and bring the German people back to sane conditions of life and political and industrial society," he said.

If food supplies, however, reach a low ebb the government will be forced to cut the meat ration of 200 grammes in Berlin and even lower in other cities.

"This ration, moreover, exists only on paper in some localities," he said. "Our stock of flour at the presentation of 260 grammes daily will last until the third week in May at the utmost. There is no ground for hope that the Poles will permit food shipments from Posen which was placed until their control by the armistice terms named 1st March."

DID HER A WORLD OF GOOD, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Moore Was So Weak She Could Hardly Get Up—Health Restored by Tanlac.

"I feel so well now that I can hardly realize the awful condition I was in before I took Tanlac," said Mrs. E. L. Moorem, of 943 S. Wellington street, Memphis, Tenn.

"I had been in a run down condition for two years," she continued, and was so weak I could hardly keep going. I had to force myself to eat, but nothing agreed with me and I got so lifeless and as account that I could hardly get up when I was sitting or lying down, or even do my housework. I suffered with splitting headaches that would almost drive me distracted.

"My appetite picked up on my first bottle of Tanlac and I am now eating three hearty meals a day, those awful headaches are gone and I am all feeling just fine. I have gained ten pounds and am strong enough to do all my housework with ease. Tanlac did me a world of good, more than all the other medicines I have taken put together."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Co., Limited. In Havelock by A. C. Denike. In Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd. In Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter. In Gelert by A. J. Scott. In Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

COURTING A MILITANT.

Miss Nancy O'Neill was a suffragette lady,
Decidedly militant, too.
Who was loved by an Irishman, Martin O'Grady,
But vainly, indeed, did he woo.
For Nancy was busy at blowing up houses
And kicking the chancellor's cat
And so had no time to be thinking of spouses
Or frivolous subjects like that.

With bonbons and flowers poor Martin pursued her,
But Nancy was deaf to his suit.
Though gently and sweetly and kindly he wooed her,
At all his proposals she'd hoot
Till finally, wearied of being so tender,
So patient and placid and calm
He gave up the homage he once used to render
And sent her a dynamite bomb

He trampled her garden with ardor most fervent,
Cast bricks through her windows galore,
Set fire to the house and abducted her servant,
Attempted to poison her guest.
So Nancy said: "How can I ever resist him?
Such militance beats me," she said.
So she put her fair arms round his neck,
and she kissed him.
And now they are happily wed.

PART OF TREATY

(United Press)

War Gas Dumped For Out at Sea

WASHINGTON — The first lot of poison gas which the American Army developed and manufactured for use in killing Germans in the great spring drive, scheduled for 1919, but halted by the signing of the armistice, has been disposed of by dumping it at sea. It consisted of 200,000 poison gas shells and some large drums, or containers, of poison gas, which have just been taken to sea from Baltimore and dropped into Davy Jones' Locker. The gas disposed of consisted of mustard gas and chlorpicrin gas, both of which are very dangerous and could not be used commercially.

The 200,000 gas shells were brought back from France on a transport about two weeks ago. After the other cargo of the transport had been unloaded the poison gas shells were taken in the same transport from Baltimore out to sea a distance of between sixty and 100 miles and dumped in about 1,500 feet of water. It was dumped deep enough not to have any effect on navigation and far enough at sea not to have any effect on the coast.

The containers taken to sea and dumped showed signs that they were soon about to begin to leak, as a result of chemical effect of the gas, and in the interest of safety of these were taken to sea and disposed of under directions given by Major Gen. Sibert, head of the Chemical Warfare Service.

Ultimately all of the poison gas in stores will be disposed of in this fashion, but until after the treaty of peace is signed the army will be in no hurry to get rid of a very valuable asset, and it is not the plan to take all this gas to sea for dumping until after the signing of the peace treaty, except in those cases where, through containers showing signs of leaking or for other good reasons, it is considered in the interest of safety to dispose of the gas sooner.

Sat Up In Bed To Get Her Breath

Palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, inability to lie on the left side, feelings as if smothering, oppressed feeling in the chest, dizzy and faint spells, tired weak, worn out feeling, involuntary twitching of the muscles, sleeplessness, restless, etc., all point to the fact that either the heart or nerves, or both, are not what they should be. Any of these conditions should be remedied immediately so as to avoid a complete breakdown of the whole system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will bring energy to the weakened constitution, strengthen and regulate the heart, and tone up the tired, overstrained nerves.

Mrs. William Steeves, Chemical Road, N.B., writes:— "I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart, which was so bad I had to sit up in bed to get my breath. I could not lie on my left side at all. I tried doctor after doctor, also several different remedies, but got no help from them. My mother insisted on me trying Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. By the time I had used one box, I was feeling very much better. I took in all three boxes and now I am in perfect health and can enjoy a good sound sleep, and can lie on my left side without any trouble.

Germany Will Be Allowed 370,000 Tons of Food Monthly

Germany Expected to Receive at Least 1,500,000 Tons Until April—Rations in Country Exist only on Paper.

Brussels, March 17. — The German delegates here definitely accepted on Friday the offer of the allies for a monthly ration of 370,000 tons of foodstuffs for Germany in payment of which they are to turn over to the allies the German mercantile fleet and German owned securities.

SMALLER THAN REQUIRED.

BRUSSELS, March 17. — At the conference here to determine the feeding of Germany, the German delegates protested that the amount to be allowed them was smaller than they required and were pessimistic as to the arrangements of satisfactory terms. After Vice-Admiral Roslyn Wemyss, chairman of the allied delegation had presented the conditions decided upon by the entente the Germans asked to be allowed to withdraw for consultation. They then formed three sub committees to deal with questions of finance, food supplies and mercantile marine.

WHAT WAS EXPECTED.

BERLIN, March 17.— Germany expects that the allies will provide food supplies until August 15th which is the earliest possible date that flour from this year's harvest can be counted upon, said Under-Secretary of State Strain before leaving for Brussels.

Herr Von Braun said Germany would ask for 1,400,000 tons of grain, and a monthly importation of 100,000 tons of porks and fats, in addition to condensed milk, rice, oatmeal, and other commodities required particularly for invalids, infants and hospitals.

He estimated the cost of shipment at 5,000,000,000 marks. It is a matter of great importance that the food arrive at the earliest possible moment. Only under these conditions is it possible to combat Bolshevism and bring the German people back to sane conditions of life and political and industrial sobriety," he said.

If food supplies, however, reach a low ebb the government will be forced to cut the meat ration of 200 grammes in Berlin and even lower in other cities.

"This ration moreover, exists only on paper in some localities," he said. "Our stock of flour at the present ration of 260 grammes daily will last until the third week in May at the utmost. There is no ground for hope that the Poles will permit food shipments from Posen which was placed until their control by the armistice terms named 15 March."

PART OF TREATY

(United Press)

New York March 15.—The Plenary Council at Paris has positively decided that the League of Nations is to be part of the Peace Treaty, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, announced to-day. He declared President Wilson had so cabled him.

War Gas Dumped Far Out at Sea

WASHINGTON.— The first lot of poison gas which the American Army developed and manufactured for use in killing Germans in the great spring drive, scheduled for 1919, but halted by the signing of the armistice, has been disposed of by dumping it at sea. It consisted of 200,000 poison gas shells and some large drums, or containers, of poison gas, which have just been taken to sea from Baltimore and dropped into Davy Jones' Locker. The gas disposed of consisted of mustard gas and chlorpicrin gas, both of which are very dangerous and could not be used commercially.

The 200,000 gas shells were brought back from France on a transport about two weeks ago. After the other cargo of the transport had been unloaded the poison gas shells were taken in the same transport from Baltimore out to sea a distance of between sixty and 100 miles and dumped in about 1,500 feet of water. It was dumped deep enough not to have any effect on navigation and far enough at sea not to have any effect on the coast.

The containers taken to sea and dumped showed signs that they were soon about to begin to leak, as a result of chemical effect of the gas, and in the interest of safety of these were taken to sea and disposed of under directions given by Major Gen. Sibert, head of the Chemical Warfare Service.

Ultimately all of the poison gas in drums will be disposed of in this fashion, but until after the treaty of peace is signed the army will be in no hurry to get rid of a very valuable asset, and it is not the plan to take all this gas to sea for dumping until after the signing of the peace treaty, except in those cases where, through containers showing signs of leaking or for other good reasons, it is considered in the interest of safety to dispose of the gas sooner.

THE WHEAT PROBLEM.

British Government Will Buy From Argentine.

Much interest attaches to the published statement that the British Government has established a credit of $240,000,000 in Argentina with which to purchase wheat at a price of approximately $1 a bushel; also that the wheat supply of Australia, so long unavailable because of a lack of shipping, is now pouring into Great Britain at about the same price as the Argentine wheat. It is announced also that there will be a liberal supply of wheat available from next year's crop in the Ukraine and in Siberia, all of which gives an optimistic tinge to the world food situation.

Despite this releasing of a goodly quantity of cheap wheat, the American farmers are assured of $2.20 a bushel for their 1919 crop, the same price that they received in 1918. The President has promised that next spring he will appoint a commission of experts to investigate the facts relative to the cost of production, and that if these facts show that a higher price than $2.20 should be guaranteed he will adopt it. This 'in the United States must have set on Canadian wheat.

are no longer exist any restrictions upon the used of all-wheat bread imposed by the food administration. Within the last few days orders have gone out to the hotel and restaurant keepers informing them that the regulations put into effect early last year were called off and that, among other things, they were free to serve as much bread as the customer wants.

If England and France buy Argentine and Australian wheat at $1 a bushel and only resort to the $2.20 American wheat to make up their deficiency, it seems probable that the food administration will be left with a liberal supply of wheat upon its hands for which it must pay the American farmer $2.20. This will impose something of a burden upon the taxpayers of the United States, but it will assure the agricultural interests of a good profit in recognition of their efforts to increase the grain production to meet the war emergency.

This apparent plethora of breadstuffs, however, does not reduce the danger of starvation in the Balkan states and in certain parts of Russia, a condition which has been predicted by Mr. Hoover. Transportation facilities are not available for carrying relief to these areas, and they are doomed to a hard winter. Even France and Belgium are facing a serious food situation because of their inability to get enough ships to haul grain for them. But in spite of these unfavorable phases of the situation, the farmer on this continent appears to have a seat at the head of the table.

GROCERIES.

Coffee Prices Due for a Sharp Advance—Tobaccos Lower.

"Canadian Grocer" says coffee markets continue their tendency towards higher levels, and it looks now as though a general revision upward in prices to the trade must soon be necessary. Stocks in hand in Canada are becoming pretty well depleted, and new arrivals just about due have been bought at figures which will mean a probable advance of about four cents per pound.

Tea seems to be holding its own, and whereas freight rates which have been quite a factor in the cost are lower, the markets at primary points have advanced more than offsetting the decline in transportation rates. It is understood there have been some fairly substantial parcels exported from Canada, and it would not require much of this business to place the tea trade in excellent shape as regards supplies.

A decline of ½c. per pound in one line of tobacco and 3c. in another was made last week. Peanut butter is lower. Steel wool is being quoted, and higher prices have been named on washboards.

And some people make us tired—because we can't run fast enough to get away from them.

Hun Had Found Picture.

Nearly four years ago Mrs. Lanchetti, of Toronto, sent a postcard group photograph of herself, her husband and two daughters to her son, Pte. Frank Lanchetti, with the 75th Battalion in England, then on his way to France. He was wounded on August 4 last year after much hard fighting and is now slowly recovering from wounds in the back. His father has gone to see him. The other day Mrs. Lanchetti received from B. Luman, a Toronto boy with the Canadian troops, the picture she had sent to her son. On the back he wrote that he had got the picture from a "Fritz" and had forwarded it to the family address on the back. It apparently had been lost on the battlefield by Pte. Lanchetti, picked up by the German and recovered by Pte. Luman.

DID HER A WORLD OF GOOD, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Moore Was So Weak She Could Hardly Get Up—Health Restored by Tanlac.

"I feel so well now that I can hardly realise the awful condition I was in before I took Tanlac," said Mrs. E. L. Moorem, of 943 S. Wellington street, Memphis, Tenn.

"I had been in a run down condition for two years," she continued, and was so weak I could hardly keep going. I had to force myself to eat, but nothing agreed with me and I got so lifeless and as account that I could hardly get up when I was sitting or lying down, or even do my housework. I suffered with splitting headaches that would almost drive me distracted.

"My appetite picked up on my first bottle of Tanlac and now am now eating three hearty meals a day, those awful headaches are gone and I am all feeling just fine. I have gained ten pounds and am strong enough to do all my housework with ease. Tanlac did me a world of good more than all the other medicines I have taken put together."

COURTING A MILITANT.

Miss Nancy O'Neill was a suffragette lady,
Decidedly militant, too,
Who was loved by an Irishman, Martin O'Grady,
But calmly, indeed, did he woo.
For Nancy was busy at blowing up houses
And kicking the chancellor's cat
And so had no time to be thinking of spouses
Or frivolous subjects like that.

With bonbons and flowers poor Martin pursued her,
But Nancy was deaf to his suit.
Though gently and sweetly and kindly he wooed her,
At all his proposals she'd hoot
Till finally, wearied of being so tender,
So patient and placid and calm,
He gave up the homage he once used to render
And sent her a dynamite bomb

He trampled her garden with ardor most fervent,
Cast bricks through her windows quite neat,
Set fire to the house and abducted her servant,
Attempted to poison her guest.
So Nancy said: "How can I ever resist him?
Such militance beats me," she said.
So she put her fair arms round his neck,
and she kissed him.
And now they are happily wed.

Sat Up in Bed To Get Her Breath

Palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, inability to lie on the left side, feelings as if smothering, oppressed feeling in the chest, dizzy and faint spells, tired weak, worn out feeling, involuntary twitching of the muscles, sleeplessness, restless, etc., all point to the fact that either the heart or nerves, or both, are not what they should be. Any of these conditions should be remedied immediately so as to avoid a complete breakdown of the whole system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will bring energy to the weakened constitution, strengthen and regulate the heart, and tone up the tired, overstrained nerves.

Mrs. William Steeves, Chemical Road, N.B., writes:— "I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart, which was so bad I had to sit up in bed to get my breath. I could not lie on my left side at all. I tried doctor after doctor, also several different remedies, but got no help from them. My mother insisted on me trying Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. By the time I had used one box, I was feeling very much better. I took in all three boxes and now I am in perfect health and can enjoy a good sound sleep, and can lie on my left side without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Brian Goes to a Dinner Given by Major Williams

CHAPTER CXLV.

When Ruth reached home she found a note pinned on her cushion. Brian had written it after she left.

"I shall not be home for dinner, so do not wait." That was all. Big tears of disappointment filled her eyes. Then, too, she feared he was not well enough to remain out so long.

"Rachel, what time did Mr. Hackett go out to-day?" she went into the kitchen to enquire.

"He went soon as he had his lunch, Missy Ruth."

"Do you know where he went?" Ruth had forgotten he had told her he was going down to the old office, for a bit, and so she had asked Rachel. She would not have dreamed of questioning any other servant, but she looked upon her old mammy as one of the family and felt no compunction over the familiarity.

"No 'deed, missy, he didn't tell me nothin'. Just talked to the telephon', then went away." Rachel always called it talking to the telephone.

"Do you know who telephoned?"

"No—I was too busy—I didn't listen, missy Ruth."

Ruth repressed a smile at the old negress' naivete, but soon forgot to be amused. Where could Brian be?

And could it have been Mollie King who telephoned? It was too aggravating.

She ate her lonely dinner—that is, she made a pretense of eating it. As it grew late she became worried, anxious for fear something had happened to him.

"I couldn't stand that," she deprecated. "I couldn't! He isn't strong yet. He might have fainted or been injured." In her anxiety she conjured up all sorts of evils which might have occurred. Motor cars were no respecters of persons; his cross of honour would not save him from their revolving wheels if he were to slow in getting out of the way. She would have telephoned, had she known whom to call, or had she any idea where he might be found. Just as she was desperately considering calling up the police she heard his key in the door and he came in.

He sank wearily into a chair as she asked where he had been, and why he hadn't left word so she would not worry. She kissed him with passionate fervour, thankful that he was safe at home, even though he did look tired.

"You look completely used up, dear." She drew her fingers through his hair, letting them come to rest on his cheek, "I have been so anxious."

"Why should you be anxious?" the words sounded curt, but his voice was pleasant, simply detached, as if he saw no reason why she should worry.

"How could I help being anxious? You aren't well yet, the doctor said you must go slow, you remember. It is almost midnight, and"—

"What if it is? I couldn't get back before, very well. It might have broken up the party."

"What party?" Suddenly Ruth visioned one of the old-time parties in "The Village" where Brian used to go. A party of men and girls, all bent on having a good time in as unconventional a manner as possible. Could it be that Brian, her wonderful soldier husband, had gone back to that frivolity? Hadn't the war, the experiences through which he had passed, made him long for bigger things—better ways to spend his time, more intellectual companions. In the "village" most of the so-called intellectuals were posseurs,—so Ruth thought. In reality she knew so little of them, she was not able to separate the true from the false, the real from the makebelieve.

"Major Williams and some of the boys who fought together met at Keene's and talked over old times—they seem like old times," he added wearily, then, with more animation. "They are a great bunch, from the Major down to Tim Morris, the private who earned his stripes but too late to need them save as a mark of what a brave lad he was. He's blind, and has lost a leg. He was the gayest one in the crowd. I guess he thought we would pity him if he let up a minute, so he kept us laughing all through dinner."

"I wish I might meet some of those wonderful friends of yours." A sigh of relief at knowing where he had spent the evening, fluttered between her lips.

"You never will—I hope (inaudibly.) But I must go to bed. I'm all in."

Pimples Broke Out All Over Face, Arm and Neck

Pimples are sure sign that the blood is not in its proper shape.

While the skin is the seat of the irritating, unsightly pimples, the real disease is in the blood.

Medicated lotions and powders may allay the itching and the irritation, but never cure, no matter how long and faithfully continued, and the condition is often aggravated, and the skin permanently injured by their use. The disease is more than skin deep; the entire circulation is poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually cures blood and skin troubles because it goes direct to the root of the disease and stimulates and restores normal, healthy action to the different organs, cleanses and enriches the blood, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous secretions.

B. B. B. cures permanently because it leaves none of the original poison to ferment in the blood and cause a fresh attack.

Miss E. M. Davids, Daysland, Alta., writes: "Last summer I was greatly troubled with pimples breaking out all over my face, arms and neck. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters and after taking two bottles the pimples had almost all disappeared. I shall always recommend this remedy to anyone afflicted with skin troubles."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto Ont.

CANINE HEROES HAD TO DIE

Dire Necessity Forced the Monks of St. Bernard to Put Their Dogs to Death.

All but six of the famous St. Bernard dogs kept by the monks of that ancient monastery in the Alps have been killed. Shortage of meat caused by the war led to this massacre.

The St. Bernard pass is of historical renown. It connects the valleys of the Rhone and the Dora Baltea. It was traversed by Roman legions thousands of years ago. In medieval times the pass served the armies of conquerors and the bands of mercenaries. Napoleon crossed the Alps at this point in 1800.

The great monastery was built in the middle of the sixteenth century. It was maintained for the relief of travelers who were surprised by snowstorms while crossing the pass. The St. Bernard dogs were used to find the frozen victims of the storms in the snowdrifts. They were specially trained for this work of relief and carried the first aid to the injured in a little basket attached to their collars. These dogs rescued thousands of human beings, many of whom were of historical prominence. And for the first time in the history of this famous monastery the dogs had to be slaughtered for want of food. At other times a report of this sort would create profound interest in Paris, but at present the human race is thinking of its own necessities and cares less about dog heroes living more than 8,100 feet above the surface of the sea.

Clean the clogged-up places!
Bring joy to little faces!
Kiddies will eat and smile,

Careful mothers o'er the land

Children think them dandy—
They are mild cathartic candy.
Cascarets sell for a dime;
They "work" every time.

Mothers! When a child has a coated tongue, tainted breath or is bilious, constipated or full of cold, give Cascarets as directed on each 10 cent box. Children gladly take this harmless candy cathartic which thoroughly cleanses their little stomachs, livers and bowels without griping.

INSPIRES BLIND MEN

SIR ARTHUR PEARSON VISITS THE DOMINION.

Famous Newspaper Man Who Has Been Devoting All His Time and Ability to Helping the Men Who Lost Their Sight Fighting the Battles of Their Country.

ONE doesn't ordinarily think of a blind man as being dominating, masterful, self-confident to a marked degree. Blind men tap along with canes. They lean on some one. They put out feeling hands, and hesitate. They look up peculiarly and turn their heads to listen. They seldom "go about alone." But this one is quite different. This one is Sir Arthur Pearson, the man who was, six years ago, one of the biggest newspaper and magazine men in England, perhaps in the world, and who is now giving his life to "teaching men to be blind," as his own expression has it.

Sir Arthur Pearson, who lost his sight six years ago, when he was in the prime of his life and his journalistic success, and who founded and directs St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors, in Regent's Park, London, recently paid a visit to Canada as he is intensely interested in the work that is being done here for the blind soldiers. The work for Canadian blinded men is being started on lines closely following those of St. Dunstan's, and he came to Canada to tell in detail what he has done, and for mutual discussion on the subject. And, for any one who spoke with him, or even saw him during his stay here, the connotations of the word "blind" have been swiftly and miraculously changed.

And this, since he is a sort of prototype of what men blinded in battle are to be, is a very cheering thing. We have heard, of course, of the work done at St. Dunstan's, but we have not seen the actual results. All men blinded in battle have not the personality and the force of Sir Arthur Pearson, but we know at least now that they can live their normal lives again, and do their work, and "go about alone," and that, even in a blind man, it is personality and force which count.

But even the wide significance of his example and his work is somewhat lost sight of in the consciousness of the sheer personality of this man who, being cut off, by one of the worst physical afflictions, in the middle of one remarkable career, became the pioneer in another. As soon as he lost his sight, as he will tell you, he "sacked his valet," believing that if a man is dependent in little things he will be dependent in big things. That was characteristic, and the fact that people often speak of what a good man he must have, to tie his bow ties as if he had done them himself, proves that his independence in the little things is just as great as in the big.

Sir Arthur himself — the man whom some one has described as "the greatest hustler I ever knew outside of America." He is a big man and radiates energy. He would come to greet you with his hand extended, and by some sense more subtle and immediate than eyesight he would know what kind of person you were; and he would listen to your voice and to your thought more than to your words. He would wave aside all idea of the visit being an intrusion, or of the fact that he might be tired after his trips.

"I don't believe in being tired," he would say, almost brusquely, and turn to the matter in hand, speaking briefly and very quickly, and without wasting a word or a second or a movement of the hand. Sir Arthur is a man of action and of instantaneous decisions, of absolute self-confidence, large will power, and an enduring mental energy. He dominates other people. It is possible to imagine him, a blind man, leading a regiment into battle, over the top, and into the enemy's trenches. He could find his way, and lead it. He could put confidence into every man behind him, and command him. He is the sort of person whom people fear, and admire, and look up to in an emergency.

He knows the psychology of the blinded, in distinction to those born blind, and for that reason is peculiarly fitted to help the soldier and the sailor back to living. He is only asking them to do what he himself has done—to fit themselves for some new kind of work if their old kind has become impracticable for them. His own fitting for his new work came simply through his own experience of going from light to darkness. He knows what it is like. He knows what has to be learned over again, and how it may best be learned. For a while he travelled, and tried to be cured.

But for a real newspaper man who knows something new, or has just learned an old thing for the first time, the important thing is to tell it. There were things he wanted to tell other blind men, ways in which he believed the whole condition of the blind could be improved. So he became president of the National Institute for the Blind, and then, when the war came, was asked to be one of a Joint Honorary Collectorship for the National Relief Fund. He came across a blinded Belgian soldier one day, in hospital, and two Britishers, and it was just then that the present work came into existence.

Two blind men were the first patients at No. 6 Bayswater Hill, donated by Mrs. Lewis Hall, and then, with sixteen men, came St. Dunstan's, an immense place which had been given by Otto H. Kahn. Now there are 403 men there. 654 trained men have left, and 200 more, who will enter soon, are still in hospital. They are learning Braille reading and writing, typewriting and stenography, telephone operating, massage, poultry farming, joinery, basket making, and netting. Sir Arthur himself lives with the blind officers in the special hostel in Portland Place.

When he stopped his own work, he was controlling and directing three daily papers and several magazines. He never hesitated to take on more work, more responsibility. Nor does he now. There is enough work for the ordinary blind housed up waiting for him at the National Institute for the Blind, his secretary says, to take a lifetime for completion. He works almost every minute of the waking day, often being read to even when he dresses, dictating and planning and seeing people and personally supervising, all day long.

Pearson was known in the old days, along with his friend and rival, Lord Northcliffe, as an exponent of "the new journalism," and his chief efforts were made in advocating tariff reform. He was, in fact, vice-president of the Imperial Tariff Reform League. He began in the publishing house of Sir George Newnes, where he quickly became manager. After four years he left to start Pearson's Weekly, which he followed by Home Notes, Pearson's Magazine, Rapid Reviews, and others. In 1909 he started the Daily Express, a halfpenny London paper, and he also went through the country district, buying up provincial newspapers in large numbers. He founded the North Mail and Evening Mail at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the Gazette and Express and Evening Despatch in Birmingham. Late he bought the London Standard and consolidated it with the St. James' Gazette.

Probably the elements that create the most satisfaction in the use of any article are an accurate knowledge of what it will do before it is made and to prove that it will efficiently accomplish its purpose after it is made.

It is on this basis that we build our belting and the knowledge of what it will do is the result of over fifty years experience and research.

We prove by careful tests that every ounce of material is up to our high standard—each individual operation is checked as the belt proceeds from one machine to the next and a sample of the finished belt is tested, both chemically and physically, to prove that it will efficiently serve the purpose for which it was made and that it has a reserve of strength for emergencies.

We want you to test not only our claims of superiority for Dominion Rubber System belting, but our free belting service in charge of belting experts, who can help to cut your manufacturing costs, by making your equipment more efficient.

A phone, wire or letter to our nearest service branch will enable you to test this service without obligation.

He Did Get It.

There is an elevator boy in a Toronto office building who is among a large number of public servants that resent needless questions. One day there entered his car a rather fussy old lady and garrulous as well. "Don't you ever feel sick going up and down in this elevator all day?" she asked. "Yes, ma'am," said the boy. "Is it the motion going down?" "No, ma'am." "The motion going up?" "No, ma'am." "Is it the stopping that does it?" "No, ma'am." "Then what is it?" "Answering questions, ma'am."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Oh, You Oboe!

By ARCHEY CAMERON NEW

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Fuller and Fenton did their last steps and retired to their dressing room, and the close of the Olympia's Monday morning "trakeover"—sometimes called rehearsal—was betokened by the awakening of Andy Seabell, the property man, advancing with a broom. O'Brien, in the fiddle pit, laid down his baton.

"Guess that lets us out," he announced to the others in the orchestra. Shawter started to close his piano, when O'Brien, with a twinkle in his eye, stepped once more upon the dais and called to a wrinkled individual on the stage: "Oh, I beg pardon, Charlie. Boys, one verse of the funeral march. Charlie's doin' a single, entitled 'The Death of a Dying Brain.'"

A roar of laughter from the pit brought Charlie Zepp, the Olympia's press agent, from a huddled position on a packing box in the rear of the stage to his feet. He advanced to the footlights with a savage frown.

"Ladies and gen-tle-men," he announced, over O'Brien's head, to the empty house beyond, "The Olympia, as always, leads the rest. To encourage the success of amateur nights, we have placed an amateur hand to play for you."

At a signal from O'Brien taps were rolled on the trapdrum, and amid the laughter that followed Zepp retired in defeat.

O'Brien beckoned to Wallace Mackay, who played the oboe, and the young man followed him out under the stage. When they were alone O'Brien turned to him with a frown.

"Wallace, old scout," he began, apologetically, "I hate to tell you, but you're looking awful seedy. Th' boss thinks it looks bad for the house. Better get a new suit."

"But, Bill," objected Mackay, ruefully regarding his wornout clothes, "I can't do it right now. I haven't the money. Besides, why th' new clothes? Only the first rows see us, an' they're generally travelin' men."

"Not this week they ain't," answered O'Brien in the best Queen's English. "Forrest's trying out that Lawder kid; she's a local bird an' all th' home folks will be down front all week t' give her th' up an' down. It'll look bad for th' house if th' orchestra look like bums. Get the new stuff on tick, or somehow, but get it. Get me?"

Mackay nodded dumbly, and wended his way despondently to the stage door, pausing near Charlie Zepp, he was talking to the latter, meanwhile strenuously brushing his spotted tuxedo coat, when a golden-haired little vision floated by, attired for the street. She smiled merrily at the two men.

"Oh, you oboe!" she greeted Mackay cordially, then her eyes lighted on Zepp.

"Oh, Mr. Zepp!" she cried, eagerly. "Please give me a big write-up will you? I want all my friends to see me here this week. Please do."

"What've you done?" demanded Zepp bluntly. "Y' can't get big write-ups outa air, y'know. Small-time acts gets small-time write-ups."

"And small-time press agents generally have small-time brains," she retorted good-naturedly. "But maybe you can stretch yours." And flitting away, she tossed from her pink fingertips a kiss to them.

Mackay glanced at Zepp unhappily.

"Some day you'll recognize merit," he said sorrowfully. "I do look like a hobo. Even O'Brien told me to get a new suit. And just for her, too. So's her friends won't think th' Olympia is a cheap joint."

"Don't let that worry y' none," sympathized Charlie, howbeit sourly. "There won't be many t' look at her. I'll fix that."

Mackay started, for a vision of her wistful face floated across his mind.

"Oh, Charlie, have a heart," he pleaded. "Don't ruin th' kid's fun just 'cause you're in a bad humor."

"She's a cheese!" growled Zepp, and, reflecting on the orchestra's laughter a few minutes before, he added, savagely: "And so are you. So mind your own business."

* * * * * * *

Helen Lawder, stepping out of Forrest's office about two hours later, heard two men wrangling in the lobby, and stepped back again and peeped through the crack in the door.

Mackay had gripped Charlie Zepp's arm and pushed him away from a large picture frame. In his (Mackay's) hand was Helen Lawder's picture, and as she saw it the girl behind the door started violently.

"Put that back!" thundered Mackay, holding out the picture.

"I won't!" refused Zepp, heatedly. "She sassed me and she gets no notoriety for it, see?"

"Then I will," announced Mackay, and he replaced the photo in the open case and snapped the door. "And it stays there, get me?"

"You're a nut," growled Zep, taking another tack. "Y're ruinin' yerself, 'at's all. Ain't she settin' y' back th' cost of a new suit? An' didn't she call you a hobo?"

Mackay smiled ruefully.

"I guess she's right there," he admitted. "Anyway that's no reason why the poor girl should suffer. Why, Charlie, this engagement means a lot to her. It'll give her a big boost. Be a sport, Charlie. Give th' kid a chance. Th' mere fact that it's costin' me a new suit, just 'cause her town folks are gonna be here, ain't makin' me sore. An' besides, it's costin' me money, an' you not a red. C'mon, be a sport. I'll go you fifty-fifty. You give her five lines, and I'll buy th' suit. What d'ye say?"

"You win," he said huskily, and hurried out of the lobby.

Helen, having heard every word, turned with a white face and a sob in her throat and opened the door to the manager's private office.

"Mr. Forrest, please, can I see you a minute?" she pleaded, and Forrest, noting her anxious face, banished his frown and bowed her smiling to a chair.

"No, I can't sit down," she told him hurriedly. "I want to tell you something." And then into attentive ears she poured everything she had seen and heard. "And now, Mr. Forrest, can you—will you do me a favor?"

"I'll try," he promised, smiling. He, too, couldn't resist the appeal of those soft blue eyes.

"Will you call Mackay in and give him a present of $50?" she asked. "He's done so much for me, and I want to repay him. Here it is." And she held out some bills to the manager, who waved them aside.

"Take 'em away," he replied gruffly, to hide a choking in his throat. "I'll give it to 'im myself." He choked off her protest quickly. "Nonsense. It's nothing. I'll charge it up to house expenses. And now—I'm busy."

"Thank you—so much," she whispered and then turned and fled from the office.

In a little restaurant around the corner—patronized largely by the Olympia theater family, from stars to stage hands—after a night show two weeks later, two men sat nibbling at a late supper, and nodding meaningly at a young couple near by. One of them, Charlie Zepp, laid a chicken bone on his plate reverently, and whispered to the other.

"Forrest's an awful crumb," he confided to his companion, the O'Brien of the fiddle pit. "He did that."

"Stop choking and say something," urged O'Brien tartly.

"Am sayin' somethin'," insisted Zepp, warmly. "Forrest's spoiled th' beans."

"Look this way," ordered the other. "Y're seein' things. D. T.'s again?"

"Naturally y' wouldn't see nothin'," retorted Zepp. "I'll wise y' up. See th' flasher th' Lawder kid's got on her left hand?"

O'Brien looked and nodded disinterestedly.

"Forrest gave her that."

O'Brien, being near-sighted, leaned a little forward.

"G'wan," he snorted. "That's Mackay with her. He's th' tall guy."

"Tall guy, h——th' distance!" Zepp corrected himself hastily. As the two ladies eyed him reproachfully, and lowered his voice. "It wuz Forrest, I tell y'. Young Mackay did 'er a good turn. She asks Forrest t' whip Mackay fifty bob fer a new willow-rig. Forrest thumbs down on her roll, gets greasy in th' lamps an' slips Mackay a fake raise. Then he spills it to th' other bur that Lawder's ready t' retire. Three a day in a nice H'Harlem flat, providin' she ain't alone."

"Well?"

"Well, she ain't playin'. Is she?" demanded Zepp. "An' she ain't alone, is she?"

Not in Any Farm Book.

Recently a woman who is a college graduate gave up her regular work and moved to a farm. In order to make a success of farming she not only read books on scientific agriculture, but also listened to the earnest advice of experienced farmers. Sometimes this advice was too far removed from science to be useful.

One farmer, who probably has never read a farmer's bulletin, heard a discussion about "How to get rid of cutworms." He said he knew a remedy that was sure. "Take a shotgun," he said, "go to the east corner of the field, fire the gun toward the west, then walk straight across the field to the opposite corner, then fire the gun again. This will cause every cutworm to disappear."

Washed Her Hands of Him.

Lillian's mother disliked anyone who was illiterate or "ignorant" as she was wont to call them. Lillian inherited that dislike, which was evident to all her playmates. One evening I overheard the following conversation between her and her little friend, Billy:

"What's your papa doin'?" asked Billy.

"Reading," replied Lillian, making sure of her "g."

"My papa's cuttin' the grass."

"You should say, 'My papa is mowing the lawn,'" corrected Lillian.

"No," Billy insisted, "my papa's cuttin' the grass."

Shakespearean Research.

Man who has been digging into the life of England's bard and trying to find out "who was Mrs. Shakespeare and did she marry again?" arrived at the conclusion (1) that Shakespeare never married at all; (2) if he did he was probably a bigamist, and (3) there was nobody called Shakespeare, but only Shaxper or Shagspere. An impertinent curiosity, which is first cousin to an abiding thirst for knowledge, can cause a heap of trouble.—New York Evening Telegram.

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Remember.

When the war is over, no excuse will go.

Either you were in it or you were not.

Either you shouldered your gun, served in the trenches, or the Young Men's Christian Association, the Red Cross or in some place where the door was opened, or else you did nothing.

If you could not serve, you could send your boys with a Godspeed, as they marched out to the front. To hold them back stamped them as slackers.

Either you strained your resources to buy Liberty bonds or you forgot your obligation to those who fought and died for your flag.

Disqualification for active service is no justification for forgetting the boys behind the guns who sacrificed all thought of gain and were willing to sacrifice their lives at their country's call.—Leslie's.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine, the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At this season of the year you should get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts, put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a few days. This is said to flush the kidneys and stimulate them to activity, thus helping them to throw off the poisonous waste matter and uric acid impurities.

Jad Salts is made from the acid of grapes and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and it used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid and is likewise said to be beneficial to your kidneys as well.

A SYMPHONY OF RICH HUES.

Artistic Color Scheme of San Francisco's Panama Exposition.

The Panama exposition at San Francisco is to set a new fashion in colors, according to Scribner's Magazine. The Chicago fair was a white city. The San Francisco fair will be all aglow with rich color. Jules Guerin, who has charge of this department, has said:

"When I went to California to study the problem of color I saw the vibrant tints of the native wild flowers, the soft browns of the surrounding hills, the gold of the orangeries, the blue of the sea, and I determined that, just as a musician builds his symphony around the motif or chord, so must I strike a chord of color and build my symphony on this. The one point upon which I have insisted is that there shall be no white (save perhaps a man visitor's shirt front or a woman's summer frock). The pillars, statues, fountains, masts, walls and flagpoles that are to contrast with the tinted decorations are to be of ivory yellow, rich and soft in tone. I have been personally superintended the dyeing of the bunting for flags and draperies."

The roofs of the exhibition buildings will present a pattern of red tiles, golden domes and copper green minarets. The roof colors will be reinforced by the rich coloring of intervening courts that will be filled with greenery and gorgeous masses of bloom. Their color scheme also will be under Mr. Guerin's control. "Imagine," says he, "a gigantic Persian rug of soft, waking tones, with brilliant splashes here and there, spread down for a mile or more and you may get some idea of what the Panama-Pacific exposition will look like when viewed from the distance, say, of the Sausalito heights across the Golden Gate."

Defective Children.

Some startling statements were made by Mr. George A. Putnam, superintendent of Women's Institutes, at the Western Ontario Dairymen's Convention, relative to the physical condition of children in rural schools in Ontario. As a result of an investigation covering 20,000 children, in various parts of the province, Mr. Putnam said 65 per cent. were in need of attention by the dentist, 10 per cent. suffered from defective hearing, 10 per cent. from defective eyesight and 38 per cent. from adenoids or enlarged tonsils.

"The condition of children in rural schools is lower than that of children in city schools," Mr. Putnam said. This statement, however, is hardly borne out by a report recently made by Medical Officer Hastings relative to conditions in Toronto. Fifty per cent. of the children attending Toronto schools are, Dr. Hastings said, suffering from physical defects other than those affecting the teeth. But in both cases a condition exists that calls for prompt attention.

WHO CAN RISE TO OCCASION?

Name of Man Capable of Formulating "Umbrella Regulations" Will Live in History.

With the passing of each rainy day it becomes increasingly strange that no benefactor of the race has been prodded, gouged or spattered into preparing a "Manual of Umbrellas." People have been carrying some sort of protection against the rain ever since anybody can remember, yet the only thing they have really learned to do well is to lose umbrellas. No two persons, not even lovers, can walk under one umbrella without getting wet and raincoats probably were first devised by a man who tried to carry an umbrella over his wife's hat. What excuse is there for the person who goes through a crowded street holding an umbrella before him in a charge-bayonets fashion? An apology does not exactly meet the requirements after the tip of an umbrella rib has been thrust into some one's eye. Folded, the umbrella is just as dangerous, when some one comes plunging along the sidewalk holding the umbrella at an angle of about 45 degrees ahead of him, tripping every one but himself. Then there is the person who rucks the handle under the arm, so that an innocent person may become speared on the sharp end which sticks out like a 60-foot telephone pole on a 15-foot truck. Furthermore, wet umbrellas never were intended as partitions between seats, even at a motion picture theater. There is no desire to distract the best brains of the country from consideration of war problems, but some sort of umbrella regulations are needed.

Silvery Bark of the Yellow Birch.

The bark of the yellow birch can be compared with nothing else. The tree is unique among trees. The yellow birch, often better called the silvery birch, has a bark more tinsel-like than that of any other tree. It seems to have been made for campers to admire, or perhaps, in an emergency, to use to kindle the camp fire, says Edward F. Bigelow in Boys' Life. But do not allow the appreciation of the useful to overcome your appreciation of the beautiful. It is true that the bark may thus be used for kindling, and it is also probably true that the removal of the loose bark does not injure the tree, but such removal injures the beauty of the tree, as you then deprive it of its chief characteristic. The manner in which the bark breaks on the main trunk expands and rolls back in ribbonlike curls and strips, which long remain attached and rustle in every passing breeze, could not fail to elicit the admiration of every lover of the forest.

It is noticeable that on old trunks the character of the bark is different, as there it is roughened by irregular platelike scales.

Water Power In Canada.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Dominion Water Power branch of the Department of the Interior, assisted by various provincial departments, have just completed a census and directory of central power stations in Canada, which are engaged in the production of electrical power for sale. The capital invested in power stations totals $356,004,168, of which 79.5 per cent. is invested in commercial stations and 20.5 per cent. in municipal or public-owned stations. Total employes number 8,840, receiving wages and salaries totalling $7,777,715 per annum.

The total revenue received from the sale of electrical energy is $44,536,848 of which $29,135,399 was received by commercial and $15,401,449 by municipal plants. The primary power installation in central stations totals 1,814,571 horsepower, of which 78.3 per cent., or 1,444,314 horsepower is installed in commercial stations and 21.7 per cent. or 400,257 horsepower, in municipal stations. Of the total primary horsepower installed 1,652,661 horsepower is derived from water, 180,800 from steam and 31,710 from gas and oil.

These statistics show, with an aggregate turbine installation of 745,737 horsepower and a total construction cost of $50,730,458, an average cost of $69.11 per installed turbine horsepower. One of the outstanding features of the statistics is the position water power occupies. Out of a total installed primary capacity of 1,844,871 horsepower, a total of 1,652,661 horsepower, or 89.6 per cent., is derived from water.

Has Fought in Many Climes

WINNER of the Victoria Cross in Egypt and recommended for this most coveted war decoration for valor in the great war, Sergt.-Major Charles Garratt has recently come to Canada. He won the D.C.M. in France. A soldier all his life, he has campaigned in many lands. He is a big, upstanding Irishman, who was born in the pretty little town of Bollina, which is in the far west of Ireland. He had a hankering after a soldier's life, and took the earliest opportunity of joining the army. In August, 1884, he enlisted with the 21st Hussars, a regiment which afterwards was armed with the lance. He went to India in the following year, and was in that country for three years.

In 1898 he was sent to the Soudan with Kitchener's forces, and took part in the battle of Omdurman. It was here that he won the V.C. for saving the life of Lieut. D. Montmorency. The troopers had ridden three times through the ranks of the Dervishes, who were showing their wonted disregard of death and fighting with savage fury. The officer was thrown from his horse, and, being surrounded by the enemy, his life was apparently not worth a minute's purchase. Sergt.-Major Garrett rode to his aid, and after almost losing his own life, succeeded in bringing the young officer out of the ring of death, losing both his sword and lance in doing so.

Speaking of the incident to a Canadian friend the sergeant-major said: "I met him afterwards in South Africa, but unfortunately he was killed at Nicholson's Nek. I was then serving in the 5th Lancers, having been sent to South Africa at the beginning of the war."

Garrett fought at Elandslaagte, the Siege of Ladysmith, Diamond Hill and Belfast, and in a number of minor engagements. At the termination of the campaign he went to London, England, and, still determined to follow a military career, joined the 1st Irish Guards with rank of sergeant-major for twenty years, which in itself is a record to be proud of.

Ever anxious for active service, the sergeant-major again turned his eyes towards Africa, and in 1904 was on the West Coast, serving on the staff. A couple of years later he was on the other side of the Dark Continent, putting the fear of the British drill sergeant into the hearts of Soudanese troops, and later the fear of death into the Somaliland natives. He was at Port Soudan and Mombassa in 1907 and 1908, and four years later he left the army and car to Canada, making Vancouver his objective.

After serving on the Northwest Mounted Police for some time, he went to South America, and is next seen in his Protean career as a captain in the police force at Chuchuquimatti, about 700 kilometres from Antofagasta, on the Bolivian frontier. In 1914 he returned to London, and when the great war broke out joined the 1st battalion, King's Liverpool Regiment. He was soon in France, and fought at Mons, won the D.C.M. at Givenchy on Christmas Eve, 1914, and was recommended for the Medaille Militaire. He was several times wounded, slightly at Loos and Festubert, and most seriously in the head and legs at Boucicourt. He was again recommended for the V.C., but, with soldierly modesty, prefers to touch lightly on the fact.

On January 26th last year he received his discharge from active service, but was soon again in harness, his next appearance being as instructor for three months at El Paso, Texas, to the 6th and 7th American cavalry. In July last he was camp sergeant-major at Valcartier, and took a party of French-Canadian troops to England. Last year he was in charge of the greatest military pageant ever held in the United States, the Sousa-Lauder parade for the Liberty Loan at Detroit.

Sergt.-Major Garrett is at present in a Toronto military hospital, as he is troubled by some of his six old wounds. He is in the prime of life, however, and with his breast adorned with ribbons, looks a fine figure of a British soldier. He is unmarried, and has no relatives in this country, but Lieut. Oswald Lennox, a son of Mr. Justice Lennox, whom he knew in France, is a warm friend.

War Widows Remarrying.

War widows are making the best of misfortunes and many are taking unto themselves other husbands. Information forthcoming from the Board of Pension Commissioners shows that a great many women who have lost their husbands at the front are remarrying. War widows who remarry are given a gratuity of $480, which amount is paid to them in a lump sum. This is the equal of one year's pension, ordinarily paid in monthly instalments to widows. Then the Government ceases to have further responsibility for the widow, though the pension allowed to each of her children continues, in the case of a girl, until she attains the age of seventeen years, and in the case of a boy, until he reaches sixteen years of age.

Explaining Shower of Fishes.

A recent shower of fishes at Hendon, a suburb of Sunderland, England, occurred about 3 p. m., during a heavy thundershower, and lasted about ten minutes. A. Meek of Dove Marine laboratory, states in Nature that the fall was confined to an area of about a third of an acre. The fishes were all about three inches long and all sandeels, a marine species often present in great shoals along the English beaches. The place of fall is a quarter of a mile from the seashore. It is found probable that the fishes, numbering several hundred, were drawn by a waterspout from the bay to the southeast and transported by the easterly breeze at least half a mile. As the fishes were all dead the evidence that inland waters may have been stocked with marine forms from the air is not conclusive.

New Alloy of Great Value.

On account of the high temperature required for suitably hardening fine-edged tools of tungsten high-speed steel, Sheffield tool-makers have sought a substitute material. A new alloy produced by adding cobalt to chromium-carbon steel is reported to be best hardened by a temperature not exceeding 1,200°. For most purposes the hardening needed is obtained when the tool is cooled naturally in draft-free air. In a comparative test saws of "cobalt cream," as the new steel is called, continued cutting four days without regrinding, while saws of magnet high-speed steel were dulled in two days and those of carbon-steel in half a day.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Brushing the Teeth.

In brushing the teeth use the brush downward for the upper teeth and from the gums upward for the lower teeth. By this method the bristles go between the teeth as well as over the front and sides. The teeth always must be recognized for what they are—invaluable adjuncts to both beauty and health. Consequently no pains are too great to secure perfect cleanliness of the teeth and mouth. If there is too much acidity in the system the teeth will decay quickly, and much suffering will be entailed. To counteract this an alkaline dentifrice should be used. If the teeth are yellow or show discolored spots a little powdered pumice stone can be used. It should be slightly moistened so that it will adhere to the orange wood stick with which it is rubbed on the spots. After brushing the teeth an antiseptic mouth wash should be used.

The Wisdom of the East.

If it is more important to introduce ready-made cigarettes than it is to supply an example of unparalleled commercial honesty, China owes us a great deal. Otherwise it is vice versa. As an expert manager and as a member of the Committee on Foreign Trade of the National Association of Manufacturers, I have learned much from foreigners in methods of merchandizing, in courtesy and in breadth of business vision. The credit losses of Canadian manufacturers average less in their dealings with the Far East than they do in their domestic relations. Unjustified claims, petty exactions and semi-dishonesty are less frequent in foreign than in home trade.

An incident which happened in a New York hotel may give a hint as to why Orientals are slow at accepting American ideals at our own valuation.

An export manager was discussing with his Bombay agent the details of a campaign to cover the markets of India and Afghanistan. An American friend, calling the manager aside, whispered:

"How can you bear to talk with a nigger?"

The exporter explained his long friendship with the Indian and the importance of their business relations. Then he turned to introduce the two men. The Bombay merchant had hastily put on his right glove and shook hands with his hand covered.

"Why the glove?" the exporter asked when they were alone.

"How else could I return the insult at his first glance without embarassing you, good friend? The fact that you did not appreciate the insult makes my enjoyment the keener."

Preliminary Peace Treaty Will Be Ready About March the Twenty-fifth

Final Action on the Military Terms to be Taken This Afternoon—League of Nations.

NEUTRAL NATIONS

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 17.—Final action on the military terms of the preliminary peace treaty was to be taken by the Supreme War Council this afternoon.

The treaty will be presented to the Germans about March 26th, according to general opinion to-day. This slight disarrangement of previous plans is due to the necessity for Premier Lloyd George to return to England the last of this week. He is expected to return to Paris next Monday.

While the forthcoming treaty with Germany is termed preliminary, it is to all intents and purposes final, as it fixes that country's military and naval status, defines its boundaries and disposes of the questions of reparation and economic freedom. It will not be really effective, however, until it is ratified by all or a fixed percentage of the signatory nations. The period for ratification by the Allied nations may be at least forty to sixty days. This will give an opportunity for the calling of a special session of American Congress, enabling the Senate to act. Germany probably will be given a much shorter period in which to accept the terms. Following this preliminary peace with Germany there will be separate treaties with Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria; then the general treaty, which will clean up all the loose ends, coördinate the separate parts, establishing any remaining inter-Allied boundaries, etc.

Overlooked Resolution.

It was apparent to-day that some of the peace delegates have overlooked the resolution passed by the plenary session of the peace conference, cited by President Wilson Saturday, as statements from French and British sources during the past few days have been to the effect that the League of Nations will not be included in the preliminary peace. The apparent assumption that only the final treaty can deny that league probably has been influenced by American opposition rather than European, according to the opinion prevailing in American circles. The President, following the issuance of his statement that the League would be included in the treaty, conferred with Lord Cecil yesterday to discuss the programme for handling the work of completing the league constitution simultaneously with framing the treaty.

Thirty Working Hours.

Backers of the plan for including the league in the preliminary treaty pointed out to-day that the present covenant was drawn up in thirty working hours and that even if numerous amendments are submitted the final draft can be quickly perfected. It is believed however, that when the time comes for submitting amendments there will be comparatively few.

Neutral nations, in response to the instruction to have representatives confer with the League committee here March 20th, already have begun the selection of their delegates. Sweden is understood to have picked H. Jalmar Branting, Socialist leader.

Between the date of the submission of the preliminary treaty to Germany and its ratification by the Allies, the armistice terms will continue effective. German commerce will be regulated according to the agreements reached at the recent Brussels conference. The Blockade committee was scheduled to submit to the Supreme Economic committee to-day its recommendations for easing the blockade of Germany and Austria.

Referred to of W. T. C. Boyd

The Rev. Canon Davidson at the Services yesterday made sympathetic reference to the great loss to the community and the church in the death of Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, who for many years was a prop of strength to the church and a very wide district. To most members of St. John's the family are well known, and the heartfelt sympathy of all goes out to the sorrowing relatives.

FIRST TEST FOR GERMAN DELEGATES

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 17.— The test question for the German delegates at the Peace Conference will be the west bank of the Rhine, says a Berlin despatch. Delegates will be authorized to break negotiations if this matter is forced upon them, and in this case the Cabinet will support the delegation and will resign if the National Assembly takes a different attitude.

Woodrow is Standing Pat

Wants His Pet Theory Included in Peace Covenant.

By Carroll D. Groat.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 17.—Foreign Minister Pichon's claim that the League of Nations will not be included in the preliminary peace treaty was emphatically denied to-day in American official circles.

President Wilson and other American commissioners are standing pat on its inclusion, it was stated. Surprise was expressed that Pichon should hold views to the contrary.

The President, it is known, intends to make a strong fight for inclusion of the League. He feels that France and Great Britain needs the League even more than America. Hence Pichon's statement astounded and somewhat piqued the Americans.

An early policy is desired by President Wilson, it was stated, and he holds that inclusion of the League in the pact is vital to America. He was said to be especially surprised at Pichon's action in view of the fact that the French, along with others, signed the plenary resolution in January for the League's inclusion.

The President planned to attend this afternoon's meeting of the Supreme War Council, and those close to him believed that a re-statement of his position might be forthcoming.

Hun General Clubbed to Death

Gen. Von Armin Commanded the German Armies in Flanders.

(United Press.)

COPENHAGEN, March 17.— Gen. Von Armin, former commander of the German armies in Flanders, was clubbed to death by a mob of infuriated peasants in Asch, Bohemia, it was reported in despatches received here to-day.

The murder of Von Armin followed his firing shots at peasants who trespassed on his grounds. Afterwards the peasants pillaged the castle.

The peasants were gathering fire-wood on his property and the mob invaded and pillaged his chateau after killing him.

J. E. HUNTER IS DEAD

Famous Evangelist Was Co-Partner of Rev. H. T. Crossley—A Striking Record.

SEVERE STRAIN

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 17.—There passed from the public life of Canada this morning at four o'clock a figure of unique national interest in the person of Rev. John E. Hunter, the co-partner of Rev. H. T. Crossley in over three hundred revival campaigns. For over twenty-six years these two modern apostles journeyed throughout the cities and towns of Canada, the United States and Bermuda, proclaiming the good news in story, sermon and song. Thousands and thousands of men prominent in Canadian life were converted in their meetings. At their great meetings in Ottawa many years ago, Sir John A. Macdonald walked forward to proclaim publicly his allegiance to Christian principles. One of the most comforting thoughts of the great evangelist's closing days was the fact that Sir William Hearst, as a young man was recorded as a convert at the Crossley and Hunter meetings at the Soo.

For the last nine years Rev. J. E. Hunter, has been gradually failing from creeping palsy, brought on by the intense nervous strain of a quarter of a century of apostolic labours. The revivalists claimed 200,000 Canadian converts.

Letter Carriers Met Three Toronto Officers On Saturday Night

A meeting of the letter carriers was addressed on Saturday night by three officers of branch No. 1, Toronto. They were President J. Fullerton, Vice-President Browning and Secretary R. J. Cook. Although the weather forbidding, the Letter Carriers were out in fairly large numbers to greet their visitors. The addresses and discussions covered the range of questions that concern the local postmen but also the ... Canadian brotherhood. The ... ation, the return of postmen who have been in service overseas and other subjects were taken up. The Toronto officers returned on the early morning train, and the early hours of Sunday were spent with some of the local men in a lunch at the Paris Cafe and a trip to the Quaker Oats mills and a "constitutional" around the centre of the city.

Aviators for the work are said to be in training at Moscow. The scheme is to distribute papers containing Bolshevik propaganda written in invisible ink.

SOUTH AFRICAN STRIKES

Situation Grows More Tense in Leading Cities.

CAPETOWN, March 17.—(Reuter's.)—The strike of the municipal tramways employees at Pretoria for higher pay has led to a serious situation. The council has decided to close down the system rather than comply with the ultimatum of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers.

The Johannesburg architects are endeavouring to effect a settlement in the building trades strike. Meanwhile the industrial federation is asking the trades unions throughout the country to levy five shillings weekly on behalf of the Johannesburg builders and the Pretoria tramway men.

LIBERAL ELECTED

WAS DECIDED TURNOVER

LONDON, March 17.—Politicians look upon the result in the Parliamentary election in the West Leyton division on Friday as a sharp reminder to the Coalition Government of Premier Lloyd George of popular discontent. The division returned A. E. Newbould, an Independent Liberal, who was defeated in December by a majority of 2,000 by K. ... Coalition Unionist. In the general election in December the Coalition Unionist, Col. Wrightson, whose death made to-day's election necessary, polled 11,000 votes to Newbould's 9,000.

This result, with the fact that Rear-Admiral Sir W. ... Hall, Coalition Unionist, was returned for the West Derby division of Liverpool recently by a greatly decreased majority, is taken to show that the political tide is turning. In the case of Admiral Hall, the Coalitionists were able to argue that the result meant merely that his predecessor, Sir F. E. Smith, since appointed Lord High Chancellor, enjoyed unusual prestige and personal popularity.

Bill is Still Sawing Wood

Has Cut Down a Thousand Trees While in Exile.

(Special to The Examiner.)

AMERONGEN, Holland, March 17.—Former Emperor William to-day completed sawing into logs his thousandth tree since he took refuge at Count Von Bentinck's castle, here last fall. From the thousandth tree a few logs were completed into souvenirs of the achievement and marked in red ink with the inscription W-2. These were presented to members of the Bentinck family and to those who have assisted the Emperor in his work during the past ten weeks. As he was completing his task the young Countess took a snapshot of Herr Hohenzollern and his assistants, Dr. Foester and Capt. Eichmann, and the young gardener who prepared the logs for the Emperor to saw.

COMING HOME MINUS BUSINESS

Canadian Economic Commission is Coming Home.

LITTLE GRAIN SOWN.

ARCHANGEL, March 15. — Information secured by the Allied Food Committee in North Russia, and from persons reaching Archangel from the interior indicate that the outside world must deprive themselves of breadstuffs until the Russian question is settled and the country is again placed on a sound agricultural basis.

Because of the disruption of transportation, the peasants are hesitating to sow any more grain than they themselves need, as they fear its seizure by the Bolsheviki.

GO HOME IN DISGUST.

Two Hundred Englishmen Dislike Prohibition and Foreign Labour.

Dissatisfied with working conditions in Canada and—some of them—thirsting for their "glass of beer," some two hundred Englishmen left for Portland, Maine, to sail on the Mesaba. Most of the men came from the West. They said that in Winnipeg and B. C. it was impossible to get jobs as thousands of foreigners held the positions. The threat of permanent prohibition also had its effect. Many of the men were returned soldiers, who intimated an intention of heading for Australia.

HARDWARE PRICE CHANGES.

Among theh lines which have advanced this week, says Hardware and Metal, are corn planters, post-hole augers and solder, this latter being a reduction of stronger tin and lead markets. Pipe stocks and dies, safety tackle, blocks, and some lines of pliers, punches and dividers are also on the upward trend. Pig iron is down along with tin plate, copper sheets and bars, and set and cap screws. Fuel oil and lubricating oils have declined, and lower prices are ruling also on tin and galvanized wash boilers, copper and iron rivets.

Ottawa is Keenly Interested in Labour Developments of the Conference in Calgary

Senator Gideon Robertson Has Not Been Informed—Will Wait For An Official Report—Westerners Are Holding a "Show" of Their Own.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 17.— Ottawa, or that part of it which pays any attention at all to labour and its relations to society, is keenly interested in the reported developments from the west, and wants more details as to the actual decisions and tendencies of the Calgary conference. Ottawa is at least acquainted with the origin of this Western Canada Labour Conference, which includes delegates from all four of the western provinces. This origin is to be found in the annual meeting of the Trades and Labour Congress in Quebec city last autumn. Their western delegates raised the issue of industrial versus craft unionism, strongly advocated the former and divided the conference on the question. They were defeated, finding their views in a minority amounting to about thirty per cent. of the Congress. Other resolutions of a radical tendency were also rejected and the westerners threatened to hold a "show" of their own. This Calgary gathering is the result and the westerners in their own field have now adopted most of the resolutions they failed to carry at the Quebec Congress.

Nothing to Say.

Your correspondent asked the Minister of Labour, Senator Gideon Robertson, if he or his department had anything to say about the matter, but the answer was: "In the meantime, nothing."

The Minister was also asked if the department would be thoroughly informed on the Calgary conference. He said the department had official correspondents throughout the country, including one in Calgary, and a full report of events there would be forthcoming. Such a review has not yet arrived.

P. M. Draper, secretary of the Trades and Labour Congress, would not discuss the question publicly, but said it would be a subject of consultation and enquiry between him and President Tom Moore, together with the executive, this week.

Both the Calgary members, Redman and Tweedie, are barristers, and there are no labour members from the west. Redman and Tweedie, as naturally interested in this development, however, and are awaiting further particulars.

No Use For Bolshevism.

In his speech moving the reply to the address, Major Redman, who is a returned officer, referred to the "feeling of unrest" which "eludes constituted authority and crosses frontiers at will." He was pessimistic. "We must believe," he said, "that the curve of human evolution is an ascending curve. We should, instead of defending ancient institutions, turn our efforts towards guiding the new spirit and be alert to do everything practical to improve economic living conditions for all classes." He had no use, however, for Bolshevism. Canada was happily free from it, "but if it should raise its head in our country, we should be prepared to stamp it out even more ruthlessly than the German autocracy."

A certain section of opinion here inclines to the view that the western conference shouldn't be taken too seriously and that it doesn't represent a majority of labour opinion in the west. Others feel that such an estimate is wrong and dangerous in that it makes people neglect or minimize movements of profound significance.

The Government Has Failed to Stamp Out Spartacan Uprisings in Germany

SOVIET REPUBLIC

In the first uncensored despatch received from Berlin since the recent Spartacan uprising, Frank J. Taylor shows that not only has the government failed to crush the Spartacan rebellion, but that all the Radical elements are combining to take advantage of the government's exhaustion and proclaim a Soviet Republic.

(By Frank J. Taylor, Copyright 1919 by the United Press.)

BERLIN, March 15th. (By Courier to Paris.) — The German Radicals, heartened by the failure of the government to completely stamp out the Spartacan uprising, are planning to proclaim the establishment of a Soviet Republic next month.

Hopeless Problems.

While the Cabinet continues to struggle with the Spartacans and tries to untangle apparently hopeless food, industrial and political problems, all the radicals elements are uniting in perfecting their revolutionary programme. They are confident they will win from the exhausted government.

Even the government officials are beginning to admit the Cabinet's position is seriously threatened despite the optimistic reports given out by the official press bureau and the semi-official Wolff agency. Conservative members of foreign offices, supporters of War Minister Noske, and others are speculating as to the endurance of the Ebert-Scheidemann government. Although the government has by no means suffered military defeat its troops have not succeeded in surrounding the Spartacans who have escaped from various nets, and have retreated into the suburbs where they are resisting desperately and cleverly. The government so far has been unable to muster enough troops to capture the Spartacans and at the same time effectively guard the large Berlin areas. The newspapers are filled with advertisements calling for volunteers to fill up the Republican regiments, but the responses are negligible.

Stirring up Trouble.

It has become evident that a large number of Spartacans who escaped from Berlin are stirring up further trouble in the outlying districts. Their hatred has been fanned by Noske's orders to execute all who resist the government. The Radicals regard this as a sign of weakness and final desperation on the part of the government. They emphatically deny the atrocities attributed to them by the government declaring that the stories are being used in an effort to win the peoples' support of Noske's harshness.

They admit that undoubtedly some escaped criminals have committed acts of cruelty, but say that these infrequent occurrences have been capitalized by the government press bureau and the Wolff agency. The people, following their usual custom, believe or disbelieve these stories, according to the reaction with which they are in sympathy.

Soviet Congress.

Regardless of any claims which may be made by the government agency, Germany is rapidly becoming converted to Sovietism, as a result of Radical propaganda and agitation. At the beginning of the year a vast majority of the Germans was strongly opposed to the Soviets on the ground that such organizations signified Bolshevism. This idea is changing, especially since the Radicals have advocated equal representation of employers in all soviets, regardless of their numerical inferiority.

It is now proposed that the Bundesrat (Upper Legislative House) be abolished and a new Soviet Congress established in its place, representing all the working people. This would provide representation for the people according to their social status while the Reichstag would represent them according to localities.

Supporters of such an organization are rapidly growing. The government may provide for it in the constitution hoping thus to avoid the April revolution, but there is a possibility the Radicals, confident they have the upper hand, will demand even more, although their programme for the governmental changes has not been made public. It is indicated, however, that the Radicals believe it is necessary for the workers to exercise direct control over all industries. They fear otherwise that many industries will remain idle, since the capitalists are not eager to

SITUATION LOOKED UPON AS CRITICAL

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 17.— Premier Lloyd George is expected to return to London to be present during the week which is looked upon as critical in the labour affairs of the country. On Thursday the coal commission will make its interim report, which is expected to decide whether the miners will proceed with their threatened strike. There will be conferences on Friday between railway men and "triple alliance of labour" to decide on a strike policy.

BY-LAW WAS ENDORSED

Workingmen Lead Citizens of Hamilton in Rolling Up Huge Majority for Hydro-Radial Bylaw.

"PEOPLE'S VICTORY"

HAMILTON, March 17.—The whirlwind campaign conducted by Sir Adam Beck and those associated with him in connection with the Hydro-radial by-law brought wonderful results on Saturday. There were few who were familiar with the situation who had any doubt as to the result, but even the most sanguine were astonished when it was announced that the majority in favour of the by-law was 2,737. The total vote polled was 9,607, about half of the number of persons entitled to vote on the by-law.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P., WILL INTERVIEW HYDRO COMMISSION

Blames Lakefield for Being Contrary Over Prospects of Securing New Dam.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., wires as follows:

"In a last desperate attempt to get Lakefield to apply to the Hydro Commission for any horsepower at all, so as to give the Hydro Commission the power under the act to expropriate the Lakefield dam, I have come to Toronto, and have made an appointment with Sir Adam Beck for Tuesday morning, at 10, at the Hydro headquarters. Notwithstanding that nothing stands in the way, Lakefield, which must apply as a municipality to give the Hydro Commission jurisdiction, will not do so. I have consulted both governments, which stand amazed that Lakefield will not apply so as to save one hundred thousand dollars to the public in added value of private privileges under the new dam."

Verdict of $3,224 For Boy's Death by Dogs Sustained

NEW YORK, March 17.— Damages of $3224 awarded Mrs. Sylveria Perrotta, of this city, for the loss of her son, Antonio, aged nine, who was killed by dogs while trying to retrieve a hoop tossed by companions into a yard where the animals were, was upheld by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

When the hoop was thrown into the yard of the vacant premises the boy climbed the fence and recovered the plaything. He was on his way back over the fence when attacked by the dogs dragging him from the fence.

Justice Shearn, writing the opinion confirming the verdict, said: The viciousness and ferocity of the dogs is evidenced by the fact that, although neighbours came to the scene and endeavoured to drive the dogs away by throwing stones at them, the dogs kept up their attack upon the boy, who was lying on the ground, and were still biting and tearing out the boy's intestines, when, after the lapse of some time, a policeman, who had been summoned from the street, arrived and shot one of the dogs and drove the other away. The boy was removed in an ambulance and died the following day."

AIRPLANES TO JUMP.

Secret Experiments Meeting Success in London.

LONDON, March 16. —It is understood that experiments with an apparatus destined to be embodied in a helicopter airplane are being secretly carried out by authorities in London. The helicopter is a type of airplane which is capable of rising and descending vertically without "putting its nose up" and also to hover in the air. Experts who witnessed this, say that there is reason to hope that an airplane completed on the lines of the experiments would not only rise straight up, but also would be able to alight on housetops or even on

THE CALGARY CONFERENCE

The action taken by the Western Canada Labour Conference at Calgary, on Friday, shows that there is more danger of the spread of the Bolshevist policy in Canada than has been considered possible, although the common sense and the intelligence of the great majority of the workers of the Dominion can be counted upon to combat the influence of the revolutionaries. The stand adopted by the Calgary conference in favour of the formation of the "one big union" system, means the abandoning of the trades union principle and the severing of affiliation with the international union. Syndicalism is practically what the conference intends, the policy chosen being that of the Industrial Workers of the World, and the spirit of the men who led the conference is indicated by the resolutions passed in favour of substituting the Russian Soviet system for the present system of government in Canada, and by the expression of sympathy with the Bolsheviki of Russia and the Spartacans of Germany, that were carried by the conference.

As long as Canada's employers are fair in their dealings with their employees there is not much risk of the Calgary policy getting much of a grip in Canada.

THE GOVERNMENT'S BUNGLING

A letter written by Lieut. Col. A. C. Fraser, Conservative M.P.P. for Norfolk and former commanding officer of the 133rd Battalion, furnishes a scathing exposure of the manner in which the Canadian soldiers have been treated in connection with demobilization and makes the riots at Kinmel camp easy to explain. Col. Fraser's letter was written some time before the outbreak and showed conclusively the feeling that existed among the Canadians, who felt that they were being kept in durance vile in poor camps, taking their chances of getting home in small uncomfortable vessels, while thousands of American troops were being rushed home on the big liners."

"Ottawa is open to grave criticism for the insignificant number so far demobilized," says Col. Fraser. "They deserve unmitigated censure for lack of demobilization plans and adequate preparation to handle every man that all ships could land.

"If Sir Robert Borden, Sir Edward Kemp, Sir George Perley, and probably our Quartermaster-General (in London), could be immediately repatriated, I fancy the army over here would suffer no material loss. Borden is never heard of over here in connection with the peace conference, and is useless there. He has taken no decided stand for Canada, and is looked upon here as weak and lacking aggressive decision. Hughes, of Australia, on the contrary, is everywhere admired, and already 360,000 Britishers have made application to emigrate to his far dominion. None are rushing to get to Canada. Thus does the individuality of a leader affect this country.

"I have carefully investigated all the above and what I am writing are hard, cold facts."

WOMEN IN PARLIAMENT

Already women are sitting in the Legislatures of several of our Western provinces, and the right is now to be extended to them in Ontario and also to the Dominion House of Commons. It is not clear that women are at present excluded from the legislative bodies in which no specific provision has been made for their administration. The status on the subject were enacted at a time when evidently the administration of women was not in the mind of the legislators, but where there is no specific provision that a member shall be of the male sex probably a good case could be made out to support a claim that the wording of the laws, under the general principle of interpretation Acts, that words importing the masculine gender may include females as well, gives authority for the election of women. There was considerable agitation for women's right to vote, but little concerning their right to be legislators. Doubtless the women's view was that if they obtained the electoral franchise the other privilege would naturally follow, as indeed it does. When women are deemed qualified as voters, it is impossible to find any logical ground on which they can be excluded from the positions of representatives. And with some of the problems of the day intelligent women are particularly qualified to deal!

The Speech from the Throne at Ottawa states that provision is to be made for conferring upon women "the privilege of sitting in Parliament." Some of the ladies probably would prefer "right" to privilege, since the latter may be held to mean the granting as a favor of that which our feminine leaders will of course insist is a simple right. Perhaps, however, the ladies will feel that it is a case in which a rose by another name smells as sweet.

But what do the Government mean by the word "Parliament in His Excellency's speech? We so commonly speak of a representative in the House of Commons as a "Member of Parliament" that admission to the House of Commons may be all that is contemplated by the official announcement. "Parliament," however, does not mean the House of Commons alone. The Senate is a part of Parliament; a Senator is a Member of Parliament. Are we to have ladies in the Senate? If so, nobody will hereafter have the audacity to speak, as some have done in the past of the "old ladies of the Senate." In England the new law, while admitting ladies to the House of Commons, does not go so far as to authorize women to be appointed to the House of Lords. Our Senate is inclined to follow the lead of the House of Lords in matters concerning its rights and privileges. Will it do so in this case and endeavor to exclude the ladies? There is no specific exclusion of them now and, as in the case of the Commons, quite an argument could be set up by those who might claim that women are even now eligible. If the Government bill be confined to the granting of eligibility for the House of Commons only, we may expect to find an immediate agitation for the admission of women to the Upper Chamber. The "soft snap" as it is sometimes rudely called, the privilege—if the word is allowable—of sitting in Parliament for a life tenure, without any of the trouble, worry and expense attending the winning of elections, is one that the ladies will not long allow the mere men to monopolize.

If not to-day, to-morrow the doors of the Senate will be battered down by the women's army. Then there will no longer be room for criticism respecting "contingent account which includes ladies" purses and dressing bags. "Contingencies" may then have to include many things that man is not dare to mention now. In the United Kingdom the people have been slow to appreciate their privilege of electing women as representatives. In several cases women were candidates in the recent elections, but all were unsuccessful. Instead of, as kept a Sinn Fein lady in Ireland. All the Sinn Fein members refuse to take their seats at Westminster, the Imperial Parliament is still entirely a man's institution. We are inclined to think that when the right to sit in Parliament is granted to the women of Canada they will not be so slow in availing themselves of it. In the discussion of various branches of our public affairs many of the Canadian women have exhibited qualities that would do honor to the House of Commons. It is a fair guess that the close of the next general election whenever it may happen, will find a number of women duly elected and ready to take their places in the high court of Parliament.—Journal of Commerce.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Every Irish heart takes on a brisker pulse to-day in the celebration of St. Patrick's Day. The seventeenth of March is an anniversary that is ever beloved by al who claim connection with the Emerald Isle. Throughout all her history, sad as much of it has been, Ireland has remained dear to the hearts of her children, wherever on the face of the globe they may be found. For fifteen centuries have the Irish venerated the natal day of their patron saint and to-day the green ribbon and the shamrock are being proudly worn. In joining in the celebration of the seventeenth of March, Canadians will unite in the hope that a brighter day will soon dawn for Ireland, that the present troubles and difficulties may disappear, and that her people may be able to enjoy the next anniversary with the shadow of conflict and misunderstanding lifted from their celebration.

OUR SOLDIER FARMERS.

The announcement of the Soldiers' Settlement Board that Canadian soldiers who intend to take up land are to be given the advantage of special prices in connection with the purchase of agricultural implements, live stock and harness, they will require, will be welcomed by the returned men who have contemplated taking up farming. It is stated that the Board has been successful in making arrangements with the manufacturers of implements and harness, by which the soldiers are to be allowed to secure what they need at prices that are considerable below the usual figures. The cost of the equipment needed for farming has been the cause of keeping many soldiers from taking advantage of a chance to go on the land and the reductions that have been arranged should prove an encouragement. The plan of adopting a standard harness is another money-saver to our soldier farmers and a still greater assistance is the decision of the Board to have all live stock required by the soldiers purchased through an agent of the Settlement Board, who will be assisted by the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture. It is proposed to have the stock assembled at a number of points in the west where the soldier who is going on the land can make his selection, assisted by Government experts.

It must be highly gratifying to Princess Patricia to know that her choice of a husband has the approval of the Peterborough Review.—Orillia Packet.

THEATRICAL TYRANNY.

It Appears to Be Carried to the Extreme in Paris.

Your Parisian theater goer is the most patient of men. He submits almost joyously to all sorts of outrages and exactions. Once in the theater, he is a mere sheep for the shearing, so shorn he is of overcoat and stick at the vestiaire, retaining only his hat and with it the merchants of his manhood, for not the dirtiest attendant—and many of these ladies are mustached—of dressing-rooms could dare to divorce a Frenchman from his hat, be it chapeau claque or haut de forme or plebeian casquette.

Having paid the check—anything from half a franc to a franc—he is handed over to the care of another formidable dame, l'ouvreuse, who expects a substantial reward for showing him to the wrong seat. But the tyranny of the ouvreuses is nothing to that of the entr'actes. When that comes you understand why the Frenchman clings to his hat. He has now leisure enough to stroll around to his favorite cafe or bar next to his home to see how his children are, if he lives anywhere within a four mile radius. No one ever seems to complain.

At last touched presumably by this meek submissiveness on the part of the audience, several managers promise their clients a little harmless diversion during the entr'actes. This diversion is to take the form of a series of nudes projected on a screen in front of the curtain, on which the spectators may exercise what intelligence nature and actors have left them. Very kind and thoughtful of you, good managers! But there is a simpler way to gratify your clients—shorten the entr'actes—Exchange.

Asphodel as a Source of Alcohol.

The asphodel, which contains much starch in its tubers, grows as a common weed (borraxo) in many parts of Italy—in fact, it has been called "the plague of the Mediterranean." At the time it was cultivated as a source of industrial spirit, but owing to difficulties in the rectification the culture was abandoned. If these difficulties could be overcome Italy would be able to considerably increase her home supply of spirit.

SERBIA'S ASPIRATIONS.

Claims for Slavic State Before Peace Conference.

Serbia is at the Peace Conference in the hope of being treated not only justly but generously, and no state better deserves such treatment. Though her aspirations also come into conflict with those of Italy, they are to be realized chiefly at the expense of Austria-Hungary. Had Serbia been able before the Great War to secure Bosnia and Herzegovinia, with an outlet to the sea, she would have been very contented. It is true that there existed a Pan-Serbian agitation for a union of all the South Slavs outside of Bulgaria under the crown of Serbia, but there were many obstacles to its realization. The Montenegrin dynasty did not look with favor upon its own extinction. The Catholic Croats considered themselves more advanced economically and culturally than the Orthodox Serbs. The Slovenes wanted autonomy within Austria-Hungary, not change of allegiance. The Pan-Serbian movement received a great impetus as the result of the splendid victories of the Serbs over the Turks and the Bulgarians in the Balkan Wars, and the Great War has drastically removed all obstacles. There cannot be any doubt that the majority of the South Slavs of all branches look upon Serbia as the Slav Piedmont destined to unite them in a strong national state. They have given evidence of this not only in the Declaration of Corfu of July, 1917, wherein they outlined the constitution which is to be the fundamental document of a state under the crown of Serbia, but later in the year at the Rome Conference of Oppressed Nationalities of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy. When Serbia says, at the Peace Conference that all the South Slavs be permitted freely to select their political allegiance, she has every reason to expect that the vote will be overwhelmingly in favor of union with herself. And this will probably be true not only of the South Slavs of Austria-Hungary, in which there is no party opposed to union with Serbia, but of independent Montenegro, whose king insists upon a federal state, not a unified state.—Asia Magazine.

Yorkshire Hogs of Real Bacon Type.

Yorkshire hogs are distinctly of the bacon type. They have small hams and shoulders and a large quantity of side meat and do not get excessively fat. This makes it possible to produce an excellent quality of bacon from them and they ordinarily command a premium on the market if shipped in carload lots. The Yorkshires are very prolific and are excellent mothers. They are inclined to be more active than the lard breeds and need better fences. The Yorkshires are to be recommended for regions where corn is grown in a small quantity. Where corn is the principal crop of the farm, the lard breeds prove more profitable.

Lindsay Will Be in the Ring

Mr. Soloman, of Peterboro, notified Mr. M. J. Dedman on Friday afternoon that the meeting of the Midland Baseball League, which it is stated was held at Cobourg recently and at which Lindsay was excluded from the league, was only a private meeting. Mr. Soloman assured Mr. Dedman that Lindsay would be in the league because she was the greatest drawing card. A meeting will be held next week to bring the league into existence—Lindsay Post.

"BLUE DAYS AND FAIR"—

"I have a rendezvous with Death
When Spring brings back blue days and fair."
—Seeger.

"Blue days and fair"—how still it seems
Where Spring once meant the first red blast—
The end of hope—the last wild dreams
Of other Springs, forever past;
The waited signal—or the sign
To have some new offensive hurled—
The hurried whisper down the line
As dawn crept out across the world.

"Blue days and fair" have come again
But now they hold a fairer yield—
No longer huddled lumps of men
Like fallen scarecrows through the field;
No longer quick intaking breath
From those who stopped, to fall or reel,
Beneath the crushing heel of death
Where human flesh tore into steel.

"Blue days and fair"—the rendezvous
Is turned from some red barricade
To where the count is "two and two"—
Or where the cleek is aptly played—
Where Spring brings back its ancient glow
By peak and plain—by hill and stream—
"Blue days and fair"—how long ago
Our sleeping mates knew such a dream!

—Grantland Rice.

COBOURG CURLERS ALSO SECURED AN EIGHT END

F. M. Field, of Cobourg, writes as follows to The Mail and Empire. He says:

"I observe that the 1919 annals of curling in Ontario will be memorable for an eight-end scored in the Jones Shield competition last Saturday evening at Sault Ste. Marie. This bit of curling news, so kindly contributed by Mr. C. M. Reynette, of the "Soo" club in a letter to The Mail and Empire inviting information respecting similar unusual scores elsewhere, recalls a unique record in the annals of the Waverley Curling Club in Cobourg.

On New Year's Day, 1917, in the opening game of a club bonspiel, the rink of which I held the honor to be skip scored an eight-end, and in the final inter-rink match, of the same season scored eighteen to nothing against a rink skipped by an experienced player.

LEAD CUP GAME

"Bill" Taylor successfully defended the "Lead" cup on Saturday night Andy Webb in a challenge game that went into an extra end resulting 12-11 in favour of the alderman. At one stage Taylor was leading by eleven shots, but skip Webb gradually pulled it down, finally tieing the score on the twelfth.

The rinks were as follows:

A. Davidson	Jack Dodds
Geo. Stevenson	Percy Fitzgerald
A. C. Kay	Dr. Wightman
W. H. Taylor	Andy Webb

U. T. S. CAPTURE JUNIOR TITLE

Industrial City Sextette Are Defeated in Final Fixture 7-2

WINNING GOAL TO AGGETT

University Schools are O. H. A. junior champions, and they are worthy of the crown. On Saturday night they defeated Woodstock at the Arena by 7 to 2 and won the round and the title by one goal. The local Collegians have had a hard uphill battle all season, but by playing consistent and systematic hockey they have triumphed over the stoutest of opposition, and no one will begrudge them the honours they have so valiantly earned.

The Blue Shirts certainly proved the surprise package of the season. They experienced little difficulty in winning the "prep" group title, but failed to create the impression that they were of championship class. Previous to their fixtures against Aura Lee, Coach Frank Carroll voiced the opinion that U. T. S. would make the Red and White hustle to gain the verdict, and later developments showed that Carroll knew what he was talking about. Their feat of overcoming a four-goal lead to win the title climaxed a record in which they have risen to every emergency, no matter how difficult, and demonstrated conclusively that they were a much underrated sextette.

Deserve Honours.

The new champions, although possessing several individual stars, used systematic play to carry them through. Every player relying implicitly on the advice of Coach Frank Carroll, followed instructions to the letter, and by so doing made it possible for U.T.S. to win the honours. The forwards developed an attack that would not be denied, while the Rowell-Munro-Sullivan defence was easily the best in the junior ranks.

Saturday night's game was not nearly as good as many that have taken place here this season, but the unexpected triumph of the locals satisfied the majority of the 6,000 fans. Woodstock went completely to pieces in the first period, and, although they showed improvement in the second, did not show their real form until the final ten minutes of play, when they made gallant efforts to come from behind.

Four hundred rooters from the Industrial City occupied a section on the left side of the Aerna, and whenever the opportunity availed made their presence felt. However, these opportunities were few and far between, and the visitors were sadly disappointed at the poor display of the Red Shirts. Woodstock have never succeeded in winning the O.H.A. junior title, and it may be a long time before they make another such bold bid for the honours.

Players Effects Tampered With

(Canadian Press)

TORONTO, March 17.—An investigation has been instituted into the charges made by Manager Breen of the defeated O.H.A. Junior Finalists from Woodstock, that the effects and skates of his players were tampered with before Saturday's game with U.T.S. The police have no clues so far to the parties guilty of the alleged offense.

Y.M.C.A. ALLEYS.

The following schedule has been drawn for this week's games on the "Y" alleys:

Wednesday, March 19, 7.30 p.m.—Sisson vs. Dobbin.

8.45 p.m.—Ivey vs. Stansfield.

Saturday, March 22, 7.30 p.m.—Hamilton vs. Richardson.

8.45 p.m.—Jackson vs. Everett.

A full schedule for the twelve teams will be published on Wednesday.

SPARTACANS FLEE.

LONDON, March 17.—A majority of the 15,000 insurgents were reported to have fled from Berlin to Brunswick.

Huns Still Want a Wilson Peace

"What Is German Will Remain German," Says Erzberger.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, March 17.—If Allies loaded the Peace Treaty with additions going beyond President Wilson's fourteen points the German National Assembly would have to refuse its assent to the treaty, Mathias Erzberger, head of the German Armistice Commission declared in an address at a Berlin meeting in favoring forging of "a real league of nations," according to despatch from Berlin today. The matter then would be left to a referendum of the German nation, he said. The speaker declared that the only means of calling a halt on Bolshevism was the abandonment of "mailed fist policy of the Allies."

Herr Erzberger asserted that Germany was prepared to accept the vote of Alsace Lorrane as to its future, but he referred to the reported aspirations of France respecting the Rhineland and to Poland's claims to Danzig as "crimes," adding "what is German will remain German."

Shamrock Tag Day Receipts

Nearly a Thousand Dollars Was Collected.

The citizens of Peterboro made a generous response to the appeal from the little ones at the Orphanage on Shamrock Tag Day and the splendid sum of $980.70 was realized. This is only a few dollars short of the sum realized at last year's tag day. The committee in charge is deeply indebted to all who in any way assisted in making the day so thorough a success and to all citizens who, irrespective of creed, responded to the collection so generously.

St. Patrick's Day In Old New York

13,000 Take Part in Parade—Irish War Heroes in Automobiles.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, March 17.—Nearly 13,000 were scheduled to march up Fifth avenue to-day in honour of St. Patrick. A feature of the parade was to be a division composed of Irish heroes of the great war, many of whom are wounded and will ride in automobiles. Preparations were made to handle a big crowd along the line of march, although the day was wet and foggy.

Affair Was a Big Success—Those Who Took Part.

The ladies of the Methodist Church held a bazaar and afternoon tea in the basement of their church on Friday afternoon. It was a big success in every way as the large room was thronged with people, mainly of the fairer sex from three o'clock till long after five.

There was a sale of home made cooking, in charge of Mrs. Nixon, and Mrs. H. Kemp, who did a thriving trade. Mrs. A. D. Payne and Mrs. H. Dunford presided over the home made candy booth which was sold out long before closing time.

Mrs. W. Madill, Mrs. Erskine, Mrs. W. Stabler, and Mrs. T. Crawford sold the fancy needlework, of which there was a most attractive display.

Mrs. J. Lemay and Mrs. Simpson took charge of the fish pond and did a thriving business especially with the children.

The vegetables, eggs etc., were in charge of Mrs. Girven and Mrs. Burke.

Among the many others, who assisted were: Mrs. Spence, Mrs. S. Pearson, Mrs. W. Nugent, Mrs. F. H. Richardson and Mrs. McConkey.

Mr. Kenneth Madill presided at the piano and played during the afternoon. He was assisted by Mrs. Roy Robinson.

The receipts amounted to $84.

WINNIPEG ALDERMEN MAY GET $1,200 SALARY.

By-Law for Boost from $500 Ready to Submit—Jitney Business Must Go.

WINNIPEG, March 17.—Aldermen of the city will likely get their salary increased from $500 to $1,200, to date from April 1, it was learned here. The by-law is all ready for submission to the Council. Labor members are responsible for the measure being brought up promptly.

The city, through legislation passed at the Provincial House during the present week, has decided to put the jitney business entirely out of existence, it is said.

A man never does what his wife expects him to.

You will never get ahead by following the crowd.

HE LOOKS LIKE OTHER MEN

It looks now as if the old order of musicians will soon be moss-covered. The tousy-headed individual in freak attire does not find his camouflaged personality a passport to capacity houses. If the dead composers had messages for modern humanity, the messages must be interpreted by modern men and modern women. The musician of to-day looks like a smart business or professional man rather than an idle dreamer. He is as good a customer as the barber has. Short-cropped hair is supplanting the shaggy locks of former days. The school-boy's Windsor tie and low collar have given away to the neat four-in-hand and regular business man's collar. The Buffalo Bill chapeau is ousted by the conventional Fedora. Odd mannerisms which serve no useful purpose are cast off.

The modern musician is a good mixer. He wants to know his public first hand. He enters into the general life of the community instead of acting the recluse. By mingling, he has learned that people now want music not gesticulations for dress. Concert-goers are more concerned about what they hear than what they see. An artist's reputation for freakishness off the stage does not offset poor execution on the stage. The music-loving public has developed to the point where sham and pretense are useless. Nothing but the ability to produce good music can get past.

SAVING THE TEACHER'S VITALITY.

Why is it that some teachers of music in middle life are strong, healthy, vigorous people and others weak, anaemic, flabby, sickly looking people? Probably you will say that the same average would hold good with the majority of mankind. This, however, is not the case. Music teachers habitually permit their vitality to be used up in a very wasteful manner. The sensible teacher will conserve this vitality. Here are some of the leaks that should be stopped.

Teaching too long and too continuously.

Losing one's patience unnecessarily

Failing to plan the day's program so that there is variety.

Failure to secure sufficient exercise

Overuse of the eyes.

Failure to get rid of worthless, faultfinding, irritable pupils.

Failure to interest oneself in any form of outside activity which will serve as a real recreation and help keep one's mental and physical balance.

Camouflaged as war souvenirs from Germany, a shipment of liquor sent from Montreal to a fictitious address in Fredericton, was seized at the Canadian Express Office there yesterday by Chief of Police Finlay. 2 gallons of whiskey, 1 gallon of alcohal and half a gallon of a concoction which the chief believes was to have been mixed with the alcohol after the latter was diluted, was the contents of the box.

Appreciates Way In Which Canadians Are Cared For Queen Mary Sends a Message of Thanks to Portland, Maine.

(Special to Examiner.)

PORTLAND, Maine, March 17. — Portland, with no little amount of pride, received a mild sensation last evening from the announcement and public reading at the usual Sunday Forum of a communication addressed to the Mayor and city government, received from Queen Mary of England, relative to the Canadian wounded, returning through the port of Portland. The text was as follows:

To the Hon. Mayor and City Govt.,

Hon. Sir: I am commanded by the Queen to convey to your city Her Majesty's most grateful gratitude and thanks for the splendid treatment and reception tendered the brave disabled soldiers of the Canadian army who have landed at your port.

Jack Pickford Dropped By U.S. Navy After Inquiry

Washington, D.C., March 15.—(Special Correspondence.)—Officials of records of the Navy Department disclose the fact that the discharge from the navy of John C. Pickford, the brother of Mary Pickford, the "movie" star, was because of complicity in the New York naval graft scandal.

Pickford, according to the Navy Department records, served as the go-between who arranged the transactions between Lieutenant Benjamin S. Davis and the rich young slackers who sought bomb proof berths in the naval reserve. Davis was found guilty by court martial and, with other naval officers, is now awaiting trial on further counts.

The record of the court martial of Davis shows that Pickford turned state's evidence and enabled the Government to round up the bribe takers. The admissions Pickford made at the court martial, however, prompted the Judge Advocate General Clark to recommend that he be disenrolled "as undesirable." On the strength of a letter from the Secretary to the President, Joseph P. Tumulty, however, Pickford was given an "ordinary discharge."

Secretary Tumulty explained that he knew nothing of the graft case at the time of writing the letter and merely made an inquiry to the department on behalf of Pickford's mother.

In the course of his recommendation in the case Judge Advocate-General Clark also wrote:

"The record further shows that Pickford admitted that, in an official application made by him to the supervisor, Naval Reserve Flying Corps, for enrollment in that branch of the service, he had wilfully and deliberately made a false statement in regard to his use of intoxicants."

The Judge Advocate concluded by saying that "as it is apparent that he is not a fit person to be retained in the naval reserve service, it is recommended that he be disenrolled from the naval reserve force as undesirable."

Jack Pickford was born in Toronto, the family residing at the time on University avenue. He was about three years younger than his sister, Mary. Like the latter, he has attained fame in the motion picture world.

Labour as a Business Partner

Labour restlessness is founded in a healthy desire to progress, to follow the instinct of ambition within the breasts of most workmen. Labour wants to make life a little easier, and more enjoyable, by establishing better conditions. The march of progress is deliberate, inspired and well planned; we want to get rid of the retarding forces of progress, class consciousness must disappear, along with the major causes of unrest.

These things must come about because the efforts of labour to reach evils of varying importance are becoming one of the menacing forces to the present form of civilization. The sacrifices made in the battlefields of Europe are too great for any one class to wrest the reins of power from those who could serve all alike. Capital and Labour have fundamental necessities and we must have a real consciousness of the necessities of human needs. Labour claims the world owes it a living and claims that it should be given freedom to supply the needs of living, and when it has done all in its power to supply that need it demands its right from the other fellow for various reasons. The Capitalist claims that this demand cannot be met, hence the labour unrest, each claiming the other as over grasping and extravagant in their demands. Labour for an instance, wonders what right the Shell Transport Company have to demand of the Government the oil monopoly of this Dominion and the right of 250,000 miles of oil land in the far west and north.

This is naturally looked upon as an extravagant claim. The workman Jack says to Tom, "Do these people want to own the earth? Where do we come in?" While the Capitalist claims that shorter hours, better and more healthy working conditions cannot be met, competition is so keen, and we have to compete with foreign trade, etc.

Yet as the worker looks over the income tax statistics, he realizes we are living in the age of ever-increasing millionaires. The necessities of Capital and Labour must be met with justice, and justice must rule our industrial relations, then we shall have no Labour trouble or unrest.

The labour question is a human as well as an economic one, and the employer must throw off the Kaiser-like attitude, come off the throne, and get more in touch with his employees, and study the psychology of the worker, when he would show a sympathetic interest and might thereby help to solve one great problem. "The Turnover of Labour," the constant changing of his employees, which has proved so unprofitable to large establishments especially when engaged in standardized and repetition work, the loss of spoiled and reduced production, foreman's time instructing new operators, all of which increases the overhead expenses; and just as the operator reaches the state of efficiency, he quits.

This is put down to migratory labour, or "floaters." To solve this question employer must not make excuses but look for trouble in his own establishment. He will find labour like the force of gravity, by going with it, studying it. It can be made a blessing, but to fight against it is a curse to the community, and causes such revolutionary and rebellious spirits, known as Bolshevik or Spartacan, etc.

The best preventative to Bolshevism is Prosperity; contented and happy workers. The great error made by the Capitalist is in placing his workmen in the same category as a machine. The machine would be an inanimate mass of material without human attention. The workman is a real live thing, animate, eyes to see, ears to hear, and an intellect which can be trained, in fact, just like his employer.

Labour is inseparable from the labourer. Capital (the machine) is not inseparable from any man; therefore in reconstructing your firm, put human effectiveness first and machine efficiency next. I would not say that labour would be satisfied by what it obtains by the great pressure it is bringing to bear in the form of just remuneration in wages, and healthier conditions. One way to stop this restlessness is to make the employee feel he is a part and parcel of the firm.

Come off your throne, Capitalist, and Employer, and say, "Here, partner, I will give you an equitable share in proportion to the contribution that you make to the net results of the business." It would soon create a real interest on the part of the workman in his work, as well as in his employer. It would do away with a lot of the labour turnover expenses, with all its depreciations. Such an act would very soon be noticeable in the home life of the worker, and that is what counts. These things will be brought about by the State eventually, but how it would speed up things; and what an economic saving it would be to the country if we got down to brass tacks and buried our selfish interests and prejudices for the good of the commonweal.

ENGLISH MARQUIS.

Survey Covers One Hundred Miles Along Athabasca River and on Peace River to Westward.

EDMONTON, Alta.—The Marquis of Queensbury, head of a famous English noble house, recently passed through Edmonton on his way to Northern Alberta and British Columbia, where he will investigate coal and oil land with a view to extensive investments. He represents a syndicate of British capitalists.

"A large amount of money in England will be available for investment this year," said the Marquis. "Many of the heaviest English investors are becoming keenly interested in development possibilities in Western Canada. Canadian coal and oil lands attract them especially. I expect to purchase large coal properties in British Columbia which my syndicate proposes to develop.

"I shall also investigate carefully the oil fields of Northern Alberta. The development work already done there has caused a flutter of excitement among the English capitalists. There is a growing belief that the oil wealth of Alberta may rival that of Mexico, where English capital has been invested so profitably. The vast extent of the tar sands in the Peace River country leads me to believe that rich reservoirs of oil remain undiscovered there. Whether I shall make any investment in that region will depend on the result of my prospecting tour."

The potential oil fields which the Marquis of Queensbury will investigate lie for 100 miles along the Athabasca River between Pelican Rapids and Fort McMurray, and along the Peace River to the westward. Heavy seepages of oil have been found all through this country, and at Peace River landing two wells are in profitable operation.

The coal fields of British Columbia which the Marquis will visit are in the upper Elk River district and cover an area of 140 square miles. They are estimated to contain 14,000,000,000 tons of coal. They lie in the Kootenay district, in the southeastern part of British Columbia.

The next day, 500 angry marines who were off duty paraded through the Japanese concession, and it is reported they attacked every Japanese encountered. Buys Direct From Trapper

Due to certain complaints being brought to the notice of the St. Louis Fur Exchange 7th & Chestnut streets, St. Louis, Missouri, U.S.A., of unsatisfactory grading of furs as made by some of the advertising fur houses of that market, where in January over ten million dollars worth of furs were sold, they are now also receiving shipments of furs from the trapper district, and are recognized and registered under license P. B. F. 30 with the U.S. War Trade Board and all of the Collectors of Customs, thus insuring free passage of furs when addressed to them with the words "Raw fur of Canadian origin" on the package or shipping tag. Their advertisement appears on page 8 of this issue.

REVIVAL OF PIETY NEEDED.

Wall Street Journal Says Worship of Luxury Caused Decay of Great Empires.

"What America needs more than railway extension, and western irrigation, and a low tariff, and a bigger wheat crop, and a merchant marine, and a new navy, is a revival of piety, the kind father and mother used to have—piety that counted it good business to stop for daily family prayers before breakfast right in the middle of the harvest; that quit work a half hour earlier Thursday night, so as to get the chores done and go to prayer meeting; that borrowed money to pay the preacher's salary and prayed fervently in secret for the salvation of the rich man who looked with scorn on such very unbusinesslike behavior. That's what we need now to clean this country of the filth of graft and of greed, petty and big; of worship of fine houses and big lands and high office and grand social functions. What is this thing which we are worshipping but a vain repetition of what decayed nations fell down and worshipped just before their light went out? Read the history of Rome in decay and you'll find luxury there that could lay a big dollar over our little doughnut that looks so large to us. Great wealth never made a nation substantial nor honorable. There is nothing on earth that looks good that is so dangerous for a man or a nation to handle as quick, easy, big money. If you do resist its deadly influence the chances are that it will get your son. It takes greater and finer heroism to dare to be poor in America than to charge on earthworks."—The Wall Street Journal

The Government Has Failed

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 17. — Special despatches from Berlin reporting the suppression of recent Spartacan outbreak there, has shown that military and monarchist reaction is growing and overshadowing the new government. The Berlin correspondent of the Mail, who on Feb. 27th sent a despatch outlining plans for a monarchist uprising in Germany, has arrived in London, having left Berlin on March 14 after residence there for three months. He reiterates statements made in his despatch, saying that President Ebert, Chancellor Scheidemann and Minister of War Noske are merely puppets. He declares that for the purpose of retaining power they have allowed members of the military caste to reappear as organizers of new Republican armies.

"These men are the real governors of Germany," he says. "They make edicts and Chancellor Scheidemann and his colleagues willingly sign them."

According to a despatch to the Mail the Spartacan revolt will certainly recur in ever increasing force, unless a miracle happens. It adds that Herr Noske's forces have been recruited by bribes and promises of big rations and that to this may be attributed some of the food shortage in Berlin.

SAILOR LOST A ROLL OF BILLS

David Wood, a sailor of the Imperial Cable Ship "Lord Kelium," who is at present staying at the Y.M.C.A., had the misfortune on Sunday of losing a roll of bills containing a ten dollar bill, a five dollar bill and two bills of two and one dollar denomination. He asks that the money if found he left at the Y.M.C.A.

IF NOT, WHY NOT?

Stand up, stand up for our fair city,
To buy elsewhere seems a great pity,
Similar words we have found in ditty.
Live the slogan and show you're gritty.
Some will a glad hand knowingly extend,
"I'll try, my patronage to you, gladly send;"
Even these words make things brighter,
So come along for that other typewriter.

A Letter From a Lakefield Soldier Now in Siberia

LAKEFIELD, March 17. —Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Webster received the following letter from their second son, Arthur, who is with the Canadian Siberian Forces:

Dear Mother and All—I have just received a letter dated Dec. 25th, and also one dated Dec. 29th. Well, mother, I might say I had a nice trip, although it was stormy on the way over. I might mention that the weather here is very cold but dry. If a wind comes up the dust flies something terrible. We have a fine equipment issued to us. Some of the boys have goggles and we will get ours very soon. We have long shoe packs, sheep skin coats, fur coats, moccasins, heavy socks, scarf and a wind breaker. This is a one-piece suit, which you pull over. It has a peaked hood and the cuffs draw together with a string and also the front of the hood. I think we are well equipped, don't you? I forgot to mention that we have mackinaws to wear and also two sweaters. Well, mother, I guess I have told you all for this time. I will conclude with love.

Your loving son,
ARTHUR.

Is Removing to Peterboro

Social Evening at Home of Mr. Bert Allan, of Smith Township

The Lakefield Methodist Choir gathered last week at the home of Mr. Bert Allan in Smith Township to spend a social evening before the departure of Mr. Allan for Peterboro.

A good programme was rendered consisting of duets, solos and readings with Mr. Elmer Milburn acting as chairman, after the programme Mr. Walter Madill, choir leader, read an address to Mr. and Miss Allan, who have been faithful members of the choir for some time. Mr. Higgins and Miss Down made the presentation of gold initialled cuff links and a brass jardinere.

The address was as follows:

Dear Mr. and Miss Allan,—We, your friends of the Lakefield Methodist choir, have learned with regret that you are about to sever your connections with us. In our long association with you we have had splendid opportunity to appreciate your many good qualities. You have been very faithful and efficient members of our choir. We hope that your personal friendships gained during your years among us will ever remain to you a pleasant memory.

Our fondest wish is that this friendly relationship may ever exist in the future.

We ask you to accept the accompanying gifts as concrete proof of our feeling toward you and we trust that you will value them, not for their own worth but because they symbolize the pleasant relationship between you and ourselves and because they are accompanied by our heartiest good wishes.

Your friends of the choir.

Mr. Allan made a graceful reply thanking their friends for their kindness.

After a social hour during which refreshments were served and happy party closed by singing "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow."

REFUSED THE RIGHT TO SEARCH AN EXPRESS CAR

Last week while making a tour of inspection at the Cobourg station looking for innocent looking "growlers," License Inspector Gooderich was refused permission to enter an express car by the express car messenger. License Inspectors have unlimited powers but we think Mr. Gooderich will find that he has no business in an express car.—Port Hope Guide.

W. T. C. Boyd Died Saturday Evening

Had Been Ill for About Five Years —A Well-known Curler.

After an illness of about five years duration, William Thornton Cust Boyd died at his residence, 559 Downie street, on Saturday evening, at 5 o'clock. He was born in Peterboro on July the 8th, 1859, and was the son of the late Mossom Boyd, founder of the Mossom Boyd Company of Bobcaygeon, and was a brother of the late Mossom Martin Boyd.

He was educated at Trinity College School, Port Hope, and later at Upper Canada College. After finishing his course he returned to Bobcaygeon to reside, and there with his father and brother he was largely interested in the lumber business. While residing there he was elected reeve for several terms and was actively interested in sports and athletics, playing with the Bobcaygeon Curling Club at the time they won the Ontario Tankard.

About a year ago he removed to Peterboro to reside with his sister, Mrs. Alfred Belcher, and to be under his physician's care.

Mr. Boyd's failing health is largely attributed to the series of shocks he underwent in the death of his three sons, all of whom died in the last two years. Pte. Thornton Bridgman Boyd, who was mortally wounded at Sanctuary Wood, while on active service with the Princess Patricia Regiment, and who succumbed to his wounds at the Casualty Clearing Station on June 15, 1916; Eric Mossom Boyd, a divinity student, studying at Ridley and Trinity College, who was accidentally drowned at Pigeon Lake, in October, 1917, and Herbert Cust Boyd, who held a commission in the Imperial Army with the Kings' Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, and who died in the city on Feb. 19, 1918, from the effects of the gas and shell shock received at Passchendeale. The latter son, Lieut. Boyd, attended the Royal Military College for one year, and was a student at Ridley College. Three daughters survive, namely, Rosalind (Mrs. C. E. Dowding) Toronto; Alice E., of Peterboro, and Aileen, who is attending St. Hildas' College, Toronto.

The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2:30. Service conducted by Canon Davidson, assisted by Rev. Mr. Nind, will be held in St. John's church. Interment at the Little Lake cemetery.

John McKnight Was Fined $25

Defendant Was a Victim of Circumstances.

The case of John Albert McKnight, whose farm is at Maple Creek, near the village of Kirkmount, was resumed Saturday afternoon in the police court, with Justices of the Peace H. Rush and V. Eastwood on the bench. McKnight, who was charged with failure to report to a medical board in Toronto on August 7, 1918, was, in the opinion of the court, a victim of circumstances, and was fined the minimum amount—$25.00. The order was sent to McKnight on Sept. 1, 1918, but was not received by him until November 30, through delays in the mail service. Mr. C. R. Widdifield acted for the prisoner, and was complimented by the Bench for his able defence.

The maximum fine for failure to report to a medical board is $200.

Brock Street Rink Closed for Season

Ice Will be Taken Out Immediately —Season has Been Poor for Making Ice.

The Brock street rink closed Saturday evening after a very erratic season. Usually the season opens about the 10th of December, but this year there was no skating until New Year's eve, followed by very soft weather during which the rink was closed almost a week at a time.

The best skating of the season has been during the month of March, when the attendance has been very good.

26,500,000 CARRIED BY BRITISH NAVY

Also Transported 2,200,000 Animals, 500,000 Vehicles, and 53,000,000 Tons of Stores.

LONDON—The British Navy from August, 1914 to March 2, 1919, transported more than 26,500,000 soldiers and other personnel connected with the conduct of the war, Walter J. Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared in the House of Commons, in moving the naval estimates for 1919. In addition nearly 200,000 prisoners, 2,250,000 animals more than 500,000 vehicles, 48,000,000 tons of military stores and 5,000,000 tons of live stores had been transported by naval transports.

"After five years, we can feel that peace is in sight and the British Navy has borne its full share nobly in the attainment of that great end," Mr. Long said. "The activities of the navy have been universal. From North Sea and the Orkneys to African Lakes the fleet has made its power felt and the weight of its hand has been appreciated by the enemy. In aiding the food supply the navy has never given us the right to complain, considering the issue at stake.

"Was there anything in the picture of a great naval action to compare with the surrender of the German fleet to the British fleet in mid-ocean? The final surrender of the German Navy to our keeping was a greater naval victory than could have been achieved by any action at sea. I hope that surrender marked a new stage in the progress of the world and means that in the future we will be relieved of those errors which made the world so miserable during the last few years."

Mr. Long described the amount of construction work which had been carried on during the war, especially the new harbors of Rosyth and Inverordon. He said that a mechanism had been developed for the navy by which clearing had been made to serve as effectively as sight.

Since the armistice Mr. Long added 5,500 moored mines had been destroyed by mine sweepers and no merchant ship which adhered to the prescribed route had been damaged by a moored mine. No merchant ship had failed to sail for want of men, although among the crews were men who had been on ships torpedoed or mined three, four, and five times.

Mr. Hume said that until the Peace Conference decided what the world's armament for the future should be, it was idle to ask any naval expert to frame recommendations for the future. However, the British Navy intended to apply the lessons it had learned in the war in the development of the fleet, and it asked for about men and boys, the maximum from which it was hoped to work down.

Work, he said, had been stopped on a great number of ships of all classes which were under construction when the armistice was signed.

While avoiding any expenditure that could be avoided consistent with the safety of the country the Government felt that it was its duty to see that the navy was able to perform its double task of maintaining the integrity of the Empire and playing a continuously leading part in preserving the peace of the world.

The Labor Member, William Brace referring to the freedom of the seas, said:

"We are an island people. Our frontier is the seas, the roads to the granaries of the world which have to feed us are the waters of the seven seas. Consequently I hope that when the First Lord of the Admiralty goes to Paris he will keep an eye on the freedom of the seas, which must have entirely different meaning to us than any it could have for other nations."

No Billboards On City Streets

Hamilton Alderman Urges That Unsightly Advertising be Tabooed.

HAMILTON, March 14.—The Civic Property and License committee refused to consider a request for permission to place a bill board on Ottawa street. The Building Inspector said if such request were to be refused he might as well not forward them. Ald. McIntosh said they should refuse permission to erect any billboards in the city, and gave notice of motion providing for the elimination of such boards.

Try to Stop Ankle Display in Court

Mrs. Inch Asks If It Is Spite Fence As She Enters the Court Room.

NEW YORK, March 17.— Because [illegible] was to [illegible] the display [illegible] to furnish who failed a month ago to agree on a verdict in her trial on a charge of extortion, she found the witness stand surrounded by a four-foot board fence when she appeared in the supreme court for the second hearing of her case. Though the court and prosecutor professed ignorance for the reason of the erection of the barrier, court attendants recalled a statement of the latter, when the first jury disagreed, that Mrs. Inch must not show her ankles to the jurors at the next trial else he would ask the court to make her lower her dress.

"What is it, a spite fence?" the comely Mrs. Inch inquired when she entered the court room.

The partition concealed all but her head and shoulders when she took the stand. She is being tried on a charge of extorting $216 from Eugene P. Herman, president of the Herman Motor Truck company.

Small Fruits High in Price

Peterboro Dealers Are Handling Limited Quantity.

Small fruits have soared so high in price that the local dealers have practically excluded them from their stocks. Strawberries which this time last year sold at 20 and 25 cents a pint box would retail tihs year at 60 and 65 cents. If we had them in stock one of the dealers said today, "we could sell a few odd boxes but not enough to warrant bringing them in.

The demand for fresh tomatoes, however, is so great that in spite of the fact that they are more than twice last year's price the local dealers are handling them. The price for them this time last year was 18 cents a pound, while to-day they are selling at 45 cents a pound. Cucumbers of an excellent grade are selling at 25 to 40 cents each and are fairly plentiful in the local market.

NO DUELS UNTIL PEACE

Seconds of French Aviators Reach Decision.

PARIS, March 15.— The four seconds of Leon Vaudeerane and Robert Schreeber, former army aviators, who proposed an aerial duel, met here and decided that, as a state of war still exists, it is impossible to permit any duel in France. Therefore, the question of the challenge has been postponed until the treaty of peace is signed.

Canada's Feathered Friends

On a frosty morning in the early spring, just after the first brown patches of grass have appeared in the meadows, a joyous, warbling song is heard in the orchard. The singer is easily found—the first glimpse of that blue back, bluer than the bluest of summer skies, tells you his name—the Bluebird. Then with a flourish of one or both wings, he settles on a point of vantage and watches the ground below him for insect prey. The sunshine is already warming some of them to life for their careers of destruction, but the Bluebird pounces again and again from his perch, and many insects are removed which, with their numerous progeny, would serve to lay waste and destroy the crops of field and garden.

The Bluebird is but one of an army of migrants to follow. As spring advances they swarm in our shade-trees and hedges, and scatter over field and rest; even in the air they have their hunting ground; and almost without exception they are working man's interest by holding in check the insect hordes which, if they held undisputed sway, would render man's agricultural efforts of no avail.

When, man clears the forest and plants various plants for food he disturbs the complicated series of events known as the balance of nature. The insects often find his exotic vegetation more succulent and attractive than their native hosts, and transfer their attention to this new source of food. Certain of the birds have increased because of these new prairies, which were once forests, and which man has made, and many others find the edges of the man-made fields attractive. We must maintain the bird control of the insect pests as best we can under these conditions. This can be done by protecting the birds which have succeeded in adapting themselves in a measure to man; the birds which come into the garden and orchard and meadow, and find it good and stay there. We can encourage them to come by feeding them in winter and by providing suitable nesting-sites so that they will stay with us when we need them most when they need most insect food; and that is when they are raising their young.

Suitable shrubbery, such as a few dense tangles of bushes and creepers or a shaby hedge, will afford them shelter from their enemies, and if their greatest enemy, the cat, is banished or tethered or otherwise disposed of, they will amply repay us for all our trouble. The damage we suffer from insect pests is enormous without bothering about giddy figures it suffices to say that insects destroy from five to twenty-five per cent of each year's crop of everything man raises. The forest losses, which are even more difficult of computation, must be as great. The birds help to hold these enemies of ours in check; these lovely creatures which we would protect as we do flowers for their beauty, and which we all must admire because of their musical ability and cheering presence, are really [illegible] dawn to dark, and even through the hours of darkness. How much we owe them! how carefully we should guard them from danger!

And then, when you have studied and known the birds that work for you at home; when you really know the Robin, and Oriole, and Chickadee and Chipping Sparrow, and a dozen others, you may be tempted to go and see the ones that protect your woods; the shy, retiring birds that avoid the haunts of man and prefer the cool, silent forest; the Hermit Thrush, the Rose-breasted Grosbeak and the Veery, and very many more. If you once begin to know the birds, they will have a new friend and protector and the gain will not all be theirs.

A new pleasure has been added to your experience, new thrills may make your outing an event, and there will be a new motive to draw you from the mundane things of life into God's great out-of-doors, from which one always returns refreshed and rejuvenated to take up the daily task.

When autumn comes your new-found friends gradually disappear from their accustomed haunts. You will miss them, but others have taken their place. The Chickadees and Creepers now search every nook and twig and cranny for the hibernating insect or the cluster of insect eggs that would otherwise spell disaster or damage for your shade and orchard trees next year. Attract the Chickadee to your house and to your orchard in winter. A piece of suet or a scrap of bacon rind nailed to a tree will keep him working in your immediate neighbourhood, and the winter days will seem shorter for his bright and cheering presence. He will appreciate a shelter if you provide one by nailing up a small bird-box or two, and in these he can spend the cold winter nights in safety.

The birds which leave in the fall spend the winter in the United States or even south of them. Your bluebird and your Robin may spend the winter in Virginia or in California. Therefore both the United States and Canada have agreed by treaty to protect all migratory insectivorous birds, because these birds belong to us both It is illegal throughout the whole of the United States and Canada to shoot them or harm them, or rob them of their nests or eggs. Everyone must help enforce this treaty, and the best beginning is to protect the insectivorous birds in your garden, on your farm, or in your woods. If you see persons shooting insectivorous birds, report them to the nearest game warden, not because you want to cause trouble, but because you believe in protecting the birds which work for us, and are our common property.

If you are a sportsman, you will be glad to know that close seasons of uniform length have been arranged so as to protect the migratory game birds and wild-fowl. Spring-shooting of all migratory game birds is forbidden, and they can now make in safety the northward journey to their breeding grounds, there to replenish their numbers. A permanent close season for a number of species such as Wood Ducks, Eider Ducks, Band-tailed Pigeons, Little Brown, Sandhill and Whooping Cranes, Swanes, Curlew, and all shore-birds except Woodcock, Wilson Snipe, Black-breasted Plover, Golden Plover, and Greater and Lesser Yellowlegs is now in force, so that these depleted species may increase in number. As a true sportsman, use every influence in your power to assist in the observation and enforcement of the Migratory Birds Convention Act. We need our insectivorous birds to protect our crops and forests, and we need our game so that our children and our children's children will not find that their heritage in wild-life has been destroyed by us. Let us have our health-giving out-door sport, but do not destroy all game. Leave enough so that our descendants, for whom we hold this vast domain in trust, will not lack this incentive to [illegible]

LIBERAL WIN IN ENGLAND.

Lloyd George Candidate in West Leyton Beaten in Election.

LONDON, March 15.—The bye-election in West Leyton, caused by the death of the member elected in the general election in December, has resulted in the election of A. E. Newbould, an Independent Liberal, who defeated K. F. Mason, a Coalition Unionist.

"Can You Show Me Something MADE IN PETERBORO?"

Put that question when you're buying whatever you're buying. Then study the Peterboro article—let it be Quaker Oats, a Motor, a Broom, Builders' Hardware, Carpets, a Show Case or a Canoe.

There are some 40 or 50 factories here now—more coming. If the Peterboro product and the price is no more, then say: "I'll take the one made in Peterboro."

This is all that is asked by the manufacturers here now.

After you have read this, read it to your family—to your business associates too, and ask them if it isn't a fair, square proposition—fair to you and to Peterboro.

If you like the idea you'll put it into practice. There'll never be a better day than to-day to begin.

Who's the "Mare" of Peterbore?

Perhaps the Backwoods Journal Refers to Mayor Duncan

(Bobcaygeon Independent)

We have just succeeded in persuading Mr. Jas. Capstick to let us display his 1918-1919, winning of his Single Comb White Leghorn in the Independent window, which includes the Bobcaygeon Fall Fair and the winter shows held in January. A look over his winnings proves the fact that he took everything worth winning and it must have been no little surprise to his competitors. Although Mr. Captsick has been showing a little for a number of years but more with attention of perfecting his breed than making his winnings, and with careful mating and always breeding from the best precurable; as his 1918-19 winning show, he had about the best White Leghorns in Ontario.

Among the winnings is a beautiful cup, donated by the Mare or Peterboro to the Peterboro Winter Poultry Show for the highest number at points in Leghorns, also the special given by F. D. Flavelle given for the most points in Leghorns at Lindsay.

WARNING SENT TO OTTAWA FROM GRAIN GROWERS

Saskatchewan Branch Deprecates Any Compromise on Tariff — Other Branches Said To Be Following Suit.

REGINA, March 15.—The following telegram was sent by J. B. Musselman, secretary of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, to Thomas McEvoy, M.P., Ottawa, chairman of the committee of western Unionists: "Request you as chairman of the committee of Unionist members to advise them that Saskatchewan farmers are watching proceedings of Parliament with keen interest and grave concern. Any proposal to compromise on the tariff would arouse violent resentment here. We look to members from the west for inflexible stand on farmers' platform."

Information reaching the central office here is to the effect that Manitoba and Alberta organized farmers are taking similar action.

CEREAL SITUATION SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

TORONTO, March 17.—The cereal situation seems to be slightly improved, the markets on grain, though fluctuating a great deal, tending gradually upward. This has not affected rolled oats so much, on which there is a wide range of prices, but corn cereals seem in a much steadier position.

A decline of 7 cents per pound in one line of tobacco and 3c in another was made last week. Peanut butter is lower. Steel wool is being quoted, and higher prices have been named on washboards.

Lima beans have sagged substantially, and general outlook on beans show little of interest. Rice shows up somewhat firmer, and some grades Japan rices are becoming scarce.

FLY 1180 MILES TO MOROCCO.

TOULOUSE. — Lieut. Lemaitre, a leading French aviator during the war has completed an airplane flight from Toulouse to Casablanco, on the western coast of Morocco, a distance of 1900 kilometers (approximately 1180 miles) in 11 hours actual flying time.

The lieutenant and a passenger left Toulouse at noon on Saturday, and landed at Casablanc at 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. The whole voyage which lasted 29 hours was made in two stages, the first from Toulouse to Alicante, Spain, and the second from Alicante to Casablanca. The voyage from Toulouse to Casablanca by ordinary means consumes 10 days.

ONLY 22, WED FOUR TIMES

After Last Marriage, Feels is "Permanently" Placed.

CHICAGO, March, 17.—With each varying mood Mrs. Elsie C. Wilson-Flankenstine- Frankenstine- Louzon just turned 22, acquired a husband. The fourth acquisition was eliminated when Superior Judge Hopkins indicated he would sign a decree annuling her second marriage to Allen Frankenstine.

Mrs. Louzen adopted the hobby of collecting husbands when she was barely past 17. She was pretty, vivacious and extremely romantic. From that time on a new husband assumed a proprietary interest in her just about the time the first anniversary of her first and subsequent marriage rolled around.

Judge Hopkins was questioning the young woman about her marriage to Frankenstine when she sought to explain it to the court fully.

"Just one moment," interrupted Judge Hopkins. "How many times have you been married?"

"Four times. I married Louis Louzon June 2, 1916."

The court turned to Marshall E. Gallion, the young woman's attorney.

"Is this the last time."

She says it is, your honor," answered the lawyer. "She feels permanently placed now."

H. SCHULTZE WAS FINED $10 AND COSTS

Pleaded Guilty to Charge of Obstructing Court Official.

Herman Schultze, a hockey player who played on the Peterboro Intermediate Hockey [illegible] this winter, pleaded guilty to a charge of obstructing a court official while in discharge of his duty. He was fined $10 and costs, a total of $19.10 on Saturday. Mr. S. K. Pearson, bailiff of the Division Court arrested Brock Wright of North Monaghan at one of the local hotels on the order of County Judge. While Wright was being taken into custody Schultze interfered and allowed the prisoner to escape. One of the local detectives and a policeman assisted Pearson to take Schultze into custody with the above results.

Justices of the Peace, H. Rush and V. Eastwood occupied the bench.

Doughboys Marvel At Russian Peasant

Billets in the Arctic Regions or Archangel Front Furnish Many Strange Experiences.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORTH RUSSIA.—The habits and customs of the North Russian peasant are sources of unceasing wonder to the American soldier. The peasants are primitive and are content to reside where the average American housewife would roll up her sleeves and spend many days in scrubbing before she would live. In these wooden or log huts hundreds of Yankee infantrymen and engineers are billeted this winter.

The Americans, generally speaking occupy one-half of the house and the family the other. The Americans' half is as clean as constant "policing" can make it. But as for the other half, there are chickens, "husky" dogs of the arctic type, and from two to four generations of peasants wandering more or less miscellaneously about their one or two rooms.

"But they keep the chickens cooped up part of the day," one Detroit, Mich., private told The Associated Press correspondent. "You see," he added, "they only let them out in the morning to [illegible] the kitchen. That's easier than shoveling out."

The Russian family's side of all these houses is all right. It is bitterly cold up here in the forests during the six months' winter, and the peasant doesn't believe in wasting heat. His windows are sealed up tight and never, never opened. He doesn't mind the resultant odor.

But the American does and opens the windows in his side of the house, and the peasant shakes his head gravely and worries for fear his strange khaki-clad guests will catch cold.

But the American doesn't catch cold—and neither does the peasant, for that matter—in his air-tight rooms. Both systems seem to work equally well. Since the cold weather has really set in the soldier and civilian populations have both been surprisingly healthy.

One peasant habit which the American makes countless jokes about is as time honored and unswervable among the Russians as it is strange to the Americans—that is, sleeping on the stove. The Russian village stoves are built of brick or clay or porcelain. They are about as large as an ordinary American bathroom and flat on top, except where the brick chimney pokes through. One stokes them once or twice a day, until all the wood is burned out, and then closes them up, letting the heated bricks radiate their warmth. The flat tops of these stoves are bed spaces for the eldest or most honored of the families. American officers have surprised many peasant hosts by declining invitations to use these choicest of all beds.

IMPROMPTU DANCES

How often when some young friends have dropped in for the evening have we wished for a little impromptu dance, only to find that nobody in the company could play good dance music. There would never be this annoyance if there was a Victrola in the home. Why not drop in at Heintzman Hall, George and Hunter streets, and see some of the famous instruments and hear about the Easy Payment Plan the firm have adopted.

COUNCIL BACK IN VERDUN.

PARIS. — The city council of Verdun has returned to the ruined city.

"It was an act of faith in the future of the city," the Verdun correspondent of the Petit Journal comments, "for there are only 200 or 300 inhabitants there, compared to 20,000 before the war. Before the others can come back houses, furniture and food, everything, has to be provided, to receive them."

When American Ambassador Sharp recently asked the amount of damage at Verdun, he was told that it was 80,000,000 francs.

The members of the council hope that the former prosperity of Verdun will be restored. The return of the lost province of Alsace and Lorraine, given Verdun added importance as it is a junction point on the main railroad from Paris to Metz.

MAETERLINCK WEDS ANOTHER AOTRESS

Renee Dahon Became Famous as "Tyltyl" in "The Blue Bird."

NICE.— Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright, several adys ago married Renee Dahon, a young woman of Nice, it became known to-day. Maeterlinck has been a resident of Nice for the last ten years.

The marriage took place at Chateau Neuf-de-Contes, a small village twelve miles from Nice, with the strictest privacy. Only four villagers were present as legal witnesses.

It crowns a romance which commenced eight years ago. Materlinck is fifty-eight years old, and his bride twenty-six. Maeterlinck was divorced from his former wife, Madame Georgette Le Blanc, five weeks ago.

EACH CITY HAS ITS AIR.

Individuality Marked, Says Lord Dunsany.

Lord Dunsany, the English playwright, says: "There is an air about a city, and it has a way with it, whereby a man may recognize one from another at once. There are cities full of happiness, and there are cities full of pleasure, and cities full of gloom. There are cities with their faces to the earth; some have a way of looking to the past and others at the future; some notice you if you come among them, others glance at you, others let you go by. Some tell the old tale of their infancy, with others it is secret; some cities sing, and some mutter; some are angry; and some have broken hearts; and each city has its way of greeting Time."

THE WAR PICTURES.

Canada's Effort Now Being Shown at Royal Academy.

Dealing with the exhibition of Canadian war pictures which opened at the Royal Academy of Arts in London on January 4th, a contributor to the Pall Mall Gazette says it is a unique spectacle of a nation's supreme endeavor portrayed, not in retrospect, but during its accomplishment by her artists. The seventy leading painters of Canada, including some famous British names, have risen gloriously to the task set by their Government when it took them out to the trenches in France and Flanders. From the landing of the first 32,000 men at Plymouth to the capture of Mons on the last day of the war, no phase of Canada's war activity has been neglected.

There are nearly 400 paintings illustrating the career of the Canadian corps in France, including the magnificent paintings of the landing of the Third Canadian Brigade at St Namaire, by Edgar Bundy, A.R.A. and the giant canvas by Major Richard Jack, A.R.A., "The Second Battle of Ypres." Major Jack has also a fine painting of "The Battle of Vimy Ridge." In the same way the historic Canadian battles are dealt with each in their turn. Regina Trench, the taking of Courcelette and so on and then the Arras-Cambrai road is shown, along which the Canadians are seen streaming after three months of incessant battle to the bitter fight for Cambrai, whence they passed to the last engagement which culminated in the triumphal entry into Mons.

Apart from the actual fighting, however, the paintings give a comprehensive view of every other phase of Canadian war activity overseas, the Forestry Corps, which has provided timber for the armies of four nations; the famous railway troops, which often working desperately under a devastating fire, have contributed so much to victory; the Veterinary Corps, which has charge of three million sterling worth of animals; the hospitals and even the patrol boats in the English Channel, some of which were manned exclusively by Canadian crews. There is a splendid collection of portraits, interesting personalities such as Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Perley, Princess Patricia of Connaught and Lady Drummond, who labored so unceasingly for the Canadian Red Cross. There are also portraits of many members of the Canadian high command and a whole gallery of Canadians who have won the Victoria Cross.

Dr. McNulty Appointed Medical Health Officer for Ennismore

All members were present at the regular monthly meeting of the Ennismore township council. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

By-law No. 386 for the purpose of appointing road-masters, pound-keepers, fence-viewers and sheep valuators received the three readings and passed.

Robert Boate, a member of the municipal telephone system of the township of Emily, was present, asking the council to give him the right to extend their system into Ennismore on the first concession road and the first lots on the western boundaries of Ennismore, if the parties thereon are willing to sign for the phone. The request was granted and By-law No. 387 for the purpose was passed.

Municipal System.

A municipal telephone system is well under way in the township of Ennismore. There is quite a large number of the ratepayers signed for the 'phone.

There is a large amount of gravel drawn and piled on the sides of the roads this winter. Up to the present very few gravel accounts have been presented.

No snow shovelling heard of yet, which will be quite a boom to the statute labour work.

The road masters may be advertised later.

Moved by Messrs. Sullivan and Harrington, that Henry Redmond be paid the sum of $14.80 for drawing gravel to Edward Corkery's road division.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Telford and Cavanagh, that D. F. Drummond be paid the sum of $6.00 for one road scraper.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Cavanagh and Telford, that William Robinson, Bridgenorth, be paid $2.25 for gravel.

Moved by Messrs. Telford and Cavanagh, that David Scollard be paid the sum of $1.60 for drawing 74 yds. of gravel to Edward Corkery's road division.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Telford and Sullivan, that this meeting adjourn until the call of the Reeve.—Carried.

On motion of Messrs. Harrington and Sullivan, Dr. McNulty was appointed Medical Health Officer for the township of Ennismore, to take the place of the late Dr. McGrath.—Carried.

Emerald.

The emerald has been known since early times both in Europe and in certain parts of the Orient, where its attractive color and rarity have endowed it with the highest rank and a varied lore. Its name may be traced back to an old word which appeared in Greek as smaragdos, mentioned by Theophrastus over 300 years before the Christian era, and again in Latin as smaragdus, seen in the writings of Pliny, who particularized somewhat on its properties and supposed medical virtues, and was even shrewd enough to suspect its identity with the much more common beryl, although eighteen centuries elapsed before this suspicion was derived by scientific proof.

POTATO CROP DISEASES

Most Serious of Them Widely Established in Old Ontario.

Varieties of Grains Which Give Heaviest Yields—O. A. C. No. 21 Best Barley of All — Get Everything In Readiness for Spring Spraying Now.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

OFFICIALS of the Ontario Department of Agriculture inspected 313 seed potato fields in Northern Ontario last year of 278 acres and 119 fields qualified for certified seed. It is estimated that there were 16,000 bushels of certified seed secured from Northern Ontario. All of this is being shipped to Old Ontario to be planted this year.

The survey which was made last year by inspectors to detect diseases in the potatoes was spread over 32 counties, although the reports from four of that number are not included in the statistics because of irregularities in the work. The territory covered was from Northumberland and Peterborough counties west to Essex, not including Simcoe and Victoria. It was found in this survey that an average of 15 per cent. of the potatoes had the most serious disease of Leaf Roll, and that 7 per cent. were affected with Mosaic, a total of 22 per cent. affected by disease. An interesting fact revealed by the survey is that the diseases are most common along the shores of Lake Ontario, through Dufferin and Wellington counties, and along the shore of Lake Erie through to Essex county. Farther north the percentage of disease is much smaller. While the average for the two diseases is 22 per cent., some of the counties showed a much higher rate, as Haldimand 29. Welland 61.7, Lincoln 35.5, Wentworth 26.6, Brant 44.8, Halton 32.1, Peel 51.9 and York 25.4. The standard in this province permits of two per cent. Leaf Roll in No. 1 seed and 5 per cent. in No. 2. In severe Mosaic the percentage is the same, although the slight Mosaic the figures are doubled.

The cause of these diseases is not known. Whether there is some organism, or whether the climate has something to do with them, is a matter of doubt. Prof. J. A. Murphy, of Charlottetown, who is the Chief Pathologist for potatoes for the Dominion, and who is attached to the Central Experimental Farm, is at work on this problem, and it is hoped that before many months the cause will be known. At any rate, it is known that the diseases are more common in potatoes in the Southern States. That is why it is expected Ontario seed potatoes will be in demand there in a few years.

Leading Varieties of Spring Grain.

The old Six-rowed barley gave way to the Mandscheuri, and that in turn has given place to the O.A.C. No. 21, which is now grown throughout Ontario to the exclusion of practically all other varieties. The Egyptian and the Black Tartarian varieties of oats which were popular at one time have been largely displaced by the Banner and more recently by the O.A.C. No. 72 and the O.A.C. No. 3 varieties. The O.A.C. No. 72 variety has a comparatively strong vigorous straw, spreading head, and white grain of good quality, the hull being quite thin. In experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College it has surpassed the Banner in yield per acre in each of nine out of ten years. It has made a phenomenal record in connection with the Ontario Standing Field Crop Competitions, taking more first prizes than all other varieties of oats combined. The O.A.C. No. 3 variety is ten days earlier than the Banner or the O.A.C. No. 72, and is an excellent variety for mixing with barley when it is desirable to grow the two in combination. Of the spring wheats the Red Fife, the Marquis and the Wild Goose are the principal varieties. At the present time, however, when the demand for wheat for bread production is so urgent the Marquis and the Red Fife, and especially the former, should be grown as extensively as possible in Ontario. Spring rye does not yield equal to Winter rye but its cultivation will perhaps be increased somewhat during the present year. The O.A.C. No. 61 variety has given the best results, surpassing all other kinds in yield of grain per acre.—Dr. C. A. Zavitz, O. A. College, Guelph.

Prepare for Spring Spraying.

Efficient and economic spraying is hard to attain with the use of poor machinery. The power sprayer is an expensive piece of machinery, but it is effective when properly handled. Its usefulness can be greatly impaired by improper care. To secure the highest degree of efficiency in spraying the maintenance of high pressure is necessary. Probably high pressure is not needed in all cases; it is, however, true that by means of it more thorough and, consequently, more effective work can be done in a much shorter time and with much less effort.

The agitation of the liquid in the tank is another important matter. In the case of most sprays, the individual particles that make up the insecticide are suspended in the water. Unless the sprayer is equipped with a good agitator, these particles will settle to the bottom, rendering the mixture in the top of the tank weaker than it should be, and that in the bottom stronger, and possibly in some cases too strong for safe application.

It is needless to say that the care of spraying machinery should never be neglected. Indeed, the spraying outfit should never be put away after using until the mixture is thoroughly cleared out from all parts of the pump, rod, piping, hose and nozzles by running clear water through them. The water should be drained from the engine and all parts cleaned and oiled.—Prof. Jno. Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.

Fall of Imperial Guard.

From Arbela to Argonne; from the day when Alexander's phalanx bore down the Persian lines to the day when the Allies shattered the best of Germany like smoke, the Imperial Guard of mighty sovereigns has been the keystone, the central fabric, the very basis of military power. Destroy the guard and the morale of every royal army vanishes like mist before the sun.

Fierce was the fighting on Arbela's Plain, and vain the onsets of the Macedonians until the Persian Guard gave way—and night saw the Persian Empire in the young invader's hands.

Spain's restless infantry shook the earth till the Spanish Guard was mown down by Conde at Rocroy.

At Austerlitz the Russian ranks held fast till the Czar's gigantic guards were cut through and beattered. And the soldiers at Waterloo, outflanked, outnumbered, would not yield till the guard gave back upon the fatal slope of Mont St. Jean. So went the story through the ages—and the last chapter of imperial guards and guardsmen's glory is a fitting epilogue.

"We saw a few black dots break from the guard and struggle down the hill; then a dark blot on the hillside; then the guard reeled and its whole great mass came staggering down. All is lost—the guard recoils." So spoke the historians who watched at Waterloo.

When the guard breaks, the doom of any king is sealed. It was so three thousand years ago, and what may be the last tale of the wreckage of an imperial guard is but the final confirmation of the old, old story.

World's Largest Cake.

The largest Christmas cake ever made was the monster concoction with which Frederick William I. of Prussia surprised his soldiers upwards of 180 years ago.

The soldiers, to the number of 30,000, had just concluded a substantial meal when they were astonished to see a strange vehicle of immense size, and drawn by eight horses, approaching. It was very heavily laden, and as it drew nearer the load was seen to consist of an enormous cake.

Some idea of its dimensions can be gathered from the fact that this amazing cake was 5½ feet high, 24 feet in breadth, and nearly three feet in thickness. In the making of it some 36 bushels of flour, one ton of butter, and 5,000 eggs had been used up. The ingredients were mixed with 200 gallons of milk, a ton of yeast being added as a "rising" agency. —Tit-Bits.

There were sensational advances in the corn features yesterday, March closing 7 3-8c. up from Saturday's close, May 1 1-2c. up, July 3 1-2c. up, and September 7-8c. up. Oats and barley were also in stronger markets. Strength in cash corn, and light receipts, with many points cleaned right out of corn and farmers still hanging on to their holdings, all contributed to the strengthening of the general tone of the markets. Another strong feature was the conclusion of arrangements with the Allies for the feeding of Europe. Cash corn prices at the principal centres were 3c. to 4c. higher. The demand for barley for export account continues quite strong.

OHIO COLLEGE GIRL

Overworked, Nervous, Run-Down—Health Restored by Vinol.

Urbana, Ohio,—"I am attending college, and am very nervous, run-down condition, no appetite, was weak and exhausted.—Vinol has given me a good appetite and built up my strength and health, and I can heartily recommend it to anyone for such conditions."—Miss Adelaide Carter.

The reason Vinol was so successful in Miss Carter's case is because it contains the very elements needed to build up a weakened, run-down system, make rich, red blood and create strength.

The Meat Trade.

The war stimulated the export trade in Canadian live stock products to a degree deemed well nigh impossible five years ago. Exports of beef increased 8,795 per cent. and of bacon and pork products 571 per cent. Total exports of live stock products in the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1918, were valued at $172,743,061, as compared with $53,349,113 in 1914.

Canada has the opportunity of holding this trade and increasing it, for our meat products won a splendid reputation in Europe during the war, and Canada is in the position of the favored nation.

The price of feed has been high, and the cost of producing live stock has been correspondingly high. But the market price of finished animals has also been high. The price may decline gradually, but the price of feed will decline also, and the percentage of profit to the farmer should thus remain about the same. Indeed if the cost of feed declines first, the profit to the farmer will be increased.

J. F. Brethour, of Burford, Ont., who won the first prize for export bacon hogs at the Winter Fair at Guelph, says that with the relative prices of feed and bacon then pertaining there was a good profit.

"With standard feed at $57 a ton and hogs at $16 live weight, I make a profit of over 20 per cent.," said Mr. Brethour. "It is the profit that counts, not the selling price, and profit depends upon the relation of the price of feed to the market price of the finished animal."

HAD SEVERE COLD

AND TICKLING SENSATION IN THE THROAT.

This trouble is most distressing, and is caused from a cold that has settled in the throat.

How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty, tickling, irritating sensation in the throat?

The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorants herbs and barks, combined with the lung healing virtues of the wonderful Norway pine tree, will give almost instant relief in all cases of this nature.

Mr. G. C. Routley, Bright, Ont., writes:—"I take great pleasure in writing you of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

For several weeks I was troubled with a severe cold, and a tickling in the throat. I tried numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which cured me much sooner, and on asking one of my friends for some instant relief, I highly recommend it to those who need a quick cure."

So great has been the success of "Dr. Wood's" in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., it is only natural that many imitations have been placed on the market. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

I was confined to my bed for six months under doctors' treatment, during which time I did not earn a cent, and in addition, spent dollars upon dollars, being sure was effected.

"Recently I sustained a scratch on my other leg. It became very inflamed and swollen, and finally turned to an ulcer. This time, however, I knew about Zam-Buk, and I acted very differently. I used Zam-Buk alone, with the result that not only was the ulcer healed in much shorter time than the previous one, but I was able to go to work all the time it was healing, and I did not lose a single day's pay. THE WIFE

BY JANE PHILPS

Ruth Is a Bit Dismayed at What She Is to Do

CHAPTER CXLVI

Brian had just breathed the words "I hope" when Ruth had said she wished she might meet his friends—the men with whom he had fought overseas, and whose society he seemed to crave. But Ruth had heard and she had all she could do to keep from throwing her arms around her husband and telling him that if her work stood between them in any way it need not any longer; that she had decided to remain at home and take care of the home while he took care of her. But she glimpsed his tired face and restrained herself. There was much to tell, much to talk about. She would wait until morning.

After breakfast—at which she had worn one of her charming negligees, a costume she rarely wore now save on Sunday, but which in the first days of their married life she affected when in the house—she remarked:

"I have a lot to tell you after breakfast dear."

"Why the fluffy ruffles this morning? Don't you feel well?"

"Perfectly. Do you like my gown?"

"It's great! a woman never looks so well as when she dresses in some soft clingy think like that. The color is very becoming too. If women only knew how much better they looked in such clothes, they never would wear mannish things—at least when a man was around."

"The women who did war work all wore mannish costumes."

"Yes, and they looked all right for that kind of work. They were wonderful. But if they let themselves get the habit, and go on wearing mannish things, there will be more old maids than the loss of men makes necessary. Men hate women to ape them in anything."

Ruth smiled at his outburst. She knew only too well what his ideas were as regarded women who in any way paraded their independence; who even were of the independent variety. While she knew that Brian would probably repudiate the suggestion, yet the clinging-vine sort of woman was really the woman he admired—as a wife.

Then she smiled again, this time rather sadly, as she wondered if she could learn to "cling." It was so foreign to her nature, so unlike the life she had led the last few years. As unlike as was the dainty fluffy morning gown to the severe tailor-made costume she usually wore at breakfast because she was dressed for business.

She watched Brian covertly as he read his paper. She noted the new strength in his face, thought she could read new purpose in the very way he read his morning paper. His concentration was so different from the desultory way in which before the war he had scanned the news. It was a risk. Suppose he failed?—Failed in his profession, so failed also to make home the place he seemed to think he could make it if she "stood out from under," as he once, in the long ago, had expressed it.

The thought made her turn hot then cold. She would then have lost her position. Too well she knew that never would she find another where she would be so happy and contented, where she would be treated with the consideration Arthur Mandel had accorded her. They had little Brian to think of now; for his sake they must keep going at least decently.

Then came another thought. She would lose Rachel. Dear old Mammy who made everything so comfortable for her, and who idolized the baby. A wave of the old repugnance swept over her as she thought of again washing dishes and wiping up floors. She had saved something. But Ruth knew the cost of living. The high cost of all that was needed in the household. It would take some time for Brian to establish himself again. If only he had waited and not taken that horrid, dusty office. Perhaps he could sublet it and take the one she had looked at? She had given up the option but perhaps it was still vacant.

She longed, yet dreaded, to have breakfast over. She almost wavered in her determination to leave Mandel when the thought of how she would miss her work swept over her. The lovely stuffs, seeing the plans for beautifying some old mansion grow under her hands. It was not going to be easy for her.

She would miss Mandel with his kind thought of her; LaMonte, who always deferred to her judgment; Miss Sweet, her little blond secretary, who altho not always efficient, was invariably pleasant, sometimes even amusing; the old cleaning woman with her cheery "good mornin' Miss"; the doorman's smile as he touched his hat. It would be like cutting out a piece of her life.

"Well come on dear! I'm thru if you are. What's this wonderful story you have to tell." Brian interrupted her cogitations, then put his arm about her waist as they walked from the room.

To-morrow—Ruth Tells Brian She Has Resigned Her Position.

GENERAL MANGIN IS IN LORRAINE

Lost Provinces Taken Over by France.

THE OFFICER IN CHARGE

French General Expresses Indignation at the Treatment of British Prisoners by the Germans and He Also Pays Tribute to Pluck of Expatriated Tommies.

RECENTLY I crossed the frontier from Lorraine into Germany proper, and journeyed for some distance up the valley of the Saar on the right bank. I had a long talk with Gen. Mangin, who has recovered from the effects of the accident that prevented him from taking part with Marshal Petain in the triumphant entry into Metz, says a British correspondent.

Like all the French with whom I have spoken on the subject, Gen. Mangin expressed deep indignation at the wretched state of the British prisoners who have passed by thousands through the lines on their way to [illegible] has done all in his power to relieve their sufferings. He even went half way to meet them before, by the terms of the armistice, he could march his troops across the frontier, by sending forward ambulances under the white flag to bring them in instead of their being left to walk.

One of the first convoys, a particularly enfeebled and suffering lot, were being fed and cared for immediately on their arrival on French soil when, by good luck, he discovered in the village where they were a phonograph with a setting of "God Save the King" among the records. As soon as the men heard the familiar melody—in many cases for the first time for more than four years—they sprung to attention and when it was finished began all at once talking and laughing as if they had forgotten all their troubles.

In towns in Germany proper—in Saarlouis, for instance, and still more in Saarbrucken—the German population seemed to take no more notice of the French soldiers in the streets, and even of my obvious British uniform, than of each other. In Lorraine, right up to the frontier, though necessarily the further you get from Metz the smaller becomes the number of the people who use French as their first language, you still have the feeling that the arrival of French troops is really welcome to the German immigrants. Beyond the Saar, that feeling naturally disappears. You have got away from the region marked by the flags of deliverance.

In the main street in Saarbrucken I saw only one tricolor. You are in the country of the conquered, and can hardly look for a rapturous reception. But you meet with, so far as I could judge, comparatively few actively hostile looks; and even here there is no lack of passersby able and willing to answer questions put to them in French vividly enough in the same tongue, sometimes, even with real cordiality. How long it will take the mass of the Germans in Lorraine to accept French rule in the spirit of these last is a question that cannot yet be answered.

In some of the towns in these Rhine provinces the traditions of French rule in a glorious epoch still survive. Saarlouis is named after Louis Quatorze. In one of the municipal buildings in the principal square there is some wonderful Gobelins tapestry, which was a gift of Louis to the town, and in the same room an engraving of Ney and some of other marshals and distinguished French officers born in the town.

THE British are noted as great tea drinkers and are naturally good judges of tea.

So when we learn that over 70% of the tea used in Great Britain is Indian tea we can be sure that Indian tea is of the very best quality.

In Canada the preference for Indian tea has become just as strong as evidenced by the success of Red Rose Tea which consists chiefly of ASSAMS—the richest and strongest of Indian teas.

Red Rose is always sold in sealed packages.

How She Did It.

As a married couple were walking down one of the main thoroughfares of a city the husband noted the attention which other women obtained from passersby and remarked to his better half:

"Folks never look at you. I wish I had married some one better looking."

The woman tartly replied: "It's your fault. Do you think a man will stare at me when you're walking with me? You step behind and see whether men don't look at me."

The husband hung back about a dozen yards and for the length of the street was surprised to see every man his wife pass stare hard at her and even turn around and look after her.

"Sure, lassie," he exclaimed as he rejoined her, "I was wrong and take it back. I'll never say aught about your looks again."

She Might.

Marjorie was on a visit to her grandparents on the farm, and her enjoyment of country life was somewhat marred by the apprehension of being horned by the cows. One day her mother asked her to run to the barn and call her grandpa to dinner. She started, but, espying a cow in the lot, one of the mulley kind, ran back, crying, "Oh, mamma; there's a cow out there!"

After a glance out of the window at the meek-looking bovine her mother said:

"Why, Marjorie, that's a mulley cow. She can't harm you; for she hasn't any horns."

"But, mamma," exclaimed the child, "she might butt me with her pompadour."—Harper's Weekly.

A Handicap.

The neatness of the New England housekeeper is a matter of common remark, and husbands, in that part of the country are supposed to appreciate their advantages.

A bit of dialogue reported as follows shows that there may be another side to the matter:

"Martha, have you wiped the sink dry yet?" asked the farmer as he made final preparations for the night.

"Yes, Josiah," she replied. "Why do you ask?"

"Well, I did want a drink of water, but I guess I can get along until morning."—Everybody's Magazine.

Down to a Working Basis.

"Will you be my wife?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied.

"Very well. Now let's get acquainted and see whether we really care any thing for each other."—Chicago Herald Herald.

An Explanation.

The sergeant-major had the reputation of never being at a loss for an answer. A young officer made a bet with a brother officer that he would in less than twenty-four hours ask the sergeant-major a question that would baffle him. The sergeant-major accompanied the young officer on his rounds, in the course of which the cook house was inspected. Pointing to a large caldron of water just commencing to boil, the officer said: "Why does that water only boil round the edges of the copper and not in the centre?" "The water around the edge, sir," replied the veteran, "is for the men of the guard; they have their breakfast half an hour before the remainder of the company."

Carrier Pigeons Used in 1099.

According to the poet Tasso, carrier pigeons were employed for the transmission of messages during the siege of Jerusalem in the year 1099.

Interested.

Husband (at police station)—They say you have caught the fellow who robbed our house night before last.

Sergeant—Yes. Do you want to see him?

Husband—Sure! I'd like to talk to him. I want to know how he got in without waking my wife. I've been trying to do that for the last twenty years.—Judge.

Italy, U. S. A.

Did you ever hear of Italy? No, not Italy in Europe but Italy in the state of Texas? Scout Edward Hammer writes us from there, and from what he says it must be some town. It has only 2,000 inhabitants, yet within its limits there is a cotton compress, an ice and water plant, a cotton seed and oil mill, four gins and a grist mill. We wonder if there is any chance for loafers in Italy?. The town is situated on the banks of Houston's creek, so named because General Sam Houston camped there in his memorable retreat before Santa Anna.—Boys' Life.

STORY OF THE GUN.

How Firearms First Came Into Use In Europe.

The fixed tube which uses powder to blow a missile from its mouth has seen only six centuries of existence. All the evidence we have indicates that the gun had its birth in Europe and not until after the year 1300.

For a long time it was supposed the gun was much older than it really is. But the art of reading history has advanced as much as any other of man's accomplishments, and later, more cautious search has caused us to change our views considerably regarding the age of the gun.

So far as we know the gun had no inventor. The honor has been ascribed to several, but their title to it has not borne even casual scrutiny. It seems to have been a slow growth, perhaps from a preceding toy of similar form. The squib of paper or wood, if made fast, would shoot a stone a little distance. Then by making the tube larger and stronger some man or woman saw the chance to convert an innocent plaything into a dangerous weapon. When the thing was done they called it a cannon.

This took place prior to 1326; for in that year the Italian Republic of Florence, as its records show, ordered several metal cannon, including balls for them, to be made at the public expense, for the defence of the state. This is the earliest reference to firearms that has yet come to light, and shows that guns had then passed the experimental stage of their growth.

In England there is undoubted evidence of the possession and use of guns in 1327, one year after the Italian guns were ordered; and in 1338 when Edward III invaded France, he took a few cannon and their ammunition with him. We are left with the strong conviction, therefore, that the gun as a weapon sprang into use during the period between 1267 and 1326. But it was in a great battle which took place about the middle of the fourteenth century that the cannon, the first firearm, made its bow to the world.

What's In a Name?

One of the stock questions of the professional joke-smiths is, "who names the Pullman cars?" Now they will ask, "who names the Cunarders?" says the Montreal Herald. The great steamship line has bought six vessels from the British Government and has re-named them: Vitellia, Vandellia, Varentia, Venusia, Vennonia and Vellania. Of course, being Cunarders, the names must terminate with the vowels ia, but why, oh why, must they all have the same initial letter? They will surely be known as the V boats. As the Aquitania's initial is the first letter of the alphabet, we can only imagine that a list of classic and semi-classic names, unearthed somewhere by a man who would be godfather, has been used and now that V has been exhausted, we may hope that this list has been almost used up. There still remains, however, the fertile letter Z. It is a harrowing thought that the next half-dozen Cunarders to be christened may sail the seven seas with names bearing in letters of gold such names as these: Zalambdodontia and Zantedeschia, Zenyobranchia, Zeuglodontia, Zamalodia and Zanzibaria, Zinnia, of course, would be too simple a name for a Cunarder but even of the Z class. We can imagine the tourist of the future saying, in reply to the usual didn't catch Btiwf vHeHH g127 question, "On what boat did you come over?" "I caught the boat, but I didn't catch the name."

Women In War Work.

An overwhelming majority of the women gainfully employed during the war had been at work before the war. We do not know the exact proportion, for no one in our enlightened Government believes in enlightening the people on subjects like this. But here is a single revealing fact: the female conductors on the Cleveland street railways were recently asked in what former occupations they had been employed. Of the 173 women answering the question, only ten had never worked before and only ten more had been employed at home work. Of these women conductors, 143, or 88.5 per cent., has formerly been employed in either trade or manufacturing. To them the offer of a conductor's job meant merely an extension of employment opportunities and not a change from leisure to labor.—The New Republic.

Hun Dignity (?)

Back from the line during the Argonne battle a lieutenant came, looking groggily for a first-aid station. A piece of shrapnel had torn its way through his helmet and, once inside, had spun around and around without so much as scratching his skin or cutting his hair. But it had given him a bit of a start and he wanted a rest. Yet all along the route, emerging from scores of little hidden dugouts, scared Germans had come and surrendered to him, gathering behind him in a dejected caravan like the children of Hamelin behind Pied Piper. By the time he was back on the crest of Hill 272 they numbered 67, and there a German rushed forward, impressive with the important tidings that deep in the deepest dugout of them all, the lieutenant-colonel commanding the regiment that had defended the hill was waiting for some one to come down and be surrendered to. "Any one who wants to be my prisoner this day has got to come to me." Thus said the weary lieutenant as he limped on his way, and so the lieutenant-colonel stayed hungry in his dugout and was obliged to surrender next morning to two privates passing by on their way for water.

Solid Oil for Fuel.

Oil can be made permanently solid with comparative ease, says the Mexican Review. There are numerous processes — some patented, others supposed to be secret — for accomplishing this result; and the reason they are not employed is that as a rule it is more convenient to have oil in its liquid state. Especially is this so today, when oil is many times more valuable than it was seven or eight years ago, when most of these processes were talked of.

By the heating of the oil and the admixture of a substance well known and very common, as well as cheap, the oil was quickly converted into a substance which when cold took on a solid form. In order that this form should be permanent it was necessary to add, during the latter part of the boiling, a small quantity of another well known and cheap article, known as "binder." If this was properly done, the oil, on cooling, assumed the form of a permanent solid; it could be cut into bricks, blocks or slices, and when burned in a furnace did not melt, but retained its solid form until consumed.

All varieties of crude oil, and most products, could be so treated. Lamp oil that had undergone this process, and had been solidified, could be cut up afterwards into small slices that were exceedingly handy for lighting fires, boiling a kettle, and other operations for which only a limited amount of flame and heat was required. The large block of solid crude oil could be used with advantage as locomotive or other furnace fuel; and a test made on a British express train was entirely satisfactory, the journey being accomplished on this fuel on schedule time with the greatest ease.

Will Airmen Fight.

One imagines picturesque duels to the death between A (the great French or English ace) and X (his German competitor)—the multitude of straining, upturned eyes, the distant rattle of shots, the gleaming spin of the loser. As a matter of fact a duel between two monoplanes, handled by pilots of anything like equal skill, who are aware of each other's presence, is not unlikely to end without bloodshed. Bear in mind that they can shoot only forward, that the gun must be aimed by aiming the whole machine (to which it is fixed immovably) and that a twisting, diving, banking airplane, traveling at 90 or a hundred miles per hour, is no job to hit in its small vitals, and you can see that this must be so.—Charles Nordhoff, in Atlantic.

Cut Ships In Two.

An editorial writer in an American paper thus draws attention to a Canadian engineering achievement—That ships were cut in two in order to get them out of the Great Lakes and into transatlantic service when the war put its tremendous demands on American shipping is commonly known; but the expedient adopted to get the giant Charles R. Van Hise through the Welland Canal has attracted little attention. This vessel was of too wide a beam to pass through the Welland Canal. It was floated through by turning it on to its side.

The Charles R. Van Hise is a 9,000-ton freighter, twice as large as any of the other vessels taken from the Great Lakes. The locks of the Welland Canal are 260 feet long and 44 feet wide. Besides cutting the Van Hise in two, it was necessary to turn her on her side, and then she had only eight inches clearance. The plan for handling large ships on the lakes was devised by F. A. Eustis and carried out by the Shipping Board engineers.

Six pontoon tanks were placed on the forward section of the Van Hise. The tanks, when filled, held about 500 tons of water. The pumps were put to work filling the tanks, when the bow section of the vessel had rolled over perfectly on its side.

The forward section was towed from Buffalo to Port Colborne, the entrance to the Welland Canal. She was then towed into the first lock and the gates were closed, which revealed that the project was a success.

"The Dumbells" Score.

The Third Canadian Division concert party, "The Dumbells," that, like the Second Division troops, "The Fours Too," scored such a hit in London, went to Brussels, the capital of Belgium, during the first week of the year, and gave some performances in the leading theatre there before the King and Queen of the Belgians and full audiences. The proceeds were given in aid of Belgian charities.

The reception the Canadians were given in Brussels was quite the most enthusiastic they have ever had. The audience cheered at every proper opportunity, shouted in chorus "Brave Canada," and sang repeatedly "O Canada."

A few nights previous to these special performances, some members of "the Dumbells" went to the Gaiety Theatre in Brussels to see the vaudeville show there. One of the performers was a conjurer and, as is usual with his kind, he invited members of the audience on the stage to be convinced that he had "nothing in his hands and nothing up his sleeves." A "Dumbell" accepted the invitation and he persuaded some of his confreres to join him. Then the stage manager announced to the audience that the soldiers were Canadians and part of the Third Division concert party. The audience then began to cheer and insisted on our boys giving some entertainment. The result was that the rightful performers gathered in the wings, and the Canadians held the boards until nearly midnight.

BROADENED BY WAR.

The Experiences of the Young Canadian Tommies.

And it is not only the so-called "vocational" education that interests and holds the men of the army. It was reported a couple of months ago not only that the attendance upon the lectures, which deal with philosophical and historical topics, was increasing, but that the quality of lecture demanded by the men was much higher than that which was quite satisfactory in the early days of the war. The soldiers are constantly more earnest in their information about the war, about the country in which they are fighting, about the history and ideals of the Allies, and about the future of our own country. As they become more accustomed to army life and the conditions of the war, they demand a more searching kind of treatment and become more critical. It is quite useless to put before them a lecturer who is merely entertaining or, in the less fortunate sense of the word, merely inspirational.

Bill, in short, is going to bring back from "over there" not only trained hands, but trained mind. He would be a mighty stupid Bill, indeed, if he didn't come back with a more active imagination and a broader vision than when he first appeared before the draft board, even if there had been no special attention paid to his technical and general education while in the army. The opportunity for mental expansion, which the war has brought to some thousands of young Canadians, cannot fail to have a lasting and beneficial effect on their whole future careers. Bill probably would have lived and died in his home town, knowing little and caring less about the people and country beyond the range of his immediate daily concerns. But the Government put Bill on a train and sent him a thousand miles to a cantonment, and Bill began to get new ideas even before he donned a uniform. In camp he mixed with other young fellows from every part of the country, more new ideas and lots of them. After a while he took another long railroad trip, with a few thousand others like him, to the Atlantic seaboard; then he got on a ship and traveled three thousand miles across the ocean landing in a country that he had known only as a blotch on the map, inhabited by people very much like his own folks at home and yet very different in their ways of living and doing things. At last he reached a billet somewhere in rural France. By this time Bill, in his point of view and ideas of the world and his relation to it, was quite a different person from the Bill who left his home in Nova Scotia or Ontario or Manitoba or British Columbia seven or eight months earlier.

White Lady of Bayreuth.

Superstitious people who know the family history are attributing the sad death of Capt. Angus Macklin, from pneumonia, in Washington, to the family curse. The young captain, who was a son-in-law of the Duke of Devonshire, belonged to the house of Moy, which was cursed many years ago by a girl, who prayed that:—

Never the son of a chief of Moy
Might live to protect his father's sake;
Or close in peace his dying eye,
Or gather his gloomy heritage.

To-day the ex-Kaiser lives in dread of the curse of the White Lady of Bayreuth, whose story is being recalled by one or two German papers in view of the fall of the Hohenzollern dynasty. According to historians, the White Lady of Bayreuth is the ghost of a certain German countess who murdered her two children and committed suicide because of her hopeless passion for a royal lover who refused to legitimize their union.

She cursed the Hohenzollerns and threatened to revisit them, bringing ruin and tragedy. Lately, it is said, the dreaded apparition, which has appeared at various intervals, notably before the death of the ex-Kaiser's father and grandfather, has reappeared—a precursor of death and disaster to the German royal family.—Tit-Bits.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomain-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood. Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject. Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

WANTED FREEDOM FOR HIS WIFE

Liberal Movement Started in the Indian Empire.

NEW STATUS FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Valabndas Runcjordas, a Cultured Lady of India, Was So Dearly Loved by Her Husband That He Broke Rules of Caste In Order That She Might Be Given Fuller Life.

THE extraordinary growth of liberal ideas in India is indicated by the story of Mrs. Valabndas Runcjordas. This woman apparently possesses an unusually alert brain, and had received the education that can be secured by a woman of her cast. When she married Mr. Runcjordas, she convinced her husband that the women of India were behind their sisters in other parts of the Empire. They did not enjoy freedom or education or any of the things that make the lives of the women of the Western world happy. It was the social position of his wife that caused Mr. Runcjordas to break the iron social laws of his land. He has defied the ancient traditions of the Indian caste to which he belonged, and he started a movement to reform some of the customs by which the women of the Empire are bound. This movement is now gathering strength, and many highly educated citizens of India are following the lead of the husband of this clever woman. The name of Mrs. Runcjordas may become as closely associated with the advance of Indian women as that of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst has become with that of the political progress of English women. The men who desire to change the social customs of India say that the Empire can hardly hope for the success of the great national movements until the fetters of caste and tradition are broken.

A Chinese Altar.

There is no altar on earth which vie in marble majesty with the altar of heaven—Tien T'ian—in the south of the Chinese city of Pekin, which Emperor Yung-lo of the Ming dynasty reared in A. D. 1420, with its triple balustrades, stairs and platforms of pure white marble carved miraculously, its great circle covering a wide area in the midst of a vast inclosure. There the emperor knelt once a year and worshipped "the only being in the universe he could look up to"—Shang-ti—the emperor of the world above, whose court was in the sky and the spear rays of whose soldiers were the stars.

MOTHER! GIVE CHILD "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF TONGUE IS COATED

IF CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK, BILIOUS, CLEAN LITTLE LIVER AND BOWELS.

Children love this "fruit laxative" and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty its bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, the stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, the breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach ache or diarrhoea. Listen, mother! See if the tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless. Children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHES

Every muscle in the body needs a supply of rich, red blood in proportion to the work it does. The muscles of the back are under a heavy strain and have but little rest. When the blood is thin they lack nourishment and rebel. The result is a sensation of pain in these muscles.

Many people are frightened into believing that backaches are due to kidney trouble, but the best medical authorities agree that backache is very seldom due to kidney trouble. In fact not more than one backache in a hundred has anything to do with the kidneys. The whole trouble is due to thin or impure blood, and those who are troubled with pains in the back or loins, either frequent or occasional should look to the condition of the blood. It will be found in most cases that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood and feeding the starved nerves and muscles will banish the pains and make you feel better in every other way. How much better it is to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for you blood than to give way to unreasonable alarm about your kidneys. If you really suspect your kidneys, any doctor can make tests in ten minutes, that will set your fears at rest or tell you the worst.

All dealers in medicine sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Cold Feet" Saved Canada.

Investigation being made by the United States Senate Committee disclosed the efforts made in 1916 by Bernstorff and Albert on behalf of Germany to gain control of the marine war risk insurance business of the United States, the evidence of these activities being supplied by the Department of Justice and read into the records of Bruce Bielaski, the chief of the Department's Bureau of Investigation. Mr. Bielaski also made a reference to the activties in America of the German organization known as the Kriegesbund, from the ranks of which he said the German authorities had hoped to mobilize an armed force to invade Canada. The invasion scheme failed because of what may be termed "cold feet" on the part of the members of the War Brotherhood, who were expected to invade Canada.

A Valuable Portrait.

A portrait of George Washington by Gilbert Stuart was sold for $21,000 at public auction in New York to a firm of art dealers at the first sale of early American portraits held in the United States. The sale was under the auspices of the American Art Association. The portrait was from the collection of Thomas B. Clarke, which comprises fifty pictures, and brought a total of $78,035. The Washington portrait three years ago was sold for $3,500.

Lemons Whiten and Beautify the Skin! Make Cheap Lotion

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and it is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it. Take one quarter pint of this sweet, fragrant lemon juice and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should quickly help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful for rough, red hands.

Your druggist will sell three ounces of orchard white at little cost, and any grocer will supply the lemons.

Japan's Population.

The shortage in the supply of foodstuffs in Japan has caused the extraordinarily high price of rice and other food, says the Japan Advertiser. It is true that the production of rice has been making more or less increase every year, but the increase has not been at such a rate as to keep pace with the steadily growing population. Moreover, the yield of rice is at the mercies of the elements and in a country like Japan, which is subject to frequent visitations of typhoons at the most critical period for the crop, the precarious nature of the agricultural industry may well be imagined. In this connection, continues the Advertiser, it will be interesting to note the tremendous rate at which Japan's population is increasing. Until a few years ago the rate of increase was a little more than 500,000, but last year's increase is put at close upon 800,000. According to official statistics just published the total number of the Japanese population on Dec. 31, 1917, was returned at 57,993,373 which were distributed into 10,241,251 dwellings at the rate of 5.7 per dwelling. Compared with the census taken at the end of 1916 the population showed an increase of 799,096, and there can be no doubt that Japan should be seriously exercised by the food problem if its population continues to increase at such a rate.

Lemon Tree Bears Oranges.

From the Journal of Heredity we learn of a rather novel case of a lemon tree which proceeded to produce oranges. The tree, supposedly of the ordinary Italian lemon variety, was transplanted to Egypt. When it bore fruit it was noticed that the lemons were more spherical than lemons usually are and bore an orange colored stripe. One branch bore a large fruit which was unmistakably an orange.

SOLDIER ENTERS COMMONS.

Another Canadian In Public Life of Great Britain.

The interesting information comes from England that among the successful candidates in the British election is a brilliant young Canadian soldier, Col. Weldon McLean, who has been returned by three thousand majority for one of the Lincolnshire ridings. Col. McLean is a son of Gen. Hugh McLean, member for the new New Brunswick riding of Royal. This is without doubt the first time in Imperial history that a father and a son have sat in an overseas and Imperial Parliament at the same time.

When Canada was raising its first contingent for South Africa among the recruits collected at St. John was a boyish cadet from the Royal Military College, Kingston, Lieut. McLean. He served through the war with credit, and after finishing his military course launched out on a military career by obtaining a commission in the Imperial army. He served for some time with the artillery in India, and was on hand with the Contemptibles when the war began. He is now a colonel, a D.S.O., an M.C., and bars in addition.

He comes by his military career naturally, as his father all his life has been an enthusiastic military man. He has been actively associated with the militia for thirty years. He served in the Northwest Rebellion and offered his services for South Africa. When the great war broke out he was past the age which he could persuade the authorities to allow him to see overseas service. He gave himself up to the work of recruiting and organization. He was first commander of the 7th Infantry Brigade at Valcartier Camp, and later was appointed commander of the New Brunswick Military District. In 1917 he was promoted to be major-general.

As far as Ottawa is aware there are in all six Canadian-born members of the new Imperial Parliament. Besides Col. McLean there are Rt. Hon. Bonar Law, Dr. MacNamara, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Mr. Donald MacMaster and Col. Grant Morden.

The Labor Problem.

Rev. Lawrence Skey, who recently returned from France, says that the question of the returned soldier was one that would require great delicacy in handling.

The men who were returning could be divided into three classes:

Firstly: The men who had gone overseas and had done their bit, and who are coming home with the idea that they should receive everything from everybody, and were not willing to work for what they received. These men, he said, wanted to run affairs, and thought that because they had been overseas and had done their "bit" they should be given soft jobs, with no work, and big pay. These men were the men that were going to cause trouble at home.

Secondly: Another class were those who went overseas with the spirit of doing their best when they got there, and who would do their best when they got home. These men were and are a credit to their country.

Thirdly: The third class may be spoken of as those who have been partly and totally disabled, and these men should receive justice and more consideration than those of the first two classes. At the present time employers and capitalists do not seem to realise that it is necessary for them to be imbued with a spirit of leniency toward these men whom they have in their employ. A partly disabled man cannot be expected to do as much as a man who has the full use of all his mental faculties and physical strength. Of course, business is a practical undertaking, and employers could not be expected to give a man full wages for half time.

The Government should look after these men: train them and fit them for positions similar to those which they held before they went overseas.

In case that there should be any trouble with the men who belong to the first class there should be a military court appointed to deal with cases of returned soldiers. If this was not done there may be confliction between the civil and military authorities.

Ontario's War Effort.

The record of Ontario in giving almost half of Canada's total in men and money to the war was reviewed with pride by Sir William Hearst in an address to the Engineers' Club a few weeks ago. The premier said that Ontario with thirty-one per cent. of the country's population, had produced forty-three per cent. of the recruits, or 231,191 of the 538,283 total. The total voluntary contributions by Ontario for patriotic purposes, he said, amounted to $51,691,000, while for all Canada the amount was $90,000,000. To the Patriotic Fund Canada had given forty-two millions and Ontario twenty-one millions of that amount. Ontario had contributed five millions to the British Red Cross, and to the Canadian Red Cross three millions in cash and four millions in kind. To the Navy League Ontario gave $1,000,000, and to the Belgians $1,000,000.

The war tax of one mill on assessable property had realised the sum of six millions, but up to the end of the last financial year the Provincial Government expended nine million dollars for war purposes. Ontario had given 250,000 bags of flour to Britain, valued at $7,000,000; food and other supplies to the Belgians, apples to the men in the Royal Navy and the Canadian forces, and 500 Lewis machine guns to the Canadian infantry. To the Patriotic Fund the province gave $1,000,000 in 1917 and $1,200,000 in 1918, plus grants to various municipalities; recruiting grants had been made to many regiments, and there had been gifts to the Navy League and the Maple Leaf Clubs. Christmas boxes costing $170,000 had been sent to Ontario soldiers, and thousands of dollars' worth of athletic goods; there had been grants to tuberculosis sanitaria, grants to stimulate aviation, to the increased production movement and the sufferers in the Halifax disaster. The Orpington Hospital had cost $1,250,000, salaries to civil servants with the forces amounted to $250,000; the production campaigns cost $400,000; the work of the Soldiers' Aid Commission cost $100,000, and miscellaneous items not mentioned above had absorbed $1,000,000.

A Smooth, Hairless Skin for Every Woman

(The Modern Beauty.)

With the aid of a plain delatone paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly hairy growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for delatone be sure to get the genuine article.

"Can You Show Me Something MADE IN PETERBORO?"

Put that question when you're buying whatever you're buying. Then study the Peterboro article—let the Quaker Oats, a Mower, a Broom, Builders' Hardware, Carpets, a Show Case or a Canoe.

There are some 40 or 50 factories here now—more coming. If the Peterboro product and the price is no more, then say: "I'll take the one made in Peterboro."

This is all that is asked by the manufacturers here now.

After you have read this, read it to your family—to your business associates too, and ask them if it isn't a fair, square proposition—fair to you and to Peterboro.

If you like the idea you'll put it into practice. There'll never be a better day than to-day to begin.

Canada's Railroads.

The West, the least settled section of the country, has the greatest railway mileage. Canada notoriously overbuilt herself in that respect in the years before the war. This world-convulsion, among other things, brought virtual bankruptcy to some of her largest railroading projects. This, in time, led to Government acquisition of some of the railroad systems, and will probably compel their direction as a state-owned enterprise hereafter. The plan, briefly appears to be to nationalize all the railroads of the Dominion except the C.P.R., and to use the latter system as a competitive agency to maintain the efficient operation of the C.G.R. (Canadian Government Railways), while the latter in turn would be used as an agency to keep the rates below what might rule if the C.P.R. had undisputed dominance in the railway enterprise, or was faced only with competing lines with which combinations might be made for the maintenance of high freight and passenger tariffs.

It is argued that the tendency of the hour is toward the nationalizing of all railroads. Such is the condition in Germany and in the main in France, with the prospect of all her new war railroads and others being nationalized in the near future. Britain's railroads were taken over for the period of the war, and their return to private ownership is likely to be strongly resisted, especially by the Labor and Socialist elements. The United States, too, has had Government control for the past twelve months, and has just been invited by President Wilson, in his latest message to Congress, to give this problem further study, so that if Canada decides upon this step she will not be without example.—American Review of Reviews.

MILLBURNS' LAXA-LIVER PILLS.

Act as a stimulant to the sluggish liver, clean the furred tongue, sweeten the foul, obnoxious breath, and clear away all the poisonous accumulations from the system by causing the bowels to move regularly and naturally every day, thus preventing as well as curing constipation, sick headaches, bilious headaches, water brash, heartburn, and all diseases arising from a lazy, slow or torpid liver.

They are purely vegetable, small and easy to take, and there is nothing of the griping, weakening and sickening effects of the old-fashioned purgatives.

Mrs. John Kadey, Chipman, N.B., writes: "I have been using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for some time and can recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried other remedies, but they only relieved me for a short time. I always recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to all sufferers, as I think they are a valuable remedy."

When you go to your dealer and ask for Laxa-Liver Pills, see that you get the genuine "Milburn's." Price 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Wedding Knives

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

They were very beautiful—those delicate trifles of the ancient wedding toilet of the seventeenth century bride—the wedding knives of Mistress Anne Hogarth.

Margery Byers took them reverently from their faded green brocade sheaths and ran her fingers over the elaborately chased blades, and the quaint pearl and ivory handles, handed them to Stephen Palmer. The young physician turned them over curiously.

"So these pretty trinkets were necessary for the bridal toilet away back in the days of your grandmother ancestress, Margie?" he remarked. "I don't remember of ever reading of them."

Margery's brown eyes sparkled with interest and admiration.

"Why, don't you remember Shakespeare?" she cried. "Juliet wore them at her girdle when she was in the Friar's cell, and she had them on when she was about to take the sleeping potion."

"What did they symbolize?" asked Palmer.

"They had something to do with severing the knot of love, I believe," answered Margery vaguely, "anyway, whatever they meant, they were beautiful things to wear."

"And you, Margie, I suppose you'll wear them when you're married," Palmer hesitated a little over his work.

When a girl has a well-defined, relative implanted idea of engaging herself when she goes to the seashore summer resort to a rich man she doesn't care for, but who is going to ask her to marry him—to see unexpected love in the eyes of the man she'd like to marry, even though disapproved of by the relatives, is disconcerting. Margery turned away and replaced the trinkets in their places before she answered a bit tremulously:

"My—my wedding day is a long time off, most likely, Stephen. I'm not quite twenty, you know."

"I—listen, Margie," Stephen tried to keep his voice steady, "I want to tell you something."

"Hurry, Margie," an impatient voice called from the next room. "Are you forgetting we have an engagement this evening?"

"I'm coming, Mother," the girl answered. "Come down to the station tomorrow, Steve," she said in hasty goodby, "early. I'll go down a half hour before mother does, and we—we can talk before the train leaves."

But a man in a factory got himself cut up badly the next day an hour before Margery's train was to leave, and Palmer was called to hold life in him. There was not even time for telephoning Margery, and the letter of explanation he sent her was returned to him unopened.

When three weeks later Margery's engagement to Elmer Troxell was announced Stephen worked so many extra hours at the hospital that the head surgeon protested.

In September the Byers family returned, and Palmer could not escape the accounts of the wedding that was to be one of the city's social events. A few days before the wedding, unable to deny himself the uncertain unhappiness of trying to catch a glimpse of the bride-to-be, he found himself passing the Byers house. As he went by, driving at a snail's pace, he heard frightened screams from within. He leaped from his car, as he ran up the walk a terrified maid thrust open the door.

"Oh, Doctor Palmer!" she cried, recognizing him, "come to, quick!"

Another one of the maids had fallen, carrying a tray of glasses, and had cut her wrist. She was shrieking in fear and clinging to Margery, who, with a pencil and a handkerchief was twisting a tourniquet about the wounded arm, while the blood spattered her lovely white dress.

"Come away, Margery," frowned a heavy browed man in a white serge costume, standing at a safe distance from the maid, as Palmer came forward, "and let the man attend to her. It's his business—besides you're getting your frock spoiled, and we were ready for our drive."

[illegible] hand. "Go away, Elmer!"—Palmer detected a note of dislike in her tone—"you are in Doctor Palmer's way. Never mind the drive. I shall stay with Sophie."

As Troxell sulkily left the room his foot touched something lying on the rug something that tinkled, as with a murmur of disgust, he shoved it aside.

The next morning when Palmer returned to the house to attend the injured maid he found her crying.

"I'm not scared for myself, it's Miss Margie I'm worried about," she told him. "He—that man ain't fit for her nor anybody else. Miss Margie told him yesterday she was going to wear her great grandmother's wedding knives (maybe she's showed them to you) at her wedding, and he got awfully mad—asked her how she would look, standing up there in her bridal robes, before all his friends with 'those absurd things dangling at her belt, like a housekeeper's keys!' And he threw them on the floor, and when I came in with the tray I stumbled over them and fell and cut my arm."

Palmer paled as he listened, and though he made no comment he had to set his teeth to keep the words that came in his mind.

Two days later Palmer read the following paragraph in the evening paper:

"Troxell Neglects to Get License," ran the headline. "After being supposedly joined in matrimony at the most elaborate society wedding of the year at noon today, with both Rev. Robert Clinton and Bishop Phelps officiating, Miss Margery Byers and Elmer Troxell were informed by County Clerk Veal in the most matter-of-fact way that they were not married at all. They had been married without a license."

The paper further stated that the guests had left Miss Byers' residence after the reception, when the vital omission was discovered. A messenger was hastened to find Bishop Phelps, and the good prelate was begged to come to the house in an emergency situation. He did so, and when he reached the residence he was told the nerves of the bride were so shaken that the second ceremony would have to be deferred until the next morning.

For eight hours Stephen had thought her Troxell's wife, and she was not married! An errand boy touched his elbow.

"You're wanted at the telephone, doctor."

"Is that Dr. Stephen Palmer?" the voice was trembling. "This is Margie Byers. Oh, Steve, come to the house right away. Come quick: I—I want you!"

Palmer stumbled out to the street and hailed a cab. The maid, Sophie, her arm in a sling, let him in.

"Miss Margie wants to see you alone," she told him, and led him to a little upstairs room at the back of the house. As the door closed behind him something in a white dress flew to him.

"Oh, Steve, I want you to save me!" Margery gasped. "They put it in the paper that I was so shaken the second ceremony would have to be deferred, but I've told father and mother I'm not going to marry him at all."

"Not marry him!" he echoed.

"No! Father, mother, everybody, thought it would be so fine for me, I agreed to marry him. I never loved him, but that day he quarreled with me over wearing great-grandmother's wedding knives at my wedding (the day Sophie cut her arm) I knew I hated him. But I thought it was too late then. They talked to me until I was nearly crazy this afternoon when I told them my eyes were opened and I was thankful the license was forgotten. They said it would be a scandal to the family if I didn't marry him now, and they've set the hour for eight in the morning."

"Margie," the young man's lips were white, "did you send back my letter that I wrote to explain why I didn't come to the train the day you went to Bay Harbor?"

"I never received any letter," she faltered. "I looked and looked for it; then I thought you didn't care. Mother—"

"But I did care—I do care—so much I don't dare advise you. I wanted to tell you that day—I wanted to tell you—"

She looked up at him and her wet eyes began to shine. "Tell me now, Stevie!" she cried softly. "Oh, Steve, it wouldn't be any scandal for you to let me run away with you and marry you tonight, would it?"

At seven o'clock the next morning the justice of the peace, just over the state line, stood before a tall young professional man holding the hand of a pretty girl clad in a gray traveling suit of French design, and wearing at her belt her great-grandmother's knives, and pronounced a ceremony that was binding and fast.

Are You a Bolshevik?

Bolshevism is based upon violence, relies upon force, is deaf to right or reason.

To force the bowels to move by taking castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., is to outrage Nature and "bolshevik" the body. Because drugs act by producing irritation.

Castor oil, for instance, is so obnoxious that the bowels make frantic effort to get rid of it. Other medicines, from senna to salts, provoke action by causing the bowels to try desperately to expel them first.

With such remedies therefore the removal of bowel waste is secondary and wholly incidental. Hence, the result is not to cure constipation, but on the contrary, to make it worse, more obstinate, harder to overcome.

On the other hand, Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug, acts mechanically, not medicinally; persuades Nature instead of forcing her.

Nujol supplies necessary moisture to soften intestinal contents and facilitate easy, thorough evacuation at regular intervals. Nujol makes easier and more effective the action of intestinal muscles. Nujol absorbs poisonous material.

Nujol is free from any deleterious after effects, forms no bad habits, can be used at any age, under any conditions, and overcomes constipation because it works hand in hand with Nature—in her laws, not against them.

Self-poisoning due to constipation causes [illegible]% of human illness. Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today and send coupon for free booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger."

Warning. Nujol is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. Insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

A German captain of engineers relates how he once sent a green corporal and three men back to the Russian lines with instructions to put a railroad station completely out of commission so that it could by no means be of use to the enemy.

The corporal rejoined the command in a surprisingly short time considering the nature of the task. The captain asked if he had carried out his instructions.

"Ja wohl, Herr Hauptmann," said the corporal, "the Russians will never be able to use that station again. You see," pointing to a large sack on his back, "I have carried away all the tickets."—London Opinion.

A Cafe Placard in Egypt.

A soldier who has spent many months on service in Egypt says that one of the strangest things he remembers was a placard in a cafe chantant in an Egyptian town. It read:

"Every of the consummation of the coldness, 1 piastre besides. Every of the claim to be address directly in the direction. During of the repetitions the price of consummations to be the same that in every the other's coffee."

The translation is:

"All iced drinks, 1 piastre extra. All complaints to be made at the office. Notwithstanding the performance the prices will be the same as those of other cafes."—Liverpool Post.

Job for Santa Claus.

In Evansville there are still a few cavaliers too old to be taken by the draft. The other evening one called on a woman who, it might be added in an undertone, also was beyond draft age.

During the evening her small niece dragged in a dilapidated doll. "I'm going to have Santa Claus bring her a new dress for Christmas so she'll look better," she informed auntie and the cavalier.

The cavalier tried to be facetious. "You'd better have him bring her a new face," he suggested.

The woman laughted and tried a fling at wit herself. "I wish he'd bring me a new face, too," she giggled.

Before the visitor could make a rejoinder the wee niece took up the conversation. "Then you wouldn't have to paint your old one over any more, auntie," she calmly finished.—Indianapolis News.

Experience.

"It's a good thing to depose a general if he makes a bad mistake," said Representative Britton, apropos of the new French law for trying the high command.

"You might say that a general learns by experience, that he profits by his errors. But the French people evidently hold that the man who only learns by experience never learns at all.

"'Experience,' they doubtless say, 'is a brush which is given to us after we have lost our hair.'

"Or again they say:

"'Oh, yes, experience is all right, but it doesn't seem to help us much. What's the good of knowing what the weather was like last night before last?'"

United States Exports.

The United States exported 14.6 per cent of its wheat crop in the five years preceding the war, 1.7 per cent of the corn, 38.3 per cent of the tobacco, and 69.1 per cent of the cotton. In the three years before the war this country exported 1.1 per cent of its oats crop, 4.4 per cent of the barley, 2.8 per cent of the rye, and 0.5 per cent of the potatoes.

Variety Is the Spice of Life.

It was his first day as a boot, and he was having a tough job executing orders. The sergeant, considerably exasperated, yelled:

"Say, what did you do on the outside?"

"I was a bookkeeper, sir."

"I thought so," the sergeant commented.

The next morning, after a series of fizzles, the company's commander again picked him out.

"Say, you, what did you do on the outside?"

"I was an electrician, sir," was the response.

"Er?" the sergeant said. "I thought you told me yesterday you were a bookkeeper."

"I was, sir," replied the unabashed boot, "But I got another job."

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

WHERE WILL THE REVENUE COME FROM?

To meet the regular expenses of administration, to pay war service gratuities to demobilized soldiers, to provide pensions for disabled soldiers and for the dependents of those who have lost their lives, as well as to carry out the program of public works which is being undertaken to relieve unemployment, it is estimated that the Dominion Government will require to raise this year a revenue of about

400 MILLION DOLLARS

Last year the Dominion Government revenue was 260 million dollars and was derived from the following sources:

Canadian Customs Tariff . .	116 millions
Special War Tariff	45 millions
Excise Tax	26 millions
Business Profits Tax . . .	21 millions
Income Tax and other Sources .	52 millions
Total	260 millions

How is the shortage of 140 millions to be made up?

At the very moment when Canada is struggling with this problem the Western Grain Growers come forward with insistent demands for:

(1) "An immediate and substantial all-round reduction of the customs tariff."
(2) Free trade with Great Britain inside of five years.
(3) Reciprocity now, and free trade later, with the United States.

These demands are apparently made in the hope and belief that, if they are granted, those making them will be relieved of a large part of what they call the "Burden of Taxation" which the tariff imposes upon them. That expectation can only be realized if the revenue raised by means of the tariff is substantially reduced. They may argue that under a lower tariff the volume of goods imported will increase, and consequently there will be no decrease in the revenue. But mark this—they want the duty removed entirely from implements, lumber, cement, oil and other articles of which they are large consumers. If the revenue is to be maintained under such a rearrangement of the tariff schedules, other classes of the people must pay what the Grain Growers will escape.

Passing to the next point, how would the Grain Growers provide for the probable shortage of 140 million dollars this year? They ask the Dominion Government to impose the following taxes:—A direct tax on unimproved lands, increased taxation on personal incomes, increased inheritance taxes and increased taxation on corporations.

Vacant land now pays taxes to the Municipalities and, in some Provinces, additional taxes to the Provincial Government. Income taxes are now paid by individuals to the Municipalities and also to the Dominion Government. Inheritance taxes are now imposed by all the Provinces, ranging in Ontario, for example, from one to twenty per cent. Corporations are now taxed as persons by Municipal Governments, Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government, and also pay special taxes to every Province for the privilege of being corporations.

Last year the tariff collected sixty-one per cent. of the total Dominion Government Revenue. Does anyone believe that the forms of taxation advocated by the Grain Growers can be increased sufficiently this year to obtain the revenue which would be lost by tariff reduction, and also the additional 140 million dollars required, without crippling industry, stifling business and throwing thousands of workers out of employment?

The United States has all the forms of taxation advocated by the Grain Growers, but still finds it necessary to maintain its customs tariff.

If the Grain Growers are to escape almost all taxation, including the great increase caused by the war, what will happen to the people who will be driven out of business through having to pay not only their own taxes but also those of the Grain Growers? Will they try to grow grain? It is more likely that they will go to the United States to get work, as other Canadians went fifty years ago, and leave a population, chiefly farmers, ever growing smaller, to bear all the taxes, ever growing greater.

Again we ask where is the extra revenue coming from?

HERO WAS CALLED MAN OF MYSTERY

Britishers Much Interested in Capt. Campbell.

FOUGHT THE SUBMARINES

Young Naval Commander Receives the Highest Decoration for Valor That the Nation Can Bestow But Not Until After the End of War Could Fact Be Told.

A GOOD deal of interest was taken in the announcement shortly before the end of the war that Capt. Gordon Campbell of the British navy had been awarded the Victoria Cross, but that no details of the reason for the award were being given out. This handsome and stern looking young man immediately became known as a "Man of Mystery." Many surmises were made regarding the deed for which the coveted honor was received. Everybody felt sure that it had something to do with the submarine warfare. Englishmen recalled that Capt. Campbell had already received his D.S.O., and that it was also a "hush" award. Now it has become known that the conspicuous bravery for which Capt. Campbell won his decorations had to do with the work of the decoy ships. The British naval authorities worked out a scheme whereby many German submarines were lured to their doom by decoy ships. It needed a very brave man to undertake this work, which was filled with peril, and Capt. Campbell accepted the command of "Q50." Now that the war is over, the history of the work done by these men is being written. One of the things that helped to break completely the morale of the German navy was the way in which hundreds of submarines were sent out on murder cruises and never returned. Their friends at home did not hear what had become of the murderers. They just disappeared, for the ocean had swallowed them up in its eternal mystery. The British authorities gave no details about the manner in which Capt. Campbell won his decorations because they did not want the Germans to know about the decoy vessels, and also they desired to fill the Teutonic seamen with shuddering horror.

CAPT. GORDON CAMPBELL.

Oddities of Tank Warfare.

During the last days of the great war the Germans endeavored in numerous ways to hamper the tank fleets of the Allied forces.

Among the devices of the Germans to halt the advance of tank fleets, says the Scientific American, were nests of pits in front of their positions. These pits of several feet in depth were covered over with a light wooden framework and camouflaged canvas so as to lead a tank pilot to believe that solid ground was ahead of him. Again, the Germans dug deep and wide trenches in front of their lines so as to prevent tanks from passing. Still another device was the use of heavy cement pillars, spaced so as to permit passage to the German infantrymen but barring the way to even the smallest tanks.

Despite all such devices and concentrated anti-tank artillery and rifles, the Germans could not stay the advance of the tanks. For one thing, the Allies varied their form of attack, switching from the heavy artillery bombardment and infantry attack to the short crash bombardment and surprise infantry and tank attacks, so that the Germans often made their anti-tank preparations uselessly.

"I want some intelligent men as hospital orderlies," announced Lieut. Worley. "Any pharmacists in the company?" A flaxen-haired individual shuffled forward. "Ye gods," said the lieutenant, "are you a pharmacist?" "Shure ay bane pharmersis," was the indignant reply. "Vy ay bane work on pharm all mae life."

An Unfamiliar Fish.

The Canada Food Board is endeavoring to work up public appreciation of a little Pacific Coast fish, somewhat resembling a smelt, which is advertised as the "Eulachon—a new fish from the Pacific." The eulachon is no new fish on the coast, but an annual visitant for centuries, its short "run" marking the Indians' busiest season, as the oil is the foundation of their lighting systems.

Who Was to Blame?

It was a case of collision between automobiles, and the young lady witness was undeniably beautiful. "Have you any idea what caused the accident?" asked counsel. "I think so." "State what in your opinion caused the collision." "Must I tell the truth?" "You have sworn to do so." "Well, I was standing on the corner. This gentleman turned to look at something and ran into the other machine." "What did he turn to look at?" "Must I answer?" "You must." "If I must," said the pretty witness with a vivid blush, "he turned to look at me."

Society Notes.

When the society reporter writes up a wedding she devotes practically all of the space at her disposal to the bride. The men are beginning to demand reform in society reporting. The men claim that the manner in which the condemned man passed his last night, what he ate for breakfast and his demeanor on the way to the scaffold are human-interest features which should not be overlooked.

A Fish Story.

The average annual catch of menhaden for the last eight years was about 500,000,000 fish, which, with the refuse collected in canneries, produced about 60,000 tons of scrap and 85,000 barrels of oil. The largest recorded catch was in 1903, when about 1,000,000,000 fish were caught.

Finding Honey.

Quantities of honey are found in the African forests by the natives in hollow trees. The honey is generally at the summit of the tree, and the men knock down the tree, and smoke the bees out of their lodging with burning grass. The honey is then quickly collected and taken to camp.

Low-Heeled Shoes.

A standard low-heeled boot now is worn by women in the English shipyards, introduced by the managements because of the many sprained ankles that resulted from the clumsy, high-heeled shoes that were first worn by the workers.

The First Elevator.

The earliest mention of a device in any way resembling the modern elevator or lift may be read in Vitruvius, who describes a hoisting machine which was invented by Archimedes. This elevator of the second century B.C. was worked by ropes which were coiled upon a winding drum by a capstan and levers. The same writer refers to another similar machine which was made to rotate by a man who walked inside the capstan. Such a primitive elevator is still in use to lift passengers and luggage from the first to the second story of a convent on Mt. Sinai.

War Chemicals.

War needs greatly increased the demand for many chemicals in this country, but of all the so-called heavy chemicals, caustic soda has, perhaps, been the most in demand. Indeed, so pressing has been the need for this particular commodity in the war industries that its manufacture on this continent more than doubled since 1914, and even so it has been necessary to place a virtual embargo on its export.

MAKES FRANK CONFESSION

Harden Calls the Ex-Kaiser a Coward—Confidence in the League of Nations.

NEW GOVERNMENT.

The frankest and most comprehensive discussion of Germany and German conditions yet received in this country is contained in the following interview with a man best qualified to speak on that subject—Maximilian Harden. His paper, "Zukunft," was the publication in Germany which had the courage to criticize the Junker government consistently and to withhold and support appeals made by President Wilson to the German people over heads of German government.

By Frank H. Taylor.

(Copyright 1919, by the United Press.)

BERLIN, March 18.—(By Courier to Paris.)—Maximilian Harden, editor of the "Zukunft," and Germany's most outspoken citizen, told the United Press to-day that:

The present government should be, and will be, overthrown. The German people are crazy.

The Kaiser, if he were not a coward, could return to Germany and regain the throne.

Success of the League of Nations and the world peace depend upon close and friendly relations between Germany, Great Britain and America.

FOUGHT AUTOCRACY DURING THE WAR

Harden, who has just recovered from several weeks' illness, discussed conditions in Germany freely and frankly. He is now in bad repute with all classes with the old regime because he continually fought them during the war, and with revolutionaries because Germany has not benefitted so far by following President Wilson as he advocated.

"I am flooded with letters from people, asking me why I told them to follow Wilson and why Germany is still starved by the blockade," said Harden. "I don't understand the latter, but my faith in Wilson is undiminished. I realized the tremendous opposition and difficulties he has to surmount. I am confident he will prevail. But it is hard to satisfy people who are hungry, or others who are using the situation against Wilson and the Liberals.

GOVERNMENT LIKE THE OLD REGIME

"Germany's new Republican government isn't anything to be proud of. It is entirely too much like the old regime, but for the time being it ought to be recognized and dealt with liberally by the Entente to prevent Germany from falling into the hands of the Bolshevists.

"The present government thinks it must build bridges from the old to the new regime, instead of making the transition clean cut. The government can be compared to General Ludendorff's position last July when the Germans were at the height of their victory. I pointed out then that defeat was inevitable, but they couldn't see it. So it is the same with the present government. It is at the height of its powers, but it refuses to recognize the great movement towards radicalism or liberalism. It refuses to cleanse itself or see what is coming.

GOVERNMENT MUST BE OVERTHROWN

"The government must be overthrown in favour of one that is honest, above board and trustworthy. It is pathetic that no one was elected to the National Assembly who possesses both ability and the confidence of the people. There are brains in Germany, if they are only given a chance. The election of Ebert, the sadler, for first President, was a sad mistake. Why should Germany have to make such a mediocre start as a republic. He is undoubtedly honest, but so ordinary. I am told that he wears a flashy pearl stickpin and is becoming a professional politician. Nor is Scheidemann a man who is able to get a good peace. Politics prevail when common sense should. The government doesn't realize the difficulties of the peace problem or Germany's position."

DISGUSTED WITH METHODS EMPLOYED

Harden is heartily disgusted with the methods of the German foreign office as then practising since the armistice was signed. He condemns the foreign office officials as strongly as he condemned war and Germany's war policies. He wants to see Germany deal squarely with the Entente, sending deputies to Paris who can be trusted to make a clean breast of Germany's guilt and establish a basis upon which Germany can begin anew. Harden's friends urged the foreign office to send him to the peace conference.

READY ON SATURDAY

League of Nations Covenant to Be Included in Preliminary Peace Treaty With Germany.

SPEEDING UP WORK

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, March 18.— The League of Nations covenant, as it is to be submitted by the inclusion in the preliminary peace treaty with Germany, will be ready Saturday, it was indicated in certain official circles to-day.

At the same time it was stated that the entire treaty, including the covenant, will be completed by a week from Saturday.

In view of the varying reports as to whether the covenant would be a part of the preliminary treaty, it was pointed out that its inclusion is further indicated by the speed with which the constitution is being perfected. Some reports have dwelt especially on the allegation that an attempt to incorporate the League in the pact will slow up the general peace work. This argument is met by the statement that the covenant is now further advanced than any other feature of the treaty. The Committee on Responsibility for the War has reached a stage of combining reports of its various sub-committees into a single recommendation, but other committees are not nearly so far advanced.

Will Remain in Paris.

Neutral representatives are now calling on Col. House daily to present their views of the league. Sweden, Switzerland, Denmark and Holland already have been heard from. Added to the prospects for the early completion of the peace programme is the fact that Premier Lloyd George has practically decided not to return to England this week as he had planned. He and President Wilson, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Orlando will hold frequent conferences during the week, in addition to regular meetings of the Supreme War Council.

The President is discussing the League with Lord Cecil and other experts. Senator Bourgeoise, the French expert, has conferred with House and others and is known to have made no suggestion that the covenant not be included in the preliminary treaty. Some discussion has arisen in favour of making preliminary peace cover Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey, so as to make Germany responsible for her allies. This is regarded as unlikely, however, as it would require a month to change the treaty in this respect, whereas the demand everywhere is for making peace with Germany as soon as possible, taking up the treaties later.

East and West Wards Flooded When Creeks, Swollen by Freshets, Overflowed

Big Jam of Ice at G.T.R. Bridge on Bethune Street Dammed the Water, Which Found Its Own Course Through The Hamilton Company's Yards and Shops and Spilled into McDonnel Street—Downie Street Creek Caused Trouble in Northwest End, and Ashburnham Also Suffered.

WAVE HAD PASSED EARLY THIS MORNING

Peterboro's three creeks went on their annual rampage last night, causing considerable damage and loss to property and serious inconvenience to residents in the northwest end of the city and in Ashburnham. Steady and heavy rains since Saturday sought their lowest levels in the creek that flows from Jackson's Park, the Downie street Creek, and Ashburnham's waterway, which in summer dries up to a mere trickle. The muddy water carried its own debris of huge blocks of ice, fence rails and tree stumps, which in the main creek in the west end piled up against the piers of several bridges, damming the current and diverting to the handiest course it could find.

A BIG JAM AT G.T.R. BRIDGE.

The worst jam of ice occurred at the G.T.R. bridge just west of Bethune street, about 11 o'clock last night. The summer proportions of this creek were unrecognizable in the torrent that swept down through Jackson Park from the reaches of Smith and Emily townships, and poured under the bridges at Park, Reid and Bethune streets. Great cakes of ice pounded against the pillars of the latter bridge, were held there, and presently had built up a solid retaining wall of tangled tree stumps, planks and a mass of ice that was actually several feet higher than the bridge.

THROUGH THE HAMILTON SHOPS.

The water backed up to Reid street picking an easy channel through the machine shops of the William Hamilton Factory, which received its annual inundation. Deprived of the natural outlet, the stream spilled into McDonnel street, and through the gardens of the houses on the south side in that locality. Cellars filled in a twinkling, and the brown, muddy water continued its turbulent way at its own sweet will, tumbling back into the creek at the junction of Bethune and Murray streets. For a time last night the water was racing down the G.T.R. tracks at a speed that might have defied the G.T.R. fliers.

THE DOWNIE STREET CREEK'S FIT.

Just across McDonnel street the Downie street creek was performing with all the hilarity and freedom that used to move ex-Ald. Johnston to all kinds of threats of curbing it. At three o'clock this morning when the heavy rain clouds first broke and trailed off in a patchwork of fleece, from which the moon sailed out into a turquoise sky, this creek had Donegal Street all to itself. The surplus water reached from sidewalk to sidewalk, splashed against the corner house as it turned into McDonnel street on its merry way.

BROKE UP THE JAM WITH DYNAMITE.

The neighborhood was asleep, perhaps accustomed to these annual freshets, while the water gurgled into cellars, sluiced through sheds and tarried in eddies on the lawns. In the meantime City Engineer Parsons, Street Commissioner Evans and five or six men spent the night from eleven o'clock, laboring at the ice jam against the Bethune street bridge. Mr. Ed. Tighe was the official dynamitard, and the blasting sounded at regular intervals as the wall of floatsam was broken up.

Mr. Evans narrowly escaped falling into the swollen stream when a chunk of ice suddenly slipped away beneath him. Another incident was the disappearance of three or four sticks of dynamite which had been left in a box at a safe distance up the track. When the water poured around from the track, and issued along the railway, the box was carried off.

FLOOD SUBSIDED THIS MORNING.

Mr. Parsons stated that the worst of the flood seemed to have passed. Bethune street was relieved this morning, and the Downie street creek was subsiding. Ashburnham flood fell several feet this morning and from all accounts the spring flood is satisfied with the flurry it created.

Mr. Parsons stated that the De Laval factory was threatened yesterday at noon by the mass of water that had been gathering in its stamping grounds west of the city, but the drain on Park street south was cleared of snow and ice, and the water moved off steadily last night and this morning.

THE PIGS WERE FLOATING.

After the ice could no longer hold back the water at Victoria Avenue, it swept down the creek and Downie Street with overwhelming force. Mr. A. Deal, a carter at 629 Downie Street, was sitting in the dining-room when he heard the water going into the cellar. He stepped off the steps of the verandah into water which made rubber boots useless. Somewhere astern he saw the barn with the watermark over four feet from the ground. Before he reached the barn the water was higher than his waist. He reached the horse, which was standing in water up to its breast, and after pulling it to a place of safety, went back for the heifer cow, which had a hard time keeping its head above water. Its body was completely below the surface. Two trips were made after two fine 100-pound porkers, which were floating.

CHICKENS ON ROOF.

The feathered colony had left the roost and were at midnight curling up on the roof of the henhouse.

Mr. Deal brought a bag of oat chop home last night, but it left this morning via the creek. Two rabbits belonging to the children were drowned, but the chickens have returned to their roosts.

CELLAR FULL OF WATER.

Mr. Deal's cellar is completely full of water. Now and then a stream will ooze through the kitchen floor from below, although everything is quiet below. Last night it sounded like a boxing match below with the fruit jars sparring with a ton of coal.

STILL FLOODED.

The water has not left Mr. Deal's premises, but still stands over a foot deep in the yard. The barn can only be reached by a series of suspension bridges, made from boards, with waggon and boxes as pillars.

IN DOOR, OUT WINDOW.

The new house that is being constructed by Mr. Fred. Sherwood on Edinburgh Street received its baptism last night. The water flowed in a stream in the back down and dropped like Niagara Falls out the windows. It was beautiful.

THE CITY'S CEMENT BASIN.

The cement runway built by the city to confine the creek just north of Dublin Street was completely full, and the water flowed through the culvert on the opposite side of the road into the cellar window of Mr. Thomas Williams, 349 Dublin Street.

COULDN'T REACH HENHOUSE.

Mr. John Heffernan, Donegal Street, tried several times to reach the henhouse, but it was too much, and he was forced to turn back each time. The chickens were safe, however, cackling contentedly on the roof.

NINE HENS DROWNED.

"They were laying every day, and I am not going to work for nothing. My husband and son worked from 8.30 to 12 to keep the water out, and they're not going to work for nothing," said Mrs. Joseph Ronco, 644 Donegal Street, all out in one breath. The water swirled around the house, and after isolating the verandah and filling the cellars, little streams were seen to steal along the kitchen floor. It was very exciting for Mrs. Ronco.

KINDLING WOOD LEAVES.

Somebody had worked hard the day before splitting two cords of wood for Mrs. Ronco, but the creek left only a bare quarter of a cord.

"Gone," said Mrs. Ronco, pointing to the south. The hens were in the stable at the time, but now the building is empty and the barn stands high and dry, showing all of its foundation timbers like a stranded ship. The water played hookey with Mrs. Ronco's fruit, but did not leave itself. There are still several quarts left—not fruit, but water.

GROUND COVERED WITH SILT.

HIS EMOTIONS LET LOOSE.

Mrs. Ronco's neighbour, a Frenchman, who has just moved into a two-roomed house, began to cry when the water started trickling in the windows. Soon it became a stream, and as Mr. Frenchman had no upstairs in his residence, he had to look for something that would float.

HIDE AND GO SEEK IN BEDROOM.

But the Frenchman's neighbour, Mrs. Antonio Junerine, 378 McDonnel Street, was in a far worse plight. The water flowed in the back door, and after running around the kitchen and in the pantry, it left by the front door, not forgetting to visit the bedrooms downstairs. The Junerine family

HIDING PLACE IS KNOWN TO POLICE

Authorities Have Been Ordered Not to Arrest De Valera.

(Special to The Examiner.)

DUBLIN, March 18.—The hiding place of Professor Edward De Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, who escaped from Lincoln prison, is known to the police and Irish constabulary, it was announced to-day. The authorities, however, have been ordered not to arrest him or the two Sinn Feiners who escaped from prison at the same time.

East and West Are Divided

Mrs. R. F. McWilliams Addresses Women's University Club.

TORONTO, March 18.— Canadian women are divided horizontally and vertically, said Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, President of the Local Council of Women of Winnipeg, and formerly of Peterboro, addressing a meeting of the Women's University Club in Argyll House on the subject, "Canadian Women, East and West." As to the horizontal division, she pointed out that labor women were tending to organize with their men and against the other women, whom they looked upon as non-workers, leisured women and parasites. This is very serious. It ought to have been possible to avoid it.

We could, Mrs. McWilliams said, have held women together for social progress—not politically. It is possible to evolve a woman's platform into which we can all throw ourselves, no matter to which political party we give our allegiance.

Vertically, the speaker went on, the division is between the women of the East and the women of the West, and a woman of Eastern birth and education with eight years of Western experience, she told of the attitude of tolerance and sometimes of impatience, which the West believes the East to hold upward it.

"There are things you do" Mrs. McWilliams went on, "that foster that idea. You have a way of meeting in Toronto or Montreal or Ottawa and forming a National Committee. You start some sort of uplift work and write West to have a committee formed there to do some thing that was accomplished there long ago and forgotten. You put the head office of everything in the East. You put Western members on the executive, but they get the notices after the meetings are over, and that's all the good it does them."

Cheap Power For Lakefield

Deputation Waited on the Hydro-Commission This Morning.

The following telegram was received to-day from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.:

TORONTO, March 18. — Notwithstanding the request of the Reeve of Lakefield for further postponement, the Lakefield council accepted Mr. J. H. Burnham's invitation and joined him, in the appointment to meet the Hydro-Elec. Commission this morning. The interview was most satisfactory. The Chief Engineer said that the prompt application from Lakefield for power would mean cheap power for Lakefield, instead of dear. The village council will be called in special session Wednesday morning, and the formal resolution passed and forwarded to the Hydro-Electric Commission to expropriate immediately. The deputation will be joined by Mr. C. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., this afternoon, in an interview with Sir Adam Beck regarding radials.

THOSE PRESENT.

The following Lakefield representatives were present at the conference in Toronto this morning: Councillors J. A. Porter and Dr. J. C. Smith, also Mr. Wesley Sherin, the village clerk, and Mr. W. J. Cherlton, one of the largest individual power users in Lakefield.

The old Lakefield dam, which the Lakefield interests want the Hydro Commission to expropriate, is at present under lease to the Dickson Company. It is situated in the village, and is said to constitute a menace in its present alleged defective condition.

SLEEPING SICKNESS

More Than One Hundred Cases Listed in Seventeen Cities—A New Malady.

FEW DEATHS

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, March 18. — Cases of sleeping sickness, the new malady which is believed to be an aftermath of the influenza, are scattered widely over the country, but not in any alarming numbers, according to figures gathered to-day by the United Press. Twenty one deaths have occurred. More than 100 actual cases have been listed in 17 cities, but others are believed to be as yet unreported.

Springfield and Cleveland each reported 25 cases; New York has 40; Chicago's exact number is unknown, the health authorities not making it public. Other points show a "trace" of the malady, such as Richmond, Va., San Francisco, Fort Worth, Calumet, Mich., Minneapolis, Des Moines, Los Angeles, Lancaster, Ohio, Boston, Harrisburg, Albany and Pittsburg.

In this disease the sufferer lapses into a state of coma. In many instances the recovery is complete. Some have been known to sleep for from eight to ten days, and then "come to life" in good health.

A number of communities are considering taking precautions similar to those taken against the spread of the influenza.

Troops On the Olympic

Third Division Troops Are Among the Units.

(Special to The Examiner.)

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., March 18.—The 3rd Machine Gun Battalion sailed on the Olympic on March 14.

The Olympic is understood to carry about 5,000 Canadian troops on this trip, the first on the Canadian transport service since returning from the American service. These troops are presumably third division troops.

A Great Send Off.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 18.— The White Star Liner Olympic resumed work as a Canadian transport to-day when she left Southampton with five thousand troops of the Third Canadian Division and various details. Ontario soldiers include ammunition column and infantry, artillery and engineer details for Toronto, Kingston and London districts, also 52nd Battalion, Port Arthur, and 116th Battalion, Toronto. Southampton gave the Canadians a great send-off and the men are in the highest spirits.

Celtic Now at Halifax.

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, March 18.— The transport Celtic, with a large contingent of troops from Rhyl Camp, including many Ontario soldiers, is expected to dock to-night. Sir Edward Kemp, overseas Minister of Militia, and many prominent officials are here to meet the returning men.

Rents Based on Assessed Values

Legislation Introduced by the Kingston City Council.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, March 18.—At a meeting the City Council it was decided to support the petition of Kitchener, London and other municipalities in their request to the Ontario Legislature to have the Suburban Area Commission Act amended. There is dissatisfaction over the legislation which allows a commission to expend its money on pieces of roadway twelve miles from the city, thereby neglecting roads leading immediately from the city limits.

After Landlords.

Council is of the opinion that under this legislation too much power is given rural districts.

In order to get after landlords who are charging excessive rates, the Council has instructed the assessment commissioner to base his assessed values of buildings on rents derived from them.

Famous Aviator Was Operated on For Appendicitis.

(Canadian Press.)

ROANOKE, Va., March 18.— Col. William A. Bishop, V.C., the famous Canadian aviator, was operated on for appendicitis here last night. He was stricken as he was preparing to deliver an address. Early to-day his condition is satisfactory.

SHOTS WERE EXCHANGED

Serious Strike Demonstration in Lawrence, Mass.—Police Were Clubbed.

LEADERS ARRESTED

(Special to The Examiner.)

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 18. — While the police were trying to break up the parade of textile workers today, shots were fired from tenement houses, officers were stoned, and persons in the crowd clubbed. Many arrests were made. It was the most violent disturbance that had occurred since the strike began six weeks ago.

Shots were fired by strikers and bottles and bricks hurled when the entire police force of the city, led by Marshal J. J. O'Brien, charged the crowd.

Dragged From His House.

The appearance of the police was the signal for a concerted attack by the strikers. The first man to fall was William Carey, a mounted policeman, who was dragged from his horse and seriously beaten. Policeman Martin Dunn was beaten into insensibility and was taken to a hospital suffering from serious scalp wounds.

Marshal O'Brien read the riot act from the steps of a building when it became apparent that the strikers were in an angry mood. This act was followed by a fusillade of bricks and bottles from the strikers, who also used clubs. The entire police force then charged the crowd, and during the fighting several shots were fired by the strikers, but it was believed no one was hit.

Riotous Arrested.

During the fighting, which lasted several minutes, strikers injured by the clubs of the police were carried away by comrades.

When the police finally broke up the crowd, the leaders were seen to take refuge in the house in Elm street. The building was surrounded and sixteen strikers were arrested and charged with rioting.

The trouble started when the strikers began to congregate in Union street near the Common. They chose a time when the police details were being shifted, and it was some time before the police learned that trouble was brewing.

When more than 1,000 strikers had gathered, all of whom appeared to be foreigners, the crowd quickly formed in line, red flags were said to have been unfurled, and chanting revolutionary songs, the column began moving northward on Union street.

Hostilities Began.

As they marched the strikers jeered, hooted and sang until the police appeared and the fighting began. The fact that many of the strikers armed themselves with bricks, stones, bottles and clubs indicates that the expected trouble. The attempt to parade was made in the face of the refusal of the authorities to allow such a demonstration.

Following the clash strong police details were placed about the streets and near the textile mills.

DISCOUNT ON TAXES FOR EARLY PAYMENT TO BE DISCONTINUED

The only remaining discount for the prepayment of taxes was wiped out by the committee of the whole Council last night. For several years this monetary incentive to the ratepayers has been gradually reduced according as the city's financial circumstances became more straightened with multiplying outlets for the annual revenue. Last year the special inducement was a two per cent. discount on the second instalment. The City Fathers have now decided that the city needs the money more acutely than do the citizens, and by cancelling the discount they expect to make a saving seriously estimated, but approximately $1,200.

The discount paid last year was $2,469.52 on $123,476.00, but this sum will be decreased by interest on overdrafts until the second instalment of taxes flow in.

It was also decided last night that taxes shall be paid in two instalments as heretofore, the first on August 1st, but the second on November 1st, instead of November 15th. By choosing the same day of the month it was felt that any confusion that might arise would be obviated, the above the reason is the saving of fifteen days' overdraft.

The resolution authorizing these changes was moved by Ald. [illegible] and seconded by Ald. Taylor.

WORTHY OF SUPPORT.

The decision of the city council last night to increase the grant to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition to $2000 is one upon which the members at the council are to be felicitated. The directors of the Exhibition are likewise to be congratulated for the action of the aldermen is an appreciation by the people's representatives of the work of the management at Peterboro's big fair. It indicates that the council have confidence in the energy and business ability of the Exhibitions managing board, for the grant is the largest that has ever been made by the city for a similar purpose.

It will, however, be an investment that promises to pay dividends from the start. The money will be spent in improving the Exhibition grounds, the directors have planned extensive alterations, and the manner in which the work undertaken last year was carried out is a guarantee of the results that can be expected this year. The Exhibition has made such vast strides in the past few years that it is rapidly leaving behind the old standard fall fair and is approaching the status of a six-day exhibition. Its reputation is spreading in an ever-widening circle and larger as has been the attendance in recent years, the records so far set up will soon be left far in the rear. Thousands of visitors will be brought to Peterboro and the Exhibition's value as an asset to the city will constantly increase as the influx of people from outside points grows in volume.

The directors have shown by their enterprise and public-spirit, their energy and perseverance, that they are entitled to the last ounce of public support and in increasing the grant from the $1000 originally decided upon, to $2000, the members of the city council have publicly recognized the value of the Exhibition to Peterboro.

THE MOUNTED RIFLES.

Although neither of these fine battalions are coming to Peterborough, the people of this city should be greatly interested in the arrival home from overseas of the 4th and 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles. Many of the soldiers from Peterborough fought in France and Belgium with these units, formed only did practically all of the Peterborough squadron of the 8th C.M.R. join the 4th and 5th C.M.R. at the front, but the 3rd Battalion sent two big drafts to the latter regiment, so that during the long and creditable history of the two battalions there were always Peterborough soldiers in the ranks. During the past few weeks a number of the soldiers from this city who were captured when the C.M.R.'s met the full shock of the German attack at Zillebeke in June, 1916, have returned from their captivity in Germany and others who were wounded have come back from time to time. The 5th C.M.R., which will be demobilised at Montreal, and the 4th C.M.R., who are to be welcomed at Toronto, both contain a number of worthy representatives of this city, and although Peterborough people would have liked to have had an opportunity of seeing the battalions in which so many of our boys fought, they will rejoice in the tremendous reception that will be tendered the units in the cities in which they will be demobilised.

LIBERALISM'S BATTLE.

A parliament that will be thoroughly representative one, with the anti-cultural interests represented by former members of labour by working men, and veterans of the great war by their comrades. This is the ideal that Hon. Mackenzie King in his brilliant speech in Newmarket on Saturday said the Liberal party of the future must have quite aim. Canada had got away from government by the people, and government by order-in-council had been substituted.

"Parliament," he said, "ought to be a mirror reflecting the different elements that go to make up a nation. It is absurd for the Dominion of Canada to have a Parliament that has relatively no farmers in it to speak for the farmers, and no men from the rank of Labour to speak for Labour. I hope there will be in our next Parliament representatives of both these classes of our people, and also men from our soldiers ranks who will speak for those brave men who lie in Flanders' fields and cannot speak for themselves. I think our next Parliament must be truly representative if we are to secure unity and contentment in this country."

Hon. Mr. King's ideal will be endorsed by Liberals throughout Canada who will applaud his condemnation of the War Times Election Act as an undemocratic measure. It is indisputably true, as the speaker pointed out, that any man who supports a measure that tends to take away the rights of the people in free and open voting is not a Liberal and is not entitled to a place in the Liberal ranks.

The duty of considering the planks that should go into the Liberal party platform was emphasized, as was the desirability of the voice of every Liberal being heard in saying what the platform should include.

"Liberalism stands for government for and by the people," he added, "and the way for the people to govern is for the people to come along with their resolutions representing the collective thought of conventions and try to draft out something there is a possibility of carrying through with the nation at the back of it. Let the farmers draft the resolutions they want, let the Labour men, the War Veterans, and the women do the same, and we can find the common ground."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Winnipeg aldermen may get a salary increase from $600 to $1,200. There won't be much trouble in getting nominations for the Council next year if the by-law passes.

Sir Edward Kemp says the discipline of the Canadian army has been as good as that of any other contingent in the British Imperial Forces. He is quite right, and his statement confirms the suspicion that the conditions at Kinmel Park must have been unusually disagreeable.

$50 increase for the Labour Day celebration, bringing it to $150.

for the Sick Children's Hospital.

It seemed to be all the City Fathers could think of, and a resolution was finally passed on motion of Ald Taylor, seconded by Ald. Phelan, recommending that the estimates be adopted and that the tax rate be struck at 31 mills.

It was Ald. Morrison who successfully poached Chief Grange's expenses. Ald. Gainey who made the plea that the grant to the Trades and Labour Council should receive another $50 for the proper celebration of Labour Day, and to help insure the success of the demonstration.

Ald. Taylor made the necessary move for the City Treasurer's increase, and Ald. Phelan led the way for the addition to the Mayor's honorarium.

For the Fair Board.

"The Fair directors asked us for $2,000," said Ald. Turner, "and I am satisfied that this expenditure will bring us big returns."

Ald. Taylor was of the same accord, and Mayor Duncan said that when $600 was cut from the Police Commission's estimates he concluded that this sum would be available for the Exhibition Board.

Ald. Phelan said he was encouraged by Ald. Taylor's action to support the increase since it would not effect the rate.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that $2,000 instead of $1,000 be granted to the directors of the Industrial Exhibition.—Carried.

"They have promised that they will make a canvass of the city, and I feel sure that their assistance will greatly encourage them," Ald. Turner remarked.

The Mayor Retired.

Mayor Duncan retired to the City Clerk's office when Ald. Phelan proposed that he should receive an increased allowance for his time and service in the city's business.

"I think the Mayor is entitled to a little more money," said Ald. Phelan.

Ald. Edgar—How much?

Ald. Phelan suggested $500 at least and moved, seconded by Ald Morrison, that this sum be included in the estimates for the Mayor.

"You might as well make it $1,000," Ald. Gainey interpolated.

$150 For Labour Day.

While the spirit moved the committee, Ald. Gainey requested that the grant to the Trades and Labour Council for the Labour Day celebration be increased from $100 to $150. Ald. Taylor seconded his motion, which carried.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald Garside, that $25 be granted to the Sick Children's Hospital.

$150 For Mr. Adams.

"You give $200 to Chief Grange," said Ald. Taylor, "and there has been no increase for Mr. Adams."

The committee was responsive and the proposed increase in salary was embodied in a resolution by Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Edgar. It dates from March 1st, but Mayor Duncan's grant is for the year.

GOOD HEALTH

IMPOSSIBLE WITHOUT GOOD EYESIGHT

Eye strains are the direct cause of all sorts of nervous disorders. Depression, insomnia, indigestion, the "blues" and irritability are only a few of their bad effects. Distressing headaches are one of the most common symptoms.

Most people are unaware of their eye troubles. Scientists estimate that seven out of ten people really need glasses—and yet, only two out of the seven are wearing them.

We wish again to emphasize the fact that we can prove to YOUR entire satisfaction, that you either need glasses or don't. We will tell you frankly if you do not need them—and make no charge for the information.

THE SPRING OPENING

A Fascinating Display Presenting the New Seasons Authoritative Fashions

Our message To-Day is simply that our showing of New Spring Coats, Suits and Dresses is at its very best right now.

As a matter of fact we doubt very seriously if there will be anywhere near as broad a showing at any other time during the present season.

You will find the styles wonderfully effective. Fashion-authorities and manufacturers combine to present to the women of Peterboro, styles and colour effects that are to be an outward expression of their happiness upon the conclusion of the great war, and because peace is here.

The Dresses particularly show the bright colours of Springtime.

Really we could go on and write half a dozen pages, and yet couldn't say half what we wanted to. But we want to say one word about values, and probably this can best be expressed by describing a new suit at $39.50 just put in stock.

It is a pure wool gabardine suit. A real jaunty style with tuxedo collar and set-in flared sides from the waist line down, belted with pretty buckle, the collar is edged with braid and has button trimming. At a glance, back view and front appear to have two wide panels, giving the suit a very sharp silhouette. The skirt is correctly narrow at the bottom, and with braid trimming, May we suggest that you visit the Store To-Morrow, so you may learn to your own satisfaction the most becoming models as well as those that are the most fashionable.

Prices from $24.75 to $49.50

PREMIERS MEET TO-DAY

(Canadian Press)

PARIS, March 18.—An important conference with Premiers Lloyd George, Orlando and Clemenceau will be held at President Wilson's residence to-day. This gathering of Premiers, representing the supreme directing force of the peace conference, takes the place of the session of the Supreme Council, which has been postponed until tomorrow to permit the meeting. The question to be discussed is the large one of securing accord between the great Powers on all phases of the peace treaty and its early presentation to Germany. It is expected an agreement will be reached as to the inclusion of the League of Nations as an integral part of the peace treaty, in accordance with the resolution which has already been adopted by the peace conference.

ence to confer with President Wilson personaly if possible to admit Germany's mistakes and to clarify her present position. Harden agreed to go, but the foreign office refused to consider the proposal despite the fact that he is one of few Germans who are not compromised in foreign eyes.

GERMANY STARTED WORLD CONFLICT

"We were to blame for the war for many reasons," Harden continued. "I have consistently said that, not only about the beginning of the war, but about our conduct of it throughout. Germany's navy was a direct danger to England at a time when we were getting rich by her free trade policy. The English colonies had as many "made in Germany" goods as those made in England. Germany started the war, as I pointed out in November in the "Zukunft." We fought in a guilty way and by means of propaganda made our people believe they were justified in the defence of their Fatherland. The German people were honest in their belief. The militarist claimed steadily that we were right and would win. I pointed out we were wrong—the fact that four-fifths of the world was against us was a sure sign we were wrong—and that we would be defeated, but the Government stupidly refused to see the light. It is still refusing to see the light.

GOVERNMENT DEMANDS A PLEBISCITE

"When Wilson's fourteen points were first announced everyone said we couldn't accept them because they were too harsh. Now they are trying to twist fourteen points to meet German views. There is no doubt in my mind that under the fourteen points Alsace-Lorraine goes to France, but the Government demands a plebiscite. It would be the same even if a plebiscite were held as it would go overwhelmingly in favour of France. Then Germany would claim the plebiscite was unfair because French were occupying that territory.

"There will always be something to agitate about until we break entirely away from the old and start a brand new policy. The German people think abnormally now if they at all. The war and hardships have made them crazy. They are gambling, dancing, seeking every pleasure possible and spending money like water, figuring that either the Bolsheviks or Schiffer (the Minister of Finance) will get it anyhow if they don't spend it. The people are ready to do anything in their fanaticism. If the Emperor were not so cowardly and would return and call his 70,000 officers about him everybody would hurrah and say old times were better than present and demand him back.

PEOPLE WANT FOOD AND WORK

"But a genuinely liberal movement is coming. Machine guns cannot wipe out radical ideas. Give the people food and work and Bolshevism will be avoided until a solid and reformed state is established."

Harden anticipates close and important relations between the German republic and the United States.

"We need close relations with America more than she needs us at first," he said, "and frankly it would benefit us more than America, but eventually the advantages would be equal. I have the greatest faith in the League of Nations. But its success and world peace during the coming century depends upon close and friendly relations between Germany, England and America."

St. Patrick's Day in Peterboro

St. Patrick's Day was royally celebrated in the city yesterday, when a large percentage of the organizations observed the occasion by plays, teas, and lectures. Perhaps the foremost event among the many was the play given at the Grand Opera House by St. Peter's Dramatic Society. The Society already famous by many of the splendid plays, the talented members have presented in former years, last night before a crowded house, broke all previous records in the presentation of the pretty Irish play "Shaun Rhue."

Cleverly Staged.

The play itself was staged cleverly and the cast carefully and advisedly chosen in order to have the right person in the right place. One distinguishing feature of it was the absolute lack of self consciousness on the part of all the players, each making the most of the many splendid situations in a manner worthy of a professional. In the title role of "Shaun Rhue", Mr. George Lynch left nothing to be desired. His delineation of the witty Irish lad a role requiring skill and versatility was true to life and his solos were excellent. The supporting cast was trained to a high degree of perfection and with the unmistakable ability of each member the play was a success from every standpoint. The specialties given during the play by Miss Cecile Shevlin, Mr. Wm. Collins, Mr. George Lynch and Mr. Max Murty were thoroughly appreciated and insistently encored. At the conclusion of the play Miss Genevive O'Hern and Miss Cecile Shevlin were presented each with several beautiful bouquets in recognition of the thorough appreciation of the audience of the talent they displayed.

St. Patrick's Tea.

Regardless of the weather conditions yesterday afternoon the tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. G. Denne, Park street, under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E., was a brilliant success and attended by about one hundred and seventy-five people. In the drawing room Mrs. Denne received with Mrs. Allan while in the dining room, which was appropriately decorated in true Irish fashion in keeping with the day on which the tea was held, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard presided at the tea table assisted by Mrs. Stapleton, Mrs. C. L. Brewer, Mrs. T. Robinson, Mrs. Whitehouse, Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Stinson, Mrs. Court King, Mrs. Chris Graham and Miss Nan Hall. The tea table decorations were especially admired by all who came in to tea, and consisted of a centrepiece composed of a huge green basket filled with potatoes from which Irish flags gaily floated. The balance of the decorations were carried cleverly and attractively out in green and white color scheme with countless harps hung about the walls.

Those Present.

A few of those who came in to tea were Mrs. Huycke, Mrs. Amys, Mrs. Dorn, Mrs. Albert Stratton, Miss M. Collins, Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Bradburn, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. McDiarmid, Mrs. Borbridge, Miss T. Burnet, Miss Halliday, Miss Archer, Mrs. S. Fesenden, Mrs. Allan, Mrs. Scott and Miss Florence Scott, Mrs. Logan and Miss Lora Logan, Miss Littlefield, Mrs. MacDonald and Miss Margaret MacDonald, Miss Linden Hall, Mrs. H. O. Lake, Miss S. Robinson, Mrs. Dearle, Miss Groat, Toronto, Miss Needham, Millbrook, Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, Mrs. John Birnie, Mrs. Morphet, Mrs. Aylmer, Mrs. H. Thompson, Mrs. Tamblyn, Mrs. Killaly, Mrs. Fraser, Miss Helen Dennison, Miss Tamblyn, Mrs. C. Stapleton, Mrs. Bruce Gillespie, Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Mrs. Vanstone, Mrs. H. D. Roberts and Mrs. F. Roy.

Musical Programme.

An attractive musical programme was given by the following artists: Miss Harrington, Mrs. Park, Miss Parker, Miss Lora Logan, Miss Murray, Miss Ida Sanderson, Miss Tamblyn, and two little pupils of Miss Littlefield, who gave a very charming dance.

The door was opened by Miss Regatta Lewis dressed as a little Irish boy, and each person received the smile and thanks of a little Irish maid, Miss Beryl Bates, as they dropped a contribution in her big green hat.

Others helping to make the affair the success it was were Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Dearle, Mrs. King, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Seels, Miss English and Miss Nan Hall.

Irish Concert.

The Irish Concert in Trinity Sunday School Hall last night was a decided success in spite of the unfavorable weather. The Hall had been tastefully decorated for the occasion by the young ladies of the League. Mr. R. F. Downey made a capable chairman. The programme was pleasingly varied. Mr. Hartshorn gave in good voice, two songs, "My Irish Eyes" and "Mother Machree". Miss Ruby Young sang very sweetly an Irish lullaby song, "Husheen." Mrs. King, who was at her best; delighted the audience with her fine rendering of "Norah" and "A Little Bit of Heaven." The chairman jocularly remarked that though Scotch, she could qualify for a place on an Irish programme. Mrs. Maurice Park brought a fine programme to a fitting close with two choice selections Her splendid voice was heard to good advantage in "The Last Rose of Summer" and "The Minstrel Boy."

The second part of the programme was provided by the Rev. F. E. Malott, who gave his interesting and instructive lecture on St. Patrick and the early history of Ireland. The lecture which displayed wide reading and careful discrimination, was followed with intense interest by the audience. Mr. Malott has made a speciality of historical studies and he has the happy faculty of making historical facts interesting. The lecture was rather out of the beaten track and gave much interesting information on the life and work of the popular Patron Saint of the Emerald Isle.

About fifty lantern slides were shown giving views of monastic ruins, glimpses of Irish scenery, and views of modern cities. Refreshments were served at the close of the programme.

Body Was Taken From the River

George Albert Rutherford Disappeared in December Last.

While laying traps for muskrats near Hales Bridge last evening at about six o'clock, Mr. R. and Mr. Sylvester Dwyer noticed something floating in the water and upon investigation found it to be the body of a man of about fifty years of age. With considerable difficulty the two men towed the body to shore and notified the Police Department, who sent Detective W. Meagher down with Mr. Manson Comstock, the latter of whom identified the body as that of George Albert Rutherford, 525 Bolivar street, who disappeared from the city on December 20th, 1918.

Disappeared in December.

Mr. Rutherford, who was about forty-nine years of age was last seen on Friday evening, December 20th, when he spent the evening with his sister, Mrs. Hatherly, about three miles down the river. He left the house with the apparent intention of returning to his home but the only trace of him which subsequent search could reveal, was his overcoat, which was found at the dam near the lock. The police used every means of tracing the man, but the search proved futile until last evening. When discovered, the man was fully dressed in the suit in which he was last seen. The only motive for the apparent suicide is attributed to melancholia from which he appeared to be suffering.

Mr. Rutherford was born in Cavan and came to the city to reside, fifteen years ago. He was employed for some time with the Street Railway and at the time of his disappearance was with the Canadian General Electric Company.

Local Council of Women Meet

Interesting Address by Mrs. W. E. Sandford.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women held last evening in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., Mrs. W. E. Sandford, President of the National Council of Women, gave an interesting and impressive address on the necessity of first principles coming first. She laid very strong emphasis on the fact that to do good one is necessary to be right oneself. She gave an interesting account of her various travels in Europe and told of an interview she had had with Queen Olga of Greece who was responsible for the reforms in the women's prisons in Greece. Prior to Queen Olgas intervention and reorganization the women were literally herded together with all criminals. Mrs. Sandford also told of her recent visit in Ottawa, when representing 400,000 women of Canada, she had with the other women in delegation asked that the present legislation concerning the liquor traffic should continue until the men all return from the front. In conclusion she referred very cordially and complimentarily to the delegate from Peterboro, Mrs. Kendry, who attended the Ottawa meeting.

THE WEATHER

A considerable amount of rain has fallen during the last few days. Many have made inquiries as to the amount that fell last night, thinking it must have been a record-breaker. As a matter of fact, more came down last Sunday than last night. Sunday's rainfall was spread over about 12 hours, and although not heavy was steady. Last night's fall was torrential while it lasted, but did not continue long—hence the difference.

Mayor Duncan Gave Deciding Vote for Chief Grange's Trip

"We Can't Make Fish of One and Flesh of Another," Said His Worship — Committee of the Whole Sympathises With the Fire Chief.

CONVENTION A LESSON

If the conventions of the Chief Constables and the Fire Chiefs of Canada coincide this year, Chief Thompson and Chief Grange will be travelling companions to Calgary, for the Committee of the Whole dug out of the estimates last night a stray $200 which they granted to Chief Grange with their best if belated respects.

In the previous preparations of the city's business, it had been decided but not unanimously that Chief Grange would have to spend his holidays at home or hereabouts unless he wished to attend the convention at his own expense. But the Police Commission had set up a sort of challenging precedent by alloting $175 to Chief Thompson, which Ald. Morrison opportunely mentioned last night with the suggestion that Chief Grange should not be overlooked. Mayor Duncan's inclination was expressed in the comment that "we can't make fish of one and flesh of the other," and Ald. Edgar remarked that a great deal of sympathy was felt for Chief Grange and his wife in their bereavement.

Ald. Edgar.—"I think that Chief Grange should be recognized as much as Chief Thompson, and that is no reflection on Chief Thompson. Chief Grange is a young man as a fire-fighter, and it seems to me that it would be money well spent if we send him to the convention of fire chiefs. In a short time we may be opening up a sub-station and we want him to gain all the experience he can get."

Ald. Taylor objected that the Fire Department's appropriation of $37,000 was $7,000 in excess of last year. "It's a long time until the convention, and we may be able to save enough during that time to make up his expenses."

"I voted against both Chiefs going to conventions this year," said Mayor Duncan, "but I said that if Chief Thompson got his expenses I would support Chief Grange getting same consideration."

The Mayor's sanction was soon required for the committee divided evenly, four each way, on the resolution by Ald. Morrison seconded by Ald. Edgar that Chief Grange's expenses, not to exceed $200, to the convention of Fire Chiefs be paid.

The resolution carried on the Mayor's deciding vote.

Secretary Whatley was instructed to express the hearty thanks of the Association to Miss J. Horsfield for her gift of a splendid painting, a reproduction of the famous picture "Canada" which appeared in Punch shortly after the second battle of Ypres.

Committee Appointed

The following committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual tag day. Comrades W. Cole, Dr. Wood, W. Field, C. Jeffries, W. Stanley.

A House Committee to draft rules for the conduct of the members etc., while in the club rooms was appointed. The members are: Comrades F. Dainton, F. Long, H. Yates, R. H. Muir and W. Stanley.

The Housing Problem.

There was considerable discussion of the housing problem and the G. W. V. A. have decided to ascertain as far as possible what Peterboro's needs are in this respect. A committee composed of Capt. Lancaster, chairman, G. Coleman and H. Graham was appointed to take up this question. A questionaire has been prepared and will be sent out to all members of the association, to the relatives of Peterboro soldiers overseas and to other citizens in an effort to obtain their views on the housing question. It is hoped that these question cards will be promptly filled in and returned to the association so that a definite idea may be obtained of what is required in Peterboro.

Mr. McDermid spoke of the difficulty of getting back to a pre-war basis. The club during the past year has prospered materially and now that the war is over, bigger strides should be made. Mr. McDermid spoke feeling of the death during the past two weeks of a valued membed of the Club in the person of Mr. W. H. Denham, who at the beginning of the season was elected a skip but was compelled to resign before leaving for the southern States in an effort to regain his health. The secretary was instructed to draft a suitable resolution of condolence to be sent to Mrs. Denham.

"Water Polo"

In his "inaugural" address the new president, Mr. George Giroux spoke of the unfair system of scheduling adopted by the Toronto Curling Association in years past. "The Peterboro rinks had to curl in water every time before the finals were over," stated Mr. McDermid. "The finals should not take place always and forever in Toronto. The constitution does not call for that. I don't see why Toronto should be Hogtown all the time." He suggested that the province be quartered into districts and in this way eliminate some of the present unsatisfactory arrangements.

Mural Decorations

Mr. R. M. Waddell suggested that the pictures of two past presidents of the Club be arranged on the wall in the club rooms. The pictures, he referred to, were those of Dr. Boucher and the late Col. E. B. Edwards. The suggestion was unanimously adopted. Another suggestion fathered by Mr. Andrew Webb which received the hearty suport of those present was that the members of the club, who had given their life for the Empire should have their pictures on the wall in the club room. Two former members will thus be honoured. They are Major C. Ross Cameron and Flight-Lieut. Fred C. Cressman. The Allied colours will be used to decorate the pictures.

Lawn Bowlers Won Two Games

Last night in five pin league at the Water street alleys, the Lawn Bowlers took two from Matthews-Blackwell. For the Lawn Bowlers Walton was high with 526; Pratt and Craig also passed the 500 mark. For Matthews-Blackwell, Gordon Matthews was high man with 568 and high single of 247. Stanton also topped the 500 mark.

moved upstairs, while the water played hide and go seek downstairs. The carpets are saturated, and boards are still layed in the hall so that a visitor may not get wet feet. The cellar is full to capacity.

MR. REGENS MASCARDO.

The home of Mr. Regens Mascardo, 560 Donegal Street, was also visited by the erratic waters of the creek. The fence left when the water left, and the water started pilfering the stores of firewood in the cellar, but Mr. R. Mascardo, by means of a rope and a board, blocked the door before much of the wood left.

The home of Chief Thompson, 589 Downie Street, was visited by the water. The creek entered the cellar, and after moving different objects around, rose steadily until it put out the furnace. This morning the water had left.

MR. JOHN CARNAGAN.

The verandah of Mr. John Carnagan, 343 McDonnel Street, was flooded with water.

MRS. JOSEPH BATTEN.

To keep the water from running in the front door, Mrs. Joseph Batten, 351 McDonnel Street, nailed boards on to the door jambs, which proved an effective barrier to the water.

ASHBURNHAM'S FLOOD.

Ashburnham had troubles of its own. Along the creek that traverses the blocks from the vicinity of Hunter and Mark Street, reaching north-easterly to the corner of Douro and Concession Streets and beyond that district to the neighbourhood of Caddy Street and Euclid Avenue, many cellars were flooded, and henhouses, stables, wood pilis and other backyard buildings were cut off by a depth of water that precluded wading

THE MOTOR SHOW COMMITTEE MET

Big Demand for Space—Excellent Progress.

A meeting of Motor Show Committee of the Red Cross Advisory Board and the Health Association, at which Rev. Father Phelan, Mr. Roland Denne, Mr. G. A. McDonald and Dr. Cameron attended yesterday, it was found that the several committees had made excellent progress in the organization of the show.

The space has all been sold with great rapidity, the free program in the main hall will be greatly augmented this year and the special attractions will be better than ever.

From present indications the 1919 Motor Show which will be in the interests of the Peterboro Health Association, will be the best on record.

Suggested a Larger Salary for Assistant

While the Committee of the Whole was in generous mood last night Ald. Gainey moved that the salary of the assistant assessor, Mr. Arthur Ringer, a returned soldier, be increased from $750 to $900. He argued that in these times $750 was not enough money for a married man with two children.

Ald Turner said that the assistant was evidently satisfied for the time being, and that the salary increased yearly to a maximum of $900. "If he is not satisfied he doesn't have to take it," he added.

"I think the office is costing us enough as it is," commented Ald Phelan.

There was no seconder to Ald. Gainey's motion.

Six Months for Vagrancy

Edward Wainwright, professional hobo, who describes himself as one with "no home, no money, no nothing," was sentenced to six months in the Guelph Prison Farm, by Magistrate Dumble at this morning's session of police court. This is the third time that Wainwright has appeared in the local police court on vagrancy charges. He was allowed out of Castle Nesbitt last Saturday, the expiration of a three months sentente and immediately went back to his old haunts in the C.P.R. yards at Havelock. But C.P.R. Constable J. Sanbach spotted him and as a result Ed. will spent the next six months on the Prison Farm. He admitted to the Magistrate that he hadn't worked for over a year although only 32 years of age.

The bride, who was unattended was given away by her brother, Mr. Robert Wood of Baliieboro. The bride was attired in navy blue travelling suit, with hat to match and white Thibet furs, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and roses. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Fred. MR. HERBERT KENT.

Mr. G. W. Hatton has received word of the death in Vancouver, B.C., of a former well known and most popular resident of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. Herbert Kent, formerly of the Bell Telephone Company in this city. Mr. Kent, who left Peterborough twenty-eight years ago for the west, was prominent in athletics in this city, especially in connection with cycling, which was very popular at that time. He was also known as an ardent hunter. He had been ailing for a long time, and his condition was critical when Mr. Hatton visited Vancouver a short time ago. The body is being sent to Peterborough for interment in the Little Lake cemetery, and it is expected that the funeral will be held on Monday next, although a more definite announcement will be made later. Older residents of the city who will remember with pleasure their associations with Mr. Kent, will be grieved to learn of his death. His mother is living in Toronto.

MRS CATHARINE CAREY

Monaghan Residents Favour Annexation

That the residents of the city's fringe in North Monaghan are ripe for annexation, was the opinion expressed by Ald. Turner last night in moving a resolution, seconded by Ald. Edgar that a special committee composed of Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Morrison, Eddy, Gainey, Hamilton and Turner, be appointed to take up this question. The proposed addition extends from the north side of the city from the Isolation Hospital across to Jackson Park and south to Crawford's grove on the line extending north and south from Ford avenue. The westerly is a short distance west of the intersection of the Gravel road and Sherbrooke street at Bestard's corners, and includes Dr. Middleton's property, Mt. St. Joseph, the Bradburn and Hatton estates, all of Byersville and most of Burleyville.

German Forts To Be Dismantled

Kiel Canal Will Be Internationalized.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 18.— The fortifications on the island of Heligoland, Germany's formidable base in the North Sea, must be dismantled. This decision was reached to-day by the Supreme Allied War Council. It was decided also that the Kiel Canal should be internationalized and made available to ship of all nations on even terms. Disposition of German warships is not likely to be included in the treaty of peace. Germany, however, will be required to surrender title to the ships. Ultimate ownership will be determined later.

May Take Over Grand Trunk

Government Will Make An Early Declaration of Policy.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, March 18.—An early declaration of policy by the government in regard to the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railways was promised to-day at the first meeting of the Railway committee of the Commons to-day by Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways. The matter came up when consideration of a bill for a further issue of Grand Trunk debenture stock was called for by Mr. Morphy, member for North Perth. Dr. Reid said he had no objection to the committee passing the bills, but it would not reach the Commons until after the government had stated its general policy. After a discussion it was decided that the Grand Trunk might shortly be taken over by the government. It was useless to pass a bill to permit the company to do its own financing.

GRAIN MARKET

An announcement from Washington yesterday that the Food Board had called a conference and would probably again take a hand in regulating hogs and corn prices, put the brakes on a strong bull market, in which corn prices were again soaring to record heights. Ever since the Government removed the restrictions on hog prices, that market and feedstuffs have been steadily climbing to higher levels. The corn markets opened strong, but eased off at a later stage, though still closing well above Monday's close.

Oats and barley were again in a strong market. Cash markets are higher. A late report was to the effect that the Argentine strike is settled.

MUST APPLY UNDER HYDRO-ELECTRIC ACT

Sir Adam Beck's Reply to Lakefield Deputation.

(Special to Examiner)

TORONTO, March 19.—The protection of the public against further profit by private corporations, was the slogan with which a deputation from the town of Lakefield appeared before Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission this afternoon, asking that the Lakefield dam be taken over and that Hydro power be furnished the municipality by the commission.

It was pointed out that only 150 horse power was developed by the company which now controls the situation, and in view of the fact that the Dominion Government has decided to build a concrete dam at Lakefield, for navigation purposes, the deputation urged action by the Hydro commission to expropriate the property and ensure that the unearned increment accruing from the new dam, will go to the public instead of to a private power company. It was pointed out that the new dam will greatly increase the value of the property to the present owners.

Sir Adam Beck, in reply, expressed the opinion that the best resource of the municipality lay in making application under the Hydro Electric act, which contains a provision for such situations.

Those constituting the delegation were J. A. Porter, D. Smith and Andrew Young, councillors of the town of Lakefield, W. J. Charlton, Wm. Sherin, clerk of the municipality, J. H. Burnham, M.P.P. for West Peterboro, Jas. Thompson, M.P.P. for East Peterboro and G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. West Peterboro.

Entertainment in Lakefield

Affair Was Decided Success in Spite of the Weather

LAKEFIELD, March 18.—The entertainment given on Monday evening under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was a decided success in spite of very bad weather. The proceeds amounted to almost $65. Miss Pearl Newton of Toronto, elocutionist, Mr. F. E. Waldon, of Peterboro, pianist and soloist and Mr. F. Whitehouse, of Peterboro, violinist, assisted by the local talent, gave a most enjoyable evening's entertainment. All the performers were heartily encored and responded most generously.

Miss Newton, who made her first appearance in Lakefield was very popular and gave several selections widely varying in character, and all so well rendered that comparison is out of place. Probably "The Son of Jupiter," was the best selection from a dramatic point of view, though all were excellent. Miss Burgess, who was to have given a piano solo was prevented by illness from being present.

Among those who contributed to the programme were, Miss Hunter, Mr. F. Whitehouse, Miss Cullen, Miss Peart Newton and Dr. Smith.

Mr. Bolton went to Peterboro on Monday.

Mr. Jack Malood of Peterboro was a week end visitor in the village.

Mr. W. J. Leggott spent Monday in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Tackaberry, who had been visiting Mrs. Tackaberry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bullock and attending the funeral of the late W. J. Bullock, returned on Monday to their home in Toronto.

Mr. E. Watson was in Peterboro on Monday.

Mr. C. F. Leonard of Peterboro was a week end visitor to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Strickland at "Uplands."

Mr. J. Todd, who spent a few days last week in Millbrook, has returned to the village.

Miss Ainslee Charlton of Peterboro was a week end visitor in the village.

Mr. James Lang of Otonabee passed through the village on Monday en route for Mt. Julian, where he will visit friends.

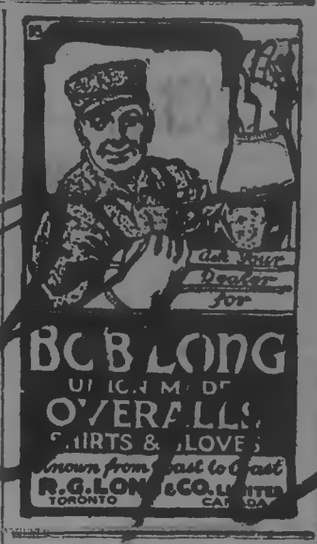
Mr. Harry Wannamaker returned to Peterboro on Monday after a week end spent with his parents in the village.

Returned Home

Staff Sergt. Roy Thompson of the 8th C.M.R., returned to Mt. Julian on Monday after a few days spent at Kingston. He is the eldest son of Mr. Wm. Thompson of Mt. Julian and has been overseas nearly three years. His only brother Lang was reported missing a year ago and later was reported killed in action.

Visited Lakefield

Sergt. W. J. Harris, M.M. paid a flying visit on Monday and called on Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham. Sergt. Harris enlisted more than three years ago in the 50th Battalion and went overseas with that unit. He was wounded in the left arm last fall and has only recently returned to Canada.



CHIEF ENGINEER ALMOST GIVES UP

Thought He Would Have to Stop Working—Tanlac Makes Him Well Again.

"To my mind Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world," said O. H. Mahaffey, chief engineer of the Life and Casualty building, Nashville, Tenn.

"For two years," he continued, "I suffered awfully with the worst kind of stomach trouble and went down until I lost forty-eight pounds. My back ached terribly and I suffered so much misery from indigestion that I thought I had an ulcerated stomach and was actually afraid to eat anything but a little oatmeal and sweet milk. I got weaker every day till finally, as nothing I took did me any good, I thought I would just have to throw up my job.

"My wife read in the papers where a man who had suffered like I was had been helped by taking Tanlac, and she begged me to try it. After I had taken Tanlac a few days I began to get hungry and started in eating like I was starved, and nothing hurt me a bit. Soon those awful pains in my stomach and back were gone, I sleep fine at night now and get up in the morning full of life and energy and ready for my work."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Limited. In Havelock by A. C. Denike. In Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd. In Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter. In Gelert by A. J. Scott. In Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

Ruth Tells Brian She Has Resigned Her Position

CHAPTER CXLVII

Someway the feel of Brian's arm about her waist dissipated much of Ruth's foreboding. She snuggled close to him and in this way they reached the living room. But when she sat down opposite him, the beauty of the room upon which she had spent so much time and considerable of her money, appealed strongly to her. Would they have to give up this home and live in a less expensive apartment?

"Well, I'm waiting," Brian lighted a cigarette and blew circles thru which he looked at her.

"I have resigned my position." She had not intended to make this bald statement. She had planned to lead up to it gradually. To tease him a little, perhaps.

"You have—what?"

"I told Mr. Mandel I would not work for him any longer."

"Who are you going to work for?"

"A man named Brian Hackett." She saw he had not realized what she meant; but supposed she was leaving Mandel to take a position elsewhere. But as she made answer, she watched his face, and was almost repaid for her self-denial when she saw first the look of surprise, then comprehension, then gladness, that rushed over his face in quick succession.

"You mean"

"I mean, Lieutenant Hackett, that I am going to stay at home and mind you and my baby; keep the house and be a perfect little housewife. Not that I mean to be too humble, but I am going to let you earn the money from now on. I shall keep you busy, and myself, too, spending it." Her tone was light, but she had a tightening in her throat which threatened tears.

"Really, Ruth—do you mean it—at last? Why, girlie, I have dreamed of this in the trenches. Dreamed that some day you would be satisfied with me and the home I could give you. I will make it up to you some way—I will, Ruth! I swear it."

"I know you will, Brian," she said softly, surreptiously wiping her eyes. "And dear, there is nothing to make up. I was sure I was doing right—now—I—am not so sure. I was selfish. But Brian, we mustn't talk sadly. I told Mr. Mandel all about it. You don't mind dear, do you? I had to. It wasn't fair to me to leave him without. I told him the whole story. Just how I had almost ruined you in your profession because I took from you all incentive to work. And how had the war not come along just when it did, I might have lost you—" she saw him redden, and knew he was thinking of Mollie King. "That you were getting discouraged," she hastened to say, and so dissipate any other impression, "and that you would soon have left me. Yes, I know you were unhappy, Brian, altho I thought I was doing my best. But it wasn't my best. My very 'beatest' best should have been to make you happy. But we'll play we are just married Brian, and start all over again."

"You immoral creature. How old is that boy of ours?"

The both laughed heartily, perhaps a bit hysterically. But it relieved the tenseness of their feelings and made talking easier.

"I wish you would do just one thing for me, Brian."

"Name it! It shall be yours even to the half of my kingdom." They were now sitting hand in hand like two children.

"I want you to give up that measly little office in that old building, and take one I found for you."

"You found for me," he repeated.

"Yes. I knew it would never do for you to have that office. The old one, I mean. Why Brian, you have served your country in a manner deserving of support from that country. But you have got to put yourself in a position, in the environment, to receive that support. Men who can afford to pay a lawyer a decent price for his work and his time, are not going to go to one who spends his time in such surroundings. They are going to figure that if his office is untidy, old and threadbare, his work will also be untidy and threadbare. And"

"Can't help being a business woman, can you?"

"No—perhaps not. But so long as I use my business training to help and advise Lieutenant Hackett, and no one else, why grumble?"

"I'm not grumbling, you dear little wife. I am so happy I could dance a horn-pipe if it wasn't for my game leg. When can we go to see that office you have selected, Mrs. Lawyer Hackett?"

"To-day."

As she answered she remembered she had something more to tell him. But it would keep until another time.

To-morrow—Brian Rents the Office Ruth Selected.

Why They Are Buying WAR-SAVINGS STAMPS

The housewife is economizing in comfortable ways and investing in War-Savings Stamps at $4.02 each this month. In 1924, when these stamps are redeemed at $5.00 each, every dollar will have greater purchasing power.

The business man is cutting off small and unnecessary expenditures and buying War-Savings Stamps. He knows his money is available any time he really needs it, with added interest. $5 for $4 in five years is an excellent return on money otherwise idle.

School children are buying Thrift Stamps at 25 cents each and are filling their Thrift Cards in order to acquire a War-Savings Stamp. They are helping their country and acquiring the habit of Thrift.

Men on the farms are buying W-S.S. because the Government uses the money to finance export orders for the food raised on Canadian farms. This makes their market sure.

Men, women and children of all ages and conditions of life, are investing in W-S.S. because it is a convenient way to "build a bond". The security is absolute and the interest is unusually high. Some day they will look back with great satisfaction to the day when they bought their first War-Savings Stamps.

A Well Known Trade Mark and What is Back of It.

MOST Canadians will instantly recognize our trade mark as standing for certain standards of quality in shoes. But what is back of it? Why should it be so generally accepted as a sufficient guarantee of good value? Let us see—

In the first place, there is back of it by far the largest shoe manufacturing organization in Canada, with resources far beyond those of any other, and greater buying power in the material markets. But that is not all. Important as those things are, they are not the most important. For back of the trade mark there is something else which we could not escape if we would: an obligation to keep faith with the public.

The manufacturer of unbranded goods assumes no responsibility for them after they leave his factory. The manufacturer of trade marked goods assumes an obligation which lasts year through to the last day of their use. The trade mark tells him under bonds, as it were, to maintain the quality of his product, or lose his reputation. And the higher his reputation becomes, the heavier his responsibility grows. Noblesse oblige.

That is what is back of the A.H.M. trade mark. That is what we offer to Canadian wearers of shoes. That is why we ask you to look for the manufacturer's trade mark on the shoes you buy.

We have prepared a booklet entitled "How to Buy Shoes." May we send you a copy with our compliments?

Facts About a New But Familiar Word.

As we are to have the Czecho-Slovaks with us always, it behooves us to begin to learn how to spell them. We spell them all wrong now, according to an article by Jaroslav Victor Nigrin in the Czecho-Slovak Review—and what Mr. Nigrin says is absolutely convincing, according to the Boston Transcript. "Czechoslovak" or Czecho-Slovak, as a word, is neither Czechish, Slovak nor English. The Czechs have not the combination "cz" in their language. The sound represented by these letters, which they themselves represent by the letter "c" with an inverted circumflex over it, is exactly the sound of "ch" in English—"ch" in "check" or "cherry." The spelling "Czech is borrowed from the Polish, in which language the sound "ch" is so represented. But why should we use a Polish combination of letters to express an English sound in a Czechish word? There is no reason, except that we took it up long ago from the Poles because we did not know any better. We should clearly spell the word not with the initial "Cz," but with "Ch." There is no more sense in our writing "Czech" than there would be in spelling cherry "czerry," or church "czurez."

So far so good. But the determination of the manner in which we are to begin the word does not answer the question how we are to end it off. What about the final sound, which we represent by "ch?" That is wrong, too. The sound there is not at all the English sound "ch." It is more like "k." Mr. Jaroslav Victor Nigrin says the final combination of the Bohemian word has a sound like the English "h" in "hold" but softer, and he proposes that it shall be represented in English orthography by "h" simply, as coming nearer to that sound than any other. Instead of "Czech," therefore, he would write "Cheh." But that is impracticable, for the reason that in English orthography the final "h" directly following a vowel, does not have a consonant value at all, but merely prolongs or sharpens the vowel sound, as in "hah" or "hurrah." "Cheh" would be meaningless. To the actual final sound in the word the usual combination "ck" or merely "k," would approximate as closely as any other. And the way to spell "Czech," therefore, would be "Cheek," or phonetically "Chek." This would combine as well in "Checkoslovak." And, by the way, those people do not want to be hyphenated. They are a united and homogeneous people, and they want to be spelled in one word—"Czecho-Slovak," if we really insist upon that borrowed and illogical orthography or "Checkoslovak" or "Chekoslovak," if we spell the word as it is pronounced and as the principles of legitimate transliteration would require it to be spelled.

Two Napoleons.

Napoleon I had a son by his second wife, born in 1811; who was made King of Rome, but was created Duke of Reichstadt in 1818 by his maternal grandfather, Francis I of Austria. After the overthrow of Napoleon I the son resided at the court of Francis I until his death, near Vienna, in 1832. He was heir to the throne of Emperor of France and was sometimes styled Napoleon II, though he never reigned. His mother was Marie Louise, daughter of Francis I of Austria, and his baptismal name was Francis Charles Joseph Napoleon Bonaparte.

Britain Day in the United States

Britannia for the first time will figure in a poster to be widely circulated in America. Carton Moorepark, an English artist, who has given the full four years of war service to the cause of Great Britain and Canada, has just put the finishing touches to a typical British poster which will be distributed by the New York Committee having in charge America's tribute to Britain, December 7, 1918.

The British Lions and its cubs, representing the colonies, will be striking figures in the poster, of which a first edition of 30,000 is to be distributed shortly throughout the country.

The Honorary Chairman of the Committee, whose headquarters are at the Hotel Belmont, New York City, is Dr. Charles E. Eliot, of Harvard, and the Chairman is Judge Alton B. Parker. Strong committees are being organized throughout the country, and the outlook is that a very strong showing will be made as to the esteem in which America holds the part which Great Britain has borne in the war for the protection of this country against the murderous Huns.

A DOOR OPENS.

A New Era Dawns in South America.

South America, with its defects and deficiencies, as well as its wonderful possibilities, is vividly pictured by Maximiliano Ayllon in an article on "Contrasts and Tendencies in Latin America" in the "Inter-America Magazine." These twenty republics, stretching from the southern line of the United States to Cape Horn, says the writer, "possess great natural forces which are now latent and now manifest, now slumbering and now self-destroying. They are peoples of incredible contrasts; they possess mines of fabulous wealth which are not exploited; lands of astonishing fertility that are not cultivated; men of energy and vast and noble talent that neither construct nor guide; memories of a past that do not inspire them; visions of a future that do not set them in motion."

Nevertheless, the writer finds that "There exists here the fundamental elements of great peoples: a language that unites and mingles them: an ethical ideal that is almost identical: a future that offers exalted stories through common effort." He finds that:

"There exist other forces and factors still that are more readily translated into positive facts. There is already being formed here a middle class, conscious of its right to liberty and of its civil prerogatives. Ideas of true liberalism are now being disseminated, and the working classes of many of the republics demand well defined institutions and procedures. No longer is our great pride based merely upon bygone glories and sonorous idealisms, and both the individual will and the collective conscience seek the exercise of productive work and tangible merit. We catch a glimpse of something like a virile movement. From this spirit of enterprise, this initiative that is being developed, will spring order, system, formulas. The educated classes lean toward the development of agriculture, as yesterday they inclined to the cultivation of the fine arts: The directors of policy will seek victories in the true realization of beneficent deeds and methods, as yesterday they found them in the unconscious subjection of the weak classes. Savings will be brought together to form mobile and active capital, as yesterday they were buried beneath mysterious trees upon the banks of unknown rivers. The youth that hesitates to-day and to-day yields to the drag of the enervating surrounding medium will be able to-morrow to initiate and to win success in the field of an organized and triumphant patria. Idle lands will become cattle estates. Those who crouch to-day will stand erect to-morrow. With the vital impulse of the Latin-American and the stimulus of this epoch of such productiveness, we shall learn how to destroy hurtful influences, how to exploit our lands and use our riches, to form generations of solid, active and enterprising men, to spread the idea of an extensive and formidable patria."

You Just Try NR For That Indigestion

Get your organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination working in harmony and watch your trouble disappear. NR does it or money back.

One Day's Test Proves NR Best

The stomach only partly digests the food we eat. The process is finished in the intestines where the food is mixed with bile from the liver.

It must be plain to any sensible person who realises this, that the stomach, liver and bowels must work in harmony if digestive troubles are to be avoided or overcome.

This fact also explains why sufferers from indigestion, also suffer more or less from headaches, biliousness and constipation.

If you are one of the many unfortunate persons who cannot eat without suffering afterward, if you are constipated, have bilious spells, headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, variable appetite, are nervous, losing energy, and feel your health slipping away, take this advice and get a box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) right today and start taking it.

SAVAGE METHOD OF WARFARE

Germany Broke International Agreement When She Began the Use of Poison Gas.

Poisonous gases are produced by some explosives which have been commonly used in warfare. They are the products of the explosion. The direct use of poison gases, however, was specifically inhibited by The Hague convention. They were used deliberately for the first time on April 22, 1915, on part of the Ypres salient. A poison gas cloud (chlorine) was there launched by the Germans against the French and British, where they joined, the Turcos and Canadians receiving the brunt.

Frustrated in the quick accomplishment of their aims, the Germans again threw all honor aside, as they had done in Belgium, and used poison gases. In this way they proposed to end the war quickly. The immediately bitter purpose was to kill and affect the morale of the colonials. Written and spoken narratives of the effect of that great greenish-yellow cloud of the minds of those soldiers, as it rose right out of the ground, rolled toward and enveloped them, the first whiffs choking, then producing spasms of agony, are thrillingly terrible. Many died a horrible death; many who raced away ahead of the weird waves got sufficient of the gas to affect their health seriously.

The morale was not broken, however, and the war was not soon over. If the Germans had done the vicious thing more thoroughly the war might have been over long ago.—American Review of Reviews.

ALMOST BLIND FROM HEADACHES.

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time. Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief.

In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

The reason Burdock Blood Bitters makes permanent cures of all cases of headache, is because it starts the organs of elimination acting freely, and the poisons and impurities are carried off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, pain instead of pains and aches there is revived mentality and bodily vigor.

Mrs. Geo. Monck, Arden, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled a great deal with sick headaches, and at times would almost go blind, and have to go to bed. I tried different kinds of medicine without any benefit until I was advised to use Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking it, I have not been troubled since."

Canadians Are Wrongly Blamed

Storm of Protest Over Arrest of Officials.

By W. E. Playfair
(Canadian Press Correspondent.)

VLADIVOSTOK, March 18.—There has been a storm of protest in local papers over the arrest of some of Vladivostok officials at the request of the Omsk government following a reported holding of Bolsheviki conventions in Khabarovsk and here. The Canadians are wrongfully blamed by several journals for policing the town the night of the arrests. As a matter of fact the Canadians were only performing their usual guard duty and the feeling of antagonism reacting against the British here is unjustified. The Canadian Red Cross is sending another train load of supplies and disinfectants to the Omsk district for Russian refugees. Colonel Morrissey, who is returning to Vladivostok with the Canadian vanguard, has been in Omsk since December.

FIGHTING RAILROADERS.

Some of the Problems That Grew Out the War.

Canadian Pacific	9,661
Grand Trunk	4,826
Canadian Northern	3,500
Government railways	2,409
Algoma Central	38

How far can the railway companies of Canada re-absorb the twenty thousand odd employes who answered the call of duty to fight for the freedom of the Empire?

The policy of all of the transportation companies is to reinstate in their former positions all of their employes of all ranks and grades who fought in the forces of Great Britain or the Dominion, and already a considerable number have returned and taken up their former work. But a new factor has entered into the situation, according to higher railway officials of all railways because the men in many cases do not want to return to the class of labor they were engaged in before they went away and wish to take advantages of the educational and other advantages offered by the Government to returned soldiers. Probably not one-half of the 20,434 men who were formerly employed in the railway companies will even return to work on the same terms and in the same positions as they formerly were employed.

An official of the C.P.R., discussing the situation, said: "The policy of the company is to reinstate men as far as possible. That will not be possible in some cases where men have suffered physical injury. But where a man cannot be employed on his old job we will find another one for him where he will not be handicapped by the loss of a limb."

Such employment consists of office staff help. A one-armed man can be used as effectively in an office as a two-armed man "because he is most useful to us from his neck up and not from his neck down," as one railway official explained it. There are numerous outdoor jobs which provide useful occupation for the man who is minus a limb or two such as watchman at crossings, pump tenders, gatemen, timekeepers, and even in exceptional cases foremen.

The period which is about to open in the spring means employment on a large scale on all the railway companies. General superintendents and division superintendents from one end of the country to the other have made large requisitions for work on the tracks and general maintenance which has perforce had to stand over on account of lack of help for some time, even in some cases for some years, and employment for many men is assured for some time in this way.

What is the position of the railway companies in regard to work in sight at present? An official of the Grand Trunk replied that the situation has narrowed down so far as that railway is concerned to a financial one. There is plenty of work to be done, but it must be financed and the longer it is put off the more expensive it will be in the long run.

In Ontario there are long stretches of track on all railways which must be relayed, and which would have been relayed long ago had it been possible to get steel, but the demand for steel by the munition plants which naturally had the first call, was so great that little was available for the railways, which have had to

GERMANY AND JAPAN.

Viscount Kato Recalls Some of His Experiences.

Viscount Kato, the veteran Japanese diplomatist, who was Foreign Minister when war broke out, has made some interesting disclosures of German treachery and duplicity at an informal political dinner, attended by many influential Japanese statesmen.

Referring to the triple interference at the end of the China-Japan war, which he had no doubt was of German origination, Viscount Kato said at that time he was Ambassador in London, and saw the cartoon of the "Yellow Peril," which the Kaiser had drawn to destroy Japan's honor in the eyes of the world. Had it not been for Germany's arrogant interference, he said, the Russo-Japanese War would never have happened.

"A short time before the triple interference was announced," continued the Japanese statesman, "the German Ambassador in London asked me for an interview, so I called to see him. He made some lame attempt to justify Germany's heinous conduct. He said Germany was interfering in the interest of Japan, for if she stood aloof Russia and France would make more exorbitant demands, and he asked me to convey that message to my Government at home.

"I was young, being only 38, so that I could not repress my indignation at his contemptuous proposition, and said I would do nothing of the kind, reminding him that if the German Government had any communication to make to Japan on the matter it should be made through the Japanese Minister at Berlin or the German Minister at Tokio.

"Then he had the impudence to says: 'You are a young man yet, and ought to read the history of European diplomacy.' I retorted that whether I read the book or not was my own affair, that it did not require old age to see that Germany's conduct in that case was an uncalled-for and unwarrantable interference, and that I could not convey to my Government a message which was made in such an irregular manner.

"Later, when the Kaiser paid a visit to the Court of St. James' a great banquet was given in the royal palace, to which all representatives of foreign nations were invited. There were cordial greetings all round; but the Kaiser, while courteous to the others, gave me the cold shoulder and left the chamber without taking any notice of me.

"It is quite fresh in our memory," said Viscount Kato, "that upon his departure from Yokohama, after the commencement of hostilities between Japan and Germany, Count Rex, the German Ambassador to Tokio, refused to shake hands with Secretary Yoshido, who had gone to the pier to give him a send-off, and had the rudeness to say to him, 'Germany will never forgive you, Japan.'

"All this well typifies the proverbial German baseness and treachery, and we can congratulate ourselves, not only for Japan, but for the whole world, that fate has recoiled upon Germany's own head the curses and intrigues which she had so heinously thrown broadcast upon the rest of the world."

How to Kill Dandruff So It Won't Return

By a Specialist.

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many other diseases as well, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which a famous scalp specialist states he has found after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germs in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of partial baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: 6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. While this preparation is not a dye it is unequalled for restoring grey hair to its original color.

THE REGIMENT OF WOMEN.

Welcome Desired for English Girls Who Married Our Soldiers.

Canadian Government officials overseas are giving considerable attention to the many thousands of British women who will shortly be sailing for the Dominion with their Canadian husbands who are now serving in the army. As the great majority of these women are the brides of soldiers married in England since the outbreak of the war, and have never been in Canada, it is felt that a special effort should be made to acquaint them with the conditions they will meet when they reach their new home. Through its immigration and colonization branch in London and in conjunction with the Khaki University, the Government has assisted in organizing a department of home economics which will be of great advantage to those availing themselves of the opportunity it offers.

Courses have been arranged in Canadian citizenship, cooking, poultry raising, gardening, first aid, home nursing, infant care and a number of other useful subjects. These will be open to any woman intending to go to Canada, without cost, the full course consisting of 12 lessons. Sir Edward Kemp, Minister of Overseas Military Forces, makes a special appeal on behalf of the wives of Canadian soldiers about to see Canada for the first time, urging for them, a considerate and sympathetic welcome.

"Our women-power," he said, "mobilized and well organized, has played a part in keeping with the proudest traditions of Canada. As one additional war effort, I make an appeal to our patriotic women at home to form in each town and city and port of disembarkation, a reception committee to receive and to extend to the wives and children of Canadian soldiers now proceeding to Canada a welcome that will leave no uncertainty in the minds of these English women of the position it expects them to take in our Canadian life in the future. Many hundreds of these dependents are now proceeding to Canada weekly, and part and parcel as they are of the future career of their husbands in Canada, it would, I consider, be unfortunate if their welcome proved less sincere and interested than that accorded our men now returning home from the war."

Help Control of Diseases.

A dairyman should report any contagious diseases among the workers on his farm to the health authorities and in this way assist in the control of diseases promptly. Only healthy men should be permitted to work with the cows and handle the milk, as there is great danger of transmitting disease to customers if necessary precautions are not considered.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in one or two teaspoonfuls, will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Bladder Troubles You—Salts is Fine for Kidneys

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve the bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's waste, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. The famous salts is made from the juice of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder

The Professor's Way

It Seemed Too Winning to Suit Hiram.

By HENRY LEWIS.

Professor Sweetzer, naturalist for a certain New England college, was a little man. He was round shouldered He was awkward on his legs He wore goggles for his weak eyes, and he arrived at the age of fifty-five without having loved As between bugs and beetles and women, the bugs and beetles were ahead. It was only on rare occasions and when under the stress of excitement that he took the slightest notice of the other sex. Even when he did sit up and take notice of them he could not have recalled half an hour later what he said or whether they had red hair or black.

On a certain day it came to the ears of Professor Sweetzer that a portion of the vertebrae of a whale had been found on a farm in Connecticut. He arrived on the spot next day and verified the find. On an occasion thou sands of feet before an old bull whale had decided to take a trip inland and through some error of judgment had left his bones in a gravel pit. A piece of the backbone six feet long had been uncovered The professor wanted to excavate for the rest. Where there is six feet of whale you can take it that there is more. He engaged board at the Widow Webb's and hired a man to wield the pick and shovel and thus went to work.

The Widow Webb was fat and forty and childless. She was worth a stony farm and $600 in cash. A still older sister lived with her, and the farm work was done by a hired man with the good old fashioned name of Hiram Stebbins. Hiram was thirty-five and drank nothing stronger than cider, but he thought deeply One of them was that if he married the widow he would become the possessor of the farm and $600. He had been thinking of this and taking the farm work easy when Professor Sweetzer put in an appearance. Hiram looked at him and grinned. If any one had told him that within a week he would be jealous of that little dried up and humpbacked specimen of humanity he would have roared with laughter.

As soon as the professor had inspected the bone and become enthusiastic he was a changed man. He became a fluent talker. He became fatherly toward the widow. He called her "my child" and often took her hand and held it while he tried to make her understand that a whale was a cachelot and that a cachelot could stand on his tail in the water as well as on his head.

When Hiram witnessed the hand holding act he quit grinning He was mad all that day as he hoed corn. He was mad when he came up to supper. He was mad when one of the cows kicked him at milking time. While the professor took a ramble in search of beetles, Hiram carried the milk into the kitchen and began:

"Widder Webb, how does it feel to have a baboon holding your hand?"

"Hiram, what do you mean?" was demanded.

"I mean that I have seen you and that little runt of a man squeezing hands a dozen times, and neither of you seems to care who stands by. Fell in love mighty quick, didn't you?"

"Look here, Mr Stebbins, you have no right to talk to me this way. You know who the professor is. He's a great man. He has taught me more about whales in the last three days than I knew in all my life before. He also knows all about birds and bugs and bees. It's twice as interesting to hear him talk as it is to hear a sermon."

"Has a feller got to squeeze your hand to talk to you about whales?" asked Hiram.

"He hasn't queezed it. That's simply his way He is a fatherly man. When he gets to talking he don't know whether he has got hold of my hand or the leg of a chair. You ought to be ashamed of yourself to talk as you do I always thought there was a mean and jealous streak in you, and now it's come out."

"Oh, it has, eh?" muttered Hiram. "Perhaps if I went around looking for the bones of an old whale I'd be all right."

"I guess it would be better than grunting around. You don't care for educated folks, but I do. I was born that way. If I was to ask you about whales you couldn't tell me anything."

"But the professor could?"

"Yes, sir, he could. Hiram Stebbins, do you know that the Latin name of whale is Physeter macrocephalus? Do you know that we get spermaceti and ambergris from its body? Do you know that he sometimes reaches the length of seventy or eighty feet? You stand there with a mean look on your face, and yet let me tell you that the sperm whale can swallow a man at a gulp. There are no teeth in the upper jaw, but the lower one has from seventy-five to thirty on each side. The eyes are small and placed far back in the head."

"Well?" grunted the hired man.

"Well, the cachelot feeds upon fishes and cephalopodous mollusks. You probably thought he fed upon turnips The whale is gregarious. Five hundred or more have been seen in a single herd. Terrible conflicts often take place among the whales, and it is not unusual to find the lower jaws deformed The left eye is said to be smaller than the right and the whale cannot

"All from the professor!" sneered Hiram as he bowed and walked out to fasten the hencoop for the night.

When the professor wasn't assisting his man to dig for bones he was hunting bugs and bees and butterflies. To his great joy he discovered a seven spot bumblebee. As all of us know, a bumblebee is of dark color with yellow spots on his back. There are often from five to six spots and only rarely a seven spotter. This bee, along with a dozen others, was placed in a pasteboard box, and when the house was reached the box was deposited on a window sill of the veranda. The professor had told the widow all about whales. As soon as he had a little spare time he meant to tell her all about bumblebees. Two days had gone by when the moment came. The bone digging labors of the day were over and supper disposed of when the professor and the widow took chairs on the veranda. He had found the shell of a small turtle in the gravel that day, and he set out to first explain about that. Hiram Stebbins was greasing his boots and chewing the rag in the kitchen and could hear every word. He also knew all about that box of bumblebees on the window sill.

According to Professor Sweetzer, turtles had hearts and lungs, hopes and aspirations. He would even go so far as to say that turtles loved and were loved in return. They did not sing like a bird nor bellow like a frog, but they were supposed to have musical ears for all that. In his earnestness the man got hold of the widow's hand. It was only his way. If he had got hold of her ear it would have been the same. He had called her his dear woman and his dear child half a dozen times and in his lecture he had got as far back as the turtle's markings when Hiram Stebbins could restrain himself no longer. He saw red. He thirsted for gore. He rose up to do murder, but checked his onslaught and walked softly into the sitting room. The window was up and the bee box before him, while the backs of the sitters were toward him. He lifted the cover and stepped back.

The dozen bumbles had been hopping mad and calling each other names for the two days. The cover was no sooner off than they swarmed to get room to square off. As they caught sight of the professor and the widow, however, the hatchet was instantly buried. There was a wild swoop, followed by wilder yells. Old seven spot led in the fray. He it was who lifted the professor over the veranda rail and let him drop among the hollyhocks while the rest were paying the widow attentions. The professor run and was followed; the widow shrieked and was stung again and again. It was not until Hiram rushed out with smoke and flame that she was rescued and a neighbor woman sent for to treat the lumps and bumps and put her to bed The professor returned not. Old seven spot wouldn't let him. No news came from him as the hours of night wore on, and Hiram wondered, but next morning the widow received a note reading:

"My dear child, please send my satchel by bearer. I'm off after more bones. The turtle, as I meant to have told you, is utterly without ambition."

"Waal," said Hiram to himself as he worked in the cornfield that day, "there was the professor and me and the widder and the whale and the bumblebees, and if I hain't come out top o' the heap, who has?"

Milk in Red Bottles.

It is probable that in the near future all milk will be delivered in red bottles, for it has just been discovered that, while ordinary light hastens the "spoiling" of milk, the red rays prevent it. The violet rays, on the contrary, cause the milk to turn. Pure, fresh milk or sterilized and pasteurized milk if placed in an uncolored glass bottle and left in the full sunlight is completely spoiled by evening. But substitute a red glass bottle or wrap the ordinary bottle in red paper and milk is perfectly good after standing ten hours in the sun.—New York World.

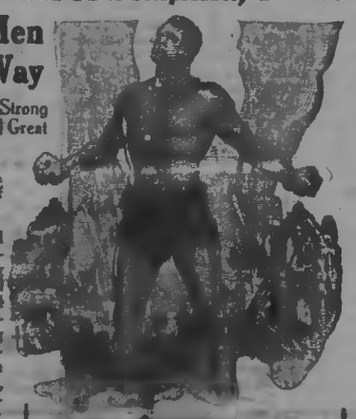
What Makes Men of Blood and Iron? Men of Stamina, Force and Success—Men Who Lead The Way

Physician Explains Secret of Strong Nerves, Keen Active Brains and Great Physical Energy—says

Nuxated Iron Helps Put Strength and Energy Into The Veins of Men



Will War Help Make New Race Of Super-men With Strength and Endurance Like Athletes of Old?

It is the men of blood and iron—on a par with the war-hardened fellows returning from camp and field—who will forge ahead in the business and political life of the country today. Living in the open, eating coarse foods and leading regular lives have made blood rich in iron for these strong, healthy, vigorous specimens of manhood. But no such opportunity for building up their health is open to thousands of men and women in civil life whose wearing tasks and iron-impoverished food sap their energy and make them weak, anaemic and run-down and often cause their blood to literally starve for want of iron.

In commenting upon the possibility of building up a stronger race of people by increasing the supply of iron in their blood, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Mount Sinai Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says: "Iron is absolutely necessary to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men or healthy rosy-cheeked women, and unless the strength-giving iron is obtained from the foods we eat, it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive. For supplying this deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles, I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results. The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, is in itself an evidence of tremendous public confidence and I am convinced that if physicians would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down, it would help make a nation of stronger, healthier men and women."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is distributed in Canada by all druggists.

Birds as Barometers.

Birds are excellent barometers. A number of our birds—swans, wild duck, coots, moorhens and others—build their nests either on the banks of a river or floating on its surface attached to the reeds or water grasses. These birds, it is said, never by chance get caught by floods, and if you see a swan's nest, say, a foot above the river level you may be sure that during the next few weeks there will not be rain enough to raise the river above that height. The common robin knows a great deal about forthcoming weather. If he sings in the morning it is a certain sign of bad weather.

Fawn Remarkably Tame.

While standing in the woods Warden Otis C. Small of Hammonton, N. J., says a young fawn approached and after eyeing him for a short time came up and rubbed his body with its nose. The warden says he had no trouble in making friends with the deer. Warden Small expressed the opinion that deer knew when the closed season was on, but that this was the first instance when one actually held him up in the woods.

Floral Statues.

Chinese gardeners sometimes plant statuettes of tin men firmly in pots, just like real plants, and then train live evergreens to grow up over these statuettes. The vines thus form a kind of robe for the statuette men, their white faces and hands protruding from the green leaves.

Protects Chickens from Microbes.

An incubator invented by a Parisian not only hatches chickens, but protects them from microbes until they reach a certain age.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer to most fat peoples is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. However, in Marmola Prescription Tablets, all these difficulties are overcome. They are absolutely harmless, entail no diet or exercise and have the added advantage of cheapness. A large case is sold by druggists at 75c Or if preferable, they can be obtained by sending price direct to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this you have no excuse for being too fat, but can reduce two, three or four pounds a week without fear of bad after-effects.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a strong tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of trouble.

While gray, faded hair is beautiful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness by darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and no one can tell, as it darkens so naturally, so evenly. You simply moisten a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes wonderfully dark, glossy and luxuriant and has that appearance of abundant vitality and gloss which is a delightful mark of beauty. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

SINN FEINERS ARE PLANNING CAMPAIGN

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 18.—The more aggressive section of the Sinn Fein party in Ireland contemplates a campaign similar to that adopted by the militant suffragettes. At the moment there is a prospect of the peace conference intervening in behalf of Ireland. This will be for the purpose of focussing public attention on the demands of the party.

FEW CENTS DESTROYS YOUR DANDRUFF AND STOPS FALLING HAIR

Save Your Hair! Make It Thick, Wavy and Beautiful—Try This!

Thin, brittle, colourless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on new life, lustre and brilliance that is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable glossy softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Gas as a Fuel.

Experiments in England with ordinary producer gas as a fuel for internal combustion engines has shown that as the size and power of the engine increases the loss on producer gas diminishes. The fact that coal gas, although of lower calorie value than gasoline, gives better results, is accounted for by the pressure of the gas in the bag, which delivers this fuel to the engine with little or no "back pull."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hot Air For Rheumatism.

A well known physician advocates the use of dry hot air in acute rheumatism, not, however, to the neglect of internal remedies. The salicylates, he thinks, should always be used. The results to be obtained with hot air are:

First.—Immediate relief of pain, however severe, which relief may be rendered permanent by repeating the treatment as often as the pain becomes troublesome every four hours, if necessary.

Second.—Shortening of the duration of the disease, which usually lasts only from five to ten days when hot air is thoroughly administered in combination with salicylic acid.

Third.—Lessening of the liability of cardiac involvement because of the rapid control obtained over the pathological condition, whereby the infection is inhibited from further attacks upon other tissues.

Fourth.—The lessened number and quantity of the drugs which it is necessary for the patient to ingest, because of the increase in the efficiency and intensity of their action at the seat of infection; hence, rendering it possible to avoid drug intoxication.

Hair from China.

The exports of human hair from China have averaged about 3,000,000 pounds a year for the last ten years. With the revolution of 1911, the cutting of queues was very general throughout the south and many men in the north parted with theirs, although the majority of the male population north of the Yangtze still wear their queues. The supplies of hair are augmented from the combings of women, who in times of stress dispose of their hair. It is exported under three grades: (1) Solid dressed clubbed lengths; (2) stumps, and (3) combings. The first grade is dressed in solid lengths of from eight to thirty-six inches, with two inches difference between each length. The second consists of short hair under fifteen inches, also in small bundles. The third takes short, tangled hair and combings. Before being shipped to this country all hair must be officially disinfected. Consul-General Anderson reports that the Hong Kong exporters require that the hair be sold in assortments and carefully sterilized before being shipped.

Nature's Barometer.

One of the simplest of nature's barometers is a spider's web. When there is a prospect of wind or rain the spider shortens the filaments by which its web is sustained and leaves it in this state as long as the weather is variable. If it elongates its threads it is a sign of fine, calm weather, the duration of which may be judged by the length to which the threads are let out. If the spider remains inactive it is a sign of rain; if it keeps at work during rain the downpour will not last long, and will be followed by fine weather, says an exchange. Observation has taught that the spider makes changes in its web every twenty-four hours, and that if such changes are made in the evening just before sunset the night will be clear and beautiful.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made, and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickling, and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day or two will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Real Lady.

The cabby was brought before the magistrate for using violent language to a lady. "But she ain't no lidy," he protested fiercely. "Indeed!" queried his worship. "And do you know a lady when you see one?" "Of course I do!" indignantly answered the man. "Why, only the other day I saw one! She give me a parn'd note for a shillin' fare and walked away. 'I, mum,' I calls 'what abart yer change?' 'Don't be a blinkin' old fool!' ses she; 'keep it, and get drunk enough to kiss yer mother-in-law.' Now, yer worship," he ended, triumphantly, "that's what I call a real liddy."

DEVOTED WOMAN MUCH BELOVED

Headed the V.A.D. Work During the War.

IS KNOWN TO CANADIANS

Lady Ampthill, C.B.E., C.I., Was Lady-in-waiting to Queen Mary Until the Call of Her Country Gave Her More Important Duties to Perform on Behalf of Her Fellow-Countrymen.

SOMEBODY will come forward one of these days to tell the story of the self-denial and the devotion that characterized the work of the women who belonged to the Voluntary Aid Department during the war. The V.A.D.'s were almost entirely women who had sufficient money to remain in comfort during the war if they had not felt the call of patriotism. They came forward, however, and offered their services, chiefly in hospitals, to help win the great struggle. They had the unpleasant work to do, while the nurses looked after the more expert side of attending to the wounded. Many stories of the splendid heroism of the V.A.D.'s have been told. A large number of the women who worked in the hospitals of England were Canadians who had followed their husbands across the water. They desired to assist in the winning of the war, and gave their services freely. To these Canadian women, who are now returning to the Dominion in large numbers, Lady Ampthill, C.B.E., C.I., needs no introduction. Before the war, Lady Ampthill was a lady-in-waiting to Queen Mary, but in 1915 she became interested at once in the mighty undertakings launched at once by the women of the Empire. Her executive ability soon made her a leader, and she became in time the head of the committee in charge of the V.A.D. work. She was one of the busiest women in England during the four years of the war, and became greatly beloved by the workers and the soldiers. Since the war Lady Ampthill has been to France with Princess Mary, when King George's only daughter took her first trip abroad.

China's Mineral Wealth.

In the light of the constantly predicted exhaustion of the world's coal supply the following note from the U. S. Commerce Reports is of interest:

"For the past twenty years the world has heard marvellous stories of China's vast wealth in coal, yet China to-day imports more than it exports. The figures for 1917 show 1,000,000 tons exported and 1,400,000 tons imported, yet, according to V. K. Ting, Director of the Geological Survey of China, a minimum estimate of China's wealth in coal indicates that it is sufficient to supply the world's consumption, at its present rate of 1,000,000,000 tons a year, for a period of 1,000 years. Probably no other statement made concerning China would demonstrate more forcibly than this the backwardness of the country in modern industrial development. Coal is known to occur in every province in China.

One reads in Chinese history that several centuries before the beginning of the Christian era the banners of China were carried to the Caspian Sea, there to meet the banners of Rome, and that the way was thus paved for China's silks and iron in European markets. The Shansi iron industry is claimed by a Chinese writer to be the oldest in the world. Like many others of the great resources of China, the country's deposits of iron ore have been but little developed. Dr. H. Foster Bain, assistant director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, who spent some time in China investigating its mineral resources, estimated that China has 466,000,000 tons of iron ore available and suitable for modern furnace reaction and an additional 300,000,000 tons that might be treated by native methods.

"Daylight Saving" Figures.

Careful investigation shows that in the seven months of "daylight saving" approximately 1,250,000 tons of coal was saved in the United States. Calculations made of the coal consumption in a community of 1,000,000 people indicated that the saving was 17½ tons per 1,000 persons for the period. Figures from other districts showed a similar saving.—Popular Mechanics.

Investigated Our Minerals.

Although the United States Department of the Interior has been working almost since the beginning of the war for an appropriation and authorization to assist in and stimulate the reduction of necessary minerals and metals, which if being produced at home would save precious ship tonnage for immediate war uses and make America independent of outside supplies, it was not until the last days of September that Congress finally passed and the President approved a bill for those purposes, carrying with it an appropriation of $60,000,000 for capital and $500,000 for administrative expenses. Congress did, however, early appropriate $150,000 for the Bureau of Mines to use in making a survey of developmental possibilities and for co-operative work with private producers. With this small fund the bureau created an investigating corps of about fifty scientists, engineers, and helpers, supplemented by occasional co-operators. Directly or indirectly the mineral possibilities of the country were minutely examined from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Mexico. Investigations even included Canada and Cuba, and Alaska was not overlooked. As a result of this work and the natural response to high prices the spirit of adventure has been aroused prospectors have swarmed to the mountains and plains, and there has been an amazing increase in the production of some of the rare minerals essential in the manufacture of war materials, such as tungsten, molybdenum, mercury, magnesium, and magnesite.—American Review of Reviews.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get ½ ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to 1-4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noise. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Counting Money.

Experience in talking about billions of dollars is different from dealing with concrete facts in reference to those immense sums. It was said recently that an expert cashier can count 4,000 silver dollars in an hour, or 32,000 in a day. But to count $1,000,000,000 would require his constant work, at that rate, day after day, for 102 years!

No manufacturing is carried on in Tunis except the soap-making industry, which is dependent upon the olive-oil industry; one or two canning establishments of little importance and the native shoemakers, rug and textile weavers, saddlemakers, etc.

Shock Left Her Weak and Nervous
COULD NOT SLEEP

When the system receives a shock of any kind, the heart becomes weakened, the nerves unstrung, the appetite poor, faint and weak feelings come over you, you can't sleep at night, and you wonder if life is worth living.

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as the best remedy to tone up the entire system and strengthen the weakened organs.

Mrs. J. J. Bunyan, Pilot Butte, Sask., writes:—"I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills after having suffered from a terrible shock to my whole system. I was all utter weak and nervous I could not sleep at night, and my appetite was very poor. I could not walk across the floor without trembling all over.

I had hot flushes and fainting spells. When I was on the second box of your Heart and Nerve Pills, I began to feel that they were doing me good so I kept on until I had used six boxes, when I felt like a different person.

I am never without them in the house, and highly recommend them to all who suffer with their heart."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Tentative Agreement Ready for Ratification By the Supreme War Council

Amount of Indemnity Will Be Announced in a Few Days—Japan Wants Racial Equality.

SPEEDING UP WORK

(United Press.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

PARIS, March 19. — The Supreme War Council was expected to ratify formally to-day the tentative agreement understood to have been reached yesterday on territorial and financial questions of the preliminary peace treaty.

The conference yesterday was attended by President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau. Italy and Japan were not represented because the matters discussed did not directly affect them.

The session which lasted from 3 to 3.35 p.m., was described as satisfactory.

Speeding up Process.

The plan of alternating in formal meetings of the allied leaders and sessions of the Supreme War Council, was adopted yesterday, as part of the speeding up process. When the council adjourned on Monday until to-day it was understood that several matters affecting principally the United States, Great Britain and France, would be taken up. The question of both the western and the eastern frontiers of Germany, was said to have been thoroughly discussed. John W. Davis, representing the United States on the Reparation Committee, L. B. Locheur, for France, and Lord Sumter, for Great Britain, were called in for discussion of the financial conditions today.

The Big Powers.

The big powers it was learned today, are now in practical agreement regarding the principle of working out financial affairs; namely, that the final bill for reparation must be based on what experts find Germany will be able to pay over a comparatively short period of years.

With the government head already agreed on this basis the fixing of the definite amount of the indemnity appeared to be a matter of only a few days.

Will Press Position.

Meanwhile, work is also being pushed on the League of Nations covenant, which will be incorporated in the preliminary pact. A call was sent to all neutrals yesterday to have their recommendations for changes and amendments ready for presentation at the special session of the league sub-committee to-morrow.

Japan intends to press its position that the covenant, which is designed to establish the equality of peoples, should establish the principle of racial equality.

BANKER'S WIFE WAS KILLED BY A BOMB

(Canadian Press.)

OAKLAND, Cal., March 19.—Mrs. [illegible] Greenwood, wife of the vice-president of the Savings Union Bank and Trust Co. of San Francisco, was killed by a bomb explosion last night in the garden of the family home. According to the police a letter demanding five thousand dollars, and threatening to destroy his home with dynamite unless the amount be paid, was sent to Greenwood in January.

Address By Mrs. Courtrice

Speaker Urged Greater Co-operation Between Parents and Teachers.

Co-operation between parent and teacher through the medium of Home and School clubs was strongly urged by Mrs. Courtice, who under the auspices of the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary's School, gave an interesting and instructive address at the Collegiate Institute in the Assembly Hall last evening. In introducing the speaker, Mrs. S. T. Medd who very ably filled the chair, spoke of the activities of the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary's School, which is the only school club at present in existence in the city at present, and commented upon the surprisingly small knowledge the parents have of the conditions under which their children spend from eight to ten years which usually constitutes the child's school life.

Affiliated Clubs.

Mrs. Courtice said that she had come to the city for two reasons. First, because she had been invited and secondly because she was enthusiastic over the mission of home and school clubs. In Toronto she said twenty-five Home and School clubs have been organized and a General Council with which all the clubs are affiliated and which Council discusses matters of importance. One important question which came up recently was a change in the Truancy Act. She spoke strongly in favor of free-education at the Collegiate Institute and urged extended term of compulsory education. "The mass of the people must be educated," she said. "We can't have an ideal standard of education if the boys and girls leave so young as the present limit permits." Patriotism demands development along the educational lines."

Mrs. Courtice urged the elimination of formalities between home and school and urged the spreading of the "get together" spirit among the teachers and parents.

Vote of Thanks.

Mr. Clarke moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and it was seconded by Mr. G. O. Cameron.

Previous to Mrs. Courtice's address a splendid musical programme was given by talent either at present attending Queen Mary's School, or those who are ex-students.

CRATUITY APPLICANTS

Twenty-nine Thousand Applications Received at Ottawa—A Few Complaints.

INTRICATE DETAIL

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 19.— Twenty-nine thousand applications for gratuities have been received at the paymaster's branch of the Department of Militia from members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force who are discharged prior to the armistice on November 11, 1918. Already 26,000 first payments and 20,000 second payment cheques have been issued by the department to such applicants. Of the remainder of the applications a considerable number have been rejected, while others are being held over for further investigation. In the meantime the department states emphatically that there is no delay in the issuance of cheques which can humanly be avoided under the circumstances. Complaints there have been, but because of the intricate detail in connection with the retroactive application of the gratuity order-in-council to men who have been discharged all the way back from 1915 complaints are inevitable.

Amendments in O'Connor Case Will Be Heard by Judge

Chief Justice Falconbridge has given the following interim judgment in the case of O'Connor vs Fitzgerald, H. H. Davis for the plaintiff and John R. Corkery for defendant.

At the close of the case plaintiff's counsel asked to be allowed to amend by claiming proceeds of certain insurance policies which plaintiff transferred to her late husband in consideration of his making a will in manner agreed on between them which will did not prove to be the last will of the husband. It was plain that defendants would have had no proper opportunity then to make their defense. But it is equally plain that I ought not to expose the executors defendants and the estate to another action. I, therefore, have determined to allow the amendment on such terms as to costs and otherwise as I shall impose when giving final judgment on all matters in question. Plaintiff will therefore, deliver her proposed amendment. Defendants will amend their pleadings accordingly—all as promptly as possible. Any further evidence which is forthcoming may be adduced before me during week commencing March 31, either at Toronto or Peterboro', preferably at Peterboro', and in that event the parties will make their own arrangements as to attendance of stenographic reporter.

WILL NOT DELAY SIGNING OF TREATY

Three Amendments Have Been Made to the Covenant.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, March 19.—The inclusion of the League of Nations covenant in the preliminary peace treaty will not delay the signing of the treaty, which, it is hoped, will be accomplished within two weeks, said Lord Robert Cecil of Great Britain, talking to British and American newspaper correspondents last night. He said that the three amendments to the covenant had been submitted, but added he was "sure there will be no difficulty in meeting all legitimate objections."

GOVERNMENT MAY ANNOUNCE FUTURE TEMPERANCE POLICY

A Caucus Was Held in Queen's Park This Morning—Ear to the Ground.

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 19. — An early announcement of the government's future policy on the prohibition question, anticipated during the past week becomes a more certain prospect than ever in consequence of a caucus of the government and its supporters held at Queen's Park this morning, and continued until after one o'clock. While no intimation was forthcoming from the government as to the issues in consideration it was indicated from other matters that the Ontario temperance act threatened to become a rock on which the Conservative party would [illegible] unless amendments were forthcoming.

That more than a few of the members on the government side of the House, as well as some of the Opposition, were in sympathy with Colonel H. A. C. Machin, of Kenora, in his vehement denunciation of the Ontario Temperance Act, two weeks ago, is an open secret in the lobbies in the Queen's Park, and it is understood on fairly good authority that Premier Hearst is likely to give at least an outline of the government's future policy before many days elapse. It had formerly been anticipated that this would come during the budget debate, but it does not now appear probable that the Prime Minister will speak during the debate.

Those with an ear to the ground are confident, however, that an announcement touching the proposition will not long be postponed.

Powerful Plot at the Empire

A Treat for Motion Picture Patrons —Do Not Fail to See It.

"The Eleventh Commandment," a powerful motion picture drama, is being shown at the Empire Theatre today and to-morrow. It is the sensational story of a man's betrayal of a girl's trust and shows Lucille Lee Stewart at her best. Miss Stewart as Dora Chester is the embodiment of sincerity, winsomeness and deep feeling, and the role fits her better than anything she has done for the screen. Walter Miller who plays the role of the Adventurer, is well known, and one who never fails to register strongly in the role of villain clubman or [illegible] man of the world.

The story tells how Dora Chester, after a term of grief with the stigma of a prison term which had been unjustly thrust upon her by a scoundrel, is happily married finally to the lover whom she first rejected.

It is a wonderful play and one that will appeal to every lover of good motion pictures.

GERMAN STEAMERS SAILED FROM HAMBURG

Crews Want to Remain With Their Vessels.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, March 19.—Eight German steamers, including the Kaiserin, Auguste, Victoria, Cleveland, Graf, Waldersee and Pretoria, sailed from Hamburg this week for foodstuffs. According to advices from Berlin, it is said the crews of the ships made a formal demand that they should not be removed from the vessels during the trip.

"TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT"

Wilson Has Approved the Military and Naval Conditions Contained in Armistice.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

(United Press.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

PARIS, March 19. — Another "tempest in a teapot," seems to have blown over to-day.

Further investigation confirmed the fact that Foreign Minister Pichon in his statement on Sunday intended no opposition to the inclusion of the league of nations in the preliminary treaty, but merely questioned whether there was sufficient time to perfect the covenant for incorporation in the preliminary pact.

The neutrals will have their opportunity to present recommendations for amendments to the constitution at to-morrow's special meeting and it was believed that the covenant would be in shape to place before a plenary session for open debate by Saturday.

NAVAL CONDITIONS.

"President Wilson apparently has approved the military and naval conditions contained in the definite armistice with Germany," said the Temps, which usually voices the ideas of the French government. "Therefore, after the council of ten deliberates on these there is nothing to prevent Marshal Foch giving the Germans 72 hours' notice of the cessation of the present armistice and informing them of the new permanent conditions fixing their military status. But only the military problems have been solved in this manner. Political problems have been adjourned." The question therefore probably will come up before the council whether or not it is preferable to fix in a permanent diplomatic document Germany's military, political and territorial status. In this document that pact of the league of nations will be included. If this opinion prevails subsequent sessions will be utilized for fixing Germany's frontiers, after which the Germans will be summoned to Versailles to sign the preliminaries.

At the ceremony, Reverend Father Daignault, S.J., Montreal, who has preached the retreat for the past week at the Mount, preached a most impressive sermon explaining the meaning of religious vocation and spoke of the happiness which should come to every home through the choosing of a religious vocation by one of the daughters. He spoke of the different ways in which the silent pentrating voice of God is heard in calling His daughters into the Holy Life.

The Lordship Bishop M. J. O'Brien gave a short address complimenting the young ladies upon their entering the Holy Life, and also spoke of the blessing reflected upon the homes from which the Sisters had come.

10 Peterboro Men, Including Captain H. G. Rogers, Reach Halifax on the Celtic

Never Saw a Better Behaved Body of Men—Capt. Rogers Was Wounded in Both Lungs.

PETERBORO LIST

HALIFAX, N. S., March 19.—Prominent among those returning on the Celtic which arrived at Halifax late last night was Captain Harry G. Rogers, of Peterboro, who was captured at Zillebeke, on June 2, 1916, when serving with the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles. Capt. Rogers was shot through both lungs, and had to be taken to an hospital at Mons. Altogether he was held a prisoner in Germany for about two and a half years. For eight months he was held at Friedberg, where the conditions were none too bad, and for 18 months he was at Clausthal, where the prisoners suffered all manner of hardships. The latter camp was under the command of the famous Neimeyer brothers, who never lost an opportunity to make things as bad as possible for those under their command.

Capt. Rogers and eleven others made an effort to escape from Clausthal by an underground tunnel which they excavated with improvised tools and knives and forks.

For several months they labored until they had progressed about 30 yards. Just as they were figuring on making the dash for liberty an Irish orderly reported what they were doing to the German authorities, and as a result the twelve Canadians were courtmartialed and sentenced to seven months imprisonment to be served after the war.

The Irish orderly has since been taken back to England under arrest.

WELL BEHAVED.

Capt. Rogers is officer in charge of about 500 troops for the Toronto district who were prominent in the recent Ryrie riots. He says he never saw a better behaved body of men than they were on board of the Celtic.

[illegible]488 Sapper Stanley Hartley, 93rd Battalion.

POWER FOR LAKEFIELD

Village Council Held a Special Meeting This Morning.

LAKEFIELD, March 19.—A special meeting of the Lakefield Council was held at [illegible] o'clock this morning with Councillor J. A. Porter in the chair in the absence of Reeve F. J. Moore, who is indisposed. Councillors McDonald and Young were present at the meeting.

The following resolution was carried on motion of Councillors McDonald and Young:

"That whereas it is understood that the Dominion Government proposes to renew and enlarge the existing dam of the Trent Valley Canal in Lakefield and, whereas, such improvement and construction will make additional power available for the municipality of Lakefield it is resolved that Lakefield request the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario to prepare estimates and supply power in the following amounts,
200 horse power
400 horse power
600 horse power
1000 horse power,
of Lakefield energy to the municipality and that the Commission shall take such action as may be necessary to obtain information and negotiate for the acquirement of the rights of the present owners of the water power within or near Lakefield."

(Signed) J. A. Porter.

Hydro Promises Early Activity On Street Railway

The car line on the Monaghan Road will be extended from Patterson street to Ebersville, and the Park street line will be produced from Albert street to Lansdowne, looking at Lock street.

Encouraging and practically definite promises that these improvements would be begun early in the spring, and completed this year, were given the Council's deputation from the Hydro Electric Commission in Toronto yesterday.

Mayor Dunsford was accompanied by Aldermen Harrison, Garside, Edgar, McClelland, Phelan and Taylor, and City Clerk Armstrong.

Sir Adam Beck assured the deputation that the Hydro engineers, and likewise the Commission had made a thorough survey of the local traction problem and had planned certain alterations which should increase business and make the service a profitable one. At present it was not yielding a profit. The proposed changes in the south end were urged by the deputation, who found that this is the principal improvement that the Commission has under consideration.

In regard to the radial line from Whitby to Ottawa through this district it was decided to call a meeting of representatives of the municipalities in Eastern Ontario in the near future, and arrange to present the scheme to the [illegible] for approval.

Well everybodys feelin' mighty fine
And you can't stop dancin'
To the music so entrancin', honey,
Way down in Caroline.

The above is the lilting opening chorus of the Y. M. C. A. Minstrel Show, Grand Opera House next Thursday and Friday.

With pep to burn and under the able direction of Mr. Asa Huycke, these boys have sure got "some show." The proceeds are to be used for a memorial for those who took part in the bigger show "Over There".

The show has a chorus of 60, eight experienced end men, favorite soloists duetts, quartettes, dancers. The young ladies from the Y. W. C. A. are assisting with the very latest thing in asthetic dancing and with athletic stunts, special electrical effects, and augmented orchestra. This promises to be the best amateur minstrel production ever seen here. Phone Y.M.C.A. Peterboro Music Co., or any of the boys for tickets.

THE BATHING PLACE QUESTION.

The members of the city council were in a generous mood at Monday night's meeting, except in so far as the bathing place question was concerned. The grant to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition was doubled, an increase was made in the allowance for the Labour Day celebration, several salary increases were authorized and it was decided to pay the expenses of the Fire Chief in connection with the Calgary convention. There is no fault to be found with any of these things, but to the Examiner it seems a pity that the measure grant of $500 for the establishing of bathing places could not at least have been increased to $1000. The amount recommended by the Property Committee is not sufficient to provide one bathing place and if the council persists in turning the $500 over to the Playgrounds Association, according to the resolution of the Property Committee, that body will have no other course than to use the money to improve the conditions at Inverlea Park. That is the only logical thing for them to do for the money is not sufficient to establish a new bathing place elsewhere in the city. The grant will be enough to make Inverlea much more comfortable than it has been and if the city representatives cannot see their way clear to voting an appropriation that would be large enough to warrant going ahead with a new bathing place, the Playgrounds Association would be well advised in deciding to spend the grant in the improvements that are necessary at Inverlea. It would be better to have one good swimming place than two that are only make-shifts, and if Inverlea is put into shape this year, it may be possible to secure a large enough appropriation next year to establish a new place.

DANGER IN DELAY

Canadians, in spite of the volume of news from Europe that fills the columns of daily newspapers, have failed to realize the critical nature of the situation across the Atlantic. People glance at the headlines on the front page about the progress of the Peace Conference or the activities of the Spartacans and without grasping the significance of what they see, turn impatiently to the sporting page or to read of the rapidly developing tariff conflict or some other matter of local import.

And meanwhile, according to intelligent observers who have been viewing the conditions at first hand, greater trouble than the war has just passed through is rapidly growing.

One of these, Frank A. Vanderlip, a well known American has been investigating in England and France, and is proceeding to Switzerland and Italy to continue his inquiries there. "I doubt if America has begun to comprehend the seriousness of the appalling situation which confronts Europe, and the wreck which the whole fabric of civilization may be facing," said this investigator in an interview in Paris.

"America was once told there might be peace without victory, he said. What we have is victory without peace. Production has ceased, and unless production can be resumed one's imagination cannot comprehend the chaos which may ensue.

"There is nothing to be gained by stopping to question who is to blame or by finding fault with the way events have been guided. The great productive machine of Europe must be started or the world will be confronted with a disaster such as no experience has recorded.

"I have seen something of the utter wreck which the Central Empires inflicted throughout the war zone. It is complete—no words can picture fully how complete it is. The wreck, however, covers only a strip from the channel to the German Border. There is [illegible] wreck that will cover all [illegible] destruction is not repaired [illegible] of war may be expected [illegible] horrors of this after [illegible] neither war nor [illegible] down of the machine [illegible] In the face of [illegible] every particular [illegible] every unessential [illegible] every pos-sonal ambition should be instantly forgotten.

"Unless terms of peace can speedily agreed upon, and unless these terms are such as will permit the resumption of something approaching normal industrial life there is not merely a chance, there is a strong probability for Russian Bolshevism overrunning Germany. . . .

"The first essential step is fixing the terms of peace. . . .

"What can America do? There is certainly one thing it cannot do, and that is to withdraw itself, to rest in the belief that this chaos is remote and that America can avoid playing her part in international responsibility. We must think in international terms as we never thought before. The gigantic strength of our own position will keep us free from the effects of events here. There is no time for narrow provincial views."

THE HOUSING PROBLEM

In taking up the consideration of the housing problem and in endeavoring to obtain as complete information as is possible in regard to the local requirements, the Great War Veterans Association of Peterboro is once more proving the necessity of its existence as a means of looking after the interests of the returned soldier. No section of the city's population is more interested in the matter of providing better housing accomodation than are the men who have been overseas and their return in constantly increasing numbers intensifies the problem inasmuch as many of the soldiers are bringing with them English brides. Houses will have to be found for these soldiers and their mates. In addition in many cases two soldiers' families have been living together and the return of the heads of the families from overseas will necessitate the securing of more houses.

The trouble is that houses of the right kind are hard to find. "You have to choose between a mansion or a shack," one returned man who had spent three or four days tramping around the city in search of a of a home complains. His description of the situation is apt. There is a dearth of houses of moderate rental that contain the conveniences that the man who takes pride in his family and himself requires. To obtain the living conditions that he would like and that he should have he has to pay a rental that is a serious strain on his financial resources.

Because of this condition of affairs the Veterans have decided to investigate the possibilities of the Government's housing plan. Questionaires are being sent out to interested parties containing the following questions which the recipients are asked to answer and return as soon as possible.

1. Is your present home satisfactory?
2. Have you tried unsuccessfully to find a more suitable house?
3. Are you renting your present home?
4. Are you boarding?
5. Are you living with another family?
6. If renting, what do you pay?
7. Where are you employed?
7. Do you own a building lot in the city of Peterboro on which you would like to build a home?
9. If not, would you be able to pay ten per cent. of the purchase price in cash as required by the Government plan?
10. Have you a relative in the army or navy who will shortly be returning to Peterboro who to the best of your belief and knowledge will require a home in Peterboro such as can be secured under the Governments plan?
11. Give relative's name, regimental number and unit.
12. Where was he employed before enlistment?

In sending out the questionaires the War Veterans are also sending a brief explanation of the housing plan as laid down by the Dominion Government. The information is valuable inasmuch as the majority of the citizens have but a vague idea of the scheme and the action of the Veterans should do much to focus public attention on the problem and the plan that has been adopted for its solution.

The circular reads:

"The Government of Canada has agreed to lend money through the Provincial Governments to assist in the erection of houses for returned soldiers and others of small means and a committee of the Peterboro Branch of the G.W.V.A. has been instructed to ascertain as far as possible what Peterboro's needs are at the present time in this respect. The plan includes the erection of houses on lots owned by citizens in lands secured for the purpose by the city or by companies incorporated under the Ontario Housing Accomodation Act and payment is made by equal monthly instalments like rent including principal and interest.

The maximum cost of each house together with the lot, and interest during construction is not to exceed $5,000. Loans will be for a period not exceeding twenty years at 5 per cent. Monthly payments would therefore be approximately as follows, repayment in 20 years on a $3,000 house, about $20 a month; on a $2,500 house, $16.75 a month; $2,000 house, $13.50 a month. Repayments in 15 years on $3,000 house would be about $24 a month on a $2,500 house, $20 a month, and on a $2,000 house, $16.00 a month. The citizen for whom the house is built pays for the lot, or ten per cent of the total value of the house down in cash and will have possession and could live in the house as soon as it is built. The owner must keep the house in repairs and pay taxes and fire insurance. The balance of the loan, whole or part, can be paid off at any time and the owner may sell his interest in the property if for any reasons monthly payments cannot be met."

Urges Mayor and Aldermen to "Stop, Look and Listen"

Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald Suggests a Cheaper Bridge, With Two Spans, Similar to That Proposed by Mr. R. R. Hall.

To the Editor, of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—After a thorough study of the Hunter Street Bridge question and a careful examination of the plans and specifications of the work as designed by Mr. Barber, your humble servant, as a considerable ratepayer, would respectfully ask our worthy Mayor and Alderman to pause long and well before committing this city to the future expenditure which, even the lowest tender for this work must indicate.

I respectfully submit to our worthy Mayor and Aldermen that the rate of taxation in Peterborough is fast becoming, intolerable and if more burdens such as the cost of this bridge— as now designed—are heaped upon the people they will soon find the city a very good place—to get out of.

I have no pretensions to pose as an authority on "Bridge design—or Reinforced Concrete Construction" but humbly submit that I am not ignorant of the fundamental principles which underlie them. I do not question Mr. Barber's ability or qualifications for this work as I know nothing whatever of them. This class of work requires special training and cannot be done by everybody—as a well-known authority on reinforced concrete construction says.

"A multitude of simple rules formulae and tables for designing reinforced concrete work have been proposed, some of which are sufficiently accurate and applicable under certain conditions, but the effect of these various conditions should be thoroughly understood. Reinforced concrete should not be designed by "rule of thumb engineers." It is hardly too strong a statement to say that a man is criminally careless and negligent when he attempts to design a structure on which the safety of the lives of the people will depend without thoroughly understanding the theory on which any formulae he may use is based.

The applicability of all formulae is so dependent on the quality of the steel and of the concrete and on many of the details of the design, that a blind application of any formulae is very unsafe. I am fully convinced that a bridge—fully as substantial—or more so—which will serve the City of Peterborough for the present century can be built for a little more than half what the proposed design will cost.

Without going into detail, the approaches to this bridge can be built a great deal cheaper and just as substantial by using the design, if I can call it such, to be seen on hundreds of high level Railway crossings throughout the country. These approaches would consist of two well battered thoroughly drained, reinforced concrete retaining walls. The space between the walls can be filled in with stone gravel or clay, which can be had almost on the spot and after this material has well settled can be capped over with concrete and asphalt. The walls can be built so as to leave a roadway twelve or fourteen feet wide between them and the street lines which, after allowing for a safe batter to the walls would give a clear roadway of fro mthirty two to thirty six feet on the approaches, this I am quite satisfied will be found amply sufficient to take care of the traffic over this bridge for this century.

As for the Bridge proper this can be built a good deal cheaper and more substantial by having two spans instead of one thus relieving the abutments of some of the immense strain which one span would subject them to By reducing the number of arches on each side of the River an immense amount of what is unnecessary and very expensive frills and ornaments will be eliminated—for instance under section ninety eight page seventeen of the specifications we find the following. "Surface finish—The vertical surface of the long arch over the River and certain vertical surfaces of the hand rail and other portions generally shown on the plans as requiring the ground finish shall comply with the following. All surfaces requiring the ground finish shall have at least two inches of aproved gray granite chips and grit placed next the forms simultaneously with the concrete backing.

Immediately after the forms are removed all unevenness such as board marks may be rubbed out, two weeks or more after setting the surface shall be rubbed with tools until smooth and even and in any event for a depth of at least one eighth of an inch, so that the small stones of the concrete shall be split and polished."

One would imagine after reading the above that this Bridge was over the Hudson and that the banks were studded with the mansions of multi-millionaires from "The Red Mills to Hospital point. Being fully convinced that a bridge and approaches twenty feet narrower than that proposed free of frills, etc., and costing perhaps a little over half, will take care of the traffic at this point for the present Century. I again respectfully ask our worthy Mayor and Alderman to "stop, look and listen" before they take the plunge.

Yours truly,
F. W. FitzGerald.

The County Road System Discussed by Mr. E. M. Elliott

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Referring to the financing of a county road system, confining it to one township of the county that is entitled to 50 miles of the proposed system of 200 miles for the county.

Taking the proposition of raising 3 mills instead of 1-2 mills that is now expended in statute labour and cash you raise on the said township $6,130.47 on local assessment, and you receive $3,000 from the government and city. From these figures you can only conclude that to get that amount from the government on the above ratio, it can only be obtained on the construction basis. Then how many miles would $9,130.47 consruct? Not more, at the cheapest possible expenditure, than six. Then what about the other 44 for all township statute labour and control ceases.

Automobile Traffic.

It matters not where you provide a smooth surface there will be 25 autos from the city to one from the county pass over it in the summer months, the same 25 being mostly from two to three ton autos driving rapidly, and, as a result, tear up the surface, whilst the traffic of the farmer, with lighter vehicles, more moderately driven, will have very little effect on such surface. The basis is 60 per cent. from the farmer on construction and 90 per cent. of maintenance, and again I argue that 90 per cent. of the wear and tear of such main roads will be due to city autos, it matters not where you provide such road.

Then, has it come to the time that "you farmers take a small part of the loaf or none." Judging by the signs in the horizon I predict differently. The infliction would not be on the farmer only, for turn your attention to the small property holder adjacent to the city or town who finds employment in such city or town, and the taxes of those ratepayers means considerable in the aggregate. Such ratepayers are satisfied to pay street car fare, or frontage and other taxes necessary for the construction and maintenance of sidewalks. Where they have neither they are not called upon to pay taxes for sewers, water rates, snow ploughing, etc. But if they should be taxed from 4 to 10 mills on the dollar for main county roads that will be used in the summer months without successful contradiction by 25 autos from the cities to one from the county. Then the old alternative is move into the city, where they can enjoy the conveniences they pay for.

Respectfully yours,
ED. M. ELLIOTT.

REPORT OF FARM CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Farm auction sales have been frequent of late, and as a rule sellers have obtained good prices for both land and live stock. Halton states that at sales in that county grain commanded more than the market price.

Considerable cleaning up has been done during the very open winter, and most farmers will have a good start with their spring work.

The York representative reports that several men have been recently engaged for farm work at from $350 to $460 a year, with board. Northumberland states that a number of returned soldiers are getting back to the land.

Cattle continue in good condition. There is less demand than usual for oil cake and mill feeds generally, as most farmers have enough grain and other fodder to carry live stock through nicely until good pasture arrives.

The Creameries.

Creameries report that they are getting good supplies. Proven milkers are fetching from $100 to $160.

The improvement in the value of hogs is bringing them out. Prices quoted by representatives range from $17.50 to $18.75 per cwt., f.o.b. Brant reports that at a recent sale, some brood sows sold for from $80 to $100 each, while in Victoria a sow with ten pigs ten days old, sold for $154.

Bad roads recently have prevented much marketing. Huron reports that at last beans are moving, although to a limited extent. Corn seed is plentiful in Kent, but there is little doing in sales. Clover seed is being disposed of in Elgin at from $20 to $30 a bushel. Hay is still scarce, although not called upon as heavily for feeding as in some winters.

Peterborough reports that the co-operative shipping of eggs will soon be started in that county.

Winter wheat is looking well in most localities, although there are a few complaints of a slight browning in appearance. Clover also has done well so far.
